The Uncle Sams and the Alphonsos.

THE SCORE.

DEWEY,	1
HOBSON,	12
SAMPSON,	02
SCHLEY,	022
CERVERA,	NIT.

FIRST INNING.

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought,to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

You can buy a Red, White and Blue Tie for 4c. Put the band around your neck and hear it play Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue.

If you want to take it cool get a crash hat for 24c. You can get a Blue Serge Suit (all worsted) for $7.50 and go and catch a high ball with what you save. If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

Your money back with a smile if you wish it.

HARASSING GEN. PANDO

Good Work of a Detachment of Cuban Skirmishers.

Delaying the Advance to Linares' Assistance.

Shafter Completing Plans For Great Onslaught.

Barbed Wire Fences to Fall Before Nippers Furnished Our Soldiers.

Kingston, July 1.—The Cubans are making a brave effort to keep Pando and 7800 Spanish soldiers from joining forces with Linares in Santiago. General Rios and a small force of Cubans have make attack after attack on Pando since the Spaniards marched from Manzanillo towards Santiago. The attacks have delayed the Spaniards a little, but the losses are insignificant.

A ragged, half-starved Cuban arrived at camp on Wednesday. He proved to be a messenger from Rios, bringing word to General Shafter that the Cubans were unable to cope with the army of Pando. Reinforcements were asked for. Rios had made a desperate stand near Las Palmas, and had succeeded in checking Pando. Rios' message said he could not hold the Spaniards back much longer. General Shafter decided that he would not send any Americans against Pando for the present. He requested General Garcia to dispatch a strong force of Cubans to the aid of Rios. Garcia promptly sent 2000 of his best fighters, placed them under the command of General Rabi, and ordered them to join Rios. Rabi and his men went to Siboney, where they were embarked for Serrado. From that place they went to Las Palmas.

It is reported unofficially that General Luque with 9000 men has started for Santiago. This body of troops is made up of all the scattered detachments which have been garrisoning the small towns, the forts and the blockhouses.

The American army is gradually stretching out across the hills on the eastern side of Santiago, within five miles of the cannon crowded hillside, which must be taken before the city can be captured.

Meanwhile 5000 picked Spanish infantry are making forced marches from Manzanillo to relieve Santiago on the northwest side. To intercept this powerful force our army may have to turn to the left wing of what is now the Spanish line. This would make the whole American line of action 12 or 15 miles long.

The barbed wire fences which General Linares seems to think would hold our troops back long enough for the infantry in the rifle pits and on the slopes and the old-fashioned cannon on the ridges to smash our lines, can be easily destroyed in a few minutes by the American troops, for every man carries in his pocket a pair of wire nippers.

It is clear that General Linares and Admiral Cervera expect General Shafter to advance along the seacoast and capture the railway bridge at Aguadores, storm Morro castle and allow Sampson's fleet to remove the mines and enter the harbor. It is expected that our troops will advance against the city in four directions, moving from the northwest, northeast, east and southeast at the same time. It is General Shafter's plan not only to take the city, but he intends not to allow General Linares to escape with his army. He has formed plans by which he is confident of capturing the largest Spanish force in eastern Cuba, and by which he will also enable Admiral Sampson to capture the best vessels in the Spanish navy.

General Shafter left his ship Wednesday and took up his quarters with General Wheeler at the front. His appearance there gave rise to the rumor that an attack on Santiago would occur at once, but the staff officers say it is impossible to get the army in shape to strike a blow for several days.

About 2000 troops are camped four miles east of the besieged city, and the remainder of the forces stretch along the road from there to Juragua and Baiquiri. The advance forces are in a semi-circle, the left flank resting about two miles from the sea, under the command of General Chaffee, with the extreme right, under the command of Colonel Miles, about a mile to the northwest. Beginning with the Twelfth infantry at the extreme left, the Seventh, Seventeenth, Fourth, Twenty-fifth and Tenth infantry extend to the right in the order named. Beyond them, picket lines are established three-quarters of a mile nearer, Santiago city being in plain sight of General Chaffee's and Colonel Miles' troops.

Much amusement has been caused among the officers by the large number of Red Cross flags flying from buildings in Santiago. They are all flying from the largest and most prominent buildings, and officers say the Spanish soldiers evidently intend to try to protect every place in the city offering a good mark for the American artillery.

The landing places are without incident. The hospital corps has finished its camp, and several patients are already undergoing treatment. There are quite a few cases of measles under the care of the physicians, but a majority of the cases of sickness result from the heat and the extreme hardships the men have undergone, principally in waiting for shelter and food since the landing off Santiago. The fleet lies silent and grim, waiting for the moment to come when it shall finally measure its strength with the harbor batteries. All day Wednesday four American men-of-war lay within a mile and a half of Morro's guns, but not a shot was exchanged. The sailors on board could almost have exchanged words with the soldiers ashore, and the fact that the Spaniards did not risk a shot or two is taken to indicate that perhaps they are very short of ammunition. The Iowa, Massachusetts, Indiana and New Orleans could easily have been hit, as they lay almost motionless within easy range, but Morro might have been a country schoolhouse for all the hostile demonstration it made.

IN THREE WEEKS.

President McKinley Looks For Quick Results In Porto Rico.

Washington July 1.—President McKinley told a caller yesterday that Porto Rico would be in our possession within three weeks. It is believed that operations there will be carried on with even greater speed than has marked the progress of events at Santiago.

Major General Brooke, now in command of the First corps at Chickamauga, has been selected to be governor general of Porto Rico, and he will have under ris immediate control the expedition which is now preparing. He has received orders to have his entire corps, numbering 30,000 men, ready to move within 10 days. Some of the regiments comprising the expedition are already boarding transports at Tampa. The others will follow as rapidly as possible. The selection of General Brooke for this important service is due to his own eagerness for service at the front, and to the great efficiency he has shown as commander of the Chickamauga camp.

The entire corps will proceed at once to Santiago, and there it will be reorganized so far as may be deemed advisable by transferring regulars and volunteers from Shafter's corps, the idea being that by this time aggressive military movements at Santiago will be at an end. Santiago will thus serve as a base for Porto Rico. It may be that most of the troops will not leave the transports. General Miles will accompany the expedition to Santiago and exercise general supervision at the beginning both there and at Porto Rico.

Three expeditions have now left the United States for Manila. In these three expeditions there is a total of 10,464 enlisted men and 470 officers. Major General Otis telegraphed the war department yesterday, announcing the departure of the third expedition, under command of Brigadier General McArthur, with Major General Merritt accompanying. General Merritt does not formally command this expedition, but goes with it to Manila to assume his duties as commander-in-chief of the United States forces in the Philippines.

MAJ. GEN. ELWELL S. OTIS.

The steamer Yale is expected at Newport News tomorrow from her first trip with Duffield's soldiers to take more reinforcements, probably including Garretson's battalion. The department is thoroughly satisfied with the success attending this method of transporting the troops from Camp Alger, having found it to be not only much more economical than the combined rail and water route via Tampa, but also more expeditious. The steamers will be further availed of in pursuance of Secretary Alger's intention to continue to dispatch reinforcements after reinforcements to Shafter until he has an overpowering force at his command.

Major General Coppinger is not to go to Santiago with any of these additional forces. He is senior to General Shafter, and if sent to Santiago would assume command of the army in front of that place. Therefore it is likely that he will be reserved for the command of the Porto Rican expedition.

The reports from Santiago as to reconnoitering parties and efforts of our officers to take observations of the city lead to the belief at the war department that a balloon may be utilized as a means of surveying Santiago and surrounding country. General Greely sent a balloon train with General Shafter's expedition, and it is now available for use on the field. The balloon is of the latest make and contains when inflated 17,000 cubic feet of gas. The complete equipment of gas-making machines and apparatus for filling the balloon accompanies the train. An experienced aeronaut, a major in the signal service, has the balloon in charge.

No word has come from Admiral Sampson making the slightest reference to the Spanish story of the sinking of the Brooklyn by a shell from the Santiago harbor defenses. As his orders would require him to report instantly on any such occurrence, the officials of the navy department have no hesitation in denouncing the story as a fabrication similar to that describing the killing of Captain Evans.

The reports of the collision between the Dolphin and the Newark are meager, but indicate that it took place near Key West. The Dolphin smashed her stem, filling the forward compartment back to the collision bulkhead. She is now on her way to Norfolk to be docked, and it is expected that about three weeks will be consumed in making repairs.

To Court Martial Montijo.

London, July 1.— The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "The government has ordered the formation of a small flying squadron.

"The cabinet has decided to courtmartial Admiral Montijo for the Cavite disaster, and it is probable that General Augusti, captain general of the Philippines, will receive a large reward."

Spain's Fake Factory.

Madrid, July 1.—A rumor was in circulation here that there has been a great battle at Santiago, resulting in the favor of the Spaniards.

The governor general of Porto Rico has cabled that the cargo of provisions and war material of the Antonio Lopez has been landed.

A Critical State.

Playa Del Este, July 1.—Intercepted dispatches from Admiral Cervera show a critical state of affairs at Santiago. Both food and ammunition are reported to be getting very short, and the latter will be exhausted very soon.

Two Bay State Men.

Washington, July 1.—Private Murdock McKennon, company G, Sixth Massachusetts, is reported at Camp Alger as suffering from typhoid fever.

While standing in the rear of a shooting gallery yesterday Private Talbot, company B, Sixth Massachusetts, was accidentally shot. A rifle which the proprietor of the gallery was handling was discharged and the bullet, after passing through an inch plank in the rear of the gallery, struck Talbot. The wound bled profusely, but the young man is not seriously injured.

The Cunning Camara.

Cairo, July 1.—It is officially announced that Admiral Camara has been notified to stop taking coal from the Spanish colliers and informed that he must leave Port Said, whereupon the Spaniards said their ships needed repairs, and began discharging coal and material in order to repair.

Chaplains For Catholic Soldiers.

Baltimore, July 1.—Cardinal Gibbons had an interview with President McKinley yesterday regarding more Catholic chaplains being appointed to the army. On his return his eminence said that his visit to the chief executive of the nation was a most pleasant one. He said: "I was most cordially received by the president, and had quite a lengthy interview with him. I set forth to him the great number of Catholic young men who are now in the army and navy, fighting and ready at a moment to defend their country, and how comparatively few Catholic chaplains there are with the army to look after their special religious welfare. My interview was most satisfactory, but I cannot now give any details as to how many or what particular Catholic chaplains will be sent to the soldiers."

The cardinal declined to say that he had received any instructions from Rome which caused his visit to the president for any overtures toward negotiations to bring the war to an end.

Will Do Lots.

Paris, July 1.—After announcing the cabinet's firm intention to carry out the democratic desires that the people has expressed during the recent elections, Premier Brisson told the deputies that the government proposed two principal reforms, fiscal and social—the first through a special bill replacing the taxes on personalty and realty by a graduated income tax; second, by means of retiring pensions to working people.

Good Afternoon.

Capt. Kincaide is to be complimented on his loyalty to country and for the personal sacrifices which he has made to go to the front. He is a self made man, and although young in years has succeeded in establishing single handed a wonderful business in the furniture line in this city, which has attracted trade from all the surrounding towns, not alone to buy furniture but to other stores. It is a mammoth warehouse of four floors which he has stocked, and such a large business requires close attention. His departure for the front may ruin this business, particularly if the war is of long duration, although seemingly left in the hands of a competent manager. We earnestly hope it will continue to flourish, and exceed all past years, and that Capt. Kincaide may win glory and honor, and return to us to reap further success in business, military, and official life. We doubt if any company which has been mustered in Massachusetts has as competent a captain. His courage in warfare has not been tried but we have seen it in his business life in a marked degree. He is soldierly, upright and honest, and one who will enforce the necessary discipline for the best welfare of his men. Members of Co. K will not be called to do rash things while he is in command, with such faithful assistants as Lieuts. Whitney and Spear. The Ledger predicts promotions for Capt. Kincaide.

The ministers of the Woodward board are to be complimented on the disposition of the dancing issue. There was a long and earnest discussion at the regular meeting, but it was marked with brotherly consideration one for another, and no words were uttered which caused any regret.

After all has been said, it is to be regretted that so many unkind things have been said in the press and on the street of Rev. Robert Westly Peach. No one could have made more manly apologies than he did both on the platform and in the press, without weakening in his opposition to dancing, and he has been a much abused man. Some of the church people have criticised him because he made any apology whatever, so that it will be seen that he has been between two fires, and he keenly feels the situation. He suffers most for his church and the cause of the Master, and it is true that as a minister of the gospel, who was fulfilling his Christian duties as he saw them, he should not be attacked as he was. Mr. Peach has been in the city longer than a majority of the pastors, and has been earnest in support of all moral issues.

Hot Time at Squantum.

Lorenzo Taber and his wife Jennie have been occupying a house at New Squantum owned by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Recently the cottage was leased to another party but the Tabers refused to leave.

This morning a gang or men from a Bostcn ejectment firm came out to put the family out and a hot time was immediately inaugurated. In the squabble Mr. Taber had the most of his clothing torn off, and Mrs. Taber suffered in a like manner.

One of the men of the ejectment party named, John Rich, claims to have been assaulted by the Tabers with an axe, and came to Quincy and secured a warant for their arrest.

Later Officer Holloran was got out of bed upon the rumor that a murder had been committed, and visited the place. The warrant was placed in his hands and he arrested Mrs. Taber and brought her to Quincy. Mr. Taber was not present when his wife was arrested, but he will be taken later.

320 GRADUATES.

Interesting Programme of the Grammar Grades.

The annual graduation exercises of the ten grammar schools were held Thursday afternoon at the High School hall. The attendance was very large and every available seat was taken, many who were unable to procure seats standing.

The graduates of the several schools assembled in the upper rooms and at the opening of exercises marched to the beat of a drum to the hall taking seats to the right and left of the hall. Each school displayed its individual school color and the marching was such as to bring forth much applause.

The programme was as follows:

March, Drummer, Lewis B. Tabb.

Chorus, "Where 'er I Go," Graduates.

Greeting to the Parents, Herbert Warren Lull, Superintendent of Schools.

Chorus, (a) "God of all Creation," (b) "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes," Graduates.

Greeting from the City, Hon. Russell A Sears, Mayor of Quincy.

Chorus, " (a) Sweet Spring is Returning," (b) "A Vacation Song," Graduates.

Greeting to the Pupils, Miss Mabel Ellery Adams, Horace Mann School, Boston.

Chorus (a) "Our Country," (b) "Pledge to the Flag," Graduates.

Greeting from the Committee, Hon. Charles H. Porter, Chairman of the Board.

Presentation of Diplomas, Chairmen of the Sub-committees.

Chorus, "Our Public School," words by Frederic Allison Tupper.

It will be seen that the programme included considerable singing, and under the direction of Mrs. Laura C. F. Smith it was the grand feature of the afternoon. Miss Helen E. Bemis and Miss Helen Sibley were the accompanists.

The addresses were none of them lengthy but pithy and to the point, and full of interest.

Supt. Lull spoke of the work which was now being done by the public schools for the edification of pupils. Graduations were like promotions in the army. We go up and up, and from camp to camp to victory if we deserve it.

Mayor Sears gave excellent advice and wanted all to be good citizens. Perhaps all the girls could not be citizens in the same sense as men, but they can strive to that end. The children enjoyed his anecdote of the boy who was truthful in court.

Miss Adams met the criticism of some that the schools were not as good as years ago, but the times have changed, and much more is required of the young today. Then it was the aim to teach two or three studies thoroughly, now they accomplish much in many directions. She was proud to say she was a citizen. She advised every child to read at least one good book each year.

Ex-Mayor Porter, the chairman of the School Committee congratulated the graduates upon the success which attended their efforts, and hoped they would go higher.

When the salute to the flag was given, each child brought forth mysteriously a small flag which added to the significance of the number. The flags were also waved when the chorus of that popular song written by Frederic Allison Tupper was sung.

The graduates of one school at a time marched up and received their diplomas from the sub-committeeman of the school.

After the audience had departed private receptions were given by the principals to their respective graduates in the large hall, and there was a general good time including dancing.

A list of the 320 graduates follows:

Adams,—Arthur Thomas Beckford, Charles Barnicoat, Joseph Burns, William Costello Marie Francis Coughlin, Carl Rumsey Derby, William Ellis Derby, William Dornan, Edward Lawrence Duran, Francis J. CAMP DALTON.

Interesting Letter from the Quincy Company.

[SPECIAL TO THE DAILY LEDGER FROM H. A. MCLAUGHLIN.]

Camp Dalton, June 30, 1898.

Arrived in Framingham at 11.30 A. M. We made Camp at 12 after a warm and dusty march. Mess kits were at once issued and we were served dinner at once, consisting of steak, onions, potatoes and coffee, with wheat bread.

The afternoon has been filled in by unpacking and general camp work. Our squads are all made up and we are becoming acquainted with our fellow soldiers.

Corporal George Phillips of Wollaston has been advanced to the rank of sergeant. Privates C. S. Whiting, F. A. Gannon, G. A. Wardwell, W. Haskins, D. Foster, J. Johnson, D. Mahoney and A. McIntosh are advanced to corporal.

First Guard mount at 4.30 P. M.

Private Seaverns has been appointed artificer and G. Livendale wagoner.

Co. K did not carry the regimental colors while marching through Boston today as usual. Owing to Capt. Mason being left behind, Capt. Kincaide loses the colors, but is advanced one point in rank. He promises to be a strict disciplinarian, but he lets his men know it is for their benefit, and they are willing to be known as the best company in the regiment, which they undoubtedly are, and will continue to be through his kindly advice and discipline.

The junior officers Whitney and Spear are very much interested in their work and the welfare of the men under them.

Take them all together they are a fine lot of men. Quincy and surrounding towns will be represented by a most worthy company of men. Your correspondent will give you all the news from the boys at the front. MACK.

CAMP NOTES.

It is Camp Dalton.

The appointments of Col. Whitney are expected today.

Today Co. K men become members of the "Fifth Massachusetts Regiment of United States Volunteers."

It is a promising camp, say those who have watched camps made and broken. Col. Whitney and Lieut. Weaver are working with good judgment and without apparent effort and in both, the men manifest complete confidence. The Colonel believes that the encampment of the Fifth will not require the issue of passes. He thinks that the visitors to the camp will be such that no stringen rules need be applied. If necessary he will make the rules.—Journal.

Capt. Kincaide of Co. K reported with 104 men. One company had as low as 78 and one had as high as 109.

It is expected that the regiment will be in camp at South Framingham at least three weeks

A Boston paper reports that "Company K's men held a brief indignation meeting Thursday night. They objected to an alleged slight in the absence of meat. It was a tumultuous meeting." Quincy people will await further facts before criticising.

Daughters of 1812 Outing.

Thursday was an ideal day for an outing at the beach and about one hundred ladies, members of the Massachusetts Society, Daughters of 1812, enjoyed a clambake at Squantum at the home of Mrs. Nelson V. Titus, president of the society. Before the clambake all visited the Myles Standish cairn on Squantum Head and also Squantum Inn which is nearly completed. The inn is delightfully situated at the end of the electric line and of the proposed boulevard, and commands a fine view of the harbor.

Anyone who has partaken of a Huckins farm clam-bake will envy those who last down Thursday to well laden tables, spread at the water's edge. The cool breezes, the fine view and socal good time, sharpened the appetites and clams, lobsters, watermelon and the like disappeared rapidly.

Mrs. L. Ten Eyck Childs read an interesting paper telling why the society celebrates June 30.

Later coffee, tea and light refreshments were served on the piazza of Mrs. Titus' house. The ladies were also given a glimpse of a fine bronze bust of Squanto, the Indian after whom Squantum is named, which is to be placed above the big fire-place in the Squantum Inn. It is a fine piece of work and was much admired.

The ladies found Squantum and Mrs. Titus' piazza so delightfully pleasant and cool that it was hard work to leave and go back to the city.

Camp Dalton, 1 P. M. Company K was mustered into United States service at 12 o'clock today. Capt. Weaver of United States army personally complimented the men individually and said they were the finest body of men that has been before him as yet of the Massachusetts troops. Capt. Kincaide was carried away with the compliments and the boys felt jubilant also.

J. Sullivan of Weymouth Landing was taken ill last night from drinking too much ice water. This morning he was not much better. He grew worse and had to be taken into camp. He will be sent home today as he is not in a fit condition for muster.

The Fall of Camp Jerado.

Quincy, June 30, 1898.

To George W. Prescott & Son:

Enclosed I have sent a small poem entitled "Camp Jerado." This relates to the crowd known as the rough riders, that are going with Co. K, 5th Mass. Infantry.

A mist has risen o'er the camp,
No sound, comes from the woods,
For the Boys have left this very morn
To fight for their Americanhood.
The camp it is deserted,
And no rough riders are on guard;
The battle cry is Cuba, America and God.
No more "the fair hair boy" will be
Among the camp so gay,
Or Hodges or Feathery, or Ackie the gray;
Gallagher the joker, and Rome
Who is set and stern;
While Pierce is the steward
And Tucker got to learn.
Fitzie will be Corporal, while Garbett
Will do the rest
And McCarthy will sing
"I love our Jack the best."
The camp it is deserted
The poles are lying down
The pickets are not on duty
For the rough riders left the ground.
The flag alone is flying,
On Camp Jerado on the hill,
And Winnie she is crying, with excitement and chills.
The spring it has stopped running;
The Hemlock has grown red,
No more will its green boughs
Be spread o'er their heads.
Teddy and Bowler, they are going, too,
To fight for the country, and show they are true blue.
Sadly the neighbors will miss the boys so true
When they awake to find the camp all dew
"For they scattered the sand all over the land
And its Wing, my honey, Wing." "War Cry."

P. G. Appeton.

Aftermath.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It has not seemed to me necessary to reply to the criticisms which have been published. The public has discretion enough to reject as much as is palpably unworthy, and the rest will not hurt any one.

The challenge to show that the Bible opposes dancing I shall endeavor to answer from my pulpit Sunday evening, as the subject demands too much space for a communication. It is a matter which is worthy of most careful and devout study by all sincere Christians.

One lesson for us all, in view of the inventions in some of the Boston papers, is that we accept only a small part of the details of occurrences reported from other places.

In behalf of my church, which has been belittled, it is well to simply state the fact that its one of the largest and most flourishing in this part of the county. Other statistics are wanting, but for a single item it has the largest Sabbath School, with the exception only of Bethany Congregational, out of the forty or more Protestant churches in the East Norfolk convention. It is a workingmen's church and therefore not strong financially, but it is made up of people who average very high in character and intelligence. This statement is needed by Quincy people who get their home news by way of Boston, if there be a class of that kind.

Another fact is that although I came here as late as 1894 two-thirds of the pastors of Quincy today have been here a shorter time. The Rev. Messrs. Wilder, Bagley, Breed, and Butler are my only seniors who serve actively on the Board of Directors of the Woodward Institute. Just here I wish to bear witness that the behavior of my colleagues, senior and junior, notwithstanding widely differing convictions, has been most courteous, dignified and brotherly. It is an honor to be a most humble member of such a company.

Yours sincerely,

ROBERT WESTLY PEACH.

McBurnie-Ioas.

The residence of Mr. William M. Ioas of Vine street, Saugus centre, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday afternoon of this week, when he gave his eldest daughter, Martha F. to be the bride of Mr. Walter S. McBurnie of Quincy.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Labraee of the Congregational church of Saugus. The best man was Mr. George W. Hewson of Quincy, cousin of the groom, the bridemaid Miss Emma Ioas, sister of the bride.

The bride was attired in white organdie muslin and she carried a bouquet of white carnation pinks. The parlor in which the ceremony was performed was prettily trimmed with June's own flowers of many varieties and colors.

Mr. and Mrs. McBurnie came to their new home on Spear street, Quincy, and on Wednesday afternoon started on a trip to St. John, N. B., followed by the best wishes of their many friends.

Weymouth's New High.

Ever since the election of the present superintendent of the public schools of Weymouth in 1890, it has been his ambition to unite the North and the South High schools. For years this plan has been maturing and at the annual town meeting held in March, 1897, so popular had the idea become that the town voted to raise and appropriate the sum of $50,000 to erect and furnish a High school building, and a committee was appointed to carry the vote into effect. As a result of the efforts of this committee, Wednesday at 2 o'clock was dedicated one of the finest High school buildings in the State.

The site of the building is a fine five acre lot on the west side of Middle street, Precinct 2. It stands about 300 feet from the street and affords accommodation for about 400 pupils. The building is an imposing one in appearance being of the old colonial style of architecture, of brick with free stone trimmings the base being of rock faced Weymouth granite. Its slated roof is ornamented with metal cornices. The exterior dimensions are 126 feet by 77 feet and is three stories high above the basement.

There are two cycle rooms in basement; two wardrobe rooms; manual training room; and toilets for both sexes. The heating apparatus is also situated in the basement.

There are three entrances on the first floor, two facing Middle street and one provided with a carriage porch on the southerly side.

The stair-cases are very broad and are situated in close proximity to the entrance, affording a means of quick exit.

On the first floor there are three fair sized and two large class-rooms; a library; a teachers room; and an office for the superintendent of schools and school board.

On the second floor are three class rooms, a room for type-writing and stenography. There is also on this floor a large hall with a seating capacity of 650, which with rooms opening into it on either side, will seat 900.

On the third floor, is a gymnasium, chemical labratory, physical laboratory; lecture-room, specimen room, dark room, and apparatus room.

Edmund J. Bugbee, who for the past two years has been principal of North High, has been appointed to the new High. George W. Bean will act as janitor with a salary of $600 a year.

The building committee was composed of the following well known citizens: Chairman, Dr. W. A. Drake; secretary, Superintendent I. M. Norcross; Dr. Joseph Chase, George C. Torrey, Charles B. Cushing, Herbert W. Sears, H. Frank Perry, Rev. William Hyde, Augustus J. Richards, Martin E. Hawes, Bradford Hawes, Hon. James Humphrey, Milton A. Loud.

The dedication services were as follows, Dr. Drake presiding;

Russell B. Worster, George P. Hunt, Ralph Bicknell were in charge of the ushers, who were from the North High.

There was a banquet in the evening, Mr. Hawes being toast master. A reception and social by the building committee followed. The East Weymouth orchestra furnished music. The high school chorus of 50 voices was under the directorship of Prof. A. J. Sidelinger.

The committee of arrangements comprised Dr. Drake, chairman; Bradford Hawes, secretary; Dr. Joseph Chase, George C. Torrey, and H. Frank Perry.

S. Q. S. Club Volunteers.

The S. Q. S. club are proud of their members who left our city to defend the flag. Six have gone to the front with brave and willing hearts but also aching hearts for the dear ones whom they have left at home. These brave lads have left mothers, fathers, homes and good positions, and the parting Thursday morning was a sad one and will be remembered by all who were observant. They left with little tokens of rememberance from their kind friends and these were well appreciated. Every man wore his little badge of black and yellow and should he fall in the ranks, the club-colors will go down with him. The names of the young volunteers are as follows: David Smith, Fidel Piravano, Albert Capaccoli, Leo Savoy, William Malcom, and John Clark.

The club proposes to forward things to the boy frequently, and will include anything which friends desire to send.

FOULING IN THE RING.

Northwest Champion Tried to Choke His Antagonist.

Saw He Could Not Win by Fair Means.

Hissed by the Crowd and Summarily Ejected by the Police.

Louisville, July 1.—Amid a scene of intense excitement the fight before the Kentucky Athletic club between Dick Case, champion lightweight of the northwest, and "Bobby" Dobbs, champion colored lightweight of the world, ended in a fiasco, Dobbs winning on a foul.

Ring followers having in mind the magnificent contest between these top-notchers five weeks ago flocked to the hall in droves. Both men were in fine condition, Case having the better of the weight by 10 pounds. From the tap of the bell Case began to foul the colored man, unheeded by the referee until the ninth. In this round he grasped Dobbs about the throat and literally tried to choke him to death. The referee at once gave the fight to Dobbs on a foul.

No decisive blows were struck in the preceding rounds, though the fighting was very fierce. Dobbs worked his famous jabs throughout and looked like a winner. Case several times showed that he was in distress from the jolting.

After the decision was announced Dobbs stepped across the ring and essayed to shake hands with Case. The latter spurned him, however, applied a foul epithet and swung heavily on the negro's jaw. Case was hissed by the crowd and forced from the ring by the police.

Blow Above the Belt.

Wheeling, July 1.—The Gardner-Mc Lelland contest in the arena of the Metropolitan Athletic club last night came to an unexpected finish in the 10th round, when the Pittsburger was knocked out. From the start both men had shown up well, and the honors were about evenly divided. In the 10th the fighting was fast, but, the end seemed far away. Suddenly, Gardner landed with terrific force a left, short-arm swing on the pit of the stomach, and McLelland collapsed in an instant, and the fight was over. McLelland's seconds entered a protest, claiming that the blow was delivered below the belt. Referee Pearce withheld his decision until physicians had examined McLelland and reported that no blow had been struck below the belt. The referee then gave the decision to Gardner.

Corbett and McCoy.

New York, July 1.—Corbett absolutely refuses to meet McCoy under the auspices of the Hawthorne A. C., of which the brother of McCoy seems to be the moving spirit. This being the case, the chances are that either Tom Sharkey or Joe Choynski will be substituted to meet Corbett at the Lenox Athletic club for the purse of $15,000 which O'Rourke is ready to offer for either McCoy or Choynski to meet Corbett. McCoy could have ignored the offer made to him by the Buffalo club, and thereby been in a position to get a purse of $20,000 for meeting Corbett in New York, but as his brother, Homer, is connected with the Hawthorne club he allowed himself to be forced into signing a document which calls for him to box at that club and no other club for one year. Now that McCoy has taken this step it is very doubtful if he will ever have the opportunity to box Corbett.

THREE PITCHERS.

Klobedanz, Willis and Lewis Used Against the Clevelands.

Cleveland, July 1.—At the start yesterday things went the Clevelands' way generally and a good lead was taken. Then there was a shift and there was nobody in the game except the Bostons. Klobedanz, who began to pitch for the champions, was relieved in the fifth inning by Willis, and there the change of luck began. In the eighth Willis showed signs of disastrous wildness, and, although only one hit had been made off him, Lewis took his place.

Long's absence from the game on account of his conversation with Umpire Curry the day before put Lowe at short and Stivetts at second. While the latter accumulated three errors none of them helped swell the Clevelands' run column. Lowe's game at short was quite as good as even the famous Herman could put up, and nine chances, many of them hard ones, were faultlessly accepted by him. Score:

Timely hitting won for the Brocktons against the Tauntons. Haggerty, who hails from Holyoke, covered third for two innings, when he was replaced by George Moore, who was rightly chosen as a better hitter. Sharett's triple in the fourth drove in three runs. Score: 8 to 5.

The Baltimores were not at their best yesterday, and the Louisvilles had an easy time. McGraw was put off the grounds by Umpire O'Day. Score: 9 to 1.

The Springfields won a hard-fought game from the Providences, 6 to 5. Hemming's two bagger and Nichols' single tied the score in the last half of the ninth. In the eleventh Gleason was given his base on balls, was sacrificed to second and scored on Nichols' single, winning the game.

"Kid" Carsey was in the box for the St. Louis team yesterday, and the Washingtons gave him an awful thrashing. Cross split a finger in the fifth. Score: 13 to 3.

It is probable that no more league baseball games will be played in Cleveland this season at least after the series of three games with St. Louis, beginning July 7. President Robison is arranging to have the games transferred. The cause is lack of support upon the part of the public and Robison's anger over the refusal of the church element to allow Sunday games.

The Newports won an interesting game from the Fall Rivers in the ninth inning with only one man out. The Fall Rivers were blanked in every inning but the fourth, when four runs were made on as many doubles and an error.

PETTIGREW DENUNCIATORY.

South Dakota Senator Declared That His Former Party Is Corrupt.

Washington, July 1.—When the conference report on the Indian bill was submitted to the senate Thursday, Mr. Pettigrew (S. D.) vigorously criticised the committee for yielding the free home provision, which, he said, had been endorsed by the Republican national convention of 1896. He declared that the Republican party had been corrupted by the money power and should be consigned to everlasting oblivion. "Vast sums of money are collected by that party to be used in its campaigns. It is in alliance with the aggregated and concentrated wealth of the country. It is dominated by the money power. Not only does this power supply money for its campaigns, but it elects Republican senators, and after it has elected a senator in one of the great states, the state Republican convention congratulates itself upon the infamy and declares it is glad of it."

Mr. Gallinger demanded to know where the proof for such a charge was.

"Yes, there is proof," replied Senator Pettigrew. "It is before the committee on priviledges and elections, and before the people of the whole country."

"The situation," retorted Mr. Gallinger, "is like that of a case before a grand jury that has not reported. The committee on privileges and elections has made no report, which indicates that it has no such proof before it as the senator says it has."

"Well," replied Mr. Pettigrew, "I am willing that my statement should go to the country."

The senate committee on privileges and elections has reported the bill allowing soldiers to vote in the field. The committee divided upon party lines, the Republicans supporting and the Democrats opposing it.

It is stated at the war department that notwithstanding the reports from Chickamauga only 15 regiments are under orders to be sent away from that place at an early date, and that their destination is Tampa.

Six men have been arrested in Lake City, S. C., charged with having murdered the colored postmaster there last February. The government has been vigorously at work ferreting out the participants in the crime.

On a Voyage of Observation.

Montreal, July 1.—The capias taken out by Detective Kellert against the two Spaniards, Carranza and DuBosc, has been quashed by Judge Delormier on the ground that it was not proven that there was any intention on the part of the two men to defraud the detective. Notice of appeal was given. This will keep the $1000 bail bond in force till Saturday midnight, but it is not expected that an appeal will be taken.

LIEUTENANT RAMON CARRANZA.

The Star says that Carranza has chartered a schooner and has gone to inspect the defenses of the Atlantic seacoast. He expressed his intention to do so some time ago so as to retrieve his character, which he had lost through the publication of the letter stolen from him.

Typhoid at Camp Alger.

Washington, July 1.—Several cases of typhoid fever have developed recently at Camp Alger. Cases have been reported from nearly every regiment. First Lieutenant Leali, assistant surgeon, said: "The trouble is that the water supply here is a constant menace to one's health. There seem to be malaria and typhoid in the very atmosphere." It is highly necessary, he says, that drinking water should be boiled. Colonel Girard has appointed a commission to examine the supply of water.

The International Ball Game.

The Uncle Sams and the Alphonsos.

THE SCORE.
DEWEY,	1
HOBSON,	12
SAMPSON,	02
SCHLEY,	022
CERVERA,	NIT.

FIRST INNING.

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought,to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

You can buy a Red, White and Blue Tie for 4c. Put the band around your neck and hear it play Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue.

If you want to take it cool get a crash hat for 24c. You can get a Blue Serge Suit (all worsted) for $7.50 and go and catch a high ball with what you save. If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

Your money back with a smile if you wish it.

Washington, July 2—It can be stated positively that the President does not contemplate issuing a third call for volunteers within the next two weeks at least.

Enemy Reenforced.

New York, July 2—A special to the New York World from Santiago says that General Pando with 6000 troops has succeeded in reaching Santiago. The Cubans who were sent to head them off were not strong enough to do so.

Loss Conceded.

Washington, July 2, 11.40 A. M.—No official dispatches have been received from General Shafter since midnight. It is conceded that the American loss yesterday was 1,000 killed and wounded.

Recruits Wanted.

Corp. W. F. Haskins arrived in town this noon on a two days' leave of absence, and has established a recruiting station for Co. K. A few more men are wanted right away.

AGAIN WE WIN

Downfall of Santiago Impending.

OUTER WORKS TAKEN.

Desperate and Successful Attack Upon Them.

SPANIARDS FORCED BACK.

Port Antonio, Jam., July 2.—The Americans succeeded Friday in driving the enemy into the city of Santiago, but in doing so they sustained the most severe losses of the war. Four hundred of our men were killed or wounded in the engagements. The Spaniards, with improved aim, sent a shell into our lines, and the explosion which followed annihilated an entire company.

The advance of General Shafter's forces was checked by the Spaniards only at the city gates. It was dark when the fighting ceased for the day. At sunset our troops were in possession of the ground they had gained, and the battle was resumed at daybreak this morning. Two companies of Roosevelt's men, and the Third, Sixth and Twenty-first regulars successfully attacked the northern side of the defenses near Santiago. They were clear in front of the general advance, fighting like demons, and it was of a company of the Twenty-first regulars who lost their lives.

The enthusiasm of the American forces was intense, and their spirit quickly spread to the Cuban troops. All have shared the belief of General Shafter that Santiago could be taken by a sharp, persistent attack, and they have been impatient to advance.

Brigadier General Kent, who commands the center of the general line of attack, started the Twenty-first regiment of regulars toward Aguadores at the same hour General Lawton's men advanced toward Caney. Upon these troops fell the brunt of the battle to the southeast of Santiago during the early hours of the day. Garcia's Cuban troops at the same time approached Caney from the southeast, and the other division of the American army pressed toward Santiago from the east, our forces thus presenting a solid front from the coast to General Linares' northern defenses.

Both the American and Spanish fleets early joined in the battle. While Admiral Sampson's men were reducing the recently emplaced batteries at Aguadores, Admiral Cervera's fleet was hurling shells in the direction of the American and Cuban lines.

Two batteries of light artillery, acting under orders from Major General Shafter, who went to the front at the head of the troops, began the battle of Santiago by attacking Caney. From this village a direct road leads into Santiago, and the advance of our forces will be irresistible when they gain possession of this road.

General Wheeler, with a detachment of his cavalry command, and General Garcia, with his Cuban troops, quickly joined General Lawton's men in the advance upon Caney. The Spaniards for a time fought desperately to prevent Caney from falling into the hands of our forces. It was a vain effort. Before the fighting had been long under way the American and Cuban forces gained advanced ground. Foot by foot the enemy was driven back into the village. It was evident after the first hour's fighting that General Shafter accurately had gauged the strength of the enemy.

There was desperate fighting about Aguadores. Acting under orders from General Linares, the Spaniards at that point returned the American fire with a fury that aroused our men to the fiercest determination. They boldly faced the enemy's fire, holding their ground tenaciously, and pressing forward whenever an opportunity to gain an advanced footing presented itself.

In their operations about Aguadores the Americans were greatly encouraged by the work of the fleet, which poured a heavy fire into the lines of the Spaniards. Admiral Sampson ordered the New York, Gloucester and Suwanee to attack the batteries recently placed to the east of Morro. The vessels engaged the batteries at short range, and left only the hillsides to show where the batteries had been located.

The Massachusetts and the New York then opened with their big guns, plunging a heavy fire into the enemy's lines. Common shell and reduced charges were used for this purpose, and they demoralized the enemy's ranks. The shells were fired at a high elevation, so as to clear the towering coast-line ridge.

Two American secret service men have penetrated General Linares' lines, entered Santiago, and returned safely with an accurate account of the situation and conditions in the city. These are the first Americans to enter the enemy's lines, and the information brought is regarded as entirely reliable by General Shafter. The men confirm the news that Cervera's ships are partly dismantled, and also report that the Reina Mercedes was scuttled by Cervera's orders to block the harbor entrance.

Spies from Santiago report that 70 dead men were brought into the city after the force of 4000 men were driven from their position by 500 of the rough riders and 380 regulars. These, with the 40 dead Spaniards found on the field, bring the total number of Spanish killed up to 110, to 18 Americans. A spy overheard a Spaniard in Santiago ask one of the soldiers if the Americans fought well, and the soldier replied: "My God, they tried to catch us with their hands."

AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

President Receives News From Shafter, and Shows His Appeciation.

Washington, July 2.—General Shafter is expected by President McKinley to take Santiago today, in view of the report received from him after midnight, and given out at the white house at 1 o'clock, stating that he had occupied the retreating enemy's outer defenses, including El Caney, that nothing but a level plain separated him from the city, and that he would advance today.

The president, who had been sitting up for this, went to bed highly pleased, and not least because General Shafter added that there were only 400 casualties in our ranks, and a few deaths. The announcement of the full victory of Santiago is looked for by tonight.

A dispatch that came from Dewey, dated Cavite, June 27, reported that conditions remain practically unchanged, but did not record the arrival of his reinforcements. He had other matters of interest to communicate, but they could not be made public at present. For one thing it can be stated that Dewey has been particular to avoid committing his government to any line of action respecting the future of the Philippines, or to do anything that would embarrass General Merritt in framing a policy to meet the needs of the case when he arrives. He has made no pledges to the insurgent leader, though he has not hesitated to praise his good politics and his achievements.

The president and the war officials were immensely pleased at the information conveyed in Shafter's message. While they learned with sincere regret that so many Americans had fallen, the ground gained by the day's conflict is regarded as a great victory. The battle establishes pretty conclusively that the Spaniards are no match for the enthusiastic and aggressive United States troops. They were driven from their strong entrenchments in front of Santiago back into the city. The greater battle will result, it is confidently believed by war officials, in the fall of Santiago before Sunday night and perhaps before nightfall.

Victories For the Insurgents.

Hong Kong, July 2.—According to private letters from Cavite dated June 27, the insurgents occupy the whole of Bulucan province. Occasional skirmishes occur. The insurgents captured a Spanish ship while she was landing 500 troops. A stubborn fight ensued, in which the Spanish commander, a lieutenant colonel and several men were killed. The insurgents have captured the governor of Bulucan, together with his wife and children.

General Aguinaldo placed under arrest two rebel leaders, Artachio and Sandice, for having revealed the fact that a steamer recently seized by the Hong Kong authorities was laden with arms and ammunition for the insurgents. Sandice applied to Consul Williams and was released. It is feared that the incident will cause a split in the insurgent party, Sandice being influential and the only insurgent capable of administration. The insurgents fear that Aguinaldo will shoot Artachio unless Admiral Dewey interferes, as he is suspicious that Sandice and Artachio intend to form an opposition party.

Not Entered the Canal.

London, July 2.—The dispatch from Madrid, saying the Spanish minister of marine has received a message to the effect that Admiral Camara's fleet has passed through the Suez canal with his fleet, is discredited on all sides here. The officials of the United States embassy say it is known positively that Camara has not entered the canal, and therefore they point out that it is impossible for his vessels to have traversed the canal.

Victims of Typhoid.

Washington, July 2.—General Garretson expects one regiment and half of another regiment to leave Camp Alger right away, and he has chosen the Eighth and half of the Sixth Illinois. The other six companies of the Sixth Illinois and the Six Massachusetts are to break camp not later than Monday.

The fear of typhoid still prevails in the camp. A surgeon said that "one patient could put the whole camp on its back." The water supply is looked upon as the principal source of danger. Some of the wells are sunk to a depth of 65 or 70 feet, but it is said to be possible for the germs of typhoid to reach that depth, owing to the sandy nature of the soil. The surgeons making the investigation say that if when their report is made Chief Surgeon Girard persists in holding that the water is pure they will forward their report to the war department.

A special commission has been appointed to investigate conditions in the quarters of the New York cavalry, which now has five men at Fort Meyer suffering with typhoid. Complaint is made that the government has supplied no lime or other disinfectants.

AGAINST AN ALLIANCE.

Historical Society Calls the Effort a Conspiracy.

Americans Wrongly Described as Anglo-Saxons.

Destruction of the Political Party That Favors a Compact.

Newcastle, N. H., July 1.—The annual banquet of the American Irish Historical society was held last night and a large number of members from all over the country were present. A minute was adopted protesting against the mooted Anglo-American alliance. It declared that the present efforts to bring about an alliance would not "be regarded otherwise than as a conspiracy on the part of the English government and its abettors on this side of the Atlantic." It denominated those who prefer to call themselves Anglo Saxons rather than Americans as of the same class as the "tories of the revolution, who took up arms against the patriots and who in a later generation were represented by the American traitors who burned blue lights along the coast to give information to the enemy."

The minute further declared that "the American is not an Anglo-Saxon people, and the bold attempt to bolster up the ethnological lie has rendered the authors of it quite ridiculous. The strong expressions of friendship for the United States since our war with Spain opened from France, Germany, Russia and other European powers demonstrate that we have no interference to fear from these governments, and likewise demonstrate that England has been, and is engaged in a slanderous campaign against continental Europe, hoping by fair means or foul to draw us into the meshes of her alliance net. No American political party will commit itself to such an entangling move unless it courts destruction. No American statesman will identify himself with the alliance project unless he has concluded that it is time for two political careers to end."

The society extended a vote of thanks to Secretary Long for giving the names, Barry and Macdonough, to two of the torpedo boat destroyers, and O'Brien to one of the new torpedo boats.

Thomas H. Murray, the national secretary, reported the present membership as between 800 and 900. Thirty-seven states are represented. Among the members of the organization are Catholics, Episcopalians, Methodists, Baptists, Unitarians, Presbyterians, Congregationalists and members of other denominations. The society, likewise, includes in its membership representatives of such orders as the following: Order of Colonial Wars, Society of Cincinnati, Sons of the Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution, Military Order of Foreign Wars, Military Order of the Loyal Legion, the G. A. R., Union Veteran Legion, Washington Army and Navy club, the Boston Papyrus club and the Twentieth Century club.

Depew For an Alliance.

New York, July 1.—Chauncey M. Depew was tendered a reception last night at the Republican club on his return from Europe. He made an address in which he urged an alliance with England and told of the feeling in European countries with reference to the war between the United States and Spain. Mr. Depew said: "Cabinets and people are all alike absorbed by it. In England everybody—classes and masses, rich and poor—is with us; on the continent is bitter hostility or indifference. The nations of continental Europe are anxiously watching the apprehended entrance of the United States into their circle in the far east. Their position is one of distrust. They are trying to solve the problem of the influence upon their interests of that Anglo-American alliance which they think either exists or is inevitable. Even if disposed to interfere in our war they are restrained by the belief that any movement in that direction would precipitate an alliance with England."

Weaver's Hair Caught.

Springvale, Me., July 1.—Mary Boulanger, 16 years of age, was caught in a loom yesterday and received injuries from which she will die. Her hair caught in the gearing, drawing her head and shoulders into the machinery, lacerating the girl's body badly before the loom could be interrupted.

STATE OF TRADE.

Fewer Failures For the Fiscal Year Than For Four Years.

New York, July 2.—Harbingers of the future, as noted by Bradstreet's, are found in generally favorable crop prospects, not only of cereals, but of cotton, fruits and most products of agriculture, and a continued heavy foreign demand for American products. A fiscal year of unprecedented export trade ends with quite a decided improvement in demand manifesting itself as a result of the break in the practically prohibitive freight rates ruling for some time past.

Some interruptions and some exceptions to this generally favorable situation have been and are still presenting themselves. Uncertainty regarding the outlook as regards the present war undoubtedly acted as a check to trade this spring, effects being most marked in the eastern half of the country. Here, also, unfavorable weather and a late and cold spring operated to curtail seasonable demands.

There were fewer failures, smaller liabilities and smaller assets this year than in any previous year for four years past. Business failures number 6429, 8 percent fewer than a year ago and only 3 percent larger than in 1893. Liabilities, too, are smaller, aggregating $72,120,341, 23 percent smaller than last year and 57 percent below those of 1893. Increases are shown in New England and the middle states, due largely to more numerous small failures in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, and attributed to unfavorable weather depressing trade. In only one case are liabilities larger than a year ago, that being in the middle states, where a few heavy failures swelled the volume of liabilities.

The number of failures in New England during the past six months was 1186; liabilities, $19,314,812; assets, $9,442,306, against 1111 failures in the first half of 1897, with liabilities of $20,264,827, and assets of $10,883,678.

The bank clearings total for June are the largest ever reported in that month, while the same is true of the six months' total. The total clearings for June at 77 cities aggregate $5,493,888,279, a gain of 3 percent over May of this year and of 23 percent over June a year ago, while only 8 percent smaller than in January this year. The six months' clearings aggregate $32,940,291,838, an increase over last year of 31 percent, over the low water mark of 1894 of 50 percent, and over the largest total on record, that of 1893, of 6 percent. Only two out of 77 cities show a decrease as compared with the six months' period a year ago.

To Meet In Boston.

Trenton, July 2.—John P. Keating of Chicago was chosen national president of the Hibernians by a vote of 167 to 114 over Edward J. Slattey of Massachusetts; James E. Dolan of Syracuse was elected vice president without opposition; James O'Sullivan of Philadelphia was re-elected national secretary by a vote of 137 to 116 for James P. Bree of Connecticut; P. T. Moran of Washington was elected national treasurer, and P. J. O'Connor of Savannah, Edward J. Slattery of South Framingham, N. J. Burns of Indianapolis and Patrick A. O'Neil of Philadelphia were elected national directors. Boston was selected for holding the next convention in May, 1900.

In the resolutions adopted the proposed Anglo-American alliance was condemned, as well as any alliance with any European powers. It was recommended that the organization in the several states establish a Hibernian memorial day when the graves of deceased members should be decorated. The introduction of an elementary history of the Irish race in the parochial schools was recommended, and in another resolution it was charged that in some sections of this country histories are used in the public schools which are biased and unfair to the Irish people. It was demanded that only impartial histories should be used in public schools. The convention appropriated $1000 from the national treasury for the poor in Ireland.

Jacksonian Democrat Dead.

Boston, July 2.—Charles Levi Woodbury, one of the best known lawyers in the east and a public man of wide experience, died yesterday afternoon, aged 79 years. He had recently returned from a trip to the south, and was staying at the Parker House with his two sisters. He had been ill about six months of a combination of throat and heart trouble.

Mr. Woodbury was born in Portsmouth May 22, 1820, and educated in Washington, studying law in the office of General Butler. For years his practice was chiefly in the circuit courts of the United States and in the supreme court at Washington, where, as in Boston, he was a familiar figure. He was recognized as one of the ablest expounders of constitutional law and an authority on international law, and his contributions to legal literature were important.

In politics he was a lifelong Democrat, devoted to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson, with the latter of whom he was personally acquainted. He never aspired to office, and he held few public stations.

Papers Didn't Appear.

Chicago, July 2.—At 8 o'clock last night the Sterotypers' union notified the newspaper publishers that unless their demands for an increase of wages from $3.25 to $4 per day, a reduction of the working day from eight to seven hours, with payment at the rate of 75 cents per hour for all overtime, and other concessions were at once acceded to, they would refuse to return to work. In consequence of this action the papers did not publish this morning. This action of the newspapers was in pursuance of an understanding recently entered into.

Billion Before It Stops.

Washington, July 2.—Inquiries at the treasury department elicit the information that the total proposals for the new government loan of $200,000,000 aggregate $790,000,000. Of this amount there have been received and absolutely accepted subscriptions of amounts of $500 and less, $40,000,000; subscriptions in amounts over $500, subject to future allotments, $250,000,000; a proposal for a round lot at a premium of 1 percent, $100,000,000; two syndicate propositions for any part or all of the bonds offered, $200,000,000 each, $400,000,000.

DESPATCHES FOR THE ADMIRAL. FROM HARPER'S WEEKLY. DRAWN WHILE ON THE FLAG-SHIP BY RUFUS FAIRCHILD ZOGBAUM.

Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

In these days of the telegraph, it is difficult to realize that the commander of any of our fleets may necessarily be for days and weeks beyond the reach of instructions from Washington. When one considers the great value of concerted action between the various squadrons, it is readily perceived what a great practicle obstacle this has been to the effective conduct of the war, and now there has been added, within a few days, a necessity of careful and exact co-operation between land and naval forces which emphasizes the importance of reliable means of communication between the war department and the fleet.

Communication on the ocean is one of the practical difficulties attaching to the sea as a scene of action which landsmen seldom appreciate. The elaborate system of signals, used in clear weather to convey information from ship to ship, can be used only in a limited number of cases, and a swift and sure despatch-boat service is as important to a modern commodore as it was to Nelson a hundred years ago.

It is no wonder that the arrival of despatches for the admiral, as pictured in the illustration reproduced today from Harper's Weekly, is an event of the greatest interest to the sailors of a fleet at sea. Instructions possibly for instant and deadly battle may be carried by the jaunty ensign, clambering up the side of the grim flag-ship, and the old tars keep their eyes open for the flutter of the well-known signals, meaning that the chance has come for that glorious fight and victory for which they are all looking.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 3. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Honoring father and mother.—Eph. vi, 1-4; Prov. xvii, 6, 21, 25.

A spirit of irreverence is abroad in the world today. There is not the reverence either for things divine or human that there ought to be. God's name, God's house, God's word, God's day, are not honored and revered as they were by our fathers and forefathers. Nowhere is this spirit so manifest as in the relation that exists between children and parents. We might almost imagine today that God had commanded parents to honor and obey their children. This is all reversing the law and commandment of God and introducing into human society customs that cannot but in the end be ruinous and destructive. Every sacred principle and tie of life demands that children should love, honor, respect and obey father and mother.

The topical references suggest reasons why children should honor and obey their parents.

1. Children should honor their parents because their happiness depends largely upon the actions of their children. Parents alone can realize how soon and how completely they begin to live only in their children. No sooner is the child born until the lives of its parents become completely absorbed in its life, and henceforth they live mainly for their child. Is the child happy, they are happy. Is the child sorrowful, they are sorrowful. Is the child successful, they succeed. Is the child a failure, they fail. The entire character of their lives is determined by the life of the child.

In Prov. x, 1, Solomon says, "A wise son maketh a glad father, but a foolish son is the heaviness of his mother." And again in the references, "Children's children are the crown of old men," "A foolish son is a grief to his father and bitterness to her that bore him." If children could only realize how much the very life of parents depended upon them, they would be more careful to honor and respect them, for certainly they owe it as a sacred duty to make the best life possible for those who have been so much to them.

2. Children should honor their parents because it is the command of God (Eph. vi, 1-4). "Children," says Paul, "obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right. Honor thy father and thy mother, which is the first commandment with promise, that it may be well with thee and thou mayest live long on the earth." God has said, "Honor thy father and thy mother." Who can disobey God and not regret it? God has made a promise of long life to all who obey the command. Who but wants this promise fulfilled in them?

Let all Endeavorers take a firm stand in favor of God's fifth commandment. Let us honor, respect and obey our parents. Let us make their last days their best and happiest days. Children who reverence and respect their parents are trusted and respected by men, and in honoring and obeying parents we learn to honor and obey God, our heavenly Father.

Opportunities Missed.

The individual who has reached or passed midlife in looking backward must needs mark many a turning point in his career when for some reason or another, through ignorance, indifference or supineness, he let slip an opportunity which improved might have influenced most favorably his whole future. These lost opportunities are in many cases the source of deep regret, and when missed through unwillingness to make needful sacrifices or through slothful self indulgence they are properly the occasion of unavailing laments.—Christian Intelligencer.

Real Presence of God.

God is with us on this down, as we two are walking together, just as truly as Christ was with the two disciples on the way to Emmaus. We cannot see Him, but He, the Father and the Saviour and the Spirit, is nearer perhaps now than then to those who are not afraid to hear the words of the apostles about the actual and real presence of God and His Christ with all who yearn for it.—Alfred Tennyson.

The Christian's Is the Eternal Life.

It is perfected by the sufferings and struggles of the present. All things work together for its good. The fire purifies it, the battle gives its power exercise, the darkness makes it to grow the more rapidly and persecution extends its achievements. Living for Christ is the one thing worth living for.—Christian Statesman.

The Women of Bermuda.

There are perhaps a larger number of spinsters in Bermuda in proportion to the population than in any other place on this side of the Atlantic, and it is a curious fact that this is the law of the land.

The semitropical climate of the islands and their isolation have made of the inhabitants of English stock a quiet, almost sluggish, folk of a simplicity nearly Arcadian. The women especially, many of whom live very narrow lives, never leaving these islands, are remarkable for their old fashioned hospitality and a natural ease of manner which seems to arise from an entire faith in those with whom they come in contact. Perhaps the fact that it would be very difficult for a criminal to escape from the islands may account for it, but, at any rate, crime is very rare there.

Bermuda women are excellent housewives and bring up large families of children, some of the most favored young folk being sent to the United States for educational advantages. In matters of etiquette they are far more strict than Americans. As a rule, they are well to do and live comfortably, while some of them possess ample means and enjoy much luxury. In Bermuda, as in England, property, especially real estate, remains in the same family for long periods, and some of the descendants of the first settlers still possess lands which have never passed out of their families. It is just this conservatism about property which causes the superabundance of spinsters. No alien can acquire a title to land in Bermuda either by purchase or inheritance. This is chiefly a precautionary measure against the Portuguese, who flock to the country and go in largely for onion growing. But the law provides that if a women marries a foreigner she shall lose her landed property, but shall also become incapable of inheriting any. This law is naturally not popular with the ladies, who see their brothers mate with Americans and other aliens and would fain have the same liberty. Occasionally Bermudan girls renounce their birthrights for love's sake, but, as a rule, the charms of penniless maidens are not sufficient for young men to desire them for wives, and thus many girls are doomed to single blessedness in Bermuda simply by the law of the land.—Boston Herald.

The Original Declaration.

The original copy of the Declaration of Independence has been withdrawn from public exhibition in the state department library, made into a roll and placed in a tin box for filling with the archives of the government. The rapid fading of the text of the Declaration and the deterioration of the parchment on which it is engrossed from exposure to the light and on account of age rendered it impracticable for the department to allow it to be exhibited or handled longer. In lieu of the original document a facsimile is on exhibition.—Selected.

Paper money was first issued by the notorious John Law. His issues exceeded $6,600,000,000.

RELIC OF THE WAR OF '76.

Flag Carried by the Father of President Millard Fillmore.

Independence day is the one day on which the red, white and blue is unfurled to wave gracefully in breezes that are popularly supposed to blow in a more patriotic manner on this than any other day in the calendar year. But there is one flag in Chicago which will not be hauled aloft on the Fourth at the end of a halyard, says the Chicago Tribune. It is too precious a relic to be frayed by rude winds, and, moreover, it has served its day. It is a flag with an honorable and revered past, all of which will probably never be told, for the men who knew its minute history and of the scenes through which it passed in the stirring days of 1776 have long since moldered into dust.

The flag is a relic of the Revolutionary war and is an heirloom in the Fillmore family, lineal descendants of Millard Fillmore. Its present custodian is W. Henry Wilson, demonstrator of bacteriology in the Hahnemann Medical college in this city. Mr. Wilson's wife was Miss Maude Stewart Fillmore, a daughter of Franklin B. Fillmore, first lieutenant Company I, Twenty-sixth Illinois Volunteer infantry. The flag was carried in the Revolutionary war by Nathaniel Fillmore, father of President Millard Fillmore.

The flag is 10 feet long by 5½ feet wide. Its colors were originally the regulation red, white and blue, but the ravages of time have faded the red to a dim brown, turned the once snowy white to an antique yellow and metamorphosed the blue into a tint which contains only a suggestion of the cerulean union on which the stars once stood out in bold relief. The field consists of 13 stripes, originally alternate red and white of equal width. The union was the blue and the depth of nine of the bars. In the center of the field are the figures "76," crudely formed if gauged by the standard of art of over 120 years later, cut from linen and sewed to the union. Over the figures "76" is an arch of 11 stars, seven pointed. A star is also placed in each upper corner of the union, making 13 stars in all. Every portion of the flag is hand woven, home spun and hand sewed linen. This is clearly apparent from even a cursory examination, but is proved conclusively by a microscopical test, showing a more uneven thread and texture than are produced by machinery.

THE NATIONAL BIRTHDAY.

July 2 Was the Day on Which the Independence Resolution Was Adopted.

On June 11 Jefferson of Virginia, Livingston of New York, Adams of Massachusetts, Franklin of Pennsylvania and Sherman of Connecticut were elected a committee by the Continental congress to draw up a formal declaration. Jefferson was elected chairman. On July 1 congress, in committee of the whole, took up Lee's resolutions for independence, which had been introduced on June 7. The resolutions were reported favorably to the full house on July 2 by the vote of 9 states to 4. The same day the congress concurred.

This day, July 2, seemed to the patriots assembled in Philadelphia the most memorable in history. They fully believed that future generations would celebrate July 2 as Independence day. John Adams wrote to his wife: "The 2d day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America, to be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival, commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty, from one end of the continent to the other, from this time forevermore. I am well aware of the toil and blood and treasure that it will cost us to maintain this declaration. Yet through all the gloom I can see the rays of light and glory; that posterity will triumph in that day's transaction."

By one of those curious anomalies of which history is full the 4th of July, and not the 2d, is celebrated as the national birthday.—New York Press.

Signing the Declaration.

When the greatest document of human liberty since the day of Magna Charta was finally passed, it is related that John Hancock, in signing the document "in letters large enough for George III to read without spectacles," urged upon his comrades the necessity of "hanging together in this matter." "Yes, indeed," interrupted the facetious Ben Franklin; "we must all hang together, or assuredly we shall all hang separately." "When it comes to hanging," said Harrison, the luxurious, heavy gentleman from Virginia (ex-President Harrison's great-grandfather), to the little, meager Gerry of Massachusetts, "I shall have the advantage of you. It will be all over with me long before you have done kicking in the air." The glad news of independence was communicated to the throngs in the street, and a tradition asserts that the old bellman in the tower tolled the knell of tyranny and rang in the birth of a new nation, "great, glorious and free," amid the joyous acclamations of the crowd.—Exchange.

Broadened Freedom's Pathway.

What our fathers did they did not only for themselves, but for all who speak the English tongue. The lessons taught by our struggle and victory are as lasting as our race and broader than even the vast territory we cover today. When, therefore, we celebrate the Declaration of Independence we celebrate not only the courage and conduct of ancestors whose descendants we are, but the brave and farsighted deed of servants of mankind who not only founded an empire, but broadened the pathway of civilization, progress and freedom around the world.—Thomas B. Reed.

Fireworks Display.

Fireworks can be much better appreciated at a slight distance. Elevate your various devices on posts in the daytime. If wheels, see that they turn freely. Arrange rocket frames and mortars for bombs. If there are any trees, arrange your colored fires around the bases—the effect of the illumination through the foliage is always beautiful. Lead up gradually to your piece de resistance, and if it is within your means a flight of from 25 to 100 rockets makes an effective finale; if not, a battery of colored stars.—New York Herald.

Independence Justified.

Never was the Declaration of American Independence in 1776 so justified before God and man as it is by the relations and conditions of the two English speaking nations which exist today. Never was the United States so great or powerful in material wealth and resources, never so grandly independent in its self sustaining energies and so full of all the elements of a high civilization, of political, social, moral and intellectual strength as today.—T. F. Bayard.

To Be Known as the Best Company.

[SPECIAL TO THE DAILY LEDGER FROM H. A. MCLAUGHLIN.]

Camp Dewey, July 1.

Beautiful day but very hot. Men in best of spirits. Regular discipline not commenced as yet as we are busy mustering in. Camp ground infested with pedlers and venders with all sorts of wares. Boys are buying a little too much cold drinks and fruit, but after a little experience will know better.

We are no longer civilians, toy soldiers or dudes, but Uncle Sam's brave defender. There is not a man but what is willing and anxious to go to the front and do his duty as soldiers should.

At the officers meeting yesterday the conclusion was reached that we were booked for Cuba or Porto Rico inside of 10 days. The sooner the better.

One man from one of the other companies was caught leaving camp last night at 12 o'clock but was compelled to change his mind and will do solitary confinement for 24 hours.

Our camp barber Corporal Hermanson is fast making bald heads of most of us with some kind of an instrument which feels like a lawn mower.

2d. Lieut. Spear will probably lose his lovely hair in the same method today.

Chaplain E. L. House of Attleboro is a fine built soldierly appearing man and will look after the spiritual welfare of the boys of the regiment at all times. Not a kinder or more thoughtful man could be found.

First military guard mount this afternoon at 2.45. The guard consists of half recruits and half of the old militia. One recruit is posted with each old man.

After guard mount the whole regiment hurried out in squads for instructions and their work is to be praised.

All recruits are much interested in their work and promise to make good soldiers in a short space of time.

Tomorrow hard work begins and we will be ready for the front in a short time.

A certain Boston paper says tonight that we are inferior to the Ninth but we won't be behind any Regiment in the service when the time of action comes. Perhaps the representative was not allowed in camp.

Sergt. Crane of Quincy Point has charge of our cook squad, but with his hair shaved off looks more like a Chinese laundry man.

Monday will be a holiday and some of the boys will perhaps be allowed to come home for a few hours. MACK.

—A unique feature of nearly all homes and offices in Manila is the use of tiny square panes of translucent oyster shells instead of glass. The windows measure on the average six feet long and four feet wide and contain 260 of these oyster shell panes, which temper the fierce glare of the sun in the building. In a country where many people go blind from the constant sunshine this is a precaution very necessary to be taken.

NOTES FROM CAMP.

Not a Man of Co. K Was Rejected.

[FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.]

Camp Dalton, July 2.

Company K was the only company in the regiment in which no men were thrown out by Col. Weaver, the mustering officer.

A recruiting office will be opened in Quincy today for Company K as they need a few more men.

Company K has its mascot as well as other companies in the regiment, their mascot being a colored boy from Weymouth.

The boys are given an eight-hours' drill every day and are fast becoming proficient in the manual.

It is rumored in camp that the regiment will leave Camp Dalton July 11. It is also rumored that they will not go South to get acclimated but will go direct to Santiago.

The boys are very proud of their officers and will stand by them through thick and thin.

The youngest recruit in Company K is Private Curry who is about 17. His parents do not want him to go, but he says if the company will not have him he will run away to New York and enlist there.

Private Morrissey got a leave of absence today until 5 o'clock, having been summoned into court as a witness at the Quincy court.

The camp is open to visitors every day until 9 o'clock at night when the camp in cleared.

Some of the boys are complaining that the "grub" is no quite as plentiful as they would like to have it.

When any squad is called out for guard duty it means that it will be twenty-four hours before they are relieved.

Company K was mustered into the United States service at 11 o'clock Friday and the boys feel good at having been complimented by Col. Weaver who said that it was the best company that he had mustered into service at South Framingham.

The members of Company K feel rather sore over the reports published in a Boston paper to the effect that the Company held an indignation meeting in regard to the food provided. They characterize the report as false; no meeting having been held and no complaint having been made.

They further say that they are here to their full duty as soldiers and not to make complaints. If any complaints are necessary they will be made to the Captain and not to any Boston newspaper man or outsiders. If a complaint is made it will be looked into and the fault rectified as much as possible by the proper authorities. All of our officers have the interest of the enlisted men at heart and will not allow us to suffer through them.

Private Clapp of Company K discovered a slight fire in the guard house Friday which was extinguished with the aid of the guard.

Mustering in progressed all day Friday even after sunset. This morning there were three yet to pass; Co. C of Newton, I of Attleboro and D of Plymouth, which lack the requisite number of privates.

Co. K men are happy that Maj. Morrison of Braintree has been sworn. There was anxiety over his appointment, as the government called for only two majors while the regiment as a part of the State militia had three majors. Major Morrison's long service, and interest in military affairs make him a very desirable man. The Braintree company has great confidence in him. Clement of Waltham is the other major.

An incident in the Hudson company shows that drunkenness will not be allowed in the Fifth Regiment. Capt. Clare found Friday that three raw recruits had got drunk over night. He at once turned them loose. They had on their canvas uniforms, and a happy thought made Capt. Clare call the boys back. They had discarded the outer garments which they had brought to camp, but the Captain sent out and bought three pairs of loosely fitting overalls. Then he made the trio doff their uniforms, don the overalls and go forth to seek triumphs in civil life. The Journal says, "The discipline of the camp is excellent Health conditions are also good.

Surgeon Foster has one case of malaria, and the patient will be sent home today. Captain House, the volunteer Postmaster, finds his labors increasing. Meanwhile the heat is all sufficient, and the boys are yearning for the news from Santiago de Cuba.

Merry Mount Tennis Club.

The club will hold a member's tournament July Fourth on the Safford street grounds. From the number of entries already made a large tournament is assured. The winner will receive a racket as a prize and may challenge C. W. Bates the holder of the club's championship cup, which was first played for in 1895. There are still a few vacancies in the club and these are open to anyone desiring to become members.

Fresh Provisions.

People can scarcely imagine how any one can get fresh provisions in time of war and at sea. Admiral Sampson is getting his goods from a Boston firm, T. D. Baker & Co. His goods are packed in ice, sent to Port Antonio by Boston Fruit Co.'s steamers received and sent to the Admiral by the first despatch boat touching at the island of Jamaica.

This firm has contracted with the government to furnish them 100,000 pounds of provisions from June 30, 1898, to June 30, 1899, for supplies to all naval vessels coming to this port.

Baker & Co. are the largest dealers in Boston of fresh meats. Last year when the fleet was here the commission supplied the entire squadron, a description of which was given in our paper.

WHOOPEE WHOOPEE.

Allie Williams Writes of More Experiences.

Allie Williams sends an interesting letter from Mobile, Ala., this week, where his vessel, the U. S. S. Oneida is having a new boiler put in.

Mobile, June 22, 1898.

We reached Mobile Tuesday, 10 A. M., after a hard run from Key West. We were away from Key West two days. Ran to Cuba on the blockade but had to come back, as we could not make any speed on account of the boilers, one having given out.

There has been such a crowd of blue jackets and marines at Key West and some have made such fools of themselves that the people, especially the women, will give you all the sidewalk and part of the street. The saloons do a rushing business, and games of chance of all kinds are found all over the town.

Before we left Key West I dived down under the vessel to pull out a plug in one of the drains. I have got quite a name as a diver on board the ship.

The telegram came early Saturday morning to be off. We lashed every thing and weighed anchor at 11 30 A. M. Steamed to the wharf as the tug Leyden was to tow us to Mobile. She had to have her rudder fixed so we did not get away until 1 30 P. M.

Sunday, water gave out, and provisions got short, in fact we didn't have much dinner; no coffee, and no water to make any either; canned ham, salter than time, with two slices of bread. Same for supper.

Sunday night, I was on the bridge four hours in my oil skins. A wave caught her under the bow and lifted me off my feet into the foremast shrouds; the closest call I have had yet. It was not like standing in oil skins down at the gunning house watching for ducks.

Monday, the Leyden sent four gallons of water adrift with a line. We picked it up. Oh, what a relief!

The fireman had to have water and went down and dipped up two buckets full, mixed with iron rust, dirt and grease. You had to close your eyes, hold on to your nose and then strangle, but it had to go down.

Sighted land at 7.30 P. M. at Sand Key light. They had the search light on us for some time after we had anchored. I sent up my first signal,—our private number to the fort. We could not get up the river until morning.

Tuesday, 5 A. M., all hands on deck. A fellow named C. W. Gray and myself got into the cutter. She hardly struck the water when over she went. We had a lively time but finally got her back and tried it over. It is quite a trick to man a boat in rough weather. We went to the Leyden for water to make coffee.

At 6 30 got hawsers fixed and started up the river to Mobile, a very narrow channel. A great number of lights and buoys were passed. We tied up to the wharf at 10 A. M.

While tying up I had my first experience. I was forward; the mate ordered me aft for a line to put out on the starboard quarter. I got the line and started forward with it. There were two men playing it out to me. All at once the vessel backed and wound the rope around her propeller. Well, there was just a little swearing. The mate said that I was as much to blame as any one.

Knowing that I had been under water at Key West, he said, "those that had anything to do with that line would not have shore liberty until it was freed." I stripped off with two others and went at it. We were in the water two hours. The mate said it must not be cut. After taking off three turns you could not budge it. Reported it so. "All right, cut it!" was the order.

Well, you can bet we were not very long freeing it. I was sick all the rest of the day. They thought I would have a fever. I am better today. I don't know how long we will be here; not long I hope.

Last night it rained hard. It was the port watch's turn to go ashore. I will go tonight. Cannot tell you much about this place yet.

The fishing vessels are anchored here. They keep the fish alive in tanks; half of the vessel being a large tank, we can now have fresh fish. Dinner is ready! Whoopee!

Dinner is over and the boys are so full that they can't hardly move: potatoes, beets, string beans, meat, bread and coffee! Whoopee! Whoopee! Either a feast or a famine if you work for Uncle Sam.

ALLIE WILLIAMS.

—Now that our soldiers are abroad, don't forget that letters to them must be prepaid at the foreign postage rate—five cents for each half-ounce.

Pastors of Quincy.

Pastorates in our city have changed so frequently in recent years that it is doubtful if one citizen out of a dozen could name one half of the ministers resident here at this time. The following list with the date of settlement is thought to be complete:

1868—Rev. Francis A. Friguglietti St. John's church, Roman Catholic.

1882—Rev. J. P. Cuffe, St. John's church.

1888—Rev. Preston Gurney, Baptist church, Wollaston.

1890—Rev. P. A. Englund, Swedish Baptist church.

1892—Rev. F. A. Cunningham, St. John's church.

1893—*Rev. James E. Bagley, Unitarian church, Wollaston.

1893—*Rev. Walter Russell Breed, Christ church, Protestant Episcopal.

1894—*Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, First church, Unitarian.

1894—*Rev. Robert Westly Peach, First Presbyterian church.

1895—*Rev. C. A. Parker, Calvary Baptist church.

1895—Rev. C. A. Bjornbom, Swedish Congregational church.

1895—*Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy, Bethany church, Congregational.

1896—Rev. Julian Johnstone, St. John's church.

1896—*Rev. Carlton Putnam Mills, St. Chrysostom's church, Protestant Episcopal, Wollaston.

1897—*Rev. W. W. Dornan, First United Presbyterian church.

1897—*Rev. Edgar Watson Preble, Universalist church.

1897—Rev. K. F. Henrikson, Finnish church.

1897 — Rev. John F. Purcell, St. John's church.

1897—Rev. Otto Anderson, St. Paul's church, Swedish Lutheran.

1897—*Rev. J. H. Whitaker, Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic.

1897—*Rev. H. C. Wright, Methodist Episcopal church, Atlantic.

1897—Rev. F. T. Knight, Park and Downs Congregational church.

1898—*Rev. C. A. Wilder, Methodist Episcopal church, West Quincy.

1898—*Rev. J. E. Waterhouse, Methodist Episcopal church, Wollaston.

1898—Rev. Hilmer Larson, Swedish Methodist Episcopal church.

Those whose names are marked with an asterisk have been more or less active in the work of the Woodward Board during the past year. At Wednesday's meeting the Catholic clergy were also present. The Rev. Edward Norton, Quincy's oldest Protestant minister, is not now a settled pastor, although supplying the Wollaston Congregational church during the vacancy.

The Rev. C. A. Wilder is one of the oldest members of the Woodward Board, having been pastor of the Wollaston Methodist Episcopal church, 1893—1896.

The Congregational church at Quincy Point is at present without a pastor.

With three new pastors in 1898 to date, eight in 1897 and two in 1896, the majority of the twenty-five who constitute the clergy list of Quincy at present, have resided here less than three years, and the same proportion holds good on the Woodward Board.

This is a startling exhibit of the rapidity with which it changes.

We are indebted to one of the ministers for the above list, and shall be pleased to make corrections if any errors are discovered.

Gala Week.

All roads will lead to New Downer Landing next week and the indications are that this beautiful outing place will see the largest attendance it has ever held. The entire grove has been leased for the week by the Quincy & Boston street railroad which has at large expense secured attractions that cannot fail to please. First there will be the Alabama Colored Jubilee Singers who will give their very pleasing programme every afternoon and evening. Another attraction secured is the famous Black Prince, who will make a balloon ascension and parachute drop every day, and on July 4, will make two ascensions. There will also be a display of fireworks on that evening and dancing every afternoon and evening. Aside from this there are exceptional opportunities for boating, bathing and fishing. For this week the admission has been placed at ten cents which includes all the amusements.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Newton of North Weymouth, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Chas. V. Glynn, at Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. Gilman C. Fisher, formerly superintendent of schools of Weymouth, has been the guest of friends at East Weymouth several days this week. Mr. Fisher now holds the responsible position as superintendent of schools at Pawtucket, R. I.

Mrs. W. A. Drake and son left North Weymouth this morning for a vacation with relations in Maine.

A meeting of the Reynolds Relief Corps, organized June 8th, as a branch of Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association, will be held at G. A. R. Hall East Weymouth, Tuesday afternoon, July 5

At the dedication of our new High school on Thursday the assembly room side recitation rooms and halls were filled with people. Many were obliged to stand. The interest in this new building suggests the possibility of getting more money for apparatus in the gymnasium and for works of art. The Women's club gave the new school a fine picture of St. Anthony and the boy Christ. Old graduates, represented by Col. Thomas, contributed some classic models for inspiration in the study of history and the languages.

The subject for the service at the Pythian hall on Sunday morning is "The Succesful Work of Foreign Missionaries." A collection will be taken for the American Board of Missions.

The frame work of the New Union church is now standing up in the air and giving promise and hope of the privileges of a house of worship before winter comes upon us.

The Woman Of the Home

Does the purchasing for the family. She reads the local paper religiously. Many in Quincy read only the Patriot, which has been a weekly visitor to their house for upwards of fifty years.

THE BOY PATRIOT.

'Twas in late November, the record says, November of seventeen eighty-three,
When the British slipped on board their ships and silently sailed away to sea.
The patriot army scarcely knew till they saw the glint of the canvas white
That the enemy had left the town in the first gray gleam of the morning light.

Then what a mighty shout arose! And forthwith into the rescued town,
Troop by troop, the patriots marched straight to the ramparts of the crown,
But there they stopped, for, proud and high from the flagstaff of St. George's, lo,
Bathed by the splendor of the sun, flew the hated flag of the British foe!

Brave, with its silken, mocking folds nailed to the mast, it rose and fell.
Stript of its halyards, the ladder gone—surely the foe had secured it well.
Every patriot's cheek was stained—blush of pride and of anger wed.
"Down with it! Down with it!" rose the cry. "Up with the stars and stripes instead!"

But how? Ah, answer comes quick indeed when heart of patriot wills to do!
Out from the concourse springs a lad, flaxen headed, with eyes of blue
All ablaze with a strange new fire. "I can climb, sirs. Oh, let me try!
Give me the flag, and I'll go up!" The soldiers parted and let him by.

Inch by inch up the slender staff crept the climber, while all below
Held their breath lest the mast should break, dizzily swaying to and fro.
Over his shoulder, like a cloak snatched from the heav'n of star and blue,
Trailed the flag of his country's pride—flag of the fearless, the free, the true!

One more foot—how the flagstaff bends! See! He has caught it, has torn it down,
Flag of the alien! It flies away over the roofs of the shouting town.
Steady now is the firm young hand, deft in its delicate task, till, lo!
Fold on fold, stream the stars and stripes, nailed to the staff of the conquered foe!

Brave young patriot—cheer him well! Blood of a hero warms his veins,
Full of the fire that nerves the blow or sheds its life on the purple plains.
Tell the story to whom you may. Catch its spirit—the will to do
What you can for the dear old flag that patriot love bequeaths to you.

—Youth's Companion.

FOURTH OF JULY AT TOOKER'S.

The 3d of July at Orr's Mills was full of the stinging noises that seem to belong to very hot, breathless days. It presaged even hotter things for the Fourth of July.

Mrs. Tooker was ironing in her little, stifling kitchen. Her meek, thin face was unwontedly flushed and trickling with little streams of perspiration.

Windows and doors were shut. There were no screens, and Lavinia Tooker couldn't "abide" flies. It was the only thing she had ever felt courage enough to abide or not abide.

Adam Tooker lounged outside in the shade in his shirt sleeves. Aunt Lois Knapp, next farm, said a body hadn't only to look once at Adam Tooker's chin to see who was head of that house.

Mrs. Tooker looked at it now through the window, but she saw only the grizzled forerunners of a beard. In its firm, hard lines and masterful curves she saw no significance.

"Seems as if I never knew starch to stick the way this does!" she groaned, scraping little flakes of it from the iron with a case knife. "And just when I'm in an awful hurry too! I wish Adam would let me try that satin starch Aunt Lois brags about. But he won't. It's 5 cents a pound more." She sighed gently.

The sitting room door opened suddenly and Mary Tooker came out. She had some sewing in her hand.

"Why, mother," she exclaimed, "you'll melt! This kitchen's like a furnace of fire. If you'd only have the window open! But, anyway, I'll leave the sitting room door open—that'll be some help."

"No, no, Mary, don't! There don't need to but one of us melt."

"Well, I guess I can stand it as well as you can. I'm going to see if I can't." She edged herself gently into her mother's place and wrested the iron from her tired fingers. Her sewing slipped to the floor.

Was it the influence of Independence day, forerunning it a little, that put the accent of command into Mary Tooker's voice and the little jerk of mastery into her shoulders? Her mother succumbed to them weakly.

"I am tuckered," she said, "but your father's shirt's got to be done up, and the collars and cuffs. He's decided he's going to the celebration over to Stratford."

"Yes, he said he was at dinner, mother," the girl faced about resolutely. "Why don't you go with him?"

"Me? Why, Mary Ann Tooker! Me!"

"Yes, you. I guess it won't hurt you any to have one good time in your life. I guess you deserve it. There, there, you needn't look so scared. Father won't hear me. He's fast asleep. You go up stairs and lie down, mother. I'll finish the ironing."

Mary Tooker was 29 years old, and she "looked it," Aunt Lois Knapp said. Over her temples already the hair was thin and had its gray lining, which Mary kept snugly covered as long as she could. Her shoulders stooped a little. Even her skirts had renounced the follies and the frills of youth and fell scantily around her, like an old woman's.

Mary Tooker had never been young in her life. There had been a short, young month, to be sure, when John Tracy came nearly every afternoon up the front walk and staidly drank tea with her out of the best china teacups, but could "being young" be crowded into a month? When Mary's father came back at the month's end, the lines in his chin had deepened obstinately, and John Tracy, in pity of Mary's frightened distress, had agreed to stay away.

"Until you call me back, Mary," he had said gravely. "I shall wait."

But that was years ago. Now John Tracy's hair was thinning, too, and growing gray. His shoulders stooped too. Would Mary ever call him back?

Mary Tooker ironed the sticky shirt bosom with conscientious care on July 3 in the little sweltering kitchen. Every crease she pulled out painstakingly. Every speck she sponged away, bending over it with nearsighted eyes. When the work was done, she got supper and called in her father.

"Father," she said bravely as the solemn meal went on, "I've got to go down to the village on an errand tonight. It's so hot—I'm considerable tired—I was thinking perhaps—could I have the team?" Her sallow cheeks reddened anxiously.

Mrs. Tooker held her spoon suspended in helpless dismay. Was Mary crazy? There was nothing further said until "father" had cleared his plate and drained his last saucerful of tea. Then he shoved back his chair with a rasping noise and said decidedly: "The mare's got to rest up for tomorrer. I guess you can foot it all right."

Mrs. Tooker's spoon fell clattering to her plate. There was almost relief in her face. The red flush in Mary's face flickered, died out, then woke again. The shadow of Independence day touched her once more.

"But, father," she said, subduing the quaver in her voice with unusual success, "I'd like some money."

Adam Tooker sat down suddenly in a chair by the door—so suddenly and so heavily that the chair, unduly weak in constitution, succumbed to his weight.

It was unfortunate for poor Mary.

"Money!" he exclaimed, getting himself together stiffly. "You'n your mother are always an everlastin'ly wantin money. I ain't made of money. Where's the dollar I give you last week?"

"Last month," Mary quietly corrected him. "Mother had to get a new milk pail with most of that and a butter mold with the rest. I want this money to spend for us—mother and me."

"Then I guess you'll have to turn to an earn it."

Adam Tooker was not a brutal man. There was even a secret core of unused, rusty tenderness beneath the husk of selfishness, but just now his shins twinged with rheumatic pain from his fall and his temper had him in hand.

"Oh, Mary," Lavinia Tooker remonstrated querulously over the dish washing, "how'd you dare to vex your father so? He feels the heat dreadfully, and I don't know's he feels real well besides. I wish you hadn't done it."

"Mother!" Mary Tooker stood up straight and impressive, even majestic. Her old young, spiritless face shone with a new light. The grace of honest indignation transformed it.

"Mother, look at me! I'm going on 30. Do I look as if I ever'd spent a cent of father's money on myself, as other girls do? Do I look pretty and tasty and young? Did I ever look so? And he says I'd better earn some money!"

The scathing of her voice burned into her mother's heart. She spread out both her calloused, unlovely hands and let them speak with wordless eloquence for her. The reddened skin and worn nails bore pitiful evidence of rough work.

"Where's the money I have earned? Where's the money you've earned all this time, mother, while you've been growing old and stoopy and feeble? Where's our new dresses we've earned and laces and ribbons like other women's? Have you ever had a nice dress in your life—ever? Have I, either? Where's the celebrations we've ever been to? Where's anything beautiful or easy or comfortable we've ever had or done?"

Mrs. Tooker's helpless tears fell. Was poor Mary crazy?

"Hush, hush, dearie!" she said soothingly. "You're tuckered out, what with the heat and working so stiddy. You don't know what you're saying. You go get on your hat—it'll sort of settle your feelings to walk down to the store. Law! I guess I can make out with this little mess of dishes—go way!"

At Orr's Mills the Fourth of July dawned hotter and more breathless still—the kind of a Fourth of July we have been bred to expect if all goes well.

Adam Tooker got an early start to Stratford. The women folks were left with the most of the morning's chores to do to that end. It was long before they were done. Then Mary disappeared in her own room.

When she came out, half an hour or more later, her mother fairly gasped at the picture she made in the low, smoky doorway. Was it Mary—Mary Ann Tooker? Had she fallen asleep there in the creaking rocker and opened her eyes in heaven? For this was the way Mary would look in heaven—young and sweet and like other mothers' Marys.

"Mother, don't you know me?" called Mary joyfully. "Why, you're crying! Why, mother!"

Her mother reached out both arms toward her suddenly. "You look—so—beautiful, dearie!" she almost sobbed.

Mary had loosened her brown hair into soft, girlish curves and tendrils, and it framed in her face with softening effect. She had put on all her scant finery, amplifying and beautifying it with surprising success. She even had flowers in her hair and a little bunch at her belt. But best of all was the pretty light in her eyes and the smiles that brought out forgotten, unused dimples in her cheeks. She was young for once in her life at last—Mary Ann Tooker, 29 years old.

Over her arm she had her mother's best dress, freshly bedecked with lace ruchings in neck and sleeves.

"Put it on, mother. Put it on quick! We mustn't lose a minute. This is Independence day."

Ah, the secret was out! It was Independence day at Orr's Mills, at Stratford, the world over and in Mary Tooker's soul.

Mrs. Tooker made a feeble protest: "I hadn't ought to, Mary. It ain't right!"

But Mary's fingers, smoothing the thin, straight white hair, strayed out to the wrinkled forehead and lightly rested on it. Then Mary Ann Tooker leaned over and kissed her mother. Dear land alive! Mary dressed her, Mrs. Tooker meekly submitting now. Mary fastened a few flowers over her mother's thin breast.

"There now, mother, you look beautiful!" she said briskly. "I'm going to set you in the parlor in the haircloth rocker out of the sun. You're my company."

"Mary—why, Mary!"

"Yes, you're my company. I'm going to open a jar of preserves for your supper and cut the fruit cake—hush, you needn't say a word! I guess I can entertain my own mother on Fourth of—on Independence day," she corrected herself quickly. "I guess so! I'm going to see if you and I can't celebrate too."

"But, Mary"—

"I was going to get a bunch of firecrackers down to the store last night. Yes, I was! Father didn't give me any money, so I couldn't, and maybe I shouldn't have dared to fire 'em off. But fruit cake and preserves and our best dresses'll do."

She sat opposite her mother, stiffly upright on the slippery sofa. Her face shone. "Mother, I don't know but this is the way it feels to be young. I like it." Her voice was wistful, earnest.

Her mother stopped rocking and looked over into her face almost anxiously.

All at once Mary went to the window. "There's John Tracy driving past," she said quietly. "I'm going to invite him in to supper too."

"Mary—dear land—Mary!"

But Mary was gone. At the front door she stood under the tangle of vines and called clearly: "John! John!"

At supper they drank tea again staidly out of the best china teacups. The fruit cake appealed in mute disapprobation to Mrs. Tooker, but she took the second piece when Mary pressed her unflinchingly. What would Adam say?

Adam Tooker's day had not been full of unalloyed pleasure. He had had so long to think on the drive to town, and perversely, persistently the disjointed fragments of Mary's last night's talk with her mother had rung in his ears. He had heard them as he came in from milking. He had heard them all night. He was hearing them today between the booms of cannon and the sharp, intermittent pops of the boys' firecrackers. They ran on in his mind with troublesome reiteration, always in Mary's shrill, indignant voice, with its wistful undertones.

Confound it! Were they going to spoil his whole day? Couldn't a man take a bit of pleasuring without being pestered to death?

The day wore on slowly to Adam Tooker, however fast and joyous to the happy faced families around him taking their holiday together.

Boom! Boom! Was it that, or was it the jolt and stir of hurrying feet and the clatter of high, excited voices that jarred from its sheath of selfishness the core of human tenderness entombed in Adam Tooker's soul? Or was it the echo of Mary's voice crying out bravely to him?

Never mind what—never mind when or how. It stirred and awoke. The little groups holidaying on every side of him appeared in a new light in his eyes.

Yonder a rough bearded father was teaching his middle aged daughter to set off a firecracker, laughing hilariously at her fright. An old mother a little way farther off was dancing a grandbaby to the band's merry tune. The baby's mother looked on proudly. There, over there, a pair of lovers walked, shy and contented and unheeding, through the crowds. The man looked like John Tracy when John was young. The girl—she didn't look like Mary!

Adam Tooker shrugged his shoulders impatiently. Were all the daughters middle aged and all the women old? A lost, tiny urchin tugged at his hand, calling him "grandpa" in an imperative baby voice. He dropped the little fist, then picked it up again and spent a patient hour finding the child's people.

He resolved to stay to the fireworks, as he had planned to do, though he had lost the zest of the day. As the first rocket shot into the air he heard a familiar voice near him—Mary's, "Oh, mother, isn't it beautiful?"

She was sitting on the back seat of John Tracy's wagon beside her mother. Unconsciously her shoulders were straightened and her head thrown back. John Tracy, looking back at her, took his enjoyment reflected from her happy face. Once or twice he leaned back and readjusted the light robe over her lap and let his hand linger a minute, unhindered.

"He looks like John Tracy, too, when John was young," muttered Adam Tooker, with a grim smile, "an, thank goodness, this girl looks like Mary! Mary!" He went up to the wagon and touched her arm, reaching up on tiptoe. "So you come over, you an Laviny? Good evenin, John! There's goin to be quite a show, they say, wuth your drivin over."

A rocket or two went up overhead without their notice. An embarrassed silence possessed the little group. When Mary spoke at length, there was a little quiver underlying the bravery of her voice, but she subdued it resolutely as she went on.

"Good evening, father!" she said. "Ain't you tired out standing on your feet so? I guess there's plenty of room for you to sit down beside John, isn't there, John? You can just as well as not."

"Why, yes," said John. "You jump right in, Mr. Tooker—jump right in!" he cried heartily. "I was just thinking what a pity it was to waste all this room in the middle of a crowd. You get right in!"

"Yes, do, Adam," ventured Mrs. Tooker timidly. "You look real tuckered out."

But with his foot on the wagon step Adam Tooker changed his mind and stepped heavily down again. He reached up a stout forefinger and gently prodded Mary's arm.

"No," he said gravely, though under his shaggy brows his eyes actually twinkled. "No; you get in ahead, Mary, with John. I'll set with Laviny on the back seat. I guess that'll even us up better."

And so, "evened up," they sat and watched the rockets burst into stars over their heads and trail down fainter and fainter into obscurity. On the back seat perhaps a remembrance of other years—young, loving years—came to Adam Tooker, for once Lavinia's tired hand in its loose cotton glove was sure it felt a lingering, clumsy touch.

And on the front seat Mary Tooker's Independence day was ending with a vista of happy, independent years for her and John.—Youth's Companion.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

FRENCH BLACK AND WHITE FOULARD GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

Black and white, which still holds its popularity, is the combination in a graceful costume of foulard—white patterned with black, and trimmed with lace and black velvet,

The skirt has three shaped flounces. The one at the foot is quite narrow directly in front, slightly wider at the sides, and slopes gradually higher towards the back, its fulness slightly trailing behind. On the front one flounce describes one side of a long apron, and when it reaches the bottom becomes a part of the lower ruffle. The upper end gradually tapers toward the waist, where it is fastened just below the black velvet belt by a French rosette, which is composed of pointed ends of velvet ribbon inserted airily between double bows, and held by a jetted buckle. A similar rosette fastens the second ruffle, which curves below the other at a graceful distance. It is a Paris fancy to use several flounces arranged in this manner on one side of the skirt, making a line of four or five rosettes. The ruffles are each headed by a narrow bias fold of white satin foulard, of which also the foundation skirt is composed. The skirt is a six-gored model, three and one half yards in width.

White silk muslin, the fabric of the season, is used for the full waist under a little square jacket of black lace over white silk. Three circular ruffles form revers and surmount the close tailor sleeve, which is trimmed with a narrow circular ruffle from wrist to elbow. The proper cut of this gown can be obtained only from the cut paper patterns published by Harper's Bazar, where it appears.

Quantity of material for gown— Foulard, 13 yards; black lace, 1 yard; velvet ribbon, 3 3-4 yards; silk muslin, 3-4 yard.

The Fearless Signers.

None of the men who became world famous for all time by their part in the Revolutionary war and in the delicate and intricate negotiations that followed had more to lose or risked their all more resolutely and intrepidly than did the signers of the Declaration of Independence. They were the first American heroes. The enthusiasm of a popular movement, well defined and started toward success, was lacking for their inspiration. They were the creators of the tremendous enterprise in which the destinies of a race were embarked. Failure meant the loss of property, of social caste, of existence itself. Success of the most signal kind even—the kind that came—meant incalculable sacrifices for most of them. It was life or death in the cast of the die, and they cast it fearlessly.—New York Herald.

GREENHORN A WINNER.

A Recent Arrival From England Defeats Dixon.

Evenly Contested and Hard Fought Battle.

Ben Jordan Gets the Decision After Foul Fighting.

New York, July 2.—The sporting public interested in fistiana expected much from Benjamin Jordan, the greenhorn who landed a few weeks ago from England, but it was not prepared for such a showing as he made when put to a hard test last night. He had for an antagonist George Dixon of Boston, the colored champion. The contest lasted 25 rounds, and Referee White decided that the Englishman had surpassed the dark-hued American.

BEN JORDAN.

Dixon seemed to have the better of the bout, and was decidedly stronger and more effective than when he met Santry of Chicago a few weeks ago in the same ring. Jordan had a shade the better of his opponent in regard to height and reach, and it was announced that he weighed 122 pounds, while Dixon turned the scales at 117½ pounds.

Dixon, as usual, did the leading, but, unlike many of those who had previously met the little colored fighter, Jordan went at him and mixed it up at all times. Several times Jordan used his elbow at close quarters, but the referee contented himself with cautioning the Britisher. Once or twice Jordan hit Dixon rather low on the body, but eGorge made no protest. Many of those who watched the work of both thought a draw would have been a very satisfactory decision.

Dixon took the adverse verdict stoically, and, though his claims on the title of featherweight champion of the world had vanished, the fact did not seem to worry him. He had the goodwill and sympathy of everyone in his defeat, as the cheers which greeted him as he left the ring attested. Jordan, with the exception of a nosebleed and a few red marks on his body, did not show any signs of having been through a severe battle. The only mark on Dixon's body was the old cut over his right eye which was reopened by one of Jordan's jabs.

Round 10—In close fighting they exchanged rights and lefts on the head and wind, and in a rush Dixon slipped on his knees and Jordan held him down with his elbows on his neck. Dixon rose and swung his left to the face and Jordan swung his left to the wind.

Round 11—It was seen that Jordan had re-opened an old cut over Dixon's right eye in the preceding round. Dixon landed blows on the stomach, face, ribs and head. The referee cautioned Jordan for using his elbow at close quarters.

Round 13—Dixon chased Jordan aeross the ring, swinging lefts and rights to the head. When he reached the ropes he hugged Dixon and swung him around to a ring post. There was a lot of hissing.

Round 25—Dixon sent a left swing to the head and Jordan jabbed his left to the face. These blows were repeated three times, and Dixon swung his left on the ribs and Jordan jabbed his left on the face. They clinched, and Dixon hooked a hard right on the head. Some people hissed, but Dixon was right. Dixon kept swinging lefts on the ribs and sending hooks to the head. Jordan continuously jabbed his left on the face. Dixon had the better of the round.

AGAIN THEY LOSE.

Rostons Beaten by the Clevelands, Who Batted Two Pitchers.

Cleveland, July 2.—Something happened to the Clevelands' batting eyes yesterday, and they finally opened wide. Lewis, who refused to give them a hit while he was finishing the game the day before, started in to pitch, but it was just like batting up flies for Cleveland. In two innings they had pounded out nine hits, including a home run and a double, and Mr. Lewis was sent to the bench.

Klobedanz succeeded him, but he did not stop the batting long, and Cleveland, by taking advantage of every opportunity, running the bases in the most approved style and hitting the ball quite frequently, kept on adding runs to their collection.

All this time Jones was pitching like an old-timer. He did not have much speed, but his control was good, and his curves were as various and complicated as those of a fancy penman or figure skater. He almost invariably got two strikes on the Boston batters, and only when they got wise and waited was he forced to put them over. Score:

Wheeler and Dunkle of the Philadelphias were easy marks for the Cincinnatis yesterday. Dwyer was effective throughout the game. Score: 14 to 2.

The Tauntons made a good attempt in yesterday game, but Mains weakened in the eighth inning, giving three bases on balls and being hit for six singles, a two and a three-bagger. It was a batting contest, and the Tauntons had the best of it up to this time. Score: 16 to 10.

MERCHANTS KICKING.

Apparent Violation of the War Revenue Law.

Express Companies Bleeding the Public.

Insisting That Patrons Shall Bear the Expense of Stamps.

Boston, July 2.—A special meeting of the board of directors of the Boston Merchants' association was held yesterday, and representatives of many large shipping houses were present. The meeting was called to consider the provision of the war revenue law requiring railroad and steamboat companies, carriers or express companies to affix a 1-cent stamp to each freight receipt, bill of lading, etc. It was stated that the large express companies had given instructions to their drivers not to sign for any parcels unless the shippers attached a 1-cent stamp to each receipt, whereas the smaller express companies are willing to comply with the evident intention of the law and to affix stamps themselves.

After a full discussion of the subject, resolutions were adopted to the effect that it being clearly the duty of express companies to affix the stamps themselves, the merchants, if required to do so, would provide stamps under protest until their rights in the matter were determined. A telegram was sent to Secretary Gage, advising him that the express companies of this city required shippers to affix, at their expense, revenue stamps to shipping receipts, bills of lading, etc., in apparent violation of the law, and asking his decision as to who should affix and pay for the stamps.

Decision In a Damage Case.

Boston, July 2.—The full bench of the supreme court has overruled the plaintiff's exceptions in the case of Edward E. Stone vs. the Boston and Albany Railroad company, holding that the defendant is not liable for the burning of the plaintiff's buildings and lumber in Spencer. The fire originated among 13 barrels of kerosene oil on an oil saturated platform 75 feet away from the plaintiff's premises. A teamster at work at the station lighted his pipe, throwing the match away. It fell on the platform and started a blaze, which exploded the barrels, and the fire spread to the plaintiff's premises. The plaintiff claimed that the defendant was negligent in storing oil upon the platform, and that, irrespective of the question of negligence, the keeping of the oil there longer than 48 hours without a permit constituted a public nuisance.

The court holds in a majority opinion that it was not the defendant's duty to guard against the consequence of such an act as that which caused the fire. Judge Knowlton dissents, saying that the case should have been submitted to the jury because it could well have found on the evidence that the burning of the property was a direct result of the defendant's conduct in keeping this oil on the platform.

Boston's New Station.

Boston, July 2.—A fully equipped passenger train was run into the trainshed of the new station yesterday afternoon. While it can hardly be said that the station is open to traffic, yet this feat was accomplished with no concern whatever as to safety. It was the boast of President Clark, soon after the plans had been accepted, that on the first day of July, 1898, he would enter on a passenger train. The train was made up of four parlor cars, which were occupied by the directors of the road.

George F. Candage, the missing assistant bookkeeper and cashier of the Bay State Ice company, who gave himself to the police of Indianapolis, has been brought back to Boston. He says that he will plead guilty to the charge of absconding with $600 of the company's money. The man states that he lost the money among the crooks of Chicago.

The internal revenue collector is out of every denomination of documentary stamps, except a few 5-cent, 25-cent and 50-cent ones.

Senators Were Personal.

Washington, July 2.—Mr. Caffrey became nettled in the senate yesterday by the ridicule with which Mr. Pettus of Alabama treated his argument against Hawaiian annexation, and declared that Pettus' speech savored of senility.

"I am an old man, Mr. President," remarked the Alabama member, "but this is the first time I was ever insulted in the United States senate by such language, and I don't intend to tolerate it."

Mr. Caffrey absolutely disclaimed that he had intended his remarks as an insult. It was, he said, merely a set-off to Mr. Pettus' statement regarding the speaker's adolescence.

Enlargement of Power.

New York, July 2.—Important changes were made yesterday in the operating department of the sound lines of transportation. O. H. Taylor, who has been the general passenger agent of the Fall River line, has been appointed general passenger agent of all the sound lines—the Fall River, Providence, Norwich and Stonington. Captain S. A. Gardner, who has been superintendent of the Fall River line, has been made general superintendent of the entire marine service of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. The superintendency of Captain Gardner thus covers the floating equipment of the system.

Woman and Man Slain.

New York, July 2.—Vincenza Rosano, a bride of a week, was shot yesterday at Newark by Giovanni Marighetti, a rejected suitor, who was mad with jealousy, and died last night. Marighetti, afterthe shooting, leaped from a window on the fourth floor and was so severely injured that he died.

William Fau, a cook in the restaurant of Julius Smith, after a dispute, stabbed the proprietor seven times with a carving knife, killing him. The murderer was arrested.

If every woman who expects to become a mother would heed and read that great book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., there would be stronger mothers and healthier, happier children in this world.

In this grand volume several hundred of its thousand pages are devoted to teaching women how to take care of themselves during every trying and critical period of their lives and especially at the time of approaching motherhood.

The author of this remarkable work has had a lifetime of practical experience in treating the special diseases and weaknesses of women, and is recognized as one of the foremost of living experts in this particular field of practice. His "Favorite Prescription" is the most wonderful medicine ever invented to restore natural organic strength and power to the delicate feminine structure which is most intimately concerned in motherhood.

Taken during the time of anticipation it deprives this ordeal of all its accustomed terrors and dangers; makes the coming of baby absolutely safe and comparatively painless; renders the mother strong and cheerful, and helps to endow the child with a strong, healthy constitution.

Mrs. Mabel Jordan, of Swofford, Lewis Co., Washington, writes: "I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription until the very last day. We now have a fine, plump little girl over two weeks old. I suffered less pain than with any of the others, this being the sixth child, and she has good health. I got up on the tenth day and dressed myself—something I could not do with the other babies. Have been gaining in strength every day and feel well, all due to God and to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

For the "Medical Adviser," send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, or for cloth-covered copy 31 stamps, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

In Ambush.

Among those who left Quincy Thursday, in Co. K 5th Regiment was Mr. George A. Wardwell a trusted employe of the T. R. & S. Co. of Wollaston. Mr. Wardwell who has charge of a department employing about a hundred girls, was the recipient of one of Uncle Sam's gold pieces of a generous denomination from the girls in his room last Wednesday just before his departure.

The girls assembled standing on boxes, stools and benches forming a circle which raised from the centre forming a very pretty picture Mr. Wardwell was summoned and found himself surrounded to such an extent that he could not escape. Miss Abbie Feltis stepped forward and presented the gold piece together with a handsome bouquet of roses with the remarks, that while they regretted parting with one whom they held in such high esteem they were doubtless glad to know that he was fearlessly going to the front to fight for the flag that never was lowered to the foe.

Mr. Wardwell taken by surprise briefly and wittily replied that they had completely flanked him on all sides but he hoped that if it was his lot to be called into actual service that the enemy would never close in on him and catch him in such a complete ambush as he then found himself. Thanking them kindly he retired to recover from the affecting scene.

A Worthy Appointment.

Mr. Charles E. Pierce, a native of Quincy and son of the late Charles L. Pierce of Canal street, was honored with appointment, by Hon. James D. Gill, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third Massachusetts District, last week, as a Deputy Collector, and assumed his duties last Monday morning, being assigned to position in the Internal Revenue office, postoffice building, Boston.

His application was favored with endorsements, of which any man might be proud, from men of influence and high standing in political and in civil life.

All positions he has held have been filled with honor and credit, from carrying the Quincy Patriot when a boy to superintendent and cashier of the Boston Journal in 1894.

Mr. Pierce was married, May 31, 1873, to Eurydice A., youngest daughter of the late Mr. David S. Roberts, of South Boston. She died July 21, 1874. June 13, 1887, he was married to his present wife, Emma L.¶ only daughter of Captain Elijah H. Goodwin, of South Boston.

The eagle captured last Sunday in South Weymouth by Mr. J. I. Condon of Nash was on exhibition at N. R. Procter's store for two days. It was thought that Company K might want the bird as a mascot, but the boys decided not to purchase it. He measured seven feet from tip to tip. Mr. Condon took him to Highland Park.

The fact that no demonstration was made, and not even a cheer given when Company K departed has caused some criticism. It is possible that the hearts of those who saw a hundred of our young men marching off to battle, with an almost certainty that some would never come back, were too heavy for cheering, but a hearty God speed might have been very encouraging to the boys who have risked all for country.

With the Yachtsmen.

The Quincy Yacht club is in receipt of a letter from the Eastern Yacht club in which it says: The regatta committee of the Eastern Yacht club propose to hold at an early date three open races of the club for yachts of l. w. l. length between 21 feet and 30 feet, and invite suggestions from owners of such yachts before July 3, as to desirable dates for such races.

The current number of the Forest and Stream in a leading editorial backs up the Quincy Yacht club in the stand it has taken in ruling out yachts over 21 feet l. w. l., referring especially to Mr. S. N. Small's schooner; saying among other things that "At the same time it is quite plain that all sorts of handicaps and special allowances are out of place in important internationl or even inter-club matches.

* * * * There is ample opportunity in the programme of frequent races about Boston to make a satisfactory test of the schooner rig in the regular club races, and we believe that when all sides of the question are considered those interested in the experiment will see the propriety of confining it to the regular open races and of not entering in special interclub matches."

MOONLIGHT SAIL.

With a Reception and Dance at Club House.

A very pleasant and successful moonlight sail was given by the Wollaston Yacht club on Thursday evening, eighty-four of the club members and their invited guests taking part. When our friend "Casey" stood before Niagara Falls and was told of its wonders, especially the immense amount of water which flowed over the precipice he looked upon the whole matter, apparently, with little wonder or concern, for he immediately exclaimed "Woll! phat's, ter hinder it, it couldn't go the other way!"

Now, if the question was asked if those who participated in the sail, if they enjoyed it, "Casey's" answer would fit in very appropriately for with the fine fleet of boats, the careful skippers, the full tide, the beautiful moon, the wind just right from W. S. W., and last but not least the jolly partys of yachtsmen with wives, sweethearts and pretty girls, there was nothing to "hinder them."

After about two hours of sailing the party repaired to the clubhouse where they were received by the reception committee and were given the freedom of the rooms. When young people are out for a good time they are not slow in discovering all that goes to gladden the heart, and so in this case they were prompt in observing that the floor was well waxed, and the new piano seemed too say "try my keys," in such a pleading way that all caught the inspiration of the moment. The cry arose, "who will play for a waltz?" Mr. William Wilson of Quincy being present he was prevailed upon to preside at the piano, and for about one hour his lively airs kept the younger and some of the older members of the party on tip toe, rounding out an evening of harmless and healthful pleasure. Keith's Theatre.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra players begin their annual engagement at Keith's Boston theatre on Monday next, July 4, giving three concerts of popular music each day. The number of performers has been gradually increased each year, and Monday almost a score of musicians will respond to the wave of Director Zach's baton. As last summer, a soloist will sing each week with the Symphony, and Mrs. May Towle-Coffey, a noted soprano, will be the first to appear. Mrs. Coffey was the singer of "The Lost Chord" during the run of the living picture exhibit. The variety acts will include Waterbury Brothers and Tenny, musical comedians; Ed Chrissie, monologuist; Reno and Richards, comedy acrobats, and Fisher and Carrol, Celtic comedians. The biograph and Gies' exhibits of motion and stationary pictures will be continued.

Castle Square Theatre.

For the coming week at the Castle Square Theatre the management announces a most attractive novelty, the selection made being B. B. Valentine's romantic drama, "A Southern Romance," which will have its first Boston production. The play is a dramatic version of the novel, "In God's Country," written a few years ago by Dolly Highbee, the story of which deals with characteristic types of the people of the "Blue Grass Country." The play made a pronounced success in New York when it was produced there, and a similar success has attended its performances in other large cities. Previous to the drama, the comedietta "A Cup of Tea," will be played; Messrs. Charles Mackay, Horace Lewis, William Charles Mason and Miss Frances Drake appearing in it. At the Tuesday matinee an imperial size portrait of Miss Saunders, as Bess Van Buren in "The Charity Ball," will be given to all patrons. The following attraction on Monday, July 11th will be a production of "A Scrap of Paper."

Massachusetts Year Book.

Another volume of the Massachusetts Year Book has just been issued, and is in good demand, for it has already become well established. It is just what the business man, the professional man and every office needs. It would be impossible to tell all it contains, for it has over 700 pages of data, which is however fully indexed and handy for reference. It is a directory of city and town officers, with vote for mayor, salaries of officers, names of clergymen, justices of peace, notaries, lawyers, physicians, etc. One also finds National, State and county officers and boards; lists of cities, towns, villages and post offices; election returns; court information; lists of newspapers, banks, educational institutions, etc., etc. F. S. Blanchard & Co., 34 Front street, Worcester, are the publishers and the book is sold at a low price. It is unqualifiedly the very best compilation of Massachusetts facts ever made.

GREAT AND GLORIOUS VICTORY FOR FOURTH OF JULY NEWS.

Daredevil Rush of Spanish Admiral for Liberty Results in Destruction of His Fleet.

Cervera Himself and Over 1,000 of His Men Taken Captives by Schley and Sampson.

Kingston, July 3.—Scattered along the shore for a distance of 10 miles to the west of Morro castle lie the remains of the armored cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers that comprised Admiral Cervera's fleet. In a running fight of two hours these vessels, the cream of the Spanish navy, were almost annihilated by the powerful ships of Admiral Sampson's fleet, under the immediate command of Commodore Schley. Admiral Cervera, after making as plucky a fight against overwhelming odds as is recorded in naval history, was compelled to surrender. He was taken as a prisoner of war, together with every man in his fleet not drowned or killed in the action. The Spanish admiral was wounded in one of his arms.

The entire American fleet was much further off shore than usual when the Spaniards made their appearance Sunday morning. With the exception of the bombardment Saturday morning, which resulted in knocking down the flag on Morro castle and the supposed silencing of the batteries, which opened fire again Sunday morning as usual, the navy had done little recently to attract interest. The officers and crews themselves were watching the developments of the operations conducted by the army which had succeeded in reaching the very gates of Santiago after enormous loss in killed and wounded in the fighting of the past two days. It was not believed that Cervera would attempt to escape from his perilous position at this late day, but it was supposed that he would keep his ships in the harbor to shell the advancing American army and that if Santiago fell he would blow up or sink his ships before permitting them to be captured by the fleet lying outside. The Spanish admiral's real plans, however, were plainly not anticipated. He accepted the one chance open to him, that of running the gauntlet of the powerful men-of-war lying in front of the harbor and saving his ships for future service by dashing out of the trap in which he found himself, and going to another field of operations. There seemed to be but one chance in a hundred that he would be able to make the move successfully, but he took that chance; and while great piles of naval architecture, now ground to pieces on the rocks a few miles from where he started, tell the mournful story of his failure, there is none who applauds his conduct more than the American officers and seamen who sent his ships to destruction.

It was about 9 o'clock Sunday morning when the flagship Infanta Maria Teresa passed under the wall of Morro castle and steamed out to sea. She was followed by the Cristobal Colon, Vizcaya and Oquendo, and last by the torpedo boat destroyers Pluton and Furor. The lookout on the American vessels sighted them immediately. There was great excitement at once, with very rapid action all along the American lines. The signal for "full speed ahead" was running from bridge to engine room of every ship, and the entire fleet commenced to move inshore toward the Spanish, and the great 12 and 13-inch guns of the battleships and the smaller batteries on the other vessels fired shot after shot at long range.

As the ships ran in towards the shore it soon became evident that the Spaniards had not come out to make an aggressive fight, for they turned to the eastward as soon as they had cleared the harbor, and started on their race for safety, at the same time sending answering shots at the American ships as fast as the men could load and fire the guns. The Brooklyn, Massachusetts, Texas, Oregon and Iowa were nearer the Spaniards than any others of the American vessels, but still most of them were too far away to get an effective range. They crowded on all steam, however, in preparation for the chase, never stopping their fire for one moment.

One and another of the Spanish ships became the victims of the awful rain of shells which the American battleships, cruisers and gunboats poured upon them, and two hours after the first of the fleet had started out of Santiago harbor three cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers were lying on the shore 10 to 15 miles west of Morro castle, pounding to pieces, smoke and flame pouring from every part of them and covering the entire coast line with a mist which could be seen for miles.

Heavy explosions of ammunition occurred every few minutes, sending curls of smoke 100 feet in the air and causing a shower of broken iron and steel to fall in the water on every side. The bluffs on the coast line echoed with the roar of every explosion, and the Spanish vessels sank deeper and deeper into the sand, or else the rocks pounded their hulls to pieces as they rolled or pitched forward or sideways, with every wave that washed upon them from the open sea.

Admiral Cervera escaped to the shore in a boat sent by the Gloucester to the assistance of the Infanta Maria Teresa. As soon as he touched the beach he surrendered himself and his command to Lieutenant Morton and asked to be taken on board the Gloucester, which was the only American vessel near him at the time, with several of his officers, including the captain of the flagship. The Spanish admiral, who was wounded in the arm, was taken to the Gloucester and was received at her gangway by her commander, Lieutenant Commander Wainwright, who grasped the hand of the gray-bearded admiral and said to him: "I congratulate you, sir, upon having made as gallant a fight as was ever witnessed on the sea." Lieutenant Commander Wainwright then placed his cabin at the disposal of the Spanish officers.

At that time the flagship and four other vessels had been aground and burning for two hours, and the only one of the escaping fleet which could not be seen at this point was the Cristobal Colon; but half a dozen curls of smoke far down on the western horizon showed the fate that was awaiting her. The Colon was the fastest of the ships, and she soon obtained a lead over the others after leaving the harbor and escaped the effect of the shots which destroyed the other vessels. She steamed away at great speed with the Oregon, New York, Brooklyn and other ships in pursuit, all of them firing at her constantly and receiving fire themselves from her after guns. There seemed no possibility whatever for her escape, and before it was known that she had run ashore 60 miles away, Captain Evans of the Iowa, who was returning from the westward with 340 prisoners from the Vizcaya just as the Associated Press dispatch boat Wanda was leaving the Spanish flagship, shouted: "I left the Cristobal Colon far to the westward an hour ago, and the Oregon was giving her hell. She has undoubtedly gone down with the others, and we will have a Fourth of July celebration in Santiago."

There is no means of telling now what the Spanish loss was, but it is believed to have been very heavy, as the prisoners in custody report their decks strewn with dead and wounded in great numbers, and besides there is a statement that many bodies could be seen fastened to pieces of wreckage, floating in the sea after the fight was over. A large number of the Spanish wounded were removed to the American ships.

There can be no doubt that Admiral Cervera's plan to escape from Santiago harbor was entirely unexpected by Admiral Sampson, and the best evidence of this is the fact that when the Spanish vessels were seen coming out of the harbor the New York was seven miles away steaming to the eastward toward Juragua, the military base, nine miles east of Morro. The New York was out of the fight altogether at every stage, but she immediately put about and followed the others.

As the wounded continued to come in after Friday's engagement it was found that the early estimate of the killed and wounded had been largely underestimated. It is believed that the number will reach 800 and possibly 1000. It is remarkable that in so large a number of wounded so few amputations are necessary. The character of the fighting in storming the main redoubt was not fully realized until after the firing ceased Friday night. The entrenchments lay west of the hills. Without cover, the Americans, in their advance up the slope, were fully 300 yards exposed to the volley fire of men protected to the shoulders in rifle pits; but they carried the trenches by successive rushes, rushing and hiding behind every bush or root for temporary shelter from the rain of bullets like storm driven sheep. The wounded were dragged out of the death hail. After each pause, the men, undaunted, pushed on, firing as they ran. When they reached the trenches, the latter were filled with the enemy's dead.

The Spaniards had fled over the summit of the hills, but, standing upon the bodies of their fallen comrades, there they remained fighting valiantly to the end. They refused to give way, but continued the work with their mausers, enfilading the American line as it came over the trenches. One volley which a company of the Sixth cavalry fired under the command of Lieutenant Short tumbled them forward on their faces. This is the charge in which the Sixth, Third, Ninth and Tenth cavalry and rough riders, all dismounted, and in which the Twenty-sixth, Sixteenth and Twenty-second infantry and the Seventy-first New York engaged, led in person by General Hawkins. He was almost the first man on the summit, standing there, sword in hand, a target for a thousand bullets, cheering his men on. Lieutenant Lyons of the Twenty-fourth infantry distinguished himself by deeds of personal gallantry.

RECORD THAT THRILLS.

Momentous Events In the War With Spain.

Washington Deeply Moved by the News From Cuba.

The Downfall of Santiago Cannot Be Delayed Long.

Washington, July 5.—The annihilation of the Spanish squadron at Santiago and the capture of Admiral Cervera with 1300 prisoners; the demand of General Shafter for the surrender of Santiago by 12 o'clock today on pain of bombardment; word from Admiral Dewey that the Ladrone islands had been captured, that a Spanish gunboat had surrendered, that a hundred or more Spanish officers and men were taken, and that our first Philippine expedition had landed—this is in part the thrilling record of such a fourth of July as has not been known since the bells of Independence hall rang out the tidings of American freedom. It was a day when one momentous event followed another in constant and rapid succession, each hour bringing forth some feature more startling than what had gone before. The climax came at 1 o'clock, when, amid the wildest cheering, which fairly shook the great state, war and navy building to its foundation, Admiral Sampson's dispatch announcing his victory and the entire destruction of the Spanish fleet was given to the public.

The white house was naturally the local point of the enthusiasm and stirring activity which marked official Washington. It was the busiest day the president has had since the war began. Conference followed conference with the heads of the military and naval departments; high officers of the service came and went in a constant stream, and as each hour brought its added lustre to the American arms the crowd of officials increased. The president had not a moment's respite. Telegrams came and went without cessation, and the executive mansion presented a scene such as has not been paralleled since the momentous hours of the civil war.

Stirring as were all the official dispatches received, Sampson's dispatch was accorded the honor of its importance. It not only disclosed the tremendous prowess of the American fleet, but it again displayed the strange immunity which the American sailor seems to have in the midst of death and carnage. That but one of our sailors, a yeoman on the Brooklyn, should have been killed in an engagement of this magnitude is without parallel in naval annals save in the record which Dewey made at Manila.

With the Spanish fleet destroyed, the way is partly cleared for the advance of the American squadron into the harbor of Santiago. If Cervera's armored cruisers could cross the mine field and clear the Merrimac at the entrance to the harbor, the American ships can follow the same course. There are the inner fortifications and island forts still to be reduced, but they have passed through a baptism of fire recently, and are little more than ruins. Thus with Shafter's guns thundering down on Santiago from the land and Sampson's from the harbor, the fall of the city is assured beyond further question. The authorities here, military and naval, say that Santiago has already made its best fight and that its occupation is only a question of a very brief time.

General Shafter's strong position was shown in a series of dispatches. Most convincing of all as to his feeling of confidence and strength was the dispatch in which he gives the text of his demand for the surrender of the city under pain of bombardment.

General Shafter's other dispatches breathe the same air of confidence and determination. In one of these he says: "I feel that I am master of the situation, and can hold the enemy for any length of time." In another dispatch General Shafter states that his demand for the surrender of Santiago is still being considered by the Spanish authorities, which indicates that the refusal of the Spanish commander to capitulate was not final. In any event, 12 o'clock today marks the limit of Shafter's concession, and if Santiago has not capitulate at that hour, the great siege guns now brought to the front and in position, backed by the batteries of lighter field pieces, will begin their work of destruction.

The pressing need of reinforcing Shafter is no longer felt, now that the Spanish fleet is out of the way. A considerable number of men, however, are already on the way and others will follow. The changed naval situation will bring no abatement in the activity of the authorities in carrying the war directly home to Spain. There is renewed determination to get Commodore Watson's eastern squadron away at the earliest possible moment for the purpose of striking a blow at the coast towns of Spain and of pursuing Admiral Camara's fleet, which has halted at the entrance of the Suez canal. Secretary Long made the official statement Monday that the fleet would sail at the earliest possible moment, and, although he did not go into details as to its purpose, it is well understood that it will devote its attention to the Spanish coast and to Camara.

It has been Acting Admiral Sampson for sometime, but that it will be Admiral Sampson in fact, as well as in name, is the prevailing feeling in naval circles as a result of the victory reported by the American admiral. Shortly after the war broke out, Captain Sampson was made acting admiral in order to give him a rank fitting his high command, although his actual naval rank remained at captain. By a singular coincidence his rank was advanced Monday to that of commodore owing to the retirement of Admiral Kirkland. In the event of his now being made an admiral it would advance him over the 10 commodores making up the list of that grade and would place him just below Admiral Dewey.

The release of Hobson and the other heroes of the Merrimac incident is likely to be another result of the events transpiring today. It may come about either by the surrender of the city, which would include the surrender of Hobson and the other prisoners in the city, or else by exchanging Admiral Cervera or some other high ranking official. Until Monday the possibility of exchanging Hobson was slight, as this government had no Spanish prisoners of high rank to offer in his place. Now, however, they have one of the foremost admirals in the Spanish navy and among the 1300 other naval prisoners there are many officers of distinguished rank.

Late last night the navy department posted the appended translation of a cipher cablegram from Commodore Watson. It is similar to that received from Admiral Sampson, but contains the additional information that 350 Spaniards were killed or drowned, 160 wounded and 1600 captured. Commodore Watson's dispatch follows: "At 9:30 a. m. today [Sunday] the Spanish squadron, seven in all, including one gunboat, came out of Santiago in column and were totally destroyed within an hour, except the Cristobal Colon, which was chased 45 miles to westward by the commander-in-chief, Brooklyn, Oregon and Texas, surrendering to the Brooklyn, but was beached to prevent sinking.

"None of our officers or men were injured except on board the Brooklyn. Chief Yeoman Ellis was killed and one man wounded. Admiral Cervera, all commanding officers, excepting of Oquendo, about 70 other officers and 1600 men are prisoners. About 350 killed or drowned, and 160 wounded, latter being cared for on Solace and Olivette. Have just arrived off Santiago in Marblehead to take charge while commander-in-chief is looking out for the Cristobal Colon."

NEW YORKERS LOSE.

Succumbed to the Skillful Work of the Boston Pitchers.

New York, July 5.—The Bostons celebrated the Fourth of July by winning a double header from the "giants." The morning game was won after an exciting finish, in which the New Yorks made a gallant effort to pull off a victory.

The second contest was marked by one of the finest exhibitions of clean hitting on the part of the Bostons against the famous Rusie, which clinched the game for them in the third and fourth innings. In both contests the Bostons not only fielded without errors of any kind, but they played with great brilliancy throughout the day. The second game was called in the Bostons' seventh inning on account of a heavy thunder storm. Score:

The morning game in Washington went to the Brooklyns because of Wrigley's error and Mercer's bad base running, 4 to 3. Dineen's pitching and heavy hitting won the afternoon game for the Washingtons, 9 to 5.

The percentages of the National league clubs are as follows: Cincinnatis, 667; Bostons, 615; Clevelands, 609; Baltimores, 597; Chicagos, 567; Pittsburgs, 523; New Yorks, 484; Philadelphias, 450; Brooklyns, 435; Washingtons, 400; St. Louises, 333; Louisvilles, 324.

The Springfields defeated the Providences in the morning by effective batting. Hodson was batted out of the box in the second inning, and Rudderham could do nothing to stem the tide. The afternoon game resulted in another victory for the ponies, the rain ending the game after the Springfields had taken the lead held by the grays. Score: 6 to 5.

The Chicagos presented the Clevelands with the morning game by about as sorry an exhibition as was ever witnessed. Score: 11 to 2. Daring base running and clean hitting by Baseman Mertes won the afternoon game for the Chicagos, 4 to 3.

Cunningham of the Louisvilles was easy in the morning game in Cincinnati. Hawley kept the hits scattered and was given brilliant support. Score: 9 to 4. The colonels did nothing with Breitenstein in the afternoon game and were shut out, 4 to 0.

The Worcesters broke even with the Fall Rivers in the games played yesterday. The Fall Rivers, by virtue of a great finish, won the morning game by a single run. They tried to repeat the performance in the afternoon game, but the home team won in the 10th inning.

EFFECTS OF WAR TAXES

They Will Hit Nearly All Citizens One Way or Another.

NEW YORK'S BIG CONTRIBUTION.

A Multitude of New Revenue Stamps That Must Be Ready by the 1st of July. About $4,000,000 a Year Will Be Realized on Beer In New York—The Government Expects to Realize About $20,000,000 Annually on Tea—Wall Street Will Pay a Large Share.

The effect on individuals of the new war revenue bill, which is expected to become a law in a few days, is something that a very small proportion of the general public has given any thought to. The importers, manufacturers, jobbers, retailers—in fact, all merchants who hand their wares over to the general public for consumption—have not been so remiss in this matter, and the result is that most of those who come in for heavy taxes under the new bill have arranged things so that their share of the war revenue will be paid by the consumer. Then there are many other things in everyday use by the general public, such as bank checks, deeds, mortgages, conveyances, notes and steamship tickets, that the individual himself must pay the tax on. There is going to be a great number of surprised citizens on the first day that the new law goes into effect, which will probably be on July 1, because the articles taxed are many.

An interesting feature of the new law is the new stamps it is going to put into use in the United States. There will be hundreds of different kinds. For weeks the government engravers have been making designs and submitting them to the treasury department for approval. It is said that all of this part of the work has been completed, and that the government plants, assisted by the various bank note companies, are hard at work, trying to turn out enough stamps to meet the demands of the first week in the life of the new law. The demand during that week will be tremendous. Every bank check must bear a stamp. Most men know that there are thousands of bank checks issued daily in New York alone. In the entire country there may be a million. Yet the stamping of the bank checks is just one item in the list.

During the civil war and away up into the seventies, when there was a tax on bank checks, the stamping was expedited by the banks, which entered into an agreement with the government by means of which they were allowed to stamp themselves whole books of checks. These books were sold to the depositors for the value of the stamps they contained. Whether this method will be adopted now is a question. If it is not, the depositor will have to buy his own stamps and stick them on himself.

New York city's contribution to the war fund under the new law will be almost twice as much as that exacted from any other city in the country. There is very little to base calculations on, but it has been roughly estimated that this city will spend $40,000,000 annually on war taxes. There will be no protest here. If it were twice as much, New Yorkers would stand it without a word.

The tax on beer is nominally $1 a barrel. It will be $2 under the new law. It is expected that something like $4,000,000 a year will be realized on beer in New York. The brewers have refused to pay or even share the additional expense. They say that the retailer must stand it. The retailers are not satisfied with this plan at all. They proposed some time ago that the government quadruple its present excise charge, which is $25, and let them off with that. This, however, did not meet with the approval of the ways and means committee, and they rejected it. Now the retailer must get even on the consumer. He can do it in one of two ways, either raise the price a glass or make the glass smaller. The bottlers of beer decided some time ago to charge 5 cents more a dozen for bottled beer, but the man who sells it over the bar is still thinking it over. Many of the retailers are growling at the refusal of the brewers to share the tax. They say that the brewers are really gainers by the new law, as the government allows them a rebate of 7½ cents on their stamps. By charging retailers the full amount they will be getting just that much more a barrel than they ever did before.

From the 10 cents a pound tax on tea the government expects to realize about $20,000,000 annually in the country New York's share of this, based on the importations of past years, will be about $5,000,000. There will be no tax on tea imported before July 1, of course, and by that time importers hope to get in some 20,000,000 pounds. This, however, will only be about one-fifth of the amount usually imported each year. The importers and retailers will never stand the tax themselves. Tea will simply jump up 10 cents a pound after July 1, and the public will have to pay that much more for it or go without.

Stamps will have to be affixed to all papers relating to real estate transactions—conveyances, deeds, leases, agreements or contracts, mortgages, trust deeds and powers of attorney. Real estate men in New York who are familiar with the revenue bill are wondering what the effect of the section which imposes a tax of 50 cents per $500 or fraction thereof on deeds and conveyances where the consideration or value exceeds $100 is going to be. For years it has been the practice to insert nominal considerations, generally $1, in deeds, the object being to keep secret the amount of money involved in a transaction. Hereafter a nominal consideration mentioned in a deed will not release the parties interested from stamping the deed at the rate of 50 cents for every $500 of value of the property involved over $100, which will of course reveal the real consideration. From real estate transactions in New York the government will probably derive about $500,000 annually. The revenue from the country from this item of the bill will probably be between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000.

A very large part of the war tax will come out of Wall street. The tax of 2 cents on each $100 of stock and bond sales is a heavy one, but the brokers are not kicking. Business on the Stock Exchange has averaged 400,000 shares a day lately, and if it continues at that rate the daily assessment will be $8,000. On the total sales of stock last year the revenue would have been $1,500,000, and there is no reason to believe that it will be any less than that after the revenue bill gets in working order. The figures of the Consolidated Exchange last year would bring its revenue up to within $200,000 of the Stock Exchange assessment. The Produce and Cotton Exchanges are let off with a tax of 1 per cent for $100. This would bring the former's contribution to the war fund to about $150,000 and the latter's to about $50,000 a year.

About the biggest item down town, however, will be the tax on bank checks. In 1871 the revenue from this source was $2,318,455 in the country. The tax on bank checks in New York alone will probably run up to $3,000,000 a year under the war revenue law. From the bank capital tax, the tax on foreign bills of exchange, the tax on the capital stock and funded debt of all corporations and from other taxes in the financial center it is estimated that $1,000,000 a year will be realized. Altogether Wall street will contribute something like $13,000,000 a year to the war fund.

The tax of 1 cent on telephone messages costing more than 15 cents is put on pay messages, of which there were 9,000,000 sent in New York last year. The telegraph companies have planned to get even on the tax on messages by compelling senders to put a 1 cent stamp on all messages. The telephone companies are casting around for some means of making the public share the added expense, but haven't devised any scheme yet.

The tax on tobacco has been raised to 12 cents a pound. Some dealers have decided to keep up the size of the packages and increase the price. Others have concluded that it will be a better game to let the price stay where it is, and make the packages smaller. The cigar tax is not a heavy one, and the only difference it will make will be that you won't get as good a cigar for the price as you used to. The cigarette tax is $1 on 1,000, and the public will either have to pay 6 cents for a 5 cent box of ten cigarettes or take a box with fewer cigarettes at the old price. There are over 3,000,000,000 cigarettes made annually in this country, and the war revenue on them will be about $3,000,000. The annual production of tobacco is about 400,000,000 pounds. The increased revenue on this amount would be about $24,000,000.

The tax on insurance policies, on steamship tickets, on express companies, on vessels entering from and clearing to a foreign port, the inheritance tax and the numerous other things taxed in which New Yorkers are interested, will bring this city's share of the war tax well up to $40,000,000 and may carry it beyond that figure.—New York Sun.

PATRIOTIC PUPILS.

How a Maryland Schoolteacher Found an Outlet For This Enthusiasm.

A veteran schoolteacher in Talbot county, Md., has found an outlet for the patriotic enthusiasm of his pupils by teaching them constructive and applied geography with reference to the war. With the aid of the children he laid off on about a quarter of an acre of the schoolyard a map of the world on Mercator's projection, showing the continents and islands, the oceans, seas, lakes and rivers, the mountains and the valleys. The water for the waterways is mechanically conveyed from the overflow of a semiartesian well near by.

The natural lay of the land gives the plane surface, the mountains are built up with oyster shells, gravel and earth, and sand from the river shore has been spread to show the deserts. There is scope enough to show the progress of the war with Spain, and the positions of the land and naval forces are changed daily as the dispatches indicate, the warships being fashioned from pine blocks with the knives of the schoolboys.

The Veteran's Dream.

Settin down by Kenesaw,
Got to thinkin on the days
Of the formin an the stormin
Of the ranks along the ways.
June sun all the land wuz warmin,
But I seen the war fires blaze!

Settin down by Kenesaw,
Seen the boys in battle fall.
Skies, they thundered, an I wondered,
Sence they had no clouds at all,
In some sperrit land I'd blundered—
Heard the ghostly captains call.

Seen the boys that wore the gray
Chargin on the ranks of blue,
Dashin, clashin an the flashin
Of the bright swords, drippin dew;
Heard the cannon balls a-crashin,
Makin deadly pathways through.

Then the scene wuz changed—the blue
With the gray stood side by side,
An one flag come into view.
Thar wuz bullet holes to hide
An a missin star or two,
But the boys marched side by side!

Side by side they marched away
At a sudden bugle call—
No more blue an no more gray,
Jest one flag to wave for all—
Marched into a brighter day,
Answerin to that bugle call!

Which wuz right an which wuz wrong
Didn't matter; ranks looked thin,
But they marched, true hearts in strong,
Other fights for them to win. * * *
I'd been dreamin purty long,
But I'm in the war ag'in!

MONITOR MONTEREY.

HOW 'T WAS NAMED FOR THE CALIFORNIA CITY.

Story of the Manner In Which the Vessel Received Its Christening as Told by Mr. Irving M. Scott—How a Yankee Skipper Outwitted an Englishman.

The story of the naming of the big coast defense monitor Monterey, that is now on her way to Manilla to join Admiral Dewey's fleet, has never been told in print. When preparations for her launching were being made at San Francisco, Irving M. Scott, general manager of the Union Iron works, was at Washington, and a number of Californians wired him to use his influence with Benjamin F. Tracy, then secretary of the navy, to have the ship named for some California town, and Scott hit upon Monterey as a name that appealed to him as appropriate, and the request was accordingly preferred.

"I'll see what I can do," said the amiable secretary and, ringing a bell, he summoned the head of the war department having the matter in charge. When the matter was explained, the chief of bureau replied:

"But you know, Mr. Secretary, the rules require that ships of that class shall be named in honor of some naval battle in which the Americans have participated. So far as I know there has never been a battle of Monterey."

This rule has been changed since, but Mr. Scott, seeing the corner he was in as the matter stood, retorted promptly:

"Yes, it is true that there has never been a battle at Monterey, but let me tell you a story. In 1846, when we were having our little unpleasantness with Mexico, an American man-of-war was lying in the harbor of Mazatlan. Near him lay an Englishman, who had an uncomfortable way of keeping her guns pointed in the direction of the American. Now, that Yankee skipper, who was typical of his class, got it into his head to raise his flag at Monterey, Cal., which was the capital of that territory, and it so happened that the Englishman got the same notion just about the same time. The Yankee suspected something of the kind and made up his mind not to be outwitted.

"Late that afternoon he sent a lot of his men ashore, and when the boats returned to the ship without them the Britisher made up his mind that they would not be back until the following day. Satisfied with his conclusion, he sat down to wait. But the Yankee was a hustler, as Yankee sailors always are. The night was as dark as a stack of black cats, and along about 10 o'clock the American boats with muffled oars rowed the crew back to the ship, and in the inky darkness that Yankee skipper slipped his cables and warped his ship out of the harbor without the fact even being suspected by the Englishman. When day broke, he was 50 miles up the coast, scudding along before a ten knot breeze.

"The other fellow saw he had been outgeneraled, but he made an effort to rectify his blunder. He had a smart crew and a fast ship. There was no reason, he figured, why he might not overtake his rival and beat him to Monterey. He tried it and came very nearly making a success of it. He sailed into Monterey harbor just two hours behind the American and dropped his anchor in time to see the stars and stripes rise to the head of the flagstaff in the plaza and flutter to the breeze. Monterey and California were ours."

"Don't say another word, Scott," said Secretary Tracy. "That ship shall be the Monterey."

And Monterey she is.—Chicago Chronicle.

QUIET LIFE AT SAN ANTONIO.

Men of Roosevelt's Pack Trains Pass the Time Lying In the Shade.

Life for one important part of Roosevelt's regiment, the men composing the pack trains, has been one continual siesta for the last week, while the cowboys have been drilling morning, noon and night. William Hall, a veteran, who has fought Indians north and south, is the packmaster, and under him are three "cargodos," each in charge of a division, or train, of 13 men and 63 mules. There are 189 glossy coated Missouri mules in the outfit, each of which will pack from 200 to 250 pounds. When a march begins, all of the camp baggage is deftly tumbled into 6 by 6 foot canvas sheets and made up into packs of 100 pounds each. The mules are led out, and three men proceed to load each animal. The bundles are lashed on with rope in a diamond hitch that can be loosened with one quick jerk, and the work is done. A bell mare trots at the head of each train, and the packers, their ready carbines held across the saddle horn and a long lashed whip in hand, ride at the sides.

Among the Indian Territory men now in camp are about 25 Indians, Choctaws and Chickasaws mostly, with an occasional Cherokee. One is Binkstone Johnston, a nephew of the late Sitting Bull. —Kennett F. Harris in Chicago Record.

Lee and the Hammocks.

The volunteers who go to Cuba with Fitz-Hugh Lee will not sleep on the ground if the general can prevent it. One precaution ranks above all others, in the opinion of General Lee. It is that the American soldiers should not rest at night on the earth. A hammock with a strip of canvas stretched over it to keep off the dew and the rain is what he is asking for each member of his command. This will beat tents all to pieces, he says. He has planned that the whole outfit—hammock, strip of canvas and two poles sharpened at one end—will make a compact, easily transported package, that can be carried by the soldiers if transportation is lacking. Campaigning in Cuba, General Lee says, calls for light clothing and little covering and some provision against contact with the moist, malaria exhaling soil after dark.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

COUNTRY ROADHOUSE.

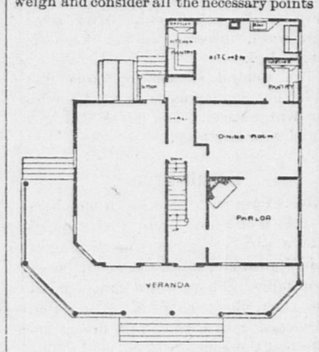
Neat Cottage With Semidetached Refreshment Room.

(Copyright, 1898, by George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.)

"Well, that is true. I never thought of that before. However, the next house that I build I will rectify all these little defects. You see, I built this house more as an experiment than anything else; but, taking it altogether, I think it has answered my purposes very well." This should never be said after a man has built a home for himself. He has not used proper forethought, and after he has lived in the house for some time and has gradually found the mistakes in planning and the like he resigns himself to his convictions by saying, "Oh, I think this house has answered our purposes very well!" Now, how much better it would have been had he studied all the points carefully before building! It is all very well for a man who is only going to live in a house a few months and has built for speculation and expects to have to move any time. This man, after a few ventures of this sort, will undoubtedly know by experience what house and what design will suit him best, but the man we all term the "home seeker" cannot do the same as the speculator, who earns his bread by buying, building and selling.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

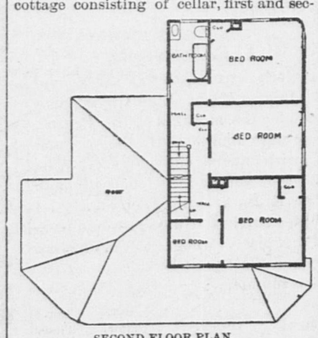
The home seeker will undoubtedly have an entirely different mode of earning his living. Therefore it is for him to carefully weigh and consider all the necessary points and features of his proposed dwelling. It is rash to read some clipping and think to yourself, "Why, this is just the thing that I have been looking for," and then get the plans and commence operations. It is a mistake, a grave mistake, that many make day in and day out. If you are pleased with a design and feel confident it has been practically planned for your requirements, well and good, but we have seen so many mistakes made this very way that we much doubt if with one or two little changes that plan may be so altered that you would derive far greater comfort from it than if you went ahead otherwise.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

The architect usually has an agreement of so much per cent on the total cost of the building, and if he lays out grounds, etc., a certain per cent on the cost of contract for doing the work. Therefore it is impossible for the architect to overcharge, as the owner has the former's signature under his agreement.

The house we here illustrate is a small cottage consisting of cellar, first and second floors and two finished rooms in the attic, and is intended for use as a country road house, having a cafe, etc., for the use of travelers. It is semidetached, making the other part of the building strictly private. On the second floor are four chambers and bathroom, with hot and cold water, bathtub, water closet and wash basin.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This is a very good design for many places and a venture that will pay well provided it is built in the proper location. The design is neat and is not offensive, as is often the case with buildings erected for this purpose.

Making a Home.

In building one must study the wants of his family, the lay of the ground and, above all, his pocketbook, as it would not do for him to spend so much on his home that it would be an elephant on his hands. And, again, we may say it is a great mistake for a man to build when it is beyond his means to do so—that is, to desire a certain kind of building when his finances will not comfortably allow it. If it is not policy to build the kind of house he wants, let him wait until all is ready for his proposed venture, for a man building a house, a home for himself and his own, will always be dissatisfied if he does not make it an ideal one. Nothing can overcome this feeling except to build again. But a great many men have spent their all in their first attempt and are therefore stranded, it being simply out of the question for them to try another building venture.

New Fancy Work.

Colored cloths and doilies are styles of the past, as are centerpieces embroidered in colors. Satin, velvet and silk centerpieces and scarfs have had their day, and the elaborate use of ribbon bows, etc., is also tabooed. For women fond of displaying their own handiwork on their tables crochet work is the latest fad. There are mats, centerpieces, plate and finger bowl doilies in solid crochet or having centers of plain linen with crochet borders of any width desired. They are made round, square, in diamonds or ovals. But when a linen center is used the crochet must be worked on the center itself and not whipped on as an edge.—Demorest's Monthly.

How to Prepare Bouchees a la Reine.

One veal kidney for two persons. Remove with a knife the fine skin which covers them and then slice them. Put half a tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan or chafing dish, and as soon as melted add the slices of kidney. Cook two minutes on each side and add a pinch of salt and quarter of a pinch of pepper. Remove the kidney from the saucepan and add to the sauce half a teaspoonful of flour. Mix well.

Add besides, and little by little, half a cup of hot water in which there is a quarter of a teaspoonful of beef extract dissolved with a spoonful of madeira; also add fresh mushrooms cut same thickness as the sliced kidney. Let it boil for three minutes. Add the kidneys for two minutes before serving in the shell.

How to Make Herring Salad.

Soak three salt herrings in water overnight, pick and chop coarse, then boil eight medium sized potatoes, four beets; let cool and chop each ingredient separate. Add one stalk table celery, three apples, three onions. When all is chopped, mix with two tablespoonfuls sweet oil, salt and pepper to taste, and one-half cup good cider vinegar. Garnish with hard boiled eggs and sprigs of celery.

How to Treat Soiled Dresses.

A dusty dress requires an entirely different mode of treatment from a muddy one. After coming in from a dust storm it should be removed with the other wraps and bonnet, and all should be shaken thoroughly in the air, and then brushed off carefully with a stiff clothesbrush which will reach into the seams. The velvet, if there is any, should be cleaned with a velvet brush or a clean piece of flannel.

A linen cloth so firm that it will not shed lint, wrung out in a mixture of alcohol and cold water and passed quickly over the surface, will remove the light dust and give a lovely finish to the garment. If it is hung in a warm room for several hours afterward, it will look almost as good as new.

How to Prepare Buttered Apples.

Two pounds of apples, quartered, put in a fry pan that has one-fourth pound of butter and sprinkle with one-half pound of sugar. Set in the oven and let them roast slowly.

Appropriately Named.

One of the smallest yachts which has ever appeared in these waters is the "Atom" which was built and is sailed by a Quincy man. She is 5 feet, 11 and 1-2 inches overall, and 3 feet, 9 inches beam. Her mast is three feet tall and she carries upon it a small jack yard sail Oars are also used as a mode of propulsion.

Released.

Word has been received in Quincy that Octavius Lawcisi of this city who was arrested recently in Florence, Italy, on suspicion that he was a leader in the bread riots at that place had through the efforts of the American Ambassador at Rome and the American consul at Florence was released on June 14.

As soon as it was known in this country that Lawcisi had been arrested his relatives immediately took steps to obtain his release on the ground that he was a citizen of the United States and was innocent. He will return to Quincy shortly.

Nantasket Line Busy.

The travel on the cars of the Quincy & Boston street railway company both on Sunday and Monday was enormous especially on the through line to Nantasket. On this line cars were run every fifteen minutes and owing to the fact that starters were on duty at the important junctions cars as a rule were run on time and the large crowds were readily handled. Every car of the company together with a number of the Hingham cars were used and more could have been used. Added to the through riding to Nantasket there was heavy riding to New Downer Landing

THE FOURTH AT HOME

Very Little Deviltry—Everybody Happy Over War News.

As a rule the night before the Fourth was quiet, and for a wonder there were no alarms sounded, which is rather unusual. Sunday night Chief of Police Litchfield put on a large force of special officers which with the regulars succeeded in keeping the enthusiasm in check until after midnight. Many of the specials were in uniform, but there were scores in citizen's dress and as one young American remarked, they were thicker than bees.

The officers had their orders to keep the boys quiet until after midnight and in this they succeeded remarkably well but there was rather too much noise for a Sunday evening. Hardly had the last stroke of the hour of twelve died away, however, before the boom of cannon showed that young America was about, and for a time the air resounded with the reports of guns, cannon and crackers.

Usually there is more or less deviltry carried on the "night before" but in City Square there was little or none of this kind of work. The enthusiasm had spent itself before morning and at daylight all was quiet, and the people who had been unable to sleep on account of the heat were enabled to get a little rest.

The "night before the Fourth" at Wollaston was observed in an unusually quiet manner at Wollaston. The expected did not happen, the destruction of the fence, neither was there much vandalism reported. Regular Officer Frank Devoran of that beat had six officers to assist him,—Officers W. S. Lyons, Alfred Goodhue, John Bradley, John Newcomb, Jas. Denwood and Geo. W. Chubbuck.

Monday morning came the good news of the defeat of the Spanish fleet at Santiago and many who felt a little downcast at the news received from General Shafter late Sunday night had their sorrow turned to joy when it was announced that another of Spain's naval fleets had been destroyed. It was suggested that the celebration continue a week.

Monday proved to be fully as hot and uncomfortable as Sunday, and many headed toward the beaches in hopes of getting a little air, but as is often the case, it was fully as hot there as at home.

Fourth of July Accidents.

It could hardly be called a Fourth of July if someone did not get injured with firearms or explosives of some kind and it is therefore not surprising that several accidents were reported in Quincy.

The first was Saturday evening at Souther's news tore, where Patrick Murphy, one of the clerks, was accidently shot by Eugene McAuliffe, another clerk. McAuliff was selling a revolver to a customer and was showing him how it worked. He held it in his hand pointed downward and was trying to load it. The cartridge did not go in easily and as he let the hammer down, it exploded. Just then Murphy came within range and the ball entered his ankle. Dr. Gordon was summoned and removed the bullet. The wound was not a serious one.

Sunday afternoon Alfred L. Meade driver of Hose 4 at Quincy Point had his hand lacerated by a large cannon cracker. He held the cracker in his hand and after lighting the fuse was about to throw it, when it exploded tearing a painful cut in the palm of his hand. He was taken to the centre where the wound was dressed.

Mr. John Endicott of Canton, a member of the Quincy Yacht club was quite badly injured about the shoulders and face on Sunday evening by the premature discharge of a small cannon while on board the yacht "Alice" off the club house. He was taken to the hospital and treated.

George H. G. Buker of 224 Harrison avenue, Boston, was accidently shot in the back at New Downer Landing. Buker was at the grove with the Salvation Army, and while taking a drink in the rear of the shooting gallery a shot from a rifle came through the boards and struck him. Dr. Drake was called and probed for the bullet but was unable to find it. Buker was removed to a Boston Hospital. The party who did the shooting is not known.

Fourth of July Shoot.

The following scores were made by the members of the Wollaston Trap club at the shoot on the Fourth, out of a possible 50: F. N. Bates 32, Marsden 35, Bryne 29, Brainerd 39, Starrett 31, Cook 31, Noble 35, Whitman 19.

Fourth of July Fires.

The alarm from Box 52 at Wollaston the forenoon of the Fourth was for a slight blaze on the roof of a house occupied by Mr. Michael J. McGrath on Fayette street.

The alarm from Box 36 at 10.30 Monday morning was for a slight fire on the roof of the blacksmith shop of the Mitchell Granite works. The fire evidently caught from a stray fire cracker. The loss was slight.

AT ATLANTC.

The Atlantic chemical was out Sunday night on a still alarm to extinguish a slight fire in the battery house of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. in the rear of the tower house near the Atlantic depot. The fire was a slight one and was evidentlythe work of some of the boys who desired to see the fire department called out, but in this they were disappointed.

AT WEST QUINCY.

Hose 3 was called out about 7.30 Monday morning upon a still alarm to extinguish a slight fire at the house of Peter Farrell on Copeland street. An awning in front of the house took fire from a fire cracker and burning up set fire to the building. The loss will not be over $10.

The alarm from Box 43 at 3.30 this morning was for a fire in an unoccupied stone shed on the corner of West and Common streets, owned by Thomas Carey. The fire which was probably incendiary had burned through the roof when the department arrived but was quickly extinguished.

There was quite a grass fire on South street near the Dr. Harlow estate Sunday afternoon and at one time it was thought that the department would have to be called out. After some hard work, however, the fire was extinguished.

The Central station apparatus was called out Sunday morning for a bonfire on Water street. The blaze did not amount to anything.

Scrub Race.

Just for a past time seven members of the Wollaston Yacht Club entered into a scrub race on the morning of the Fourth and sailed over a course of four miles. There was a light wind at the start, blowing W. S. W., which freshened into a whole sail breeze before half the course was covered. The Clara Lou won first money easy. There were three prizes; Smith's Muriel taking second and the Thelma third. Considerable interest was manifested by the yachtsmen of the club. Appended is the summary according to '97 rules which were agreed upon :

Q. Y. C. Scrub Race.

A special scrub race was sailed over the Quincy Yacht Club's triangular course on the morning of the Fourth. There were four boats in the race and the prize was a club burgee. The prize was won by the Helen, although if the Kittie had not been 11 and 1-4 minutes late in starting she would have had first place. Judges : Commodore Rice and Fleet Capt. Saville.

Lawn Party.

Mrs. Charles R. Safford entertained about 35 ladies on her lawn on Wednesday, June 30, which proved to be a most ideal day for a lawn party. Interesting literary games with attractive prizes made the afternoon pass only too quickly. An elaborate though dainty lunch was served, and Master Winthrop Safford and Miss Doris Cummings passed bon bons, both sweet and patriotic, during the game. All united in voting this one of the pleasantest and prettiest affairs of the season and the hostess may well congratulate herself on the success of the afternoon.

Ballad—"Do We Realize."

In camp, we mediate tonight,
Thinking of the days of yore,
When children we played about the fields,
And on the cabin floor.
The little thought of sadness,
That marked our manhood days,
The little thought of leaving
Our farming country ways.

CHORUS.

When asked "Do we realize the fate of the Maine?"
We remember we are soldiers, Americans of fame,
We care not what befalls us, as long as we restore
Peace, Justice and Honor to the flag we adore.

Sadly we remember the fate of the Maine,
The lives that have perished
And the cowards that to blame.
We recognize the duty
We owe our country's call
For the Fifth Regiment responded
With full ranks, rough riders
Dudes and all.

CHORUS.

Dewey did his prettiest in the capture
Of Manila Bay.
The sinking of the squadron,
He did without delay,
Hobson's feat was marvellous,
It brought him world renown.
And Sampson with his noble fleet
Cevera's has run down.
Our fleets have remembered
As we will try to do.

CHORUS.

Our feats will be harder,
We realize without fear
Our forces cannot capture
Until it has cost us dear.
For Shafter has admitted in the loss of life, indeed
That the Spaniards are soldiers
To be repulsed and beat.

CHORUS.

And while in meditation
We think of days of yore
We are located at "Camp Dalton,"
Preparing for a foreign shore,
Our hearts are bright and merry,
Our deeds are yet to come
So we bid Good-bye to sweethearts
And friends that are at home.

CHORUS.

CAMP DALTON.

Interesting Notes Concerning Co. K.

Camp Dalton,
Saturday, July 2.

The day opened up with a glaring sun. As there is no shade, Uncle Sam's new soldiers feel a little bit uncomfortable, but as they expect more of it later they are willing to become accustomed to it now. There is practically no sickness in camp. Just a few cases of bruises and sore feet.

Drilling is the general order and the field presents a very busy appearance with over 1000 men in squads of 16, doing all the marching movements. We are not worked hard but are drilled for an hour at a time with frequent five minutes rest. Capt. Kincaide and Lieuts. Whitney and Spear are very much pleased with the progress made by the men of Co. K. The men are all interested and anxious to learn. There is considerable rivalry between Sergts. Phillips, Barrett, McGrath and Hermanson as to the work of their respective squads of recruits and it will certainly insure good results.

Corp. George Wardwell of Wollaston has been appointed Company Clerk. George is busy.

Frank E. Clapp, a new recruit of Braintree, is wounded already. In coming to order, a man at his side dropped the butt of his gun on his toe How could the man help it?

Corp. Haskins left for Quincy this morning to recruit three men which will bring our number to 109 men instead of 106 as we were supposed to have.

If the Ledger readers could see some of our clipped heads and close shaves they would think of convicts or a bunch of "Bill Nyes."

The boys enjoy the Ledgers which you have so kindly sent daily for distribution. Home news was never more welcome. The daily visits of the Ledger will keep us well posted on affairs at home.

George Clapp of our squad will probably be initiated tonight with the assistance of a bottle of shoe blacking.

Some of the boys here would like to know if Sergt. Colbert heard the articles of war read yesterday. Wake up.

The rough riders forgot to bring their steeds with them.

Capt. Kincaide left this evening for Quincy having obtained a few hours leave of absence. MACK.

Camp Dalton,
Sunday, July 3.

It has been very much like Cuba here today. The heat is almost unbearable. The officers and men in charge are very careful and there have as yet been no cases of exhaustion or sun stroke. Great care is being used in this respect. We are not allowed out without a hat but are not obliged to wear coats.

All the Catholic members of the Regiment were marched to town this A. M. and attended church in a body. All others were marched to one of the mess halls and were treated to a talk by the Regiment Chaplain, Rev. Mr. House. His text was taken from Exodus 14 and 15, "Go Forward," which certainly applies to us as soldiers. He said to go forward in the civil walks of life is the way to success and to do the same in battle is the only way to victory. The other way meant to decline or go backward which would certainly mean holes in some of our backs.

Several thousand people have thronged the grounds today, inspecting our quarters and mode of living, which is interesting to them. They do wonder how we sleep in such a small space. Eight in a tent about 8 by 10. Our method of dining and other small details attract the attention of the curious.

Lieut. Spear, Co. K, is lieutenant of the guard today, and Sergt. Barrett, Co. K is sergeant of the guard.

The cook outfit of Co. K is ably looked after by Sergt. Crane and Privates Delano, Tucker, Brown, Barry and Pierce. Col. Whitney and Lieut. Col. Weaver personally complimented them on the neatness of their cook house and for the food turned out by them. They will do justice to any rations which go through their hands.

About a dozen of the boys are home on 24 hours' leave today.

A great many of the boys received boxes and bags of dainties today.

Sergt Phillips was the recipient of a well filled box.

The Regiment is being equipped very fast and will be fitted out by Tuesday.

A committee from the Tubular Rivet and Stud factory in Wollaston was at camp today inquiring as to what should be done with a fund which is to be raised by the employes and others. The boys are much pleased at this most noble idea and will endeavor to merit it. All money will be entrusted to Capt. Kincaide and he will see that it is used for the comfort of the company. Any individual contribution can be sent to him in care Co K. There is no one in actual need, but money will buy a great many things which the government does not supply. Other companies have received such funds but we do not worry as we know there are many generous and patriotic friends at home. All in time. We can wait. MACK.

Camp Dalton,
July 4, 1898.

The members of Co. K are glad to welcome friends from home. Among the many visitors on Sunday were: Mrs. George Crane, Louise Foley, Grace Troy, J. E. Ford, Samuel McClellan, Thomas McGrath, C. Monyihan, C. Spillane, Miss Maggie Ferguson, E. Gould, G. Gould, F. Rodwell, G. Rodwell, Mr. Gunnison, P. Kervain H. McClellan G. Gunderson, Robert Smith and M. Phillipine of Quincy; T. Miles H. Corbett, C. Sargent, I. Hay, E. McTear, J. P. Thomas, J. Metheral, D. Goodwn and Mrs. G. L. Phillips of Wollaston; John Delorey of East Weymouth; H Boutin and H. Brierley, East Milton; Minnie Mulcahy and Fanny McCarthy of Newton; Mrs. E. Wolf of Weymouth; Marion Twomey and Maggie Moran of Waltham, Nellie Craigu and Trixie Twomey of Newton; J. Farren of South Boston; H. Ray and Beatrice Ray of East Weymouth; W. Trash of Weymouth; Mamie Mullen, Rose Caldwell, Ida Jones and Emma Jones of Waltham.

The afternoon of the holiday was given over to athletic sports which were in charge of Maj. Morrison of Braintree, assisted by a member of each company. The events included dashes, jumping, three legged race, throwing hammer, relay race, base ball, etc. But few of the Co. K men were entered and none of them took prizes. In the evening there were fireworks.

The Journal says, Many of the officers appeared on the Fourth in their new Kharkee uniforms for the first time, and were complimented so prettily by their lady visitors that distinct blushes could be traced beneath the coatings of tan and sunburn.

It is reported that general orders are to be set aside every Saturday afternoon, and that sports will be encouraged.

On Saturday 300 letters were mailed by the members of the regiment.

Camp Dalton,
July 5, 1898.

Mustering in is complete, the holiday is over and the following regular routine of duty has been established by Col. Whitney:

Company K has the honor of furnishing three orderlies for three consecutive days. These orderlies are the colonel's messengers and are selected from the whole regiment, neatness and most soldierly appearance being the elements that count. This is considered a high honor.

On Monday it was necessary to have two men from which to select the orderly and again it fell to Co. K, which it will be seen is the banner company. The three orderlies selected were Privates L. F. Olsen, Thumstrom and G. Leonard.

Captain Kincaide is officer of the day today, and Lieut. Whitney is lieutenant of the guard.

Lieut. Spear is in Quincy today, Sergt. George Wardwell at Wollaston, and private George Clapp at Scituate.

Company K has a number of mascots, among which is an undersized goat, presented by the "Rough Riders," and he is sure to become a favorite; two bantam chickens named "Bob Evans" and "Clara Barton"; a small black and white kitten captured by Sergt. Phillips, and a Cuban boy from Weymouth, or "Santiago," as he is nicknamed.

He is a curious fellow, and is on the move from morn till night and always present at meals. He promises to be a good soldier and will help free his people.

The equipments have been issued fast for the past few days and all are now provided with the blue and brown uniforms, and cap and fatigue hats.

Last night for the first time the company appeared in the dress parade in blue and the regiment showed up in good form.

No liquors are allowed in the camp, and all bundles coming into camp are examined.

OUR TARS IN BATTLE.

HOW THEY ACT WITH SHELLS BURSTING OVERHEAD.

One of the Crew of the Terror Played a Harmonicon—All Our Sailors Showed No Fear — How the Man Below Feels In Battle.

During the recent bombardment of San Juan the monitor Terror lay for half an hour within 1,000 yards of the shore, with the shells of a dozen or more Spanish guns whirring about her, bursting overhead and sending great geysers spurting in the air all around her. All the other vessels of the squadron had moved out to sea, and the little ironclad was alone, banging away at the batteries, which had concentrated their fire on her. A shell striking the vessel's open superstructure deck, where the men were at work at the smaller guns, would have caused havoc. While all this confusion of battle reigned a sailor spied a harmonicon lying on the deck close to one of the turrets. The concussion of the guns had tumbled it from its hiding place in the superstructure. The sailor watched his chance, secured the musical instrument and went dancing to the upper deck, playing a lively jig.

"That's the kind of stuff our men are made of," said one of the Terror's officers the other day as he related the incident. "As I stood there figuring that the shells were coming a little closer all the while, thinking it was about time for one to strike us and wondering just what it would do when it did, that fellow came bowling by me blowing his mouth organ as coolly as though we were in the harbor. Shells didn't bother him."

But a little while before this tar of the Terror accompanied the music of the Spanish shells with his harmonica the Detroit lay in the mouth of the harbor right under Morro, defying its guns and pouring shot after shot against the fort. A shell struck the water about 100 yards abaft the ship. A few minutes later a second shot from the same gun fell a little closer, a third was still nearer, and the fourth narrowly missed striking the mark.

The officer in charge of the 6 inch gun, as he watched the shot creeping nearer and nearer, coolly remarked: "I tell you, boys, that's good shooting. Do you see how that fellow up there is getting closer and closer to us? If he keeps up his good work, he'll hit us. It's certainly good shooting." But the Spaniard failed to keep up his good work. From all accounts the sailors do not mind Spanish shells a bit. They go into the battle heart and soul. They fight at their guns as though the enemy were at arm's length and the struggle were a personal one. "Give it to the Spaniards! That's a good 'un! Another in the same place'll make 'em sick!" That is the way they talk in the thick of the fray.

But when it is all over and the music of the shells and the crash of the guns are but a memory the officers in the safety of the Key West hotel veranda discussing the fight speak respectfully of 8 inch projectiles.

"Did I mind it?" said a lieutenant the other night, speaking of a particular San Juan shell.

"Well, I was pretty busy at the time and couldn't give it much attention, but it did seem to me as though it went within about six inches of my head. As I look back upon it now it seems that it might have been at least 20 feet over me. But"— He bit viciously at his cigar and solemnly shook his head.

"Scared?" said an engineer of the Terror, speaking of San Juan. "Well, I guess I was. It was awfully hot below and we couldn't see a thing, and the concussion of the guns and the knowledge that we were in a rain of shells were mighty unpleasant. The cat and I were very badly frightened, I tell you. I guess the cat was worse than I; he mewed and I don't think I did. But then, you know, the cat and I were the only folks on board that minded it."—New York Sun.

He Preferred the Old Testament.

The women of Coffeyville, Kan., recently made up a package of useful articles for each member of the local company of volunteers, and sent the whole to the camp at San Francisco. A copy of the New Testament went with each package and one of the recipients objected to the gift. He said he wanted the Old Testament, because there was so much more war in it.—New York Tribune.

With Rope on the Pommel.

With foot in the stirrup and hand on the rope,
Right into the round up the cow punchers lope.
Like the dust clouds that ride on Dakota's wild breeze,
The kings of the grassland are swarming like bees.

One peal from the tocsin at Fargo was rung,
And into the line every brave cowboy swung.
"Our cattle are safe on their own native plain.
Come on, every cowboy! Light out after Spain!"

Who cares for all Europe with these in the van?
Make way for the monarchs, the men from Mandan!
Let the regulars watch the accouterments shine
As the dandies of Deadwood fall into the line!

Oh, El Toro may bellow! We're into the ring.
See the goldbugs of Grand Forks the lariat swing!
"We have heard of the Maine, how she lies 'neath the wave.
We have heard, too, of Cuba. We gallop to save.

"There canters John Harvard, there rides Eli Yale,
The tiger of Princeton comes down on the gale.
At the call of Ted Roosevelt—no tenderfoot he—
We will carry to Cuba the flag of the free!"

With the devil's lake imps at his left and his right,
Our Teddy will be in the thick of the fight.
Then out with your guns, boys, and let the air ring.
Hip, hurrah for Ted Roosevelt, the cow punchers' king!

With a rope on his pommel, a gun in his hand,
Make way for the cowboy. He's chockful of sand.
The spirit of freedom flies on in his train
And echoes his warcry, "Remember the Maine!"

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

THE JAPAN IRIS.

Abundance of Water Recommended as Essential In Its Culture.

The Japan iris is too stately and beautiful a flower not to be generally admired, but amateur gardeners sometimes complain of difficulty in growing it. A correspondent of Vick's Monthly, the source of the cut, gives some information about its culture which perhaps accounts for the annoyance mentioned:

A great many people fail with it simply because they do not furnish the plant with its most important requirement—water. As is well known, almost all irises are swamp plants and are therefore great lovers of water, yet most of the species will adapt themselves to almost any condition, growing with almost equal vigor in water or on dry land, as, for instance, the varieties of German iris, which flourish like weeds in our gardens. But my experience has shown that the Kaempferi iris requires an abundance of water during the growing season.

My first attempt at the cultivation of this plant was with a collection of upward of two dozen fine varieties. The plants when received from the nursery were strong clumps and were set out early in the spring and given the same care I gave the German iris. They grew finely and produced some magnificent blooms in June. The latter part of the season was extremely dry, but I supposed that the plants were all right, as droughts never seemed to injure the common sorts, but the next spring when they started to grow it was noticed that the foliage of nearly all of them was of a sickly yellow color and the growth very weak, a large portion of them dying in a few weeks, and those that survived made a very poor growth and produced only a few inferior flowers.

I at once concluded that what the irises needed was water and plenty of it, so I removed them to a swampy piece of land which could be flooded. The results were surprising. The foliage soon assumed a dark green color and began to grow vigorously and by frost many of the leaves were upward of four feet long, and such flowers as they produced the following June! Orchids could not surpass them.

Leaf Mold From the Woods.

One of the best foundations for a bed in which to grow flower plants can be easily secured in most country districts by going to the woods and finding in hollows or on the sides of old trunks of trees the mold that has accumulated by the rotting of forest leaves that have fallen after blowing over them. Only that which has been well rotted will be worth taking home. Last year's leaves have not decomposed enough yet. That which is found in deep masses, where the soil is wet, should be avoided, as the fact that the land around it is wet shows that it is sour. The very best of all is found in the deep hollows of stumps. Here it has had only the rain and snowfall of winter to wet it, and there is usually an outlet beneath to carry off all surplus water. The leaf mold, though black, is not so rich as it looks. It is besides too light to be used as soil without some heavier soil being mixed with it. If some commercial nitrogenous compound is used in the flower bed made thus, it will produce a wonderful growth and bloom.—Exchange.

Care of the Lawn.

If the lawn is badly overgrown with chickweed, the intruding plants should be scratched out with a sharp toothed rake and a little grass seed sown in the bare spots. The chickweed is very likely to appear in damp, shaded spots. A light dressing of nitrate of potash will encourage the grass. Such weeds as plantains and dandelions must be pulled out bodily, roots and all. This is best done while the ground is soft after a rain. Mouse ear is another troublesome weed in the lawn, and this must be scratched out with the rake. The lawn would better be rolled, to settle uneven places and make it firm. Many persons still hold to the opinion that the first cutting of the grass in the spring should not take place until the grass is quite long, when it is cut with a scythe. This is a decided error. The long growth bleaches the surface and weakens the roots. The grass should be cut with the mower just as soon as it is long enough. —Rural New Yorker.

Aphides, or Plant Lice.

The small, soft bodied, green or black, mostly wingless insects that feed in colonies on the leaves of orchard trees, commonly called the "aphis" or "plant louse," are only too well known and need no further description. The surest remedy is to spray the infested parts of the trees with diluted kerosene emulsion. The aphides are usually on the undersides of the leaves, and the emulsion, to be effective, must be applied as a strong underspray.—Utah Station.

FOURTHS LONG AGO.

NOISE WAS A FEATURE OF OLD TIME CELEBRATIONS.

It Was a Great Day For the Small Boy, and He Enjoyed It to the Fullest Extent—Fun Began Before Daybreak—Parade of Fantastics—Other Attractions.

Grown up people don't make so much of the Fourth as they did just after the close of the civil war. The fathers and mothers of those days had seen their sons go forth to battle in the pride of their youth. They had read in the newspapers how bravely they had fought, and when the telegraph wires brought the heartrending news that the lads had fallen while fighting for their country they wept silently and thanked God that they had not died in vain. When the shattered armies dispersed to their northern homes and Independence day came round again, they realized that it had a new significance to them. It was a day upon which to celebrate all the victories of the war, the triumph of the cause of freedom over slavery and the re-establishment of peace. No wonder the sight of the tattered flags that had been borne across many a bloody field of battle fired their hearts with patriotism and led them to express their emotion by the discharge of cannon on the village green, by the ringing of the bells in the steeples and by the illumination of their homes at night!

The Fourth of July was then the greatest day of the whole year, and no expense was spared to make it memorable. The bands played, the veterans of the war marched proudly through the streets and the crowds cheered in honor of the occasion. And what of the boys of those days? They were little patriots, every one of them. They had been thrilled by the stories of the battles of Antietam, of Gettysburg and the Wilderness, told at their mother's knee. They had listened with bated breath to the orators in the public square as they recounted the valorous deeds of the soldiers on many a field of battle. They had learned of the heroism of some of the big boys whom they had known at schools, who had run away from home to become drummer boys and buglers in the army. All these things conspired to kindle within the youths' breasts the sacred fire of patriotism and moved them to resolve to offer themselves to their country as soldiers when they should grow up. They formed themselves into companies, with captains, drummer boys and color bearers, and paraded the streets just like the real veterans. Their guns were made of wood, but they handled them as carefully and withal as dexterously as the real soldiers.

The Fourth of July was the day upon which every boy felt that he had an inalienable right to make all the noise he could. Every firecracker was to him a scream of joy that the veterans had triumphed and every rocket that pierced the sky dropping a trail of sparks behind it was a shriek of delight that the carnage of battle was ended. Thirty years ago no boy in town wanted to lie in bed after the church clock had tolled the hour of 1 o'clock on that morning. Creeping out of bed in the darkness, boys dressed hurriedly and silently made their way to the street. The stars were shining brightly above their heads, and the air was a bit chilly. They were soon joined by groups of other boys, and together proceeded to the homes of companions who had failed to put in an appearance, and by throwing stones at their windows or by pulling strings that had been fastened to their toes awoke them.

When the party was complete, they proceeded through the deserted streets of the town firing guns and setting off bunches of snap crackers to arouse the sleepers. Several of the boys carried horns which they blew to their hearts' content. A number of citizens who did not relish having their morning naps thus rudely disturbed stuck their heads out of their windows and said uncomplimentary things to them, but they only laughed and fired off more crackers. Their teeth chattered with excitement or cold, it is not certain which, but they did not mind it and kept up the merriment.

With the first peep of day the bells in every steeple began to peel out a sunrise salute, while from the hilltop a cannon roared out a hoarse accompaniment of exploding powder.

By this time the city was awake, and the streets were soon filled with people. Excursion trains from distant points arrived every few minutes and added their human freight to the bustling crowds. Farmers from the surrounding country with their families loaded on ox carts and farm wagons drove into the public square and became a part of the multitude. At 7 o'clock came the parade of "fantastics"—men and boys dressed in the most grotesque costumes imaginable and mounted on ancient nags or drawn in carts that had been "decorated" for the occasion.

At 10 o'clock the civic and military parade marched through the streets to the music of innumerable bands. There were fire companies in red shirts and black helmet hats drawing the hand engines, or "machines," as they were called. There were companies of Masons and Odd Fellows in their regalias, platoons of policemen in uniform, squads of cavalry with sabers clanking at their sides, regiments of soldiers with the guns they had carried in the field, wagons loaded with girls in white, representing all the states of the Union, floats upon which were represented scenes in the pioneer days of the republic, and carriages containing the city officials and distinguished guests. Thousands of people crowded the sidewalks and buildings on either side of the route of parade and added their shouts to the noise of exploding gunpowder. When the procession reached the park, literary exercises, consisting of the reading of the Declaration of Independence, an oration by the local congressman, an original poem by a budding genius and the singing of "America," were held.

When it was all over, the military and fire companies were fed at the expense of the city in a huge tent that had been erected on the common for that purpose, while the citizens patronized the booths that had been erected around the park. In New England baked beans and brown bread were the chief articles of diet on that day. —Atlanta Constitution.

Doctrine of Equal Rights.

The revolting colonists builded better than they knew. They were not merely the instruments of their own and their descendants' deliverance from the exactions of a royal power; they were carrying to fulfillment the hopes and longings of the myriads of men who in all preceding ages had cherished the doctrine of the God given equality of all men and the potency of that doctrine to raise a people to supremacy in governmental power and in national prosperity.—Boston Globe.

AN 1809 CELEBRATION.

How New Yorkers Observed Fourth of July Ninety Years Ago.

Here is a true copy of an advertisement that appeared in the New York Herald—not Bennett's—on July 3, 1809:

"The public are informed that the Anniversary of American Independence will be celebrated at Columbia Garden opposite the Battery. Splendid preparations have been made to commemorate the auspicious day, and nothing will be found deficient in causing general satisfaction.

"The Garden will be elegantly decorated and splendidly illuminated with variegated Lamps. The Fountains will be ornamented with new transparent Paintings and Busts.

"The Hydraulic machinery with improvements will be exhibited. It turns by the force of water issuing from the Fountain. It is composed of 12 wheels, on which are fixed upwards of 1,000 figures, and from the recent improved plan will turn with great velocity. Around the exterior of the Fountain are 12 elegant transparent paintings, being also a part of the Hydraulic machinery. This new exhibition will be found highly interesting, and cannot fail of exciting universal approbation from those who may view it.

"Fireworks—A grand display of elegant Fireworks will take place during the exhibition, in which are A Chinese Fountain; a variety of Roman Candles; a star 30 feet in circumference, with the Sun in the center; a grand fire pump, etc., Accompanied with 100 elegant Rockets, the principal part of the above to be turned by water.

"A select Band of Music is engaged.

"Admittance for the evening 4 shillings."—Rocky Mountain News.

HOLDS THE FUTURE.

America Occupies a Proud Position Among the Nations.

On this peculiarly American day, the Fourth of July, when from the Atlantic to the Pacific the sound of firecrackers—a miniature battle—recalls the boom of the cannon and the roar of artillery which won for us our liberty when the war of the Revolution was over, we Americans feel the greatness of our country and the proud position which she holds among other nations.

We celebrate with great rejoicing the anniversary of American independence. And this day will ever be associated with that most noble of instruments that declared these colonies free.

We feel that it is a great honor to be an American and live in a country so strong in youth, territory and noncongestion of her population, so strong in the expectation of her inhabitants in the ownership of the land, in the blood of heroes that flows in the veins of her sons, in the absence of luxury and the need of toil. All this has combined to make American brawn noteworthy.

The impress of the goodness of the Father also makes the nation moral. Her popular government, her religious liberty and her institutions all prophesy and prove that Arnold spoke the truth when he declared that America holds the future.—Philadelphia Times.

The Fourth From a British Standpoint.

"The Book of Days," the vade mecum, so to speak, of all good Britains, has this to say about the day on which all good Americans become delirious with joy and the smell of powder:

"When a country or government has been baffled in its efforts to attain or preserve a hated rule over another people, it must be content to see its failure made the subject of never ending triumph and exultation. The joy attached to the sense of escape or emancipation tends to perpetuate itself by periodical celebrations, in which it is not likely that the motives of the other party or the general justice of the case will be very carefully considered or allowed for. We may doubt if it be morally expedient thus to keep alive the memory of facts which as certainly infer mortification to one party as glorification to another."—Exchange.

National Pride.

The framers of our political systems knew that it was an experiment which had always previously ended fatally. Europe said, "When the storm comes, the ship will go asunder!" Well, the storm came and was unprecedented, but our system came out firmer than before. We have seen the national wounds healing and the national pride grow stronger.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Mighty Step Forward.

No age will come in which the American Revolution will appear less than it is—one of the greatest events in human history. No age will come in which it will cease to be seen and felt on either continent that a mighty step, a great advance, not only in American affairs, but in human affairs, was made on the Fourth of July, 1776.—Daniel Webster.

England's Good Will.

On this anniversary we now celebrate all over the British empire, by land and sea, everywhere an American citizen may be found, he can raise the flag of his country not only without molestation, but amid the respectful salutes of British respect and good will.—Exchange.

Truest of the True.

To the page of history
Proud we turn today.
Heroes to the memory,
Throng in brave array,
Stern and sad or gallant gay,
Clad in buff or blue,
As they fought and fell, alway
Truest of the true.

In the cause of liberty
Weary was the way.
Rich or pinched by poverty
One and all came they.
To their country's wrong allay
Fearless swords they drew,
Gave both love and life away,
Truest of the true.

When will prose or poesy
Half their worth portray?
Faithful to eternity,
Proof 'gainst sorrow's sway.
Trials, tears and dark dismay
Ne'er such hearts subdue.
Link the myrtle with the bay,
Truest of the true.

While for the prosperity
Of our land we pray
Let the tear of sympathy
Tender hearts betray.
Freedom's burning stars display!
Thrill the ages through
With a never ending lay,
Truest of the true.

ENVOY.

Friends, though oft the footsteps stray,
Be, whate'er you do,
Worthy of their names, for aye
Truest of the true!

SUDDEN AND AWFUL.

Shore Resort In New Hampshire Nearly Destroyed.

Tornado Swept Everything In a Wide Swath.

Several Killed In Buildings and Others Were Drowned.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 5.—A catastrophe visited Hampton Beach Monday afternoon which will never be forgotten by the thousands who were on pleasure bent at that place. With scarcely a moment's warning a terrific hurricane swooped down on the beach, and in less than five minutes had blotted out the lives of at least 10 people, destroyed thousands of dollars worth of property and left a wide path of desolation.

It was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon when a nominous looking cloud rolled up from the west, but most of the people who saw it supposed it nothing more than an ordinary thunder shower. Old marines and a few others shook their heads and were heard to mutter that there was wind, and lots of it, in those kind of clouds. These remarks were only too true, for with a swiftness and suddenness that only served to make it all the more deadly, the storm broke.

First came several gusts of wind and a few drops of rain followed by a dead calm; then with awful fury the wind tore down the beach; toppling over everything in its path and tossing houses and barns about like so much paper. Big trees were uprooted, chimneys blown over and the air was full of flying objects and debris.

With the first gust the clouds seemed to open and the water came down in torrents. For about three minutes it never rained harder. Then came hailstones, some as large as hen's eggs, which broke glass and did any amount of injury to the crops back further in the country.

The whole force of the storm seemed to center at Hampton beach, and in two minutes it was a scene of desolation. At the skating rink a crowd of 100 or more had gathered to witness a kind of panorama, representing the blowing up of the Maine. This building was razed in the twinkling of an eye, while from the ruins came the cries and groans of the injured and the dying. It was a heartrending scene where men fought each other and trampled on women and children in their endeavors to get out of the ruins.

Out on the street there was a scene of terrible destruction. Here were the fragments of 31 trim, little summer cottages. Nothing marked the places where these had stood two minutes before. All kinds of furniture was thrown about, while above the roar of the breakers on the beach and the noise of the rain and hailstones came the screams and cries of the poor people injured in the ruins. It was a terrifying sight. Hardy men turned their heads for a moment, while others looking on from undemolished buildings felt riveted to earth. Hundreds must be killed, everybody thought. The hoarse shouts of men and the wild cries of women and children in the debris horrified in the excitement of the hour.

The heaviest blow was on the dancing pavilion, where the reproduction of the destruction of the Maine was in progress. The falling timbers buried almost the entire audience of 250 persons, and it is surprising that anyone escaped injury. Mme. Mora was fearfully crushed, and nearly every member of the company was injured seriously. The pianist had his hands and head caught by a beam and was crowded against the piano so that it was not possible for him to extricate himself. He was seriously hurt.

The list of dead on shore was as follows: Mora, the actress; Mae Prescott, Exeter; Samuel Cammett, Exeter; William F. Karlson, Exeter.

There are others dead also, and these were members of a yachting party who were celebrating the 13th wedding anniversary of a Kensington, N. H., couple. The yacht was in command of Captain Frank Nudd of Hampton, and nine persons were on board, seven of whom were drowned. The craft was directly in the path of the tornado and it capsized without warning. The drowned are: Captain Frank Nudd, Hampton; Walker G. Hodgdon, Kensington; Mrs. W. G. Hodgdon, Kensington; Ralph H. Hodgdon, Kensington; Mrs. William Blake and child, Kensington; Eugene Jandrin, Kensington. Of the survivors of the party, John Lamprey was thought to be drowned also, but energetic work brought resuscitation. The ninth member was Alfred Scott of Exeter. Another small yacht in the vicinity was also capsized, but the party of four on her were rescued.

Just as soon as order was restored and the removal of the wounded expedited all available conveyances were sent to Exeter and Portsmouth for surgeons.

LARGE NUMBER DROWNED.

Excursion Steamer Wrecked In a Squall and Sunk.

Salem, July 5.—The steamer Surf City, Captain Dalby, of the Baker's island line, was capsized in a squall off Bacon buoy, about two miles from Beverly, at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Seven bodies have been recovered. It is not known how many more remain submerged in the wreck, as darkness put an end to the work of recovery.

There are conflicting statements as to the number of passengers on board the steamer, and as a consequence it is impossible to make any intelligent estimate of the loss of life. It is positively known that there are some bodies now in the cabin of the steamer, but how many cannot be stated. One man who dived down into the cabin reported that he saw one body. Another said that he saw four, while a doctor who visited the wreck is positive that there are at least 30 more bodies.

VICTORY!

After the trenches and redoubts were taken, came a bold attempt by the Spaniards to recover them. This occasioned the fiercest fighting and the great loss of the day. When the Spaniards broke behind the hill and passed between the reserves, who came forward with a rush upon our breathless men, striking and breaking the line in several places, their impetuosity for several minutes well nigh made our boys waver. Then, rallying gallantly, they staggered forward, carrying confusion into the enemy. As the Spaniards fled towards the city they were shot down like rats. In all 19 Red Cross hospital flags floated from the buildings in Santiago during the day.

From at least two of them the firing was continuous. Several of our regiments became entangled during the day in the brush and fired into one another. The stragglers were exceptionally few.

The general belief is that the crushing of Admiral Cervera's fleet entirely changes the situation, now that Admiral Sampson can enter the harbor and the army and navy can make a combined attack upon the city. It is not believed that General Shafter will make a decisive move until that question is definitely settled.

General Pando, with 500 reinforcements, reached Santiago at noon Monday, General Garcia refusing to make an effort to stop him, saying that the Spanish force was too large for him to engage. The army is half mad with delight over the crushing of the Spanish fleet.

General Shafter, lying in his tent, which was lighted by a tallow dip, remained up Friday until after midnight, conferring with his division and brigade commanders, discussing the situation and plan for Saturday. To a correspondent of the Associated Press the general said he was proud of the gallant conduct of the troops and perfectly satisfied with the results attained. At the same time, he expressed deep regret at the heavy loss which his command had sustained. He said that the action would be resumed at dawn, "but," he added, "I cannot tell you whether an attempt will be made to carry the town by assault owing to our troops being worn out and exhausted with the hard day's fighting."

Our troops bivouacked on the ground they had taken so gallantly Friday, but it was stained with the heart's blood of many brave men. Stricken homes and sorrowed lives had been left behind, and many a brave boy lay sleeping, with the dark dews of death upon his beardless face and curling locks, while mother or sweetheart far away lay dreaming of him, all unconscious that he had given his life to his country. No fires were lighted, with the moonlight streaming softly down upon the scene of the day's carnage. The men, most of whom had not touched food during the day, eat hardtack and raw bacon from their knapsacks and then, without blankets or shelter, threw themselves upon the bare ground and slept. During the night, fresh ammunition and food were brought up and distributed, but none of the dead was carried off the field, and the remains of many lying in the dense undergrowth along the line of the advance will perhaps never be found, save by the buzzards. The wounded were carried back to the rear to receive the ministrations of the doctors, which, no matter how early it comes, is always tardy.

There are many evidences of disloyal methods of warfare upon the part of the Spaniards Friday. One of their batteries was masked by a blockhouse over which the Red Cross flag was flying, and the road leading from General Shafter's quarters to the front for two days was invested at various points by sharpshooters, who fired deliberately upon our wounded. It is supposed they stole through our lines on the right, taking refuge in the hospitals. In the trenches captured by us many shells and explosive cartridges were found.

Happenings at Manila.

Hong Kong, July 5.—The United States dispatch boat Zafiro, which arrived here Monday morning from Cavite with the report that the American troops arrived at Cavite on June 30, reports also that Admiral Dewey, when the Zafiro left on July 1, was planning to attack Manila with the fleet and troops on July 4. In addition to the Spanish governor of the Ladrones, which was seized, the Charleston brought 50 soldiers as prisoners of war to Cavite.

The Hugh McCulloch captured the Spanish gun vessel Leyte. Admiral Dewey offered to parole the crew, but they declined because they feared to be court-martialled and shot.

Captain Concha, late commander of the Spanish third-class unprotected cruiser Don Antonio de Ulloa, which was sunk at the battle of Cavite, commands at Fort Malate, with 300 sailors. A thousand mixed troops are camped about a half mile south. The insurgents apparently, the Zafiro reports, fear to leave cover.

Artachio, the insurgent leader who was arrested by General Aguinaldo, will, the insurgents think, be shot, as Aguinaldo fears a conspiracy against himself.

The Manila Transports.

Hong Kong, July 5.—The United States troops on the City of Sydney, City of Peking and Australia, convoyed by the Charleston, arrived off Cavite at 5 o'clock Thursday morning, after an eventful voyage. On her way there the Charleston called at Guahan, the largest of the Ladrone islands, the group in the Pacific which belonged to Spain, took possession of the whole group and made prisoners of Governor General Marina, his staff and the entire military force and raised the stars and stripes over the ruins of Santa Cruz fort in the harbor of San Luis de La Paz.

The troops are in good condition, and our only loss was Private Hutchinson of company B, First Oregon, who died on the City of Sydney on June 20, and who was buried at sea on June 21.

CUBA'S CURIOUS CITY

SKETCH OF LIFE IN SANTIAGO, QUAINT AND MEDIÆVAL.

The Venerable City on Which All Eyes Have Been Fixed Is Far Older Than Any Other In North America — The Union League of Santiago.

The bottling up of Cervera's fleet in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba is not the only claim to distinction possessed by that curious old city, for, as the inhabitants never fail to remind the traveler, it has long been a disputed fact whether Columbus landed first at San Salvador or Santiago de Cuba. However that may be, St. Jago, as the Spanish call it, is far older than any city in North America.

The peculiar narrow streets and the facades of the houses remind one of some of the old towns in Italy, but there the resemblance ceases, for the houses of Santiago are nearly all built around a court, or patio, as they are in most Spanish towns. With their high barred windows and glaring plastered walls, on the outside they look more like prisons than like the American idea of dwelling houses. But go inside the patio and everything is different. There are palms and shrubs and flowers, and in some of the richer houses even fountains. Meals are often served in the patio in pleasant weather.

In Santiago as well as in other Cuban cities the proprietors of most of the shops and warehouses live in the same building in which their business is conducted. The shops open about 9 o'clock in the morning and remain open till about noon, when they close up and everybody goes to the midday meal. After that everybody takes a nap in the heat of the day. The shops open up again about 2 o'clock in the afternoon and remain open till half past 5 or 6. Go to an office in Santiago at half past 8 in the morning and nobody will be up; go again at half past 12 and everybody will be eating; go again at half past 1 and everybody will be asleep.

In the evening the people sit around and take life easy and smoke, of course, for in Santiago everybody smokes, men, women and children. Even the waiters in the hotels and cafes pull out a cigarette and smoke between the courses. The porters and cabmen smoke at all times and seasons. The stevedores on the wharfs smoke at their work, and even the clerks in the dry goods stores roll a cigarette and take a puff between two customers. The senorita blows a cloud of smoke from under the lace of her fascinating, mysterious mantilla, while negresses walk along the streets puffing away at huge cigars. Children of 8 and 10 may often be seen with cigarettes in their mouths, and it is no uncommon sight to see men and women smoking in church.

The country houses around Santiago are infested with mice and lizards. The latter are very alert and active and quite unlike the sluggish lizards seen in northern climates. There is a curious kind of mouser whose presence is rather encouraged about Cuban country houses. These mousers are not cats, as one might suppose, but large black snakes. As they are quite harmless nobody thinks of being afraid of them, and they come and go as they please, unmolested.

All the young bloods in Santiago wear white duck suits and straw hats, and they may be seen lounging around the city and the Club de San Carlos, looking cool and comfortable, and smoking, of course, for that goes without saying in Santiago. At the Club de San Carlos, which is the Union league of Santiago, the Spanish officers from Morro Castle and the gilded youths of the city make their idling headquarters. It is a pleasant place in which to loaf, drink cooling beverages, smoke and gossip. The clubhouse is only one story high, like most of the buildings in the city, and in front is a little garden with a fountain and flowers.

Opposite the Club de San Carlos is the Cafe Venus, where, an enthusiastic traveler declares, as good a meal can be had as at Delmonico's. There is less wine drunk in Cuba than in most Latin countries, but there is a native rum, called bacardi, which is made from molasses, and which, well mixed with water and cooled with ice, makes a very smooth sort of beverage and a somewhat insidious one. A quart bottle of this rum costs only 50 cents, and as a good deal of it is usually drunk at the midday meal it is not to be wondered at that a nap immediately follows it.

At all places in Santiago where drinks are sold, as well as in the telegraph offices and postoffice, one always finds lottery tickets on sale, and men and boys peddle them about the streets. These tickets vary in price from 10 cents to $10, and even more.

Of all the cities of Cuba Santiago, with its 40,000 inhabitants, is by far the most picturesque and interesting. It is many years older than St. Augustine, and after walking for an hour or two through its mediæval looking streets the most matter of fact American is ready to believe any romantic story about the place which may be told to him, except, perhaps, the story of the immense chain stretching from Morro Castle to a huge staple in the wall of rock on the opposite shore, 50 yards away, which can be hove up by a capstan till it is level with the water, so as to form an insurmountable obstacle to any attempt to force an entrance in time of war.

If he is familiar with the language, the Spanish proverb, "Hablo el buey y di jo bu" ("He speaks and says too"), used in referring to people who talk very "big," may occur to him, and he will be inclined to doubt the story of the chain till Schley and Sampson settle the matter once for all.—New York Herald.

A Dual Day.

We shall have to sing pæans of praise to two Georges the coming Fourth of July.—St. Louis Republic.

Father Time's scythe is a weapon that no man can escape. Sooner or later it must lay all men low.

With premature death it is different. Nature intended that every man should live a long and useful life, and die a peaceful, painless death. Men defeat the intention of a beneficent Providence by the manner in which they live, their disregard of the laws of health and their utter failure to protect health when it is threatened and restore it when it is lost. The most common result of neglect of health is that dread disease, consumption. Not many years ago it was considered incurable. Now it is known that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure 98 per cent. of all cases if taken in time. That is its record during a period of thirty years. Many of the thankful patients have permitted their names, experiences and photographs to be reproduced in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Any sufferer who wishes to investigate these cases may secure a copy of this book free, by sending 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and then write to the patients themselves. In consulting Dr. R. V. Pierce by letter, the sufferer consults a skillful specialist who for thirty years has been chief consulting physician to the great Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. With the assistance of a staff of able physicians, he has successfully treated tens of thousands of cases of bronchial, throat and lung affections. He will cheerfully answer letters from all sufferers, without charge. Address the Doctor as above.

"I had bronchitis for eighteen years and I was treated by three physicians, but all failed," writes David Wartzenluft, Esq., of Shoemakersville, Berks Co., Pa. "They told me there was no cure for me. I then used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and was entirely cured. My weight is now 172 pounds."

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought, to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

You can buy a Red, White and Blue Tie for 4c. Put the band around your neck and hear it play Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue.

If you want to take it cool get a crash hat for 24c. You can get a Blue Serge Suit (all worsted) for $7.50 and go and catch a high ball with what you save. If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

Your money back with a smile if you wish it.

GEN. LINARES' ANSWER

Refused to Surrender at the Demand of Shafter.

Will Burn Santiago to Circumvent Americans.

Cervera on the Honor of the Spanish Navy.

Realized the Difficulty, but Obliged to Obey Orders to Scoot.

Kingston, Jam., July 6. — General Linares, in command of the Spanish forces in Santiago, will not surrender to General Shafter, according to statements made by refugees. "I shall burn the city to the ground," they quote General Linares as having declared. Since the effects of the fierce American attack became known in the city the residents and nearly all of the soldiers have been strongly in favor of surrendering before the Americans can begin the bombardment.

Sixty-three refugees were brought from Santiago on the British men-of-war Alert and Pallas, and 70 others on the Austrian warship Maria Teresa. The scene at the wharf when the refugees were landing was exciting and graphic, many persons having gathered to learn the latest news from the beleaguered city. When the refugees left Santiago the American troops were within 300 yards of the barbed wire fences just outside of the city lines, and the archbishop of Santiago had appealed to the Spanish commander to surrender rather than be subjected to a bombardment. General Linares, although in great pain from the injury to his arm, and compelled to depend for support upon General Toral, absolutely refused to comply with the archbishop's request. He emphasized his refusal by declaring that he would burn the city before he would permit it to fall into the hands of the Americans.

The Spanish troops in Santiago had been greatly reduced in numbers just prior to the arrival of General Pando's reinforcements. Refugees declare that General Linares had only 4000 regulars and 200 volunteers left with which to defend the city. Several thousand of his men had been killed and wounded, and Admiral Cervera no longer was aiding with his fleet. The enemy's troops were much depressed over these conditions, and their spirits were further lowered by the wounding of General Linares and the death of General Vara Del Rey, who succeeded General Linares in commanding the Spanish troops at the front. If the Spanish soldiers could have their way, they would surrender to General Shafter forthwith.

The refugees generally agreed that the city would be surrendered, but the Spanish leaders showed no inclination to adopt that course. General Pando's arrival, with 7000 additional troops, by the latest information here, places the total strength of the Spanish in Santiago at only a little more than 11,000. Only two houses in the city of Santiago had been destroyed by the American fire up to the time the refugees left for Kingston, but the Spanish ship Trafalgar, which was lying in the harbor, had been sunk by a shell. Two men were killed and five wounded. One woman was killed by the firing on the city. The refugees left Santiago in boats, being allowed to take no baggage Crowds surround the consulates in the beleaguered city, praying for permission to leave. Flour is not obtainable in Santiago, beef costs $1.40 a pound, rice 50 cents a pound and lard $1 a bottle. The refugees say they saw many persons lying on the piazzas in Santiago dying of starvation.

It was announced officially in Santiago during the American attack on Saturday that Admiral Camara's fleet had bombarded Key West.

In an interview Admiral Cervera said: "I received orders twice from Madrid to leave Santiago harbor and go to Havana, and fully realized the difficulties that beset my path, but the honor of the Spanish navy demanded that the movement be made, and I gave the order for my fleet to dash forth to almost certain destruction."

Lieutenant Juan Aruar, third officer of the cruiser Infanta Maria Teresa, dictated the following statement: "We risked all on the chance of catching the American fleet napping, and we have lost. Our fleet has been wiped out, and Spain's naval power is suddenly shattered. That is the situation which Spain must face. The war cannot be continued with any hope of success. We have done our best, but we have been overcome by a superior force. Admiral Cervera decided last Wednesday to leave Santiago, in obedience to instructions received from Madrid, which ordered him to proceed to Havana in order to assist in the defense of that city. The fleet accordingly coaled and provisioned, and the men ashore were recalled."

SANTIAGO PROBLEM.

Belief In Washington That Hard Work Is In Store.

Washington, July 6.—Hard fighting looms before our men at Santiago. The destruction of Cervera's fleet is only the prelude to desperate work ahead, and the administration is hurrying forward troops as rapidly as it can in order that they may be on hand at Santiago in case Shafter shall need them, as it is feared he will. It was anything but good news that came from the front yesterday, and which the cabinet had before it. The arrival of Spanish reinforcements at Santiago, coupled with the acknowledged inability of Garcia's men to resist their advances, makes it possible for the garrison of the beleagured city to resist gamely any attempt to storm the works. Moreover, it appears that our forces are in no condition to carry out Shafter's threat to bombard the town immediately.

The conditions with regard to Santiago are peculiar. We have already done everything there that we set out to do. The only object in sending troops there was to help Sampson carry out his instructions to "capture or destroy the Spanish fleet." There had never been any intention of taking the town except with this end in view, and yet, now that the fleet is destroyed, we find ourselves in a position from which we cannot retire without the moral effect of a repulse. Strategically it would be to our advantage to let Santiago alone and not exhaust our troops or risk the lives of our men in seizing a town which can be of no benefit in the further progress of the war; but we are compelled to go on with the work which has begun, just as if the fleet had never existed, or, as if it had never been destroyed.

As soon as official confirmation had been received of the fact that the Spanish garrison had been reinforced, almost outnumbering the American army, it became necessary to know whether the co-operation of the navy could be counted upon. The matter was thoroughly discussed in a cabinet meeting, after which telegrams were sent to General Shafter and Admiral Sampson directing them to confer, and decide upon the best policy to be pursued.

There is said to no obstacle, so far as navigation is concerned, to the entrance of the harbor by the American fleet. The Cristobal Colon, which cleared the Merrimac and got out of the harbor Sunday, drew 23 feet, 3 inches, which is within seven inches of the draught of the Iowa, Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon, and is greater than the draught of the Texas. Moreover, the navy department has known for the last 10 days that the neck of the channel was open, despite the sinking of the Merrimac, and that there was a clear seaway of seven fathoms through which any ship in our navy could sail. This removes all difficulty, except through submarine mines, or from the shore batteries. Little account is taken of the mines since the Spanish fleet passed over them. The Spaniards are in the habit of using contact mines, so that there is little likelihood of their being mines operated by electric connection with the shore. The forts and batteries have been badly weakened by the constant fire of the fleet for many weeks past and, while still a factor, they are greatly disabled. Once up to the city the fleet and army could combine in a terrific double fire. No less than 292 heavy guns would be trained from the American warships on the city, and at the same time the big siege guns, which it is believed are at the front of Shafter's line, would rain down a torrent of steel from that quarter. The siege guns throw shells of 135 pounds. Aside from them, there are four Morten howitzers and a large number of smaller howitzers. These are in the heavy artillery, while the light artillery embraces a number of guns of 3.2 caliber. Combined, this fire from land and sea would be terrific in its effect.

The action of the foreign representatives at Santiago has been an additional reason for deferring the bombardment. It was known late Tuesday that one of General Shafter's dispatches stated that these representatives had joined in a request to him to put off the shelling of the city for another brief period until their respective colonies could be removed. This accounts for the departure of the foreign warships from Santiago harbor, as they are bearing away the foreign residents in the period before the bombardment begins. The activity of the consuls at Santiago has led to no diplomatic complication which has reached the state department thus far, and the authorities feel that nothing of that nature will develop.

FOURTH'S AFTERMATH

Small Firecracker Caused a Destructive Blaze In Bath.

The Citizens Formed Bucket Gangs.

Flames Stopped After Two Hours of Fierce Raging.

Bath, Me., July 6.—As a result of too much Fourth of July enthusiasm, extending over until yesterday, a large portion of the southern part of this city was almost wiped out by fire yesterday afternoon. It took the combined efforts of the local department, hundreds of volunteers who formed brigades and companies and two fire companies from Brunswick and Lewiston to subdue the flames, and success only came after $100,000 worth of property was destroyed.

The fire started in the stable of Isaac Crocker, and was caused by firecrackers. The flames rushed through this building with lightning speed, and within a few minutes the whole structure was not only doomed, but the fire had jumped across to the Methodist church. From the outset the fire had decidedly the advantage, as the water supply from Lake Nequesset suddenly failed owing to a break in the pipes, and for a long time the department was on the defensive.

The church was a mass of ruins within half an hour, while during that time no less than half a dozen smaller structures had caught and were burning fiercely. The citizens formed bucket brigades, and by the hardest kind of work succeeded in saving many of the more important structures, including the plant of the iron works.

The great building of the Woodward Coal company was one of those which caught; but the crew of the steam yacht Eleanor, which was in the stream, came ashore and by most persistent efforts saved the property from going down with the rest. The fire, however, kept on down the street, taking all dwelling houses until it was finally stopped on South street, after two hours of almost uninterrupted sway.

Most of the buildings were occupied by workmen, nearly all of whom were unable to save but little of their personal effects, so that their loss will undoubtedly be severe.

The loss on nearly all of the buildings will be covered by insurance, while the church was covered by a $12,500 policy. The fire departments from Brunswick and Lewiston arrived early, and assisted greatly in subduing the flames.

Cevera was no fool. If he had destroyed his ships in the harbor, Spain would have had to pay for them; if he had surrendered, the United States would have enriched her navy to that extent. By making the United States the agent of destruction, he obviated both difficulties. Cevera was decidedly foxey.

Massachusetts has made liberal appropriation for war purposes. The aggregate is about two million dollars of which half a million is for bounties and State aid. In addition to the $13 per month paid by Uncle Sam the State will pay each soldier and sailor from Massachusetts $7 per month. The State will also pay $1 per week to each of the dependents of those who volunteer, including widowed mothers wife, children, etc. Probably no other State will be so generous to its soldiers, and the work of the State will be supplement by aid associations and individuals.

A QUINCY HERO.

John Berry Among Those Killed Before Santiago.

It was not expected that there were any Quincy boys in the land force attacking Santiago, but John Berry is reported among those who fell. Mr. Berry enlisted from Springfield and was a member of the 2d Massachusetts Volunteers. He has resided in Quincy for the greater part of his life up to two years ago, when he went to Springfield. For some months previous to his leaving Quincy he carried on the express business with Mr. Hart, under the name of Hart & Berry. His father was James Berry, who resided on the corner of Copeland street and Furnace avenue, who it will be remembered was accidently killed about a year ago by being thrown from his team at the the above corner. Private Berry was married, but it is not known whether his wife is a Quincy lady or not.

Balloon Ascension.

It is an old saying that "Any blamed fool can fly, but the trick is to light." That Charles Smith, known as the "Black Prince," possesses the trick of lighting was made manifest to the thousands who witnessed him make his balloon ascension and parachute jump at New Downer Landing Tuesday afternoon. The big canvas balloon was inflated on the ball ground at the grove and a little after 4 o'clock the word was given to cast off and the balloon with Prof. Smith seated on a trapeze below arose gracefully to a height of half a mile and sailed away toward Quincy. It was as pretty an ascension as one wants to see and was watched with increasing interest. When over Weymouth Fore river Prof. Smith pulled the rope that freed the parachute and he began to descend as gracefully as he had gone up a few minutes before. He landed in the river where he was picked up by a boat and rowed ashore, none the worse for his bath, being refreshed if anything by his trip. Prof .Smith will repeat his ascension and parachute jump this afternoon and every afternoon this week.

The attendance at the grove Tuesday was over one thousand and the singing by the Jubilee singers was greatly enjoyed, as was also the dancing.

Funeral of Miss Garrity.

The funeral of Miss Margaret Garrity was held this morning at 9 o'clock from St. John's church, at which she so long presided as organist, and was very largely attended by her many friends. Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. F. A. Friguglietti, assisted by Rev. Daniel C. Reardon of Roxbury as deacon, Rev. William Deasey of Randolph as sub-deacon, and Rev. John P. Cuffe of Quincy as master of ceremonies.

At the altar were Rev. J. E. Johnson, Rev. J. F. Purcell and Rev. P. A. Hayes of Quincy, Rev. A. F. Roche of Hingham, Rev. John Garrity of East Boston, Rev. Edward J. Fegan of Natick, and Rev. Frank Hart of Dorchester.

Miss Sarah Carney of St. Joseph's church, Roxbury, presided at the organ, and music was by the two choirs assisted by Mr. Michael J. Dwyer who sang "Passing out of the Shadows." Dr. D. J. Padula sang a solo and Miss Mary F. White sang the solo part of "Dies Irae" as the body was borne out of the church. The interment was at West Quincy, the bearers being Mr. John Harkins, Mr. William Harkins, Mr. John A. McDonnell, Mr. Thomas H. McDonnell, Mr. Conrad Mischler and Mr. Andrew Mischler, the last two being members of the church choir.

Christian Commission Work.

Secretary Hoehn of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. has been appointed for work in the Christian Commission at the front, but has not yet decided to accept. He will probably do so if he can secure leave of absence. Mr. Hoehn is a member of the Quincy Army Committee and it is through his individual effort that over $100 has been raised here for the Christian Commission. In view of this fact, and his known qualifications, it is not surprising that he was appointed, although it comes unsought and others were striving for it. The plans is to assign two men to a regiment, and if Mr. Hoehn accepts he will probably go to the front with the 6th or 8th Massachusetts Volunteers.

Two Fires at One House.

The alarm from box 172 at 7.30 Tuesday was for a slight fire in the cellar of a house on Glencoe place owned by William Reynolds and was probably caused by a fire cracker being thrown among a lot of old clothing. The damage was slight. The singular part of this fire was the fact that in the afternoon there was a fire in the cellar on the opposite side of the house, occupied by Alfred Lacroix. No alarm however was given for that.

CAMP DALTON.

Interesting Notes Concerning Co. K.

[SPECIAL TO THE DAILY LEDGER FROM H. A. MCLAUGHLIN.]

Camp Dalton,
Wednesday, July 6.

During the temporary absence of Maj. Morrison, Capt. Kincaide, senior officer of the battalion, is in command.

The men are putting in lots of work at drill, the new men being drilled in squads.

Col. Whitney will issue an order today removing all the tents and gun racks of the State militia, as well as other articles of the State that were at the camp when the 5th took possession. The reason for this is believed to be that Col. Whitney wants his regiment ready to move at a minute's notice. When the order comes he wants no unnecessary equipment to look after.

The members of the company take exceptions to an editorial published in a Quincy paper calling the citizens down because they did not give the boys a send-off when they left home. The quiet leaving of the company was according to the wishes of Capt. Kincaide, who took the sensible view. If the citizens want to show their appreciation for the boys there are other more substantial ways of doing it.

The fireworks postponed from the evening of the Fourth were set off last night.

The impression is that the Fifth may take part in the campaign against Porto Rico.

There are no cases at the hospital. The temperature yesterday and today has been delightful for the health of the men.

The camp envies Lieut. Lester Leland of Co. C and Lieut. Francis S. Parker of Co. M, who received appointments yesterday on the staff of Brig.-Gen. William A. Bancroft at Jacksonville. The whole regiment would be pleased to serve under their old colonel.

The post exchange or canteen es tablished by the chaplain is popular with the boys.

Many of the men are assigning their State pay of $7 per month to their dependent relatives.

It is not noticeable yet that Sergt. Crane of the cook squad of Co. K has lost any of his flesh, but it is said to be a fact. It is accounted for in this way. Mr. Crane when a private citizen was not in the habit of arising early in the morning and now it goes against his grain to get up about 4 A. M. His squad are all early risers and they have insisted that Tommy getting up too.

Corp. Hermanson reports the following visitors at camp: Robert Lofgren, Peter Nilson, Oskar Hermanson, Dessen Hermanson, John Alquist, Miss Edith Hensan, John Johnson, Carl Johnson, Gunner Gunnerson, Mrs. Johnson, Joseph Johnson and Albin Johnson of Quincy; Eddy Livendale and Miss Pauline Rohn, Lowell; Miss Johnson and Mrs. Morton, of Dorchester and Mr. Robinson from Watertown.

It was the last mentioned who was anxious to secure Mr. Hermanson as chief engineer of his steam plant, at the Watertown Machine Co., and says he will keep it for him on his return. The Quincy friends were liberally supplied with fruit and other good things which were enjoyed by the boys.

Two civilians were arrested Monday night for drunkenness and locked up in the guard house. One attempted to escape and the other made so much noise that he was taken out under the pump and cooled off. Today there are working under a strong guard cleaning up the camp after last night's celebration.

An effort is being made to organize a band among members of the regiment.

PAY DAY AT FRONT.

Allie Williams Writes of the Attending Evils.

In this week's letter from Allie Williams he gives a vivid description of "pay day" among the soldiers and its attendant evils.

Mobile, Sunday, June 26, 1898.

There have been five thousand soldiers here. They were all right up to last Thursday; then the paymaster came to town and the circus began on his arrival. The boys received pay for five months. On that night those that couldn't get leave from camp took it. About six hundred of them owned the town.

Friday morning the corporals and guard came in from camp, to hound them up and get them back. What could not be loaded into teams were locked up in a big ice house, which stands near the depot.

Friday afternoon the guards started to march about four hundred of the boys to camp, four miles distant. There was a picnic. They tore bricks out of the building and threw them at the guards and quite a number were hurt. The guards prodded them with their bayonets and clubbed them. Word was sent us for assistance. The boat below us and our crew turned out, armed with revolvers and irons. We marched up to the ice house and went in.

In twenty minutes we had a wagon load of the most disorderly shackled. They wouldn't let their men touch them. It was quite exciting for a while but we got them all in line and marched them to camp.

You could hear the people say "Look at the blue jackets! They mean business," and "It takes the blue jacket to handle those fellows," and such remarks.

I went ashore in the evening with the port watch. Five of us went to the theatre, the only one in town, so I was told. It was more of a dive than a theatre. There were ten soldiers there that had not been caught, and the look they gave on discovering us had no love in it. In a short time one of them gave the rebel yell. That is what I was told it was called. I cannot put it on paper. It was the first time I ever heard it. It was a dandy.

They all ran for the rear entrance of the building. At the same time a dozen guards came in the front entrance. They caught two of them and the wagon drove up and they were hustled in. A corporal and six men with a caravan and four mules paraded the street all night after the others.

Saturday morning two of us went up the dock and got three bunches of bananas. I saw a guard and he told us that the boys had all been captured and one regiment was to leave at 10 A. M. They leave here one thousand at a time.

The ladies here are very patriotic. Every time a regiment leaves they are at the depot with refreshments for the men.

It looks very warlike here. I was at the train to see the 1st Texas off. They are a fine looking lot of men. I got a button from one of the boys. It is a star. He gave it to me to remember him. The port watch goes ashore tonight. I am going to church this evening, I think that I hear you say, "that is more than he would do if he was at home."

The starboard watch was ashore last night and they couldn't find a soldier in town, the last one leaves Monday night for Marine, Florida.

The members of Paul Revere Corps 103, met at the residence of Mrs. Laura E. Holt, Tuesday afternoon and formed a local branch of the Volunteers Aid Association, with Mrs. Emma S. Leavitt as president, and Mrs. Laura E. Holt as treasurer. They will commence work at once. All persons interested in the boys at the front are cordially invited to meet with them at Grand Army hall, Friday afternoon, July 8, at two o'clock, and help sew, as the branch is anxious to send as many supplies as possible to head quarters at once. All persons wishing to donate money or supplies can forward the same to the President, Mrs. Leavitt of West Quincy, or to the Treasurer, Mrs. Laura E. Holt, 37 Hancock street. It is earnestly desired by the members of the association, that a general response to their appeal will come at this time, that the good work may be carried on.

TODAY'S COURT.

James E. Holbrook of Braintree was arraigned for assault on his wife, Hattie R. J. Holbrook.

Hattie testified that she had been married about three weeks and if she escaped with a whipping at the hands of her lord and master every other day she was lucky. Tuesday he threw a bag of pearline at her which struck her in the eyes almost blinding her.

Holbrook denied throwing the pearline and says he tossed it to her and it struck the wall and scattered over her.

The court gave Holbrook a month's sojourn in Dedham jail to think the matter over.

The liquors seized from Arlif Miller and Margaret Connell at Weymouth were forfeited.

Many who remember the little Fenley girl who was so severely injured at the railroad disaster in Quincy, a few years ago will be sorry to learn that her brother was accidently killed at Louisville, Ky., by his companion. Mr. Fenley who was slightly in advance received the full charge and died almost instantly.

PEACE WANTED.

Spain, It Is Said, About to Ask for It.

London, July 6.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Telegram says that he is informed that peace will be demanded today.

Notified to Leave.

Suez, July 6— Admiral Camara's Spanish fleet has arrived here and has been notified that they must leave inside of 24 hours without taking coal.

Wounded Coming Home.

Washington, July 6.—A cable received from General Shafter at Santiago reports all quiet. His health is improving but General Wheeler is still quite ill. Two transports, one having on board 300 and the other 325 wounded soldiers, have sailed for the United States.

S. Q. S. C., Rah! Rah! Rah!

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The volunteers have started from that club of great renown,
Its name is known to every one in all parts of the town,
They've gone to join the army, the Spaniards for to drub
For they are the bravest members of the South Quincy Social club.

Dave Smith, he was our president; he did his duty well,
As likewise did our treasurer, the lad they call Fidelle.
They'll fight well for true liberty; Spain's flag in the dust they'll rub.
For they are both good members of the South Quincy Social club.

There is Leo Savoie, another boy, on Liberty street did dwell,
Well know around the Social club as a butty to Fidelle,
He was a bicycle rider, and could give the boys a rub,
He was well known as the "digger" of the South Quincy Social club.

There's Albert Cappacioli, he is a drummer boy,
When the call for volunteers came forth, his heart did fill with joy,
He will fight for his country's flag right well, with his drum sticks he will rub
The Spaniards from little Cuba's soil; hurrah for the Social club!

Next comes John Clark; he's as gay as a lark, he is one of the boys you know
And when he is fighting Spaniards I don't think you'll find him slow;
There is courage written on his face, and him no one can snub,
For he is a red-hot member of the South Quincy Social club.

Last but not least comes Bill Malcolm; we call him "Weary Will,"
Well liked by all the boys around—and the girls they love him still
For freedom's cause, he will fight as well as the rest from around the Hub;
He's a curly headed youngester from the South Quincy Social club.

And now I have told you of them all that have gone away to fight—
I hope that they will all succeed when fighting for the right,
God grant with colors flying when the Spanish they do drub
They'll return again as heros to the South Quincy Social club.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, July 6.—The Journal says: "The fate of Santiago is sealed, its fall is certain, and it is a reasonable public expectation which now looks to see a prompt blow struck next at Porto Rico."

"The victory which Drake and Burleigh and Elizabeth won over Spain," observes The Advertiser, "was a victory for mankind, and not for England only; just as the victory which we are willing now will be not for America only, but for the whole of humanity, Spanish humanity as well as all other."

"To bring this war to an end, in the present unreasonable temper of the Spanish government," The Post holds that "it is necessary to show the Spanish people what their government is hiding from them."

Chance For Heavyweights.

New York, July 6.—Tom Sharkey, through his new manager, Tom O'Rourke, has issued a challenge to any heavyweight pugilist in the world, "Kid" McCoy preferred, to box 20 or more rounds for $5000 a side before the club offering the best inducements. To bind a match he deposited $1000 with a local paper, and the challenge will remain open for 10 days. Sharkey says that he will box McCoy before the Hawthorne club of Buffalo with the understanding that in case of police interference the whole purse shall be paid to Sharkey.

TIMELY RESCUE.

Good Work by Dr. Hayford, Quincy's New Doctor.

As briefly stated in Tuesday's Ledger Miss Grace Lyons of Winchester and Miss Elizabeth Garfield of Somerville, two young ladies who have been visiting at Houghs Neck, had a very narrow escape from drowning while bathing Tuesday near Nut island bar.

Both were nearly exhausted when taken from the water and it was only after an hour of more steady work by Dr. Hayford, who was called, that they were resuscitated.

Miss Garfield had left a large rock to swim ashore, but finding the distance too great, and realizing her perilous position, she screamed for help.

Miss Lyons heroically swam to her assistance, reaching her as she was about to sink. Forgetful of the fact that a drowning person clutches anything, Miss Lyons was unguarded and before she could prevent it, Miss Garfield had clutched her and bore her down. They struggled frantically, one to free herself from the deadly grip of the drowning woman, and the other blindly clutching at anything to save herself.

It was then that J F. Johnson, who heard the screaming, rushed to the beach and putting out in a boat managed to reach them before they sank. He dragged them into the boat and took them ashore apparently lifeless. He did what was possible to resuscitate them until the physician arrived.

The good work of Dr. Hayford was praised by all. The ladies were under water several minutes and only timely and correctly applied aid saved them.

Dr. Hayford reports this afternoon that the young ladies are doing nicely, and that they will be all right in two or three days.

THANKS OF CONGRESS,

Commodore Schley and His Men to Be Complimented.

Their Achievement Classed With That of Dewey.

Sampson In Command, but Not the Real Hero of the Day.

Washington, July 6.—Representative Berry of Kentucky, a member of the house committee on foreign affairs, has introduced the following joint resolution:

"Resolved, that the thanks of congress and of the American people are hereby tendered to Commodore Schley, U. S. N., and the officers and men under his command for their heroic and distinguished conduct in destroying the Spanish fleet in Cuban waters on the 3rd of July last."

COMMODORE SCHLEY.

Mr. Berry, in speaking of his resolution, said: "I propose that the officer to whom the glory is due be recognized. Schley is the real hero of the incident. He and the brave band of officers and men under his immediate directions are the ones who achieved the victory, and all honor should be given them. Sampson commands the fleet in those waters, but it was Commodore Schley who was in command when Cervera and his fleet made the plucky attempt at escape; and it was under Schley that every one of that Spanish fleet met its destruction. Schley and his men have performed a notable feat that will go down in history hand in hand with that during the forcing of Manila harbor by Dewey on May 1. Congress should be prompt in recognizing their services, and there should be no delay in tendering its thanks and those of the country to the real heroes at Santiago."

Emblem of Peace and Freedom.

Washington, July 6.—The debate upon the Hawaiian resolutions was continued in the senate Tuesday. Speaking in response to the contention that annexation was not desired by the majority of the Hawaiian citizens, Mr. Hoar said it was a case where congress would do well to follow the rule of the Quakers, which sought "the solid sense of the meeting" rather than the majority will. The character, intelligence and progress of Hawaii wanted annexation, and their wish should be respected speedily instead of waiting a vain attempt to learn the will of the ignorant natives and Asiatics. Mr. Hoar spoke of the war being the act of a great nation bearing relief to the oppressed people in accord with the spirit of a great nation that was actuated by a broader humanity than that which regards itself only. He said it would be a crime in the present war for the country to go further than the Sandwich islands, a matter substantially decided upon by the people of the United States long before the war was thought remotely probable. "The starry flag has no emblem of dominion," he cried. "In time of peace let it not fly over conquered territory. It is the emblem of peace and freedom."

The house devoted four hours to a debate on the Pacific railroads issue brought out by the senate amendment to the general deficiency bill. The partial conference report on the general deficiency bill covering all items but this was adopted. The debate was led by Messrs. Cannon of Illinois and Powers of Vermont for, and Mr. Maguire of California against the amendment.

A Workman Killed.

Providence, July 6.—Peter Phillips, employed at the works of the William A. Harris Steam Engine company, was oiling the main shaft 12 or 15 feet above the floor in the main shop yesterday, when his clothing was caught about the pulley. Phillips endeavored to free himself, but his clothing held fast, and he was carried about the rod several times. The shafting was close to the roof, and with every revolution Phillips' head and body came in contact with the building frame. He was a single man, 22 years of age.

Eight Were Drowned.

Beverly, Mass., July 6.—After a most thorough search of the ill-fated excursion steamer Surf City, which capsized in the harbor in Monday's squall, a diver reports that there are no more bodies in the wreck. Seven bodies were recovered Monday night, and yesterday morning Mrs. Samuel Emerson of North Beverly succumbed to the effects of the accident. No missing persons have been reported. It seems that the list of those who lost their lives by the foundering of the steamer will be definitely limited to eight.

Hampton Beach Tornado.

Hampton Beach, N. H., July 6.—The body of Mrs. W. K. Parker of Kingston, one of the members of the ill-fated yachting party, was washed ashore yesterday afternoon. It is believed there was additional loss of life, as a bicycle skirt and two ladies' hats washed up on the beach, and it is probable that the clothing was the property of some other party that has found a watery grave. It is believed that there will not be more deaths of those who were in the buildings and were crushed by the falling debris.

THE SCORE.
DEWEY,	1
HOBSON,	12
SAMPSON,	02
SCHLEY,	022
CERVERA,	NIT.

FIRST INNING.

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought,to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

You can buy a Red, White and Blue Tie for 4c. Put the band around your neck and hear it play Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue.

If you want to take it cool get a crash hat for 24c. You can get a Blue Serge Suit (all worsted) for $7.50 and go and catch a high ball with what you save. If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

Your money back with a smile if you wish it.

had run ashore and had hauled down her flag. Captain Cook of the Brooklyn went on board of her, and the commander of the Spanish cruiser came forward to surrender and was taken on board the New York, which came up an hour after the Brooklyn and Oregon had completed the capture of the Cristobal Colon. The latter was not seriously damaged, though she was struck several times by shots from the Brooklyn and Oregon.

During the chase a clever maneuvre of Commodore Schley's in heading due west to Cape Caney, while the Cristobal Colon had taken a more southerly direction with a much greater distance to cover, rendered the Spaniards' escape impossible.

There seems to be no doubt that the Cristobal Colon, and perhaps the other three Spanish armored cruisers, would have escaped had it not been for the prompt action of Commodore Schley. The Brooklyn, his flagship, alone was in a position to attack the Spanish vessels as they left the harbor, and the commodore steamed directly towards them and engaged all four cruisers, inflicting great damage upon them.

Pope and Queen Regent.

London, July 6.—The Rome correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "The pope, it is rumored, has telegraphed the queen regent begging her not to compromise the future of the monarchy by refusing to treat for peace, which, after the heroism displayed by the Spanish navy, could not be other than honorable.

Consulted With His Officers.

Kingston, Jam., July 6.—Admiral Cervera held a consultation with his officers before sailing out of the harbor of Santiago, and by a small majority the move was agreed upon. The minority said that destruction was sure, as many of the firemen had mutinied and the best men in the fleet were worn out by serving the guns in the shore batteries. Early on the morning of the sortie careful observations were made of the sea east and west. Admiral Cervera decided upon taking the westward course, with Manzanillo, Cienfuegos, or, if possible, Havana, the port to be reached. He would have gone east but for the sighting of a large transport fleet off Siboney and the assurance that a convoy of war vessels was still with the transports.

As a matter of fact there is no war vessel larger than a converted yacht except the New York that could have obstructed Admiral Cervera's escape eastward. Naval men here are sure that the Spanish vessels could have disabled or sunk the New York and escaped had the eastward course been chosen.

Feeding the Cubans.

Washington, July 6.—The plan of feeding the starving Cubans is proceeding systematically, despite the attention which the authorities are obliged to give to the war. These plans are being carried out by the commissary department of the army. Large consignments of food are being loaded at New York. These will be made up into rations and distributed over a wide territory to the Cubans. This is but one of several consignments, as the work of relief has been going on for several months, hundreds of thousands of rations having been distributed. The supplies will now include refrigerated and cold storage beef for Cuban troops and the reconcentrados.

Dash and Bravery of Officers.

Washington, July 6.—Considerable comment has been caused among the officials of the war department by the great loss of American officers in the two days of fighting at Santiago. Official reports thus far received indicate that 58 officers were either killed or wounded, and the list is only partial. Adjutant General Corbin said yesterday that a finer lot of officers than was with General Shafter's corps in Cuba never wore shoulder straps. They were brave, aggressive and brilliant. General Corbin did not forget the enlisted men in his comment, saying that the great majority of Shafter's force was the pick of the regular army, strong, resolute, admirably disciplined and thoroughly enthusiastic and patriotic.

The heavy loss of officers is due to their dash and bravery. Instance after instance has been disclosed of officers springing in front of their commands and leading them in brilliant sorties against the enemy. Naturally the Spanish sharpshooters singled out the officers as targets.

A Pertinent Inquiry.

Paris, July 6.—The Times yesterday published an article headed "Peace is necessary," during the course of which it said: "Perhaps the only service which Sagasta can now render to Spain, his party, liberalism and himself is to open negotiations for peace. There has been enough bloodshed, battles and destruction of ships, forts and lives. If Spain's honor is not satisfied when, in the name of heaven, will it be?"

To Reinforce Shafter.

Washington, July 6.—The second brigade, first division of the Second army corps, broke camp at Camp Alger yesterday afternoon and started on its journey to Santiago to reinforce General Shafter's army. The brigade is composed of the Eighth Ohio, Sixth Illinois and Sixth Massachusetts, General Garretson commanding. The Sixth Massachusetts was the first to get away, going aboard the cars at Dun Loring and leaving for Charleston shortly after 10 o'clock. The other regiments departed before daybreak.

Superfluous baggage was left behind and everything that could be spared was discarded. Only six horses were allowed to a regiment. The brigade is in fine condition, and the men are enthusiastic and eager to reach the seat of war before the end of the Santiago campaign. It is expected to have the troops off Santiago Sunday. When the soldiers left Camp Alger they were given a royal sendoff by the men left behind.

Killed For Resisting.

Pittsfield, Ills., July 6.—City Marshal Douglass, who had been ordered to arrest Henry Landrum at Hulls, shot and killed the latter when he resisted. In opposing the marshal, Landrum fired several shots, two of which wounded members of the city council.

WON EASILY.

The Bostons Had No Difficulty In Defeating the Giants.

New York, July 6.—"Can't play marbles; just about good enough for the Atlantic league," and other expressions indicative of soreness of spirit, were used by dejected cranks at the polo grounds yesterday afternoon. The Bostons had just polished off the giants for the third successive game, and the New Yorks had just added another to their large collection of defeats. The champions won without exerting themselves. The giants were defeated because Pitcher Klobedanz politely, but firmly, refused to let them hit the ball. Four widely scattered hits were all that they could muster, and two of these did not get out of the diamond. Score:

The Baltimores batted more fortunately and again defeated the Phillies, 7 to 4.

Timely hits yesterday by Anderson and McGuire won the game for the Washingtons from the Brooklyns, 4 to 2.

The Clevelands could not hit Clarke of the Chicagos at the right time, while the Illinois team bunched hits and stole bases at will. Score: 5 to 4.

The Pittsburgs began the game with the St. Louis team with a vigor that indicated a severe drubbing for the Missouri players, making four runs, with Carsey in the box, in the first inning. This they increased to 8 before the close. The Hursts could only score twice.

The Providences went into the game against the Springfields with the old spirit and did a great lot of slugging, which, with snappier fielding and hustling, broke the string of victories the Springfields have been making. Score: 17 to 9.

Umpire O'Loughlin was escorted from the ball park in Syracuse by policemen, followed by a mob which was ready to wreak vengeance for his decisions during the game. What little chance the Syracuses had of winning was destroyed by O'Loughlin's work. In the ninth the crowd bombarded the umpire with eggs, pieces of bread and bottles.

The Pawtuckets visited Newport yesterday to cross bats with the team in that city, and did not learn of the disbandment of that club until they arrived there. The managers of the Pawtuckets have communicated with the Worcester and Fall River teams, and an understanding has been reached that the three clubs will continue, and it is probable that the Tauntons will also remain in the league. The Brocktons have quit.

Caused by a Cigaret.

St. Louis, July 6.—Fire broke out yesterday in the stable of Dr. Berneys at the fair grounds just as the first race was being called, and within an hour five valuable horses and six stables had been consumed and seven other stables badly damaged.

Spectators and trackmen rushed to Dr. Berneys' stable and did what they could with the fair grounds hose, but the two streams were ineffectual, and the wind spread the fire rapidly. The horses were cut loose from all the stables and turned into the field of the track where a crowd of spectators had collected. The frightened animals stampeded, and it was by the merest chance the crowd was not run over.

A general alarm was turned in and by the time the department arrived six stables had burned. Dr. Berneys lost Equitome, Anonyma and Rey Del Corea, and Clem Creveling lost Abe Fashion and Ferd Owen. Several horses received injuries in the stampede. Two firemen were injured and conveyed to the hospital. The fire is supposed to have been of cigaret origin. The loss is not estimated.

Scurvy In Dawson.

Vancouver, B. C., July 6.—There is a great deal of sickness in Dawson, the death rate being three to four daily. Typhoid, pneumonia and scurvy are the prevailing ailments. The hospital and church were burned June 4.

It is reported that of 16,000 claims recorded only about 200 are on a paying basis. It is estimated that from $10,000,000 to $40,000,000 will come out of the country this spring. A good part of this will be composed of last year's output. Outcoming miners say that new miners will have to go to entirely new grounds for diggings.

Was Financially Embarrassed.

Gloucester, July 6.—Howard Parsons found the body of a man on the rocks on the easterly side of Salt Island yesterday. It was brought to this city, where it was identified as that of Gaetane Saini, a grocer of this city, who had recently returned from a visit to Italy. He had been missing for two weeks. It was probably a case of suicide, as it is stated he was financially embarrassed. He was formerly a steward in a Boston hotel.

Ireland's Taxation System.

London, July 6.—In the house of commons last evening after a two nights' debate the resolution of John Redmond (Parnellite), demanding a redress of the disproportionate taxation system in Ireland, was rejected by a vote of 286 to 144. The minority included the Liberal leaders and Rear Admiral Beresford, Lieutenant Colonel Saunderson, H. C. Plunkett and other Unionists.

Steamers Collide, With Fearful Results.

HUNDREDS ARE LOST.

Disaster Without a Parallel In Marine Annals.

SAILORS BECAME DEMONS.

Murdered the Helpless to Save Their Own Carcasses.

Halifax, July 7.—Five hundred and forty-nine men, women and children, according to the awful stories of the survivors, many of them deliberately murdered, is the heartbreaking record of the most terrible marine disaster of modern times.

The victims were the passengers and part of the crew of the French line steamer La Bourgogne, bound from New York, July 2, for Havre, with 727 souls on board, which was in collision and sunk during a dense fog, Monday morning at 5 o'clock, 60 miles south of Sable island, with the British sailing ship Cromartyshire.

The 178 survivors, most of whom were members of the crew, the remainder being second and third class passengers, were brought to this port by the Cromartyshire in tow of the Allan line steamship Grecian. Only one woman, Mrs. A. D. Lacasse of Plainfield, N. J., out of 125 on board, was saved.

The disaster occurred at 5 o'clock in the morning, about 60 miles south of Sable island, which lies nearly 100 miles off this port. The Bourgogne had left New York for Havre on the previous Saturday, while the Cromartyshire was on her way over from Glasgow with a crew of 21 men. Although the transatlantic steamers all have a definite course, the Bourgogne was to all accounts 40 miles or more to the north of the steamer lanes.

The fog, as is usual at this time of the year, was very dense, and the big ship was sailing along with reduced canvas and blowing her foghorn. Suddenly out of the fog rushed a steamer, and in a moment there was a fearful crash, the iron prow of the ship plunging into the port side of the steamer just under the bridge. The blow was a terrific one and tore a great hole in the steamer, while the entire bow of the ship was demolished. The steamer plunged on into the fog again, her whistle crying for help and her rockets signalling her dire distress.

The Cromartyshire was rounded to, and her master, Captain Henderson, was considerably relieved in finding that she was in no danger of sinking. Off to the eastward could be heard the hoarse call of the steamer, and as the fog began to lift all the boats on the ship were launched. Half an hour after the collision occurred the misty curtain went up, giving a clear view for miles, and then it was that those on the Cromartyshire saw the fearful struggle for life.

On board the Bourgogne the collision had come so suddenly and at such a time in the morning that few besides her crew were on deck, but the shock roused nearly everyone, and within a few minutes the decks were crowded with struggling, terrified passengers. At first it seemed as if there was some attempt at discipline. A few of the boats were swung off and some of the passengers allowed to get into them; but as the steamer began to settle and list to port, the officers lost control of the crew, and what was probably a panic ensued. Passengers and crew fought for the boats and liferafts, and it was a fight to death in itself, while death in the waters stared everyone in the face. The strong battered down the weak, the women and children being pushed far away from any hope of rescue. Fists, oars and even knives were used by some of the demons to keep their places. The officers seemed to have been powerless before their own men, and only four were saved.

The fight for life did not last long, for in a little more than half an hour the Bourgogne gave a long lurch to port and went down. As the ship sank beneath the surface the vortex of the waters sucked down everything on the surface within a certain radius. A couple of minutes later, when the suction ceased, those still alive saw about 200 bodies come up out of the water with a rush as if the sea were giving up the dead after having swallowed the ship. But the struggle for life still continued after the ship went down. Hundreds still floated about, grasping at rafts, boats, and wreckage in frantic endeavors to keep above water. Even then many of those in the boats, if the stories are to be believed, showed their brutality by beating off many of those who attempted to climb aboard.

By this time the small boats of the Cromartyshire had come up, and the work of rescue begun. The crew of the ship worked heroically and saved everyone who had managed to keep above water; but even then, scores fell away from boats, rafts and wreckage exhausted and were drowned. It was all over in an hour, although for some time after great pieces of wreckage came shooting up from the bottom, marking the spot where the great liner had gone down.

But little attempt was made to recover the bodies of any of the ill-fated passengers or crew, and the battered hulk at the bottom of the ocean will probably be forever their tomb. Along in the afternoon the steamer Grecian was sighted coming from the westward, and a few hours after the Cromartyshire was taken in tow and arrived here yesterday.

The log of the Cromartyshire, signed by Captain Henderson, is as follows:

On July 4, at 5 a. m., dense fog, position of ship 60 miles south of Sable Island, ship in wind on the port tack heading about W. N. W., though under reduced canvas, going about four or knots every hour. Our fog horn was being kept going regularly every minute. At that time heard steamer's whistle on our weather side or port beam, which seemed to be nearing very fast. We blew our horn and were answered by steamer's whistle, when all of a sudden she loomed through the fog on our port bow and crashed into us, going at a terrific speed. Our foretopmast and main topgallant mast came down, bringing yards and everything attached.

I immediately ordered the boats out and went to examine the damage. I found that our bows were completely cut off and the plates twisted into every conceivable shape. The other ship disappeared through the fog. However, our ship was floating on her collision bulkhead, so there seemed no immediate danger of her sinking. We set to work immediately to clear the wreckage and also to ship our starboard anchor, which was hanging over the starboard bow and in danger of punching holes in the bow. We heard a steamer blowing her whistle on coming back and we answered with our fog horn. The steeamer then threw up a rocket and fired a shot. We also threw up some rockets and fired several shots, but we neither saw nor heard anything more of the steamer.

Shortly after, or about 5.30 a. m., the fog lifted somewhat and we saw two boats pulling toward us with the French flag flying. We signalled them to come alongside, and found that the steamer was the La Bourgogne, from New York for Havre, and that she had gone down. We laid to all day and received on board about 200 survivors from amongst the passengers and crew, reported to be in all about 600. Several of the passengers were on life rafts without oars, and I called for volunteers from among my crew and the surviving French seamen to bring those rafts alongside of the ship. Some of the passengers and seamen from the sunken steamer assisted us, and we jettisoned some 30 tons of cargo from our forehold in order to lighten the ship.

At about 3 p. m. another steamer hove in sight bound westward. We put up our signal "N. C.," "Want assistance." Shortly after a steamer bore down towards us. She proved to be the Grecian, bound from Glasgow to New York. The captain of the Grecian agreed to take the passengers on board, and also agreed to tow my ship to Halifax. Owing to the condition of my ship I accepted the offer, and we proceeded at once to tranship the passengers and get ready our tow line.

At 6 p. m. we had made a connection and proceeded in tow of the Grecian towards Halifax, having put a sail over the broken bow to take part of the strain off the collision bulkhead. There was at that time 14 feet of water in the forepeak.

When Mehelini Secondo got on deck he found a raft with five men on it. The raft, however, was tied and chained fast to the deck, and no sailors were near to let it loose. None of the five men had knives. The ship sank rapidly, and

OUR WOUNDED HEROES

All Doing Well In the Hospitals at Key West.

Victims Intensely Hungry For More Fighting.

Dramatic Incident of Bravery During Friday's Fighting.

Key West, July 7.—The 324 wounded heroes of Santiago brought here by the Iroquois are doing well and none is in danger. They are distributed between the marine and convent hospitals and an unused cigar factory which had been previously fitted out for such purposes. All officers and some of the men are quartered at the convent hospital, where the nuns are doing fine service.

News of her arrival had brought to the dock a motley crowd of curiosity seekers, mostly Cubans. There was not a sign of enthusiasm, even among those very persons for whom the disabled soldiers had received their hurts, not a cheer nor a handclap. There was no gangplank, and the wounded men were obliged to clamber down the companion ladders as best they could to get ashore.

All the ambulances in the town had been brought into service, but despite their frequent and hurried trips, filled to the last inch, the provision was entirely inadequate. In consequence many of the men had to walk four blocks to the car line, on which they were jolted to the hospitals at the other end of the town.

The sight of the stalwart fellows, blacked by the tropical sun, bruised and scratched by Cuban jungles and wrapped in bandages which covered, but did not conceal, their wounds, as they shambled and struggled along the roads, had in it much of pathos. It was 11 o'clock before the last of those able to take their feet had been safely disembarked. Most of these suffer from rifle shot wounds in the arms or hands. About 35 others, who are injured in the lower parts of their bodies, had to be carried off on stretchers. Fifteen who are suffering from a mild attack of measles were left on board the steamer and will probably be taken back to Cuba when the Iroquois returns.

Most of the men laugh at their wounds. They want to go back, for they have tasted real fighting and are hungry for more. It was learned that as they fell in the firing lines at Santiago the corporals hustled them to the rear; but in nearly every case the moment makeshift bandages were swathed about their wounds they pushed again to the front, until it eventually became necessary to strip them of their cartridge belts.

All are loud in their praise of the fighting qualities of the Spanish troops, but say their losses must be enormous. Of our own dead and wounded extravagant figures are given by many, but wiser heads place the figures for the two days' fighting at between 1200 and 1500, perhaps 300 of whom were killed.

Question of Peace.

Madrid, July, 7.—Silvela, the conservative leader, declares that the present situation is more favorable to peace than to war, but the government alone can judge of what ought to be done under the circumstances, and he will support the government in any determination it may reach.

The Republicans say the country is unable to withstand such misfortunes and that the time has come for a general settlement. The military party favors a continuance of the war, and military men say they think Spain could never have expected a naval victory, and that so long as she does not meet with disaster ashore she ought not to sue for peace. The Carlists are anxious for the war to continue.

The government views are believed to differ. The premier says he is awaiting details of recent events from official Spanish sources, adding that he will see the effect which the loss of the Spanish squadron has upon Spain before deciding upon his course.

Bay State Heroes.

Kingston, July 7.—General Lawton, commanding the Second division of the American army before Santiago, has forwarded his report of the casualties in his division during the three days' fighting before Santiago. It shows the following casualties in the Second Massachusetts: Killed—Lieutenant Charles H. Field, Corporal Charles Meyer, Privates Foley, Spake, Mede, Pazzur, Packard, Richmond, Morley and Brooks.

Wounded—Captain W. H. Warrener, Lieutenants D. J. Moynihan and Oscar D. Hapgood, Corporals Colte, Dunn, Lathrop, Hoadley, Simons and Richardson, Sergeants Dowho and Marr, Privates Maymuller, O'Neil, Cook, Glynn, Mills, O'Mally, Lodgers, Hillman, McDonald, Muller, Ashe, Baroneski, McGrath, Cunning, Cusick, Hanna, Nisteihut, Purty, Niher, Cartoval, Gratt, King, McIntosh, Wilson, Dutnelly, Graham, Pearson, Connor, Barle, Thible, Haschling, Forriere, Malone, Weyrick, Bordan, Rose, Dismour, Dugas, Sleight, Buston, Bristin, Ditear, Hastings, Nolan, Willard, Moss, Kent, Ruesman, Marble, Ross, Bartman, Cornell, Reviere, Louvis, Schills and Caney.

Fourth Expedition.

Washington, July 7.—Preparations for the fourth expedition to the Philippines are under way at the war department. It was scheduled to leave sometime between the sixth and tenth of July, but it is now realized that this is impracticable unless a much smaller array of transports is started than was at first contemplated. Approximately 12,000 men remain at San Francisco awaiting transportation, and a large number of

Good Afternoon.

Every now and then a story comes up from the ocean, so replete with horror that it causes a shudder throughout the civilized world. One can hardly picture to himself the dreadful scene which is presented, when a great passenger steamer like the La Bourgogne rushing like an arrow through the fog, is smitten unto death and immediately goes down with nearly all its freight of human lives. The utter helplessness of the victims, the hopeless struggle for life, the wild despairing cry for help; the mere thought of such a disaster makes the blood creep and disposes one to feel well contented with life at home and on the land. By this single accident, more lives were lost than the war has thus far cost us. But notwithstanding some occasional disasters of this kind, ocean travelling is the safest in the world. And when we think how the ocean is covered with ships today, and the perils of fog and storm they necessarily encounter, it is a matter of wonder and gratitude that such disasters are comparatively so few.

The Journal puts it very forcibly today, and yet we confess it is necessary, when it prints the following editorial under the caption "Workers and Drones:"

"When this war is over, are you not going to feel a little bit chagrined if you have taken no part in it, but merely have read of it and have not lifted your finger to help in any way? If you are of the same mind as William Lloyd Garrison, you will not be sorry for your inaction. But if you love your country, and have enough of the milk of human kindness within you to make you proud of the men who are fighting the nation's battles, you may live to regret that you let the opportunity to help pass unaccepted.

"In ten or fifteen years men and women now too young to know or care, may ask you what you did in time of war. Is it going to satisfy your pride to reply that you read the papers, did not sympathize much in the cause, and consequently waited without doing anything until the cruel war was over? Would you not face such a question with less uneasiness if you had done something to help?

"How can the individual help? He can send the Volunteer Aid Association any sum from $10,000 to 10 cents. Any amount is welcome. Any amount will do some good. Any amount will make the giver feel better. He who helps in relieving the suffering and discomforts of our soldiers and sailors is taking a part in the war. One dollar sent to Henry L. Higginson, 44 State street, marks a man as a more loyal citizen than several hours spent in criticism of the Government and boastful assertions of what he would do if in command. Massachusetts has a chance to stand first among States in helping the soldiers. It is a noble work and the Journal wants to see hundred of thousands interested in it. Are you a worker or a drone?"

☞ Quincy people off for a few weeks during the summer should order the Ledger sent to them daily. Many do this and find it a most welcome daily visitor, in fact almost indispensable.

It is said that of the "voice" of an elephant were as loud in proportion as that of a nightingale, his trumpeting could be heard around the world.

A strange item in the Bishop Burton church accounts for last year is: "To killing worms in the bust of John Wesley, 15 shillings."

ANOTHER PURSE.

Being Raised for the Members of Company K.

Hon. William A. Hodges and Mr. George F. Wilson of this city were among the visitors at Camp Dalton on Wednesday and they report everything in apple-pie order. All the boys appear contented and are anxious to see service. Observations and inquiries among the different companies showed that most of them have a fund subscribed by friends at home which they find a great help in preparing for the front and the comforts at camp. The fund of one company amounts to nearly $1000. Co. K from which such excellent reports come as to proficiency, good conduct, and soldierly appearance is almost alone in having no fund. It was further learned that some of the members needed shoes, shirts, stockings, etc.

With all this information, prompt action has been taken. Mr. Wilson has personally circulated today a subscription paper headed as follows:

"Whereas, in the hurry of enlistment of men for Army of the United States it is impossible in the regular course of procedure for such men to be provided with all the comforts and necessities they may need, and whereas the men of Co. K of the Fifth Massachusetts Volunteers now in service of the said United States, are now in need of assistance and are unprovided for, while others are enjoying the luxuries of a generous public; Now we, the undersigned conscious of our obligations, do hereby contribute the sums set against our names below for the benefit of Co. K, as herebefore mentioned for the purpose of supplying them with such necessaries as they need and desire, while engaged in the noble cause of freedom and justice for an abused and suffering people dwelling near our shores."

Quincy merchants and others have responded promptly and liberally. Mr. Wilson says he is not looking for large sums but hopes to make it a popular movement in which small contributions will aggregate several hundred dollars. Subscriptions may be left at the store of G. F. Wilson & Co. or with Frank F. Prescott at the Ledger office, and will be acknowledged every few days.

W. Y. C. Ladies' Day.

Ladies' day will be observed Saturday by the Wollaston Yacht club, when the customary programme of sailing, dancing and general social time will be carried out. Light refreshments will be served both afternoon and evening. Music by William Wilson. Commodore Burgess hopes to see all the boats in line on this occasion.

Purse for Co. K.

Adams Chapter and Company K of the 5th Regiment have always been most friendly. Co. K assisted the Chapter on June 17, 1896, when the Abigail Adams cairn was erected on Penn's hill and also at the grand historical pageant given this spring at Music hall. Members of Adams Chapter are interesting themselves to give the company something substantial when they go to the front. Contributions of money be it ever so large or small will be thankfully received by Miss Prescott at the Ledger office. Daughters and those interested in the daughters and Company K are invited to contribute their mite.

Double Wedding.

A double wedding ceremony was performed in the First Baptist church at West Rutand, Vt., on the evening of July 5. The contracting parties were Mr. Archie M. Henderson, formerly of Quincy and Miss Bulah R. Kimberly of West Rutland, Vt., also Mr. Alexander Henderson and Miss Eliza D. Hutchison, both of Quincy. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and a large assembly of invited guests witnessed the ceremony. The service was performed by the brother-in-law of the grooms, Rev. George H. Watt.

Officer Ferguson arrested Edward Durant, Wednesday, and locked him up on the charge of vagrancy. Durant was going from store to store in the centre asking questions as to who owned certain stores and acting in a suspicious manner. When questioned by the officer he could give no satisfactory account of himself. When arraigned in court, the case was continued to give the officers time to look him up.

A new balloon has been purchased for the ascensions at New Downer Landing. It will arrive today and the ascensions will be made on Friday and Saturday. The hour for the entertainment by the colored jubilee singers in the evening has been changed from 7.30 to 8 o'clock in order to accommodate those who cannot arrive until late.

CERVERA,	NIT.

FIRST INNING.

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought, to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

PAUL REVERE OF 1898.

How Otto von Hauck Is Emulating the Hero on His Bicycle.

Otto von Hauck is the Paul Revere of the German-American regiment of Chicago. Emulating the hero who spread the Revolutionary slogan through Middlesex county, Mass., in 1775, Von Hauck mounted his bicycle and sped away early the other morning. His idea is to stop at every Illinois village and farm to recruit for the German regiment, which claims to be the only exclusively Teutonic organization in America.

Von Hauck is a South Sider and a private in Colonel Emil Bloch's provisional regiment of German turners. When he learned that it was desired that the Germans of the country districts throughout the state be enlisted, he applied to the commanding officer for a detail as itinerant recruiting officer. His first report of progress arrived recently at the regimental headquarters, 79 South Clark street. It was the result of the first day's work. The letter was mailed at Naperville and contained the names of ten recruits.

So many applications are coming in from other states that it is possible that Germans who are not residents of Illinois will be admitted. Twelve men from Millard, Neb., recently signified their willingness to join the ranks. One hundred and fifty recruits have been added to the 800 men already on the muster rolls during the last few days. A. Reuber of Peoria informs the colonel that he is now recruiting a company in his town. Colonel Bloch has received a number of applications from young Germans of good families in the United States who were formerly officers in the German army and desire to take commissions in the German provisional regiment.—Chicago Record.

APPEAL FROM CAMP.

Co. K Members Rather Surprised at Indifference at Home.

Camp Dalton,
July 6, 1898.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Since arriving here an under current has started and is fast becoming strong concerning the absence of aid from Quincy and adjoining towns. An article in Tuesdays' paper stated there was no one in actual need. Since then a canvass has been made and several of the new members are found to be without sufficient under clothing, blue shirts and shoes. Two of them wear slippers which are not very good to walk a fast march through rain and shine. The government supplies such articles and has already supplied us faster than any other regiment, but these small articles which are the most necessary for comfort are the last things to be furnished.

There is no one wailing but as other towns have done so much it is reasonable that Co. K should look to Quincy, Braintree and adjoining towns for contributions.

Several cities have gone so far as to pass acts through their councils which give their men from six to as high as ten dollars a month.

The majority of the Co. K men have left comfortable homes and good paying positions to take up arms for the country. The pay is a mere pittance and I think it is the duty of the people to see that they are provided with as much comfort as possible. It is not play standing the hardships of a soldier's life, and no one who has lived as we will would begrudge us anything. It is certain that under these circumstances no one enlisted for fun. It is patriotism and love of country which has brought us together.

It is not right for Quincy to do it all. The adjoining towns are all represented and should all work together. A committee of representative persons should be appointed and the work begun in earnest. Capt. Kincaide could be interviewed and a list of articles needed would be furnished if the committee wished to purchase them. Otherwise the money could be sent to Capt. Kincaide and then turned over to the treasurer of the company and would be used where it was most needed.

When the first call for men came Braintree furnished the original members with shoes, socks and shirts, and Quincy furnished blankets. But the new members are the needy ones. Weymouth is represented by seven men and they were all supplied with shirts, socks, shoes, under clothing, belts and handkerchiefs.

The prospects are that we will be away from here before the 11th and we may get orders to leave at any time. Now is the time to do anything if it is to be done. There are plenty of patriotic people in our towns who would give if they were approached. What has become of the honorary members?

Capt. Kincaide did not want a send off when his company left' as he thought the money spent could be better spent later. Co. K and the 5th intend that the people shall be proud of them when they get to the front.

Five dollars was received by the captain this morning from a man in Weymouth. Where is Randolph, Canton, Milton, Scituate, Weymouth, Braintree and Quincy? Who will start this noble idea.

A Co. K Member.

THE OREGON'S WAR RUSES.

Gunner White Describes Two Experiences of His Ship In Brazilian Waters.

Gunner Robert W. White of the Oregon writes to his mother in Oakland, Cal., giving some interesting inside history of that ship's experiences in Brazil. The letter was dated at Bahia. He says in part:

"When we left Rio, we had to leave the Nictheroy. The Marietta steamed out shortly after us and to our surprise did not bring the Nictheroy with her. As she is a sister ship of the Wheeling, our captain ordered her to paint her smokestack black—previous to this it was yellow—go into Rio, report as the Wheeling and inquire for the Nictheroy. She completely fooled the natives, and came steaming out next day with the Nictheroy."

Again, in the letter White says:

"We called at Bahia to give our ship a final cleaning for battle. We gave out that one of our shafts was broken so as to get Bahia protection until we were ready to move. An official came aboard to see if the shaft was really broken, but the captain had given orders to heat up the shaftroom so hot that no one could stay there more than a minute. The official was conducted below, but soon came up dripping with perspiration. Rather than go down again he took our word about the broken shaft, and so we staid at Bahia as long as we pleased."—New York Sun.

CLEANING CARPETS.

How to Rejuvenate Them According to British Factory Methods.

The method employed in British factories for cleaning velvet, moquette, Aubisson, etc., carpets is the simplest, as to means, conceivable. It requires great faithfulness; but, given a good carpet to start with, if done every six months it should preserve the fabric in good order for 25 years.

By this passing of a quarter of a century the colors will be faded, but they will have faded so beautifully as to be more grateful to the eye and better than ever fulfill the carpet's mission, which is to be a background to the furniture.

Have two large pans of water, one clear and tepid and the other hot and soapy, made so by shaving "white curd" soap, say two ounces of soap to two gallons of water. Have plenty of perfectly clean, white cotton rags, free from thread ends and lint.

Take a square of the carpet at one time and wash the surface quickly with a clean rag and the soapy water. Take up as much of the soiled water as possible. Then wring out this cloth into a third pan of tepid water. Take the other pan of tepid water and wipe the soaped and clean surface well, being careful as possible to rub over, not rub in. Then wipe this with clean cloths until as dry as reasonable in so short a time. Proceed with the rest of the carpet until finished, guarding against any shadowy boundary lines by going back of each square as you continue. Change the water at every third or fourth square—more often if the carpet needs it.—San Francisco Examiner.

How to Make Cough Mixture.

Get three large, fresh lemons and boil them in already boiling water for about seven minutes. Then, when tender, slice them very thin, put the slices in a bowl together with a pound of best moist sugar and set the bowl on the stove for some hours, so that the contents may almost be said to have distilled. Then take the bowl from the fire and let the contents cool for half an hour. Lastly, stir in a tablespoonful of oil of sweet almonds and give a teaspoonful of the mixture at a time when the throat is irritated.

How to Make Giblet Soup.

Giblets from two chickens, or giblets from one chicken and one-half pound of lean beef; three pints cold water, one pint milk, two tablespoonfuls flour, one-half tablespoonful butter, one small onion, one tomato, one egg, salt and pepper, sprig of parsley, one bay leaf.

Cleanse the giblets, cut up the beef, if it is used, and skin and chop up the onion and tomato. Put all into the stewpan with the cold water. Let stand for about half an hour in a cold place and then put over the fire and simmer gently until the giblets are very tender. Take out the giblets and meat, throwing away the latter, and chop the giblets to a fine mince. Then put them back into the water, which should be re-enforced with boiling water so as to keep it to original quantity. Add flour and butter, etc.

they were all precipitated into the water. He was in the water 20 minutes and alone, the other five sinking before his eyes. He came across a boat which he tried to get into. He eventually succeeded, but not before a desperate fight with her crew. He was battered with oars and shoved away with boathooks. He managed to seize an oar, however, and pulled himself to the boat and climbed in.

August Pourgi was in the water about half an hour, and attempted to get into a boat. He was seized when he managed to get half in and thrown back into the water. Again he tried to enter the boat, but the inhuman savages who manned it were determined to keep him out. He managed at last to get in and to stay in. Clinging to the life line of a boat not far away he saw his mother, and he was forced to watch a man shove her into the ocean from which she never appeared. He says the man was saved, and he is almost sure he can recognize him, though he does not know the man's name.

Fred Niffler was the most jovial and contented of all the unfortunate passengers. He lost all his money and clothes with the exception of a pair of trousers and a shirt, but he laughed, and now and again cursed the fiendish French sailors with passionate earnestness. He went to bed the night before the collision and slept well. He never heard a sound, but woke in the morning the same as he would any other morning. He went on deck and saw the splinters. He asked the officer on the watch what was up. The officer replied that it was all right; that the ship would not go down. Niffler, however, got into a lifeboat with others and remained there until he reached the water, when he thought it was time to leave. None of the sailors ever attempted to let the boat loose. He swam for a long time before he was picked up. He saw an Englishman attempt to get into the boat, but the men in the boat, who were sailors of the Bourgogne, hit him over the head with the butt end of the oar. He fell back and sank out of sight.

Patrick McKeown of Wilmington, Del., was on his way to Paris to turn out leather for a firm there. He was more fortunate than most of his fellow passengers, and got on a raft when the Bourgogne was sinking. He was the only passenger who could have walked through the streets of Halifax without attracting attention. One of the worst sights, he said, he ever saw was the murder of an American with whom he had become acquainted on board the steamer. This man, whose name he cannot recall, was from Philadelphia, where he has a wife and family. The Philadelphian was trying to get on a raft not far distant from the one McKeown was on. A French sailor grabbed half an oar and beat him three times over the forehead. The murdered man was on his way to Paris to see a sister. From Paris he intended to go to Ireland to see his father and mother.

Strangely enough, a Mr. Lacasse is the only man of the saloon and cabin passengers who survives, while his wife is the only woman of 200 not only of the first saloon cabin but of the whole ship who escaped. Mrs. Lacasse was aroused from her berth by her husband, who was on deck at the time of the collision. She threw about her the first article of clothing she could secure and reached the deck of the listing steamship, to find herself one of many half-dressed people who congregated about the boats. She saw the captain of the steamer on the bridge and some of the officers at other points, endeavoring to direct the efforts of the crew to launch the boats. There was little response to the orders of the officers. The crew seemed paralyzed to act. Matters were quiet and there was no panic at first. Golden moments slipped away, and the decks were becoming more and more crowded with frightened people, emerging from cabins and companionways. The steamer was listing and settling, and then a wild fear seized on the throng, and the people lost their reason and really went mad. Mrs. Lacasse was separated from her husband in the scramble, and the steamer listed so badly that she slid down the declivity of the deck and into the water. She had taken the precaution, at her husband's direction, to put on a life belt before leaving her stateroom, and shortly after being thrown into the sea was seized by the arm and drawn upon the life raft. Her savior was her husband. A moment later the ill-fated steamer disappeared, and a whirlpool encircled the spot where the noble craft had been. Everybody around the edge of the vortex was drawn in, and the unfortunates disappeared in twos and threes with dis-disappeared in twos and threes with des-on the edge of the maelstrom, but something struck her and threw her outside the dangerous whirlpool, and the next she knew she was on the liferaft. A boat containing 40 women was capsized, and all went down in the whirlpool. There was not one man in this boat, and it was left fast to the davits. Some of the women were trying to cut the ropes when the steamer careened deeper and capsized the boat. Mrs. Lacasse says a moment after the steamer was engulfed men, women and children rose on every hand from the whirlpool, and the sight of the faces and the arms and shrieks was so terrible that she will remember them to her dying day.

Several French priests stood on the deck during the sinking of the steamer without making an effort to save themselves and gave absolution to a large number of passengers. There are no survivors who saved more than enough clothing to cover their nakedness. Nearly all lost several years' savings, and they were mostly working people bound home to European lands. Consul Francklyn has information that one smokestack of the steamer fell across a boat and smashed it as it was being launched. There were about 40 persons in the boat. McKeown heard of one woman having had her throat cut and being thrown out of the boat to lighten it. He could not verify the story. As one boat was launched men pushed the women and children aside, and the captain threatened to fire on them if they did not desist. When the steamer was about to take her final plunge the captain blew the steam whistle in goodbye to the boats, and he was shortly engulfed.

The surviving passengers and seamen were embarked last night for Boston on the Halifax and will arrive there Friday morning at daybreak. Large crowds saw them off, and threatening looks were cast upon the seamen on account of the wild stories prevalent of women having been tossed overboard from the boats and men beaten off the liferafts. A rumor was in circulation that some of the crew would be arrested on arrival at Boston. The consul reports that one boat left La Bourgogne with only 12 Austrians in it, who refused to allow any more in the boat, although it could accommodate 50 easily. These Austrians were a shipwrecked crew bound for home.

The La Bourgogne was a four-masted steel steamer of 7395 tons gross. She was built in 1886, and owned by the Transatlantique Generale Compagnie of Havre, France. Her dimensions were as follows: Length, 508 feet; breadth of beam, 52 feet; depth of hold, 38 feet. Her normal horsepower was 8000.

The Cromartyshire is an iron ship of 1462 tons net. She is 20 years old, and is owned by T. Law & Co. of Glasgow.

Passengers From Boston.

Boston, July 7.—It was learned at the office of the French Line Steamship company in this city that at least nine passengers on the La Bourgogne registered from this city. The following were found: Minnie Connors, buyer for Hovey & Co.; Albert Weiss, music teacher, Roxbury; Leon Porteau, musician, his wife and Mrs. Vallarde, mother of Mrs. Porteau; Leon Jacquet, musician, his wife and infant, Roxbury; Vert Arrouet, modiste, Boston; Rev. W. G. Webster, Providence.

As soon as news of the disaster became known a rumor was started that at least 15 members of the Boston Symphony orchestra were on board. It appeared, however, that only three of the players were included among the passengers. They were Messrs. Weiss, Porteau and Jacquet. Weiss was returning to Paris to visit his family. The other players, with their families, comprised a party en route to visit relatives in Europe. Mrs. Arrouet was on her way to Paris, where her two children attend school. It had been her custom for several summers to journey to Paris.

Horses In a Mixup.

Hartford, July 7.—The racing at Charter Oak park yesterday was marred by two sensational incidents. In the fifth heat of the 2:09, Bright Light and Refina, driven by Geers and Bowen respectively, came together, Refina falling down and Bright Light going over him. The horses were in a bad mixup, and when they were separated it was found that Geers had dislocated an ankle and that Bowen was seriously hurt by kicks about the head.

In the fifth heat of the 2:20 trot, Benedict had taken Geer's place behind Milan Chimes and was driving him to win. Just at the distance post, Chimes threw up his head, wavered and dropped dead. The races as they went were well contested. There was a kick over the decision of the judges in giving the race to Courier-Journal, the crowd holding that Passing Belle won the last heat, the one in dispute, which would have given her the race.

Both Were Drowned.

Dedham, Mass., July 7.—While bathing in the Charles river yesterday afternoon, Thomas Byrnes, 9 years old, an inmate of the Home of the Angel Guardian, Roxbury, became exhausted and cried for help. Charles Kitrick, a teacher, plunged in to the boy's assistance, but in the struggle both were drowned.

Senate Favors Annexation.

Washington, July 7.—The end was reached Wednesday afternoon in the one-sided discussion of the annexation resolutions. The leaders in the antagonism, Mr. White and Mr. Pettigrew, did not consume the time that was expected, and Mr. Allen cut his speech. When Mr. Pettigrew announced his willingness to have a vote taken, the word was passed swiftly through the corridors and committee rooms, and in a few minutes every senator in the capitol was in his seat. The galleries filled rapidly, and members of the house went rapidly to the senate chamber. Several amendments were offered to the resolutions, but the advocates of annexation stood solidly together, gaining strength on successive votes. Finally at 5:30 p. m., the resolutions themselves in precisely the form in which they were received from the house were reported to the senate and passed, 42 to 21. Mr. Morrill of Vermont was the only Republican who voted against the resolutions, although Mr. Thurston of Nebraska and Mr. Spooner of Wisconsin were paired against them. Six Democrats voted in favor of annexation.

B. F. PETTIGREW.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Secretary Long has received word that the Alphonso XII was destroyed while trying to run the Havana blockade. The ship is said to be a total loss.

The 15-mile match race in Philadelphia last night between McDuffie of Boston and Cissac, the French middle distance champion, resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Boston boy. McDuffie finished the 15th mile in 27 minutes 4-5 seconds.

From all that could be learned last night Yousouf, the wrestler, known as "the terrible Turk," went down with the Bourgogne. Yousouf last Friday evening called at Manager Brady's office in New York to say goodbye, explaining that he would sail the next morning on the French line steamer.

Mayor Hatch, City Clerk Cramer and President of Council Taylor of Camden, N. J., have been fined $200 and costs of prosecution for the destruction of a writ of certiorari which was served upon Camden's reform councils on the night of re-organization in March last. The men will be compelled to pay about $90 each.

OUR WOUNDED HEROES

ships will be necessary to take them. The nucleus of a fleet is being gathered, however.

Asks Special Thanksgiving.

Washington, July 7.—In recognition of the victories in Santiago, President McKinley has issued a proclamation, in which he asks "the people of the United States, upon next assembling for divine worship in their respective places of meeting, to offer thanksgiving to almighty God, who, in his inscrutable ways, now leading our hosts upon the waters to unscathed triumphs; now guiding them in a strange land through the dread shadows of death to success, even though at a fearful cost; now bearing them without accident or loss to far distant climes, has watched over our cause and brought nearer to success of the right and the attainment of just and honorable peace.

"With the nation's thanks let there be mingled the nation's prayers that our gallant sons may be shielded from harm alike on the battlefield and in the clash of fleets, and be spared the scourge of suffering and disease while they are striving to uphold their country's honor; and withal, let the nation's heart be filled with holy awe at the thought of the noble men who have perished as heroes die, and be filled with compassionate sympathy for all those who suffer bereavement or endure sickness, wounds and bonds by reason of the awful struggle.

"And above all, let us pray with earnest fervor that he, the dispenser of all good, may speedily remove from us the untold afflictions of war and bring to our dear land the blessings of restored peace, and to all the domain now ravaged by the cruel strife the priceless boon of security and tranquility."

Sternberg Makes Denial.

Washington, July 7.—Surgeon General Sternberg of the army objects to the criticisms made by the representatives of the Red Cross society at Siboney concerning the alleged inadequacy of the hospital accommodations with Shafter's army for the care of the wounded. In this connection he said: "Such complaints as these invariably arise in the operations of armies in the field. When the men went into battle they threw away their blankets and other clothing not absolutely necessary to be carried with them, and when they were wounded their underclothes were cut away by the surgeons in order that the latter might properly dress and attend to their wants.

SURGEON GENERAL STERNBERG.

"It is not practicable for an army commander to send forward with the van of the army everything necessary in the hospital line, and resort for the supplies must necessarily be had at the rear division hospitals, where there is always a large consignment of everything needed on hand. Such is the case at this time with Shafter's army. The hospital branch furnishes blankets, mosquito bars, pillow cases, sheets and shirts for field use, and with all these requisites the army is suplied."

Dash For Liberty.

Kingston, Jam., July 7.—About 50 of the 400 Spanish prisoners on the Harvard attempted to escape Monday night. In some way a number of them secured guns and made a wild dash for liberty from the steerage where they were confined. Their rush was met by the deadly bullets of the guards, and six were killed and 15 wounded. The firing ended the mutiny. No American was hurt.

In a frantic effort to block the entrance to Santiago harbor, and save the city from bombardment by the American fleet, the Spanish ran the Reina Mercedes ashore not far from the wreck of the Merrimac. Admiral Sampson, when he learned of the Spanish attempt to imitate Hobson, decided to give his men some target practice, with the Reina Mercedes as the target. He ordered the Indiana to throw a few shells into the Spanish vessel, which destroyed her.

Rumors as to Peace.

London, July 7.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "There are persistent rumors here that Duke Almodover, foreign minister, and Gamazo, minister of public instruction and public works, have received full power to propose a suspension of hostilities as a preliminary peace negotiation. Spain, it is alleged, is prepared for peace on the basis of the independence of Cuba and the Philippines, the United States to occupy Porto Rico until the war indemnity is paid. General Correa, minister of war, says everything depends upon the course of events at Santiago."

Seizure of Navassa.

Washington, July 7.—With regard to the story that Hayti has seized the little island of Navassa, it is learned at the state department that the matter is now under examination by the department, but no immediate decision is expected. The tenure of the Baltimore company which has occupied the island is peculiar, being based upon what is known as the guano statutes. There is, it is said, at least some shadow of justice in the action of Hayti in undertaking to assume possession while the island is deserted.

TROLLEY DODGERS LOST.

Hit by Tenney Broke a Tie and Clinched the Game.

Brooklyn, July 7.—It was the seventh inning that witnessed the defeat of the trolley dodgers yesterday. Yeager and Lewis were on the bases, the latter player by virtue of Kennedy's error, the blonde box artist having allowed Lewis' bunt to get away from him. The score was a tie at this juncture, and, as runs had been hard to get, a hit threatened disaster to the home team. The loquacious Tenney smacked a clean single over second and the game was won and lost. Score:

The Pittsburg-St. Louis game yesterday was uninteresting. Gray won for the Pittsburgs in the eighth with a hit, scoring Hastings and Donovan. Score: 3 to 1.

By a batting rally in the ninth the Chicagos pounded Wilson of the Clevelands for six hits and turned almost certain defeat into victory. Score: 6 to 5.

The Baltimores and Philadelphias played two games, and the orioles won both. The first was exciting at the finish, but the other proved a walkover. Dr. Pond, who has enlisted in the army hospital corps, pitched his last professional game and covered himself with glory. Scores: 9 to 8; 15 to 0.

Manager Barnie put in Korwan to pitch for the Springfields and hold down the Providences, but they could not be held down, winning by 13 to 0.

With the exception of Captain Cassidy, every member of the Newark ball team of the Atlantic league has struck because the players did not receive their pay in full up to July 1. The players were paid Tuesday up to June 15. The pick of two of the teams of the New England league has been offered Burns, and with these players the scheduled games in Hartford will be played.

Woman's power is largely dependent upon her ability to interest, entertain, attract and please. It is for this reason that women strive to become accomplished. They study in order that they may converse intelligently on all subjects. They strive to become good musicians, graceful dancers and amiable hostesses.

All accomplishments are unavailing if a woman suffers from ill-health in a womanly way. The special weakness peculiar to the womanly organism, will rapidly wreck the general health. The sufferer will lose her natural vivacity, her wit, her good looks, and the ambition and power to display the accomplishments at her command. Any woman affected in this way should resort to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a wonderful medicine for ailing women. It is the invention of an eminent and skillful physician, Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. It aims to cure but one class of diseases, and claims to be good for nothing else. It imparts health, elastic strength, vigor and virility to the delicate feminine organs. It prepares a woman for wifehood and motherhood.

Mrs. Ramon Sanchez, Penasco, Taos County, N. Mex., in a letter to Dr. Pierce says: "From a grateful heart my voice goes up to God both night and day in a solemn prayer that He may guard your health and preserve your life. I hereby express my gratitude to you for the relief I have received from your wonderful medicine, 'Favorite Prescription.' After suffering years of misery I am to-day a healthy and happy wife, and can truthfully recommend to women the use of the 'Favorite Prescription' as a regulator of the monthly periods."

The Uncle Sams and the Alphonsos.

THE SCORE.
DEWEY,	1
HOBSON,	12
SAMPSON,	02
SCHLEY,	022
CERVERA,	NIT.

FIRST INNING.

Dewey strode to the home plate, made a smashing hit at the first crack out of the box, and sent a hot grounder that went down among the Alphonsos, but which they failed to grasp. Dewey cantered around the bases and came in on a home run. The Bleachers went wild and a lady reporter from Chelsea swallowed her gum.

All the Boston newspaper reporters went down to the players' bench and solemnly congratulated Dewey and thanked him for following out their instructions.

Sampson popped up a fly, but the Alphonsos being a little weary, failed to get under it, and Sampson sat down on first base to wait till the Alphonsos' 1st baseman came back from the bull fight. Hobsen followed Sampson and hit at the first wild ball that came his way. Took desperate chances and made one of the greatest plays ever made on any field, but got caught at third. The game was called on account of rain before the Alphonsos got a hit. The score at the end of the first half of first inning stood: Dewey, won one; Hobson, won, too; Sampson, ought, to; Schley, ought,to, too; Cervera, nit. The game will be finished on Jan. 1st, year 2,000.

If you want to make a hit this week, come down and get a rough and ready Straw Hat for 98 cts. They are Boston's $2.00 kind, only we don't charge you for the name.

You can buy a Red, White and Blue Tie for 4c. Put the band around your neck and hear it play Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue.

If you want to take it cool get a crash hat for 24c. You can get a Blue Serge Suit (all worsted) for $7.50 and go and catch a high ball with what you save. If you want to make a two-bagger, buy two linen collars for 25c. Negligee Shirts, 45c. These are not worth any more, but some people sell them for 50c. and claim they are worth 75c.

EXPECTS PEACE SOON.

President Looks For It When Santiago Is Taken.

Probability of a Joint Attack on the City.

Secretary Alger's Scheme For Destroying the Mines.

Washington, July 8.—Although he has no information, directly or indirectly, from Spain, the president regards the probabilities as indicating that she will soon come to the point of asking for peace, although perhaps not until Santiago surrenders. His expectation is that before the end of next week General Linares will have capitulated, if, indeed, he does not sooner yield to the pressure upon him to surrender without further loss of life, or rather that General Linares will be permitted to do so by his superiors.

Lieutenant Colwell, our naval attache at London, who has kept in close touch with affairs in Madrid and Paris, telegraphed to the navy department yesterday that he believed Spain would probably sue for peace within a week, and also that Martin Campos would probably succeed Sagasta as prime minister. Secretary Day said that the state department had received no confirmatory advices, but Lieutenant Colwell's prediction was undoubtedly taken as at least an indication of the way things are going at Madrid.

The president may be disappointed, as he has been before in regard to Spain's intentions, but he is sanguine that circumstances are likely to force the peaceful surrender of Santiago, followed by an application for peace from Spain, without further fighting. If peace comes, the negotiations must be carried on directly by Spain, and she must, of course, accept our terms, which will involve the surrender of Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines and the Ladrones. The administration sees that it cannot allow Spain to remain in the West Indies, and that it cannot return to Spain the islands taken in the Pacific. It cannot determine now what will be done with Cuba and the Philippines, beyond the fact that they must be given up by Spain.

A joint attack upon Santiago Saturday is considered as among the probabilities. The navy department insists that the proper program is for the army to capture Morro castle and the shore batteries by storm, but Secretary Alger is unwilling to expose his men to the danger which this program involves. The secretary does not believe that the forcing of the harbor will be attended by such risk as the navy department fears, and he has under contemplation a scheme by which the army will clear a pathway for the ships of war. This scheme is unique, but will be adopted if General Shafter, who has been consulted by wire, agrees that it is feasible.

The idea is to take one of the transports now at Santiago and by protecting its vulnerable sides with bales of compressed hay, and also inclosing the pilot house with the same material, call for volunteers and make a dash through the harbor. It is believed that by equipping the transport with grappling irons, the mines in the harbor, which are said to be so dangerous, can be dragged and removed as the ship goes through the channel. It is realized that the execution of this plan is attended with some risk, but the secretary has no doubt that the mines will be proven to be far less perilous than is believed to be the case.

Secretary Long has ordered Admiral Sampson to detach from his own command immediately the vessels to be embraced in Commodore Watson's eastern squadron and to direct the commodore to proceed on his mission. The vessels of the squadron will not be the same as those originally selected, for the reason probably that the recent engagement with Cervera's squadron necessitated some changes. The new squadron will consist of the battleships Iowa and Oregon, the protected cruiser Newark and the auxiliary cruisers (carrying side armor) Dixie, Yankee and Yosemite, the colliers Averend, Cassius, Caesar, Leonidas and Justin, and the supply boat Delmonico. The Iowa, Oregon, Newark and Yosemite are all in the south with Sampson; the Dixie and Yankee are at New York, and the colliers are at Hampton roads with the Delmonico. The ships are to set sail as soon as they can coal and supply.

The order provides that each ship shall make her way across the Atlantic to a marine rendezvous, which will be designated in sealed orders, and which will be at some point off the Spanish coast. It probably will not be long after that before the American squadron will be in full pursuit of Camara with his remnant of the Spanish navy. Meanwhile the gathering of the American fleet off the Spanish ports is expected to have a sobering effect upon the inflamed people. The number of colliers accompanying the expedition is evidence that a long cruise lies ahead.

General Miles, accompanied by the entire staff of army headquarters, left last night for Charleston, where the party will embark for Santiago. On the eve of his departure the general expressed satisfaction in starting to join the troops. He spoke of the sacrifices and hardships they had passed through recently, and of those yet to come. The climate has operated severely against the general officers, and General Miles feels that he too is not entirely invulnerable in a country of heat, swamps and disease; but he has a strong physique, his muscles are as hard as iron, and he goes expecting to stand a good deal of knockabout service. General Miles himself has no other purpose in going to Santiago than to look over the military situation and to strengthen the hand of Shafter. There is no intention on his part to take in any manner from the glory that Shafter has won or may win in this campaign. He will not relieve Shafter of his command unless the latter's physical condition demands such action.

Playa Del Este, July 8.—General Toral, the Spanish commander in Santiago, has been officially informed by General Shafter of the complete destruction of the Spanish fleet and that the American warships are now free to co-operate with the army in the reduction of Santiago. He has been given such time as he may deem proper to consider the advisability of capitulation with his garrison. Although General Toral is apparently anxious to resist to the bitter end, the utter hopelessness of holding out against a siege by land and sea must be forcing itself upon him. His losses have been heavy. The reinforcements upon which he was counting have not arrived. General Pando has left him in the lurch and, it is understood, is making his way across the country to Havana. The food supply in Santiago is low and it is understood that the ammunition is running short. Our position is being hourly strengthened.

GENERAL PANDO.

The desperate character of General Toral's determination to continue the struggle is apparent when it is known that the Spanish soldiers have less than a day's ammunition remaining. Had an assault all along the line been pushed on the second day of the fighting last week, as was contemplated the night before, it is probable that Santiago would now be ours. A lack of ammunition places a time limit at least upon the enemy's ability to hold out. This lack applies to artillery and siege guns, as well as to small arms. It is learned that the siege guns in the Lunette are seven-inch instead of five-inch guns, and that one of the batteries mounts two bronze guns of heavy caliber, one of which it is said now enfilades our first line of trenches, occupied by the Sixth and Sixteenth infantry.

An examination of the forts, sandworks and trenches about El Caney amazes our officers. They cannot conceive how it was ever possible to carry the town by infantry assault. The last stand was made in an old church which had been converted into a blockhouse with loopholes in the walls. A dozen soldiers were perched in the old belfry. This church is now used as a hospital and prison for Spanish captives and wounded. The walls are spattered with the blood of the defenders of the town. One of the pillars is shattered, where a shell from Captain Capron's battery exploded. The wounded prisoners are being cared for by our surgeons.

Moret Favors Peace.

London, July 8.—Dispatches from the continental capitals still talk of European action in the Hispano-American war. France is being represented as taking the initiative. By way of Berlin comes an intervew with Mr. Moret, former Spanish minister of the colonies, advocating that Spain should sue for peace "because it is ridiculous to suppose that she could tire out the United States," and because Spain "can only expect fresh defeats, placing her in a worse position than ever."

Moret said it was imperative that the Outskirts and Waterworks Guarded by the Spanish.

Insurgents Discharge Firecrackers as a Ruse.

Rebel Gauntlet Run Successfully by an Escaping Commander.

Hong Kong, July 8.—There is no material change in the aspect of affairs in Manila. The Spaniards are strongly posted about the outskirts of the town and along the whole length of the conduit of the waterworks, eight miles inland. It is believed that they only hold the waterworks on suffrance, because the insurgents' pickets swarm everywhere and could easily raid and wreck the conduit. The insurgents are extremely anxious to conciliate the neutrals, and therefore refrain from causing horrible privation.

The insurgents have never employed cannon before Manila, but they are now bringing up 60 guns, with the intention of making a simultaneous rush upon the Spanish entrenchments at Santa Mesa, Santa Ana and Malate, thus rendering the other positions of the Spaniards untenable, and by a single coup drive the Spaniards inside the citadel with a minimum of danger to non-combatants and property. It is expected that it will take a week to bring the guns along, as they have to make a detour through a difficult part of the country, and it is not desirable to hurry.

The insurgents in the large camps at Malabon, Caloocan, Francisco, Marquina, San Pedro and Paranaque are in excellent spirits and perfectly orderly. They are delighted with a successful ruse which they recently adopted to draw the Spanish fire. This method is by firing crackers in the darkness in the woods near the Spanish positions. The explosion of the crackers resembles the rattle of musketry and causes the Spaniards to open fire and waste their ammunition. The insurgents allege that they had only one rifle at the capture of Caloocan, and they say they similarly surrounded Guliguiguin at night and fired crackers and a few rifles, while their main force crept close to the enemy with machetes. The Spaniards, the insurgents add, squandered their ammunition and then bolted.

General Monet, the Spanish commander at Macabobo, has escaped from there in a canoe, bringing with him the family of Captain General Augusti from Macabobo, where the captain general sent them when the American fleet arrived here, believing that the natives of that part of the country were loyal. Monet had a terrible voyage. He ran the gauntlet of the insurgent troops along the river banks, and when challenged replied by pretending to be in an insurgent boat conveying prisoners to Cavite. He was frequently ordered to stop, refused to do so, and was fired upon by sentries, was chased, and reached the open bay in a squall. He and his party were starving and nearly perished. The Spanish general alleges that he left his troops in a strong position, but that he wants reinforcements.

The Spaniards are employing gangs of thieves armed with axes and machetes to destroy the woods in the outskirts of Manila, under Spanish overseers with horsewhips.

The authorities have declined to accept the suggestion to declare Binondo in a neutral zone, and the inhabitants of that place must defend their lives or sacrifice everything. It is hinted privately that it might be required to destroy the town for the safe of the citadel. The troops are properly provisioned now, and the distances between the various bodies are shorter.

Mines Unnecessary.

It is possible that the mines in Boston harbor may soon be removed. Col. Mansfield the United States Engineer in charge, has been interviewed, and says:

"I cannot say whether the department at Washington may not still have good reason for keeping the mines in place," he said, "but from appearances at present I do not anticipate that they are required any longer in Boston. The only ships which could have come in violent contact with them no longer exist. There seems no further reason to fear attack from that quarter.

"There is no doubt that the laying of the mines has seriously incommoded the shipping interests, as well as cost the Government a good round sum. It involves a cost of at least $200 a day to maintain the mines which have been laid in Boston Harbor, because of having to keep tugboats inside and outside the mine fields to warn off vessels which otherwise might get into trouble.

"Then, too, shipping has been inconvenienced, to a very great extent because of the inability of masters to enter or leave the harbor between eight o'clock in the evening and four in the morning. If the mines are removed speedily all these precautions will no longer be necessary."

GAME TO THE LAST.

The Motto Adopted by Co. K in Camp.

[SPECIAL TO THE DAILY LEDGER FROM H. A. MCLAUGHLIN.]

Camp Dalton,
Friday, July 8,

Among the visitors on Thursday were Miss Grace Pettengill, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, Miss Josie Anderson of Quincy, A. Hilliard and W. E. Dow of Braintree, J. A. Pray and J. E. Loud of Weymouth, and J. F. Green of Rockland. Company drill has been inaugurated.

The men are becoming hardened and as brown as veterans.

A general marking of company property has commenced. Some things are among the missing as is apt to be the case with such a large body of men. Co. K's equipment will all be marked with the company mark and the soldier's individual numbers. It will be easier then to trace missing articles.

1st Sergt. Colbert is losing some of his superfluous flesh and is fast beginning to look like an athlete. He says he is so used to army rations that he refused a chicken the other day, for fear of an illness following such a change. None of the rest of us would let chicken or any thing else get by us.

The band is fast coming into shape and frequent strains wafted from the distant woods when they are at practice tell of the concerts to come. It will help liven up tired bodies.

The Army Christian Commission of the Y. M. C. A. have established themselves in camp. They occupy an empty mess room. The commission is the same as in other camps. It is in charge of Z. C. Collins and J. L. Tryon of Attleboro. Paper, pencils, pens and ink are furnished free of charge. There is also a reading room connected and a good supply of reading matter is always on hand. It will go with the regiment to the front. Any contributions of money or reading matter of any sort will be sure to reach the right spot. Direct to "Army Christian Commission Camp Dalton, South Framingham."

Gus Livindale had the misfortune to sprain his wrist a few days ago but is fast getting in shape again.

A great many of Co. K's friends visit camp every day and many a box of dainties are left behind. Civilians don't know how good these things taste.

A most enjoyable trip is to take the electric cars from Quincy to camp.

The trip can be made for about thirty-five cents and it is money well spent. Trains to Boston on the Albany are frequent and good connections can be made for home. Camp is open for visitors every day from 6 A. M. until 9 P. M. Lunch can be brought and eaten on the grounds. Dress parade takes place at sunset so you are able to see all the regiment in the field at one time. When the band is organized a concert will take place several nights a week. Every one is welcome at Co. K and all the entertainment at our command is yours.

Photograph fiends are getting in their work and some fine views will be exhibited in Quincy soon.

The boys of Co. K are requested to hand in the names of their visitors to the Ledger correspondent. All such favors will be appreciated.

Ledgers are received daily at camp and are eagerly sought after. They are about worn out when they have made the rounds. All readers of Quincy's hustling daily are welcome at the tent of Squad 6.

"Bob Evans" of Co. K and "Dewey" of Co. E fought a battle royal to the finish this afternoon. After severe fighting on both sides Bob was forced to retire. The engagement lasted for half an hour. Bob was too light for Dewey but was game to the last. He retired in good order with little loss. They were only chickens though. But it just shows what Co. K will do even if the odds are against it. "Game to the last."

There is one case of ivy poisoning at camp.

Member of the State police force came to camp yesterday and Chief Wade in their behalf presented Col. Whitney with a magnicfient bay thoroughbred horse.

2d Lieut. Spear was lieutenant of the guard Thursday.

Sergt. Phillips, Privates McIntosh, Gould, Deslaurias and Ross are away on furloughs. Sergt. Colbert is in Braintree on leave. MACK.

The Daily Ledger is now for sale at the newly established canteen, and all the income derived therefrom will be paid to Harry McLaughlin, the Ledger representative. A large supply will be sent so that all will be able to obtain a copy before worn out.—Eds.

Overtime.

The time for the completion of the Hancock street section of the sewer being built by Messrs. Sheahan expired on July 1. The Sewer Commissioners say that he has not asked for or been granted an extension of time. The contract provides that he shall forfeit $10 per day for every day after the first of July but the question is will the Commissioners collect it.

SKULL FRACTURED.

Girl Jumps From Rapidly Moving Q. & B. Car.

A young girl apparently about 18 years of age, who later gave her name as Theresa Loring or Murray, and her residence as North Weymouth, jumped from a moving car at North Weymouth, Thursday evening, and as a result she is now at the Quincy City Hospital with a fractured skull and with but slim chances of recovery.

At the time the car was going down Cemetery hill, toward East Weymouth, and was moving quite rapidly, when suddenly and before anyone could do anything to prevent her, she jumped from the car.

The car was stopped and the girl, who was unconscious, was removed to the office of Dr. Drake, who realizing her condition called the ambulance and had her removed to the Quincy City Hospital.

The attendants at the Hospital have been unable to obtain from her any reason for her rash act, but in answer to questions she says her name is Theresa Loring and that she lives in North Weymouth. The authorities in North Weymouth, however, do not know her.

Later—It has since been learned that the girl's name was Theresa Murray. She is 22 years of age and was employed as a domestic at Sailors' Snug Harbor. She was going to Weymouth Heights to visit friends.

With the Yachtsmen.

Ex-Commodore John W. Sanborn has given two large thermometers to the Quincy Yacht club, one for the hall and the other, a large one, for the lower piazza.

The current number of the Rudder, the New York yachting magazine, devotes six pages to the Quincy Yacht club. The article is illustrated. Mr. W. E. Robinson, the yachting editor of the Boston Globe, is the author.

This week's issue of the Forest & Stream of New York, devotes two solid columns to the Quincy Yacht club's challenge cup and the questions involved by the schooner controversy. It is needless to say that it backs up the position taken by the executive committee in barring out boats over 21 feet l. w. l., saying in part: "By all yachting usage and by the rules of the majority of yacht clubs and association the allowance for rig is merely what may be called an emergency measure, and to be employed only at the discretion of the club giving the race.

As a rule mixed rig classes are made by special announcement, the ordinary class rules govern, and each rig races alone.

Slight Fire.

The alarm from Box 35 at 6.15 Thursday night was for a fire in an outbuilding adjoining the house of Mrs. Edwin H. Willett on High School avenue. Fortunately the fire was discovered early, the department was handicapped in reaching the house owing to the condition of the street. The Sewer department has been laying its pipe on the avenue and the outlet toward the Central Fire station was blocked up with a pile of dirt, while on the remainder of the avenue toward Elm street had a partly filled trench. When the hose carriage attempted to enter from Elm street to lay a line of hose it had not gone far before the wheels on one side sank to the hubs blocking the carriage. The location of the fire evidently bothered the driver also for the line of hose laid was from the hydrant at the corner of South street. The cause of the fire is unknown; the loss was trifling.

Mrs. Ellen Miller, who resides on High School avenue with Mrs. Willett was bitten on the fleshy part of her arm by her own dog. Mrs. Miller was shouting for help to extinguish the fire when suddenly the dog jumped at her and bit through the clothing making a painful wound.

Lawn Party.

The Dorcas society of the Universalist church held a large and enjoyable lawn party Thursday evening at the residence of Miss Barnes on Elm place. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated with hundreds of lanterns making a very pretty view as seen from the distance. A hurdy gurdy enlivened things out of doors, while in the house was a graphophone which played all the latest and popular airs. In a tent near the hurdy gurdy was a fortune teller who was kept busy throughout the evening telling fortunes while on the opposite side was a table for the sale of ice cream and cake, and one for the sale of fancy articles. Miss Gay was on guard at the gate and collected ten cents of all who entered the charming spot.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Fannie, wife of L. G. Murray, the druggist at Brewer's corner, died quite suddenly at Wrentham, Thursday, of consumption. Mrs. Murray has been in poor health for some months, although able to be about most of the time. Some weeks ago Mr. Murray, who is also in poor health, went to Nova Scotia for his health, and Mrs. Murray went to Wrentham to visit relatives during his absence. Although suffering from consumption she has been about every day until this morning when she had another hemorrhage and passed away. She was about 26 years of age and leaves two sons besides her husband. Mr. Murray had just returned from Nova Scotia and was in Quincy when the sad news reached him.

QUINCY PATRIOTIC.

Three Funds for Co. K Growing Rapidly.

Quincy has already furnished over 100 men for the army and navy during the present war, one for every 250 of her population. This is certainly her proportionate part, as on this basis for a population of 70 million the country would have a force of about 250,000 on land and sea.

Those who cannot go to the front because of age and family or business ties also recognize their obligations and are working or contributing to the Volunteer Aid Association, the Christian Commission and for the comfort of Co. K, Fifth regiment, which has gone forth from Quincy and vicinity.

For the Volunteer Aid Association, branches at Wollaston and Quincy have done considerable sewing and collected many articles.

For the Christian Commission over $100 has already been subscribed.

For Co. K members the city has furnished blankets, and three funds are being raised.

The first to start a purse for Co. K were friends at the Tubular Rivet & Stud works at Wollaston and they report today that the employes have contributed over $50 and expect to double it.

Miss Annie L. Prescott started a fund the first of the week among the members and friends of Abigail Adams chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. No personal canvass has been made but the subscriptions already made amount over $20

A Handsome Gift.

Within the last few days a very acceptable gift was received by the directors of the Young Men's Christian Association from a warm friend and sympathizer in the work which the Association is doing. The gift came from Wollaston in the shape of a $100 check, the same to be added to the fund now on deposit in the Savings Bank for the erection of a buiding for the use of the Association. Ever since the Association closed its rooms (temporarily however) on account of the loss sustained by the recent fire, many expressions of interest and concern have been heard on all sides and it is therefore no wonder that some of its friends should remember the work in its present difficulty and hope some day to see the Assocation occupying quarters of its own, and adapted to its special needs. The Assocation is doing a good work and merits the support of all good thinking citizens.

Who Will Start It?

It will now be in order for Braintree or Quincy to organize a provisional company to take the place of Co. K, as has been done in other places. Adjutant General Dalton has issued the following orders for the information of cities and towns where armories, other than the so-called "state armories," are located;

Allowance of rent will cease July 1, 1898, where companies have entered the service. Any city or town which has provided an armory for a provisional militia company will have the allowance of rent continued. Any city or town providing an armory after July 1, 1898, for a provisional company, if the company is located therein before August 1, 1898, will have rent of armory continued.

Officers and enlisted men of the militia who have not volunteered, cannot claim to occupy the armories after July 1, 1898, or after the armory has been assigned by the city or town to a provisional company. Officers and enlisted men left in the militia, whose commands have gone into the U. S. service, will govern themselves accordingly.

Where provisional companies are located by cities and towns, after July 1, 1898, rents will be collected from date of occupancy.

Release of the Merrimac Crew Celebrated by Troops.

Hobson Carried on the Shoulders of Enthusiastic Soldiers.

Guantanamo, July 8.—Firing was not resumed Wednesday, although the truce is supposed to be ended. Both armies have been informed that Washington and Madrid are negotiating terms of peace. The white flag still flies over the Santiago lines. There have been no messages or flags of truce between the commanders since 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, when Assistant Naval Constructor Hobson and his men were exchanged. They were received with frantic joy by the troops at Siboney. The troops carried Hobson on their shoulders to the steam launch of the flagship; while the band of the New York played and everybody cheered until he was hoarse.

If the young officer, whose home is in Alabama, had any race prejudice, he certainly forgot all about it as he passed through the lines of soldiers on his way to General Wheeler's headquarters. He saw it was the uniform of the United States army, and he cared not for the color of the wearer, grasping the hands of the ebon-hued troopers of the Ninth and Tenth cavalry and expressing his thanks for their patriotic welcome with as much heartiness as he displayed towards men of his own race. He and all of his men were completely overcome by the reception accorded them, and tears rolled down their cheeks as the soldiers crowded around them.

As Hobson and his party approached Captain Grimes' battery, the men cried out on every side to have a salute fired in their honor. Hobson protested against this immediately and shouted to the artillerymen, who had also caught the infection, not to fire their guns. Some of the most enthusiastic of the men appealed to Colonel Astor, and the latter entered into the spirit of the occasion and told the men they need not obey Hobson's orders, as he was only a lieutenant; but the officers of the battery prevented the men from firing the guns, as the Spanish might have mistaken the report for the opening of an attack.

"We conducted ourselves properly and simply forced the Spanish to treat us well," said the lieutenant. "We knew nothing about the destruction of Cervera's fleet until told by our own people. Of course our confinement became very irksome, and I cannot tell you how great was the relief we felt to be free again. I cannot express my gratitude to our soldiers, who gave us such a welcome when we came into the lines. All of us are in excellent health and glad to get back to our boats again and see the war through to the end."

The news from Santiago is to the effect that the suffering there increases daily. There is much destitution as well as hunger at El Caney, where a thousand refugees from Santiago are now quartered with the soldiers at the front. The men gave up half their rations Tuesday night to feed the unfortunate people, but some other provision must soon be made.

Miss Barton and George Kennan of the Red Cross society offered to provide 5000 rations if General Shafter would transport them. After consultation with the French consul, the general agreed to do so. The first pack train arrived yesterday afternoon and was unloaded in the village square among the clamoring cries of thousands. The better class held back; while the ignorant, especially the negresses, pressed forward, frantically appealing for bread. Captain Finlay, who commands the garrison in the town, saw to it that enough food was reserved to supply those whose delicacy and good breeding restrained them from begging. Many of the better classes have offered to pay any price for transportation to a foreign port. It appears likely that some arrangement can be made to get them out of the country. A few of the best Spanish families came to El Caney, but many preferred to share the fortunes of war, while others went off northward to San Luis and other places where they have villas and estates.

Quite a number of the Spanish volunteers who came out with the refugees and who were at first allowed their liberty are being gathered up and placed under surveillance. While it is known that most of them welcomed the opportunity to escape, it is feared that some of them may be spies. It has been learned from the refugees that there was a regular mutiny among the volunteers in Santiago the day after the firing began. The volunteers were loud in their demands that the city should be surrendered. It was also learned from the same sources that Admiral Cervera was practically goaded into making his desperate effort to escape from the harbor. Both he and his sailors were assailed as cowards for not fighting the Yankees. Some marines were assaulted in the strets.

There is no shelter for scores of our soldiers, but every member of General Shafter's staff is provided with an individual tent, in which they may be seen resting in comfort by the neglected sufferers. If the actual condition of hundreds of our wounded could be realized at home it would cause a thrill of indignation to run through the nation. The general army hospital here is in miserable condition. There are only a few tents for the accomodation of the wounded, and the two large ones now available for the sufferers are filled with injured Cubans. Nearly all these men were hurt while engaged in aimlessly wandering around the field during the fighting on Friday and Saturday.

It is felt here that there is no excuse for these conditions, and suggestions for improving matters have been offered by several Americans by whom the situation is regarded as being unnecessarily hard. These suggestions are not received with favor by those in charge of the hospital work, as was discovered by a newspaper correspondent.

PHILLIES WON.

Defeated the Champions In the First Game of the Series.

Philadelphia, July 8.—The champions were slow in shaking off that drowsy feeling yesterday afternoon and lost a game to the quakers by one of the poorest exhibitions ever given by the Boston team. Not till the third inning did Charley Nichols strike his gait. By that time the Phillies were on pretty safe ground. Think of Nichols giving three bases on balls in the first inning, which resulted in runs. Long and Lowe made costly fumbles and Duffy threw high over Collins' head, all in the first inning. Score:

Thursday's game was characterized by slow work by the Cleveland team, though it won from the St. Louis club, 6 to 5.

Costly errors by the Chicagos and inability to bunch hits off Dwyer pushed the Cincinnatis further ahead yesterday. Score: 7 to 5.

Magee of Louisville was a puzzle to the Pittsburgs until the seventh inning, when he was found for six hits, which scored six runs, that decided the contest.

Dunn of the Brooklyns was knocked out in the first inning by the New Yorks, and McKenna, formerly of the Brockton club of the New England league, was given a trial. He was wild, but made a creditable showing. Score: 10 to 1.

Pappalau of the Springfields was invincible yesterday, only six scattered hits being made by the Montreals. Score: 5 to 0.

The Providences won the first of the series with the Torontos by timely batting and hustling playing. Score: 19 to 4.

Three successive singles in the tenth won the game with the Baltimores for the Washingtons, 2 to 1.

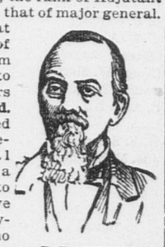
There was a conference of the Pawtucket, Worcester and Taunton ball clubs in Pawtucket yesterday, with a view to continuing the New England league. If the Newport club can be reorganized there appears to be a good prospect that the season will be finished with a four-club league. Proposals were received from Woonsocket, Attleboro and Marlboro, and it is possible that the league may include those cities.

Adrian S. Anson has been released as manager of the New York club, and it is announced that Joyce will be reappointed.

CORBIN'S PROMOTION.

Bill Passed by the Senate Making Him a Major General.

Washington, July 8.—In the senate Thursday afternoon a lively debate was precipitated by an objection offered by Senator Pettus of Alabama to consideration of a bill fixing the rank of Adjutant General Corbin as that of major general. He declared that it was a piece of political favoritism and was a wrong to many other officers now in the field. Mr. Bate defended the bill and defended General Corbin, paying a high tribute to Corbin's executive ability. Mr. Sewell said that no man had demonstrated more fully than had General Corbin his distinguished ability and his entire worthiness for the promotion the pending measure would give him.



E. W. PETTUS.

In reply to the charge of Mr. Pettus that General Corbin was a political favorite and had profited thereby, Mr. Foraker was unwilling that such a statement should stand uncontradicted. He pointed out that the general had won the honors that had come to him by meritorious services. His promotion had been earned step by step, and his entire record was gallant and heroic. He had served 11 full years on the plains against the Indians, and long before that had won distinguished honors in the civil war.

Mr. Morgan said that while no doubt General Corbin was a deserving officer, it was a piece of personal favoritism, and senators were now engaged in returning favors. "I have no doubt," he continued, "that General Corbin has rendered acts of conspicuous service which some of our friends on the floor appreciate very highly, for we have handed down the names of almost every distinguished man on this floor amongst the commanding officers of the army, and General Corbin has had a part in that. I thank him for it. I am sorry that I did not have somebody to put in. What are we doing now except returning compliments to a gentleman who has had the opportunity and exercised it very graciously by conferring titles and commissions upon our sons?"

The bill was passed.

EXPECTS PEACE SOON.

United States should issue victorious out of its first war with a foreign power, because its social problems and surplus wealth compelled it to pursue a policy of expansion. He believed that Spain had nothing to fear from the Carlists or the Republicans, because both depended on the army and the workingmen; whereas the army had already felt the strength of the enemy and was not likely to protest against peace, which was the only thing that would save the workmen from starvation.

Fled From Manila.

Hong Kong, July 8.—A steamer arrived here from Manila Thursday, bringing 30 priests and 500 Chinese.

General Monet says the escape of Captain General Augustin's family from the hands of the insurgents was due to the loyalty of a Philippine colonel named Blance. The general adds that his native troops are loyal and that there are 5000 mixed troops at Macabele, with plenty of ammunition and provisions, where he intends to await for the insurgents to come out into the open and then surprise them.

General Aguinaldo on July 3 proclaimed the birth of the Philippine republic. He claims to be ready to take Manila any day. The steamer Eddie reports that the Germans are landing supplies north of Manila at nightfall.

Among the Wounded.

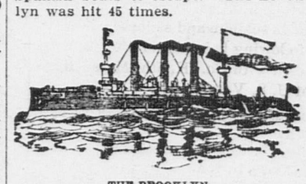
Key West, July 8.—Among the wounded soldiers brought here from Santiago on the Iroquois are the following from the Second Massachusetts: Private George H. Dorevers, company L, gun shot wound in fingers of left hand; Private E. M. Connell, company L, in right shoulder.

Searching For Hiders.

Washington, July 8.—The navy is preparing for a grand hunt throughout the West Indies. Spanish war craft are scattered through coves on the Cuban coast, and lying in obscure harbors in the West Indian islands. These are to be hunted down and captured or destroyed, and the movement is to begin immediately, for until the gulf and the Carribbean sea have been cleared of these craft no troop transports can be said to be entirely safe while passing between the United States and Cuba. Many of the boats have been spotted already, and the others will be located soon by the aid of swift torpedo boats and auxiliary craft. It was with this object in view that the recently constructed torpedo boats were ordered from the north to Florida waters.

Hit Forty-Five Times.

Guantanamo, July 8.—When the Spanish fleet left Santiago it was with the intention to make for Cienfuegos, the nearest port, to secure coal and provisions. All the ships were short of coal, the Cristobal Colon having only two days' supply. The Spaniards concentrated their fire on the Brooklyn, hoping to disable that vessel, as they considered her the fastest of the American warships, and thus give on opportunity for at least one or two of the Spanish boats to escape. The Brooklyn was hit 45 times.



THE BROOKLYN.

The Spaniards estimate the force behind the fortifications of Santiago at above 11,000, including the 4,000 brought by General Pando.

Caring For Refugees.

New York, July 8.—The following cablegram was received by Stephen Barton from Clara Barton yesterday: "Came from Shafter's front in the night for food and clothing for refugees who are leaving Santiago by the thousands, starving and naked. The State of Texas has gone to Port Antonio for ice to save her meat. Am sending supplies to refugees, all I can, from both camps, by army wagons and pack mules. It is nearly impossible to land supplies, hight tides, no docks, surf terrible; our ship yawls cannot stand in the surf. Have mended one old broken flat boat which our men drag ashore in the surf, waist deep. No transportation. Horse and packers' tents would be helpful.

"Wounded men taken from our operating tables and laid on the ground, often without blankets or shelter from rain or sun. As others die their clothing is taken from them and put on the naked to get them down to Siboney, 10 miles over roads that upset army wagons. Mrs. Gardner, myself and whole working force of the Red Cross at the front are in direct range of the sharpshooters. Lesser and the nurses are doing splendid work at Siboney."

Medal For Teddy.

New York, July 8.—Lieutenant Colonel Theodore Roosevelt of the First volunteer cavalry will be decorated with a medal of honor for his gallant conduct at the fight of San Juan hill last Friday, by recommendation of Major General Shafter. Roosevelt was leading the charge on a strong blockhouse, in the face of a deadly fire, when his horse was shot from under him. He landed on his feet and continued to lead, trudging up the heights and cheering his followers on to the bloody victory which followed.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, July 8.—"Because all the most brilliant achievements thus far in this war have been performed by the navy," says The Advertiser, "an effort is made to create the impression that the army is of inferior quality. Nothing but mischief can come of such attempts, and they are totally, meanly unjust."

"There has been much loose talk—from landsmen—about the 'slow' American battleships. Let all such read the lesson of Santiago and learn wisdom," is The Journal's advice.

"We Have Lost All."

Havana, July 8.—Admiral Cervera reported to General Blanco on the naval fight off Santiago as follows: "In compliance with your orders I went out yesterday from Santiago de Cuba with all the squadron and, after an unequalled combat against forces more than triple mine, had all my squadron destroyed by fire. Teresa, Oquendo and Vizcaya beached and the Colon fleeing. I accordingly informed the Americans, and went ashore and gave myself up. The torpedo chasers foundered. I do not know how many people were lost, but it will surely reach 600 dead and many wounded. Although not in such great numbers, the living are prisoners of the Americans. The conduct of the crews rose to a height that won the most enthusiastic plaudits of the enemy. The commander of the Vizcaya surrendered his vessel. His crew are very grateful for the noble generosity with which they are treated. Among the dead is Villamil, and I believe Lasaga (spelling uncertain), and among the wounded Concas and Eulate. We have lost all and are necessarily depressed."

Signed the Bill.

Washington, July 8.—It was by a ceremony of the simplest character that the resolutions annexing the Hawaiian islands to the United States last evening were enacted finally into law. It occurred in the cabinet room of the executive mansion, and only six persons besides President McKinley were present.

Alonzo S. Stewart, assistant doorkeeper of the senate, arrived at the White House with the engrossed copy of the resolutions signed by Acting Speaker Payne and Vice President Hobart. George B. Cortelyou, assistant secretary to the president, receipted for the resolutions in the usual form, and then notified the president they had arrived. The president said simply that he would sign the resolutions immediately, and a few minutes later the act became a law.

A girl with a well filled programme travels thus in one evening, twelve waltzes, nine miles; four other dances at half a mile apiece, two miles more; the intermission stroll and the trips to the dressing room to renovate her gown and complexion, half a mile; grand total, eleven and a half miles.

CASH CAUSES JOY.

Kindly Interest in Co. K Pleases the Boys.

Camp Dalton,
Saturday, July 9.

There was a heavy rain early this morning but it gives promise of clearing before noon.

Co. K members were happy to read in yesterday's Ledger of the very generous purse which is being raised in Quincy for them. They have not yet felt the necessity of such a fund, and yet they feel that they have been denied many of the comforts of home, and that the food furnished is not as adequate as it should be. It has been the attempt of the company to merit the esteem of their townspeople, and to make a good showing at the front.

Any fund which my be forwarded to Capt. Kincaide will not be squandered, but will be used economically for the necessities and comfort of camp. The liberality shown convinces the boys that they have friends at home who have a great interest in them, and will stimulate them to greater effort.

Among those off last night on leave of absence were Sergt. Phillips, Sergt. Crane and Privates Clements and McLaughlin.

Corp. Wardwell had the distinction of using the first internal revenue stamp in camp. It was affixed to a telegram.

Many who in the past have been unable to purchase the Ledger from tent to tent, are pleased to learn that copies may be obtained at the canteen. There is also a copy in the reading tent of the Christian Commission.

Readers of the Globe today have a sketch of the commissioned officers of Co. K—Capt. Kincaide, 1st Lieut. Whitney and 2d Lieut. Spear.

When the Fifth breaks camp for the South, Capt. Kincaide will be senior officer of the second battalion, having advanced another point.

The Boston & Albany timetable of South Framingham trains will be a convenience for Quincy people visiting camp. On week days trains run as follows, the expresses making the trip in 35 minutes:

The boys of Co. K are requested to hand in the names of their visitors to the Ledger correspondent. All such favors will be appreciated.

The Daily Ledger is now for sale at the newly established canteen, and all the income derived therefrom will be paid to Harry McLaughlin, the Ledger representative. A large supply will be sent so that all will be able to obtain a copy before worn out.—Eds.

—It is sound public policy as well as sound finance, to give the people of the whole country an early opportunity to learn what war means in the daily business and daily life. Large sections of the country have hardly felt the tremor of impending battle. Some industries have been depressed, trade has lagged somewhat. But while vast sums are melting from the Treasury before the breath of war, the people generally have not yet learned that they must call at the captain's office and settle The revenue bill, now a law, will change all that. We shall have the long past experience of the Civil War revived at every turn. Stamp duties, legacy taxes and the all-inclusive "revenue tax" direct and indirect, will now make us aware that we must pay for our sport. This is as it should be. It will be a hardship to many and not agreeable to any. But war is costly and constrictive. When we feel the blister we shall know it is a Spanish fly.—Universalist Leader.

TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "'leventy-'leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. MAY BE DECIDED TODAY

Crucial Point In the Siege of Santiago City.

The Armistice Extended Until This Afternoon.

American Advantages If Hostilities Are Resumed.

"Fighting Bob" Evans Tells of His Work With the Iowa.

Port Antonio, July 9.—How long will Santiago hold out? That is the question asked through all the camp. The entire civil government of the city has already surrendered and come over to our lines for protection, deserting the military and denouncing the mad resistance at the expense of the destruction of Santiago. Thursday evening the civil government, the mayor and the president of the upper court of justice came to Caney and delivered themselves up to our forces. They had been forbidden by General Toral to leave the town, but fearing death in the bombardment or at the hands of the Spanish soldiers during the outburst attending defeat, they sneaked away, coming across the mountains in a crowd of other refugees and as soon as possible revealed their identity to the Americans.

Orders were issued to treat them with every possible consideration for their comfort. They told touching stories of hardships and the condition of the Spanish forces. They said that many of the poor were practically starving; that rice and black bread constitute the only food obtainable; that the Spanish losses in the two days' fighting were far greater than has been reported or estimated and that further resistance was nothing short of murder.

Thursday, when the break of day showed a white flag flying over the Spanish headquarters, it was supposed it meant surrender. Then out from the city came a messenger with another truce flag. The bearer proved to be a commissioner from General Toral with an appeal for more time to think over a surrender, and a request that the English telegraph operators be sent back to the city so that Madrid and Havana might be appealed to for permission to hand the city over to the Americans. General Shafter, willing to make the victory as bloodless as possible, granted an extension of the truce to 4 p. m. today, and sent over to Caney to ask the British operators if they would go back to Santiago under Toral's promise of safety, and send the desired messages of appeal. They agreed to do this. So General Toral's commissioner was escorted through another part of our lines from that through which he had entered, his escort being particular to show him the points most heavily mounted for offense.

General Shafter has succeeded in getting his siege guns in commanding positions at the front, and Sergeant Borrowe has his dynamite gun repaired and in position on San Juan hill. Our troops have also fortified themselves with protected rifle pits, from which they will be able to do the enemy much harm, without themselves being especially exposed to the enemy's fire. In addition to these advantages gained on land by General Shafter, he has arranged with Admiral Sampson for the fleet to participate in the attack on the city.

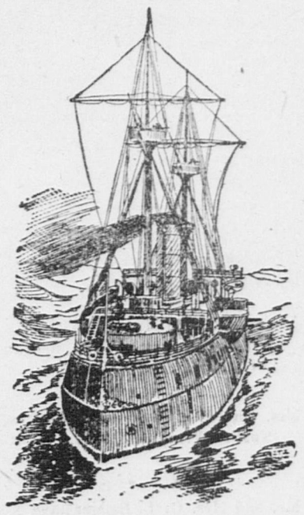
Not a night has passed without finding the American lines pushed closer to the beleaguered city. General Lawton's entire division pressed forward at least 500 yards Thursday night, and when morning came the Spaniards were astonished to see a new line of American intrenchments only 400 yards from their own lines. By this move one of our regiments has obtained a position where it can enfilade past the enemy's intrenchments, which will be untenable after the firing begins. In fact, so strong has our position become that the Spanish troops will be unable long to endure the fire which will be turned on them if the negotiations for the city's surrender fail.

The men on the Iowa were the first to see the fleet coming out of the harbor. Somebody on the bridge shouted "What's that black thing coming out of the harbor?". A moment later the Iowa was at general quarters and the signal hoisted that the enemy's ships were coming out. In talking about the fight Commander Evans said: "The Cristobal Colon, being much faster than the rest of the Spanish ships, passed rapidly to the front in an effort to escape. In passing the Iowa the Colon placed two 6-inch shells fairly in our starboard bow. One passed through the dispensary, wrecking the latter and bursting on the berth deck, doing considerable damage. The other passed through the side at the waterline with the cofferdam, where it still remains. As it was obviously impossible to ram any of the Spanish ships on account of their superior speed, the Iowa's helm was put to the starboard; being abreast of the Admiralte Oquendo at a distance of 1100 yards, the Iowa's entire battery was opened. The punishment was terrific. Many 12 and 8-inch shells were seen to explode inside of the Oquendo, and smoke came out through her hatches. Two 12-inch shells from the Iowa pierced the vessel at the same moment—one forward and the other aft. The Oquendo seemed to stop her engines for a moment and lost headway, but she immediately resumed her speed and gradually drew ahead of the Iowa and came under the terrible fire of the Oregon and Texas.

"At this moment the alarm of 'torpedo boats' was sounded, and two destroyers were discovered on the Iowa's starboard quarter at a distance of 4000 yards. Fire was at once opened on them with the after battery, and a 12-inch shell cut the stern of one of them completely off. As this shell struck, a small torpedo boat fired back at the battleship, sending a shell within a few feet of my head.

"Meantime the Brooklyn and the Cristobal Colon were exchanging compliments in lively fashion at long range; and the Oregon, with her locomotive speed, was hanging well on to the Colon, also paying attention to the Vizcaya. The Teresa and the Oquendo were in flames on the beach just 20 minutes after the first shot was fired. Fifty minutes after the first shot was fired the Vizcaya put her helm to port, with a great burst of flame from the after part of the ship, and headed slowly for the rocks at Acceraderos, where she found her last resting place.

"As it was apparent that the Iowa could not possibly catch the Cristobal Colon and that the Oregon and Brooklyn undoubtedly would, and, as the fast New York was also on her trail, I decided that the calls of humanity should be answered and attention given to the 1200 or 1500 Spanish officers and men who had struck their colors to the American squadron commanded by Admiral Sampson. I therefore headed for the wreck of the Vizcaya, now burning furiously fore and aft. When I was as far as the depth of water would admit I lowered all my boats."



SPANISH BATTLESHIP VIZCAYA.

One man on the lost Vizcaya had his left arm almost shot off just below the shoulder. The fragments were hanging by a small piece of skin, but he climbed over the side and saluted as if on a visit of ceremony. Immediately after him came a salior whose left leg had been shot off above the knee. He was hoisted on board the Iowa with a tackle, but never a whimper came from him. Gradually the mangled bodies and naked well men accumulated until it would have been almost difficult to recognize the Iowa as a United States battleship. Blood was all over her usually white quarter deck, and 272 naked men were being supplied with water and food by those who a few minutes before had been using a rapid-fire battery on them. Finally came the boat with Captain Eulate, commander of the Vizcaya, for whom a chair was lowered over the side, as he was evidently wounded. The captain's guard of marines was drawn up on the quarter deck to salute him. As the chair was placed on deck the marines presented arms. Captain Eulate slowly raised himself in the chair, saluted with grave dignity, unbuckled his sword belt, and, holding the hilt of the sword before him, kissed it reverently. Captain Evans declined to receive the sword, and, as the crew of the Iowa saw this, they cheered like wild men.

The officers of the Vizcaya said they simply could not hold their crews at the guns on account of the rapid fire poured upon them. The decks were flooded with water from the fire hose, and the blood from the wounded made this a dark red. Fragments of bodies floated in this along the gun deck. Every instant the crack of exploding shells told of new havoc. One of the 12-inch shells from the Iowa exploded a torpedo in the bow of the Vizcaya, blowing 20 men against the deck above and dropping them dead and mangled into the fire which at once started below.

The Ericsson was sent by the flagship to help the Iowa rescue the Vizcaya's crew. Her men saw a terrible sight. The flames leaping out from the huge shot-holes in the Vizcaya's sides licked up the decks, sizzling the flesh of the wounded who were lying there shrieking for help. Between the frequent explosions there came awful cries and groans from the men penned in below. This carnage was chiefly due to the rapidity of the American's fire. Corporal Smith on the Iowa fired 135 aimed shots in 50 minutes from a 4-inch gun. Two shells struck within 10 feet of Smith and started a small fire, but the corporal went on pumping shots into the enemy, only stopping to say "They've got it in for this gun, sir." Up in the tops the marines banged away with the 1-pounders, too excited to stop to duck as the shells whistled over them. One gunner of a secondary battery under a 12-inch gun was blinded by smoke and saltpeter from the turret, and his crew were driven off, but, sticking a wet handkerchief over his face, with holes cut for his eyes, he stuck to his gun.

Another Steamer Destroyed.

Key West, July 9.—An unknown Spanish steamer was destroyed off Mariel Wednesday. Tuesday the Hawk was cruising about 20 miles off shore, six miles west of Morro castle, when she sighted the Spaniard headed for Havana under slow steam with all lights out. The Hawk gave chase, but the stranger ran in toward the harbor of Mariel and grounded just west of the enterance. It was a moonlight night, and the Hawk sent two boatloads of men, who were driven back by rifle fire from the steamer. The men returned to the Hawk, which lay outside until daybreak. She then returned to the blockade line and asked for help. The Castine accompanied her, but as both ships approached the shore the 5-inch guns on Martello tower at the east side of Mariel harbor, a sand battery on the west and two gunboats in the harbor, opened a brisk fire.

The American ships' guns were not sufficiently strong to contest with this, and the Hawk again ran back, returning with the Pirate with her 6-inch guns. The latter sent 38 shells crashing into the fortifications and gunboats and silenced them after a lively engagement. The three ships then turned on the steamer and literally riddled her, the Castine alone firing over 200 shots. The fight lasted until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Spaniard was left burning on the beach. The American ships could not get close enough to learn her name. None of the three American ships was struck.

War Into Africa.

Washington, July 9.—There has been considerable doubt as to whether the squadron would sail for Spain if the Madrid government ordered Camara's fleet to return, but it was stated, after consideration given to the matter, that the fleet would sail without fail.

"The orders to the fleet are no longer in the nature of a bluff," a high official said. "Commodore Watson will go to Spain, and he will go as promptly as possible."

It is expected that by next Thursday the fleet will be on its way across the Atlantic, and in the meantime the authorities will determine what additional ships should be placed under Commodore Watson's orders.

No Negotiations For Peace.

Madrid, July 9.—All rumors as to peace negotiations are semi-officially declared to be unfounded.

A dispatch from Santiago says that after the Merrimac prisoners were exchanged, Shafter again demanded that the city should surrender, declaring that otherwise the attack would ce resumed Saturday noon. It concludes by saying that although Santiago lacks provisions it will defend itself until the end.

A Spanish Canard.

Madrid, July 9.—The Spanish consul at Hong Kong cables that the insurgents at Cavite, Manila bay, have revolted against the Americans. He adds that a sharp fusilade was exchanged, and that the result is not known.

In another part of his dispatch the Spanish consul makes the assertion that the majority of the Philippine insurgents have received the American reinforcements with hostility because they include numbers of negroes.

According to a dispatch received here from Havana, Captain General Blanco openly urges the continuation of the war. The newspapers say that the moment has not arrived to seek for peace. One of them adds: "We find ourselves in a position from which we are able to make our enemies feel the consequences of the war."

Camara Gets a Recall.

Cairo, Egypt, July 9.—Admiral Camara, the commander of the Spanish fleet which was bound for the Philippines, and which recently passed through the Suez canal, has informed the Egyptian government that he has been ordered to return to Spain. Therefore his ships will go through the canal immediately and will proceed westward. The Spanish ships will now be allowed to coal, as they are returning home.

Sailed For Cuba.

Charleston, July 9.—The cruisers Yale and Columbia, with the Sixth Massachusetts and one battalion of the Sixth Illinois aboard, sailed today for Cuba. The work of trans-shipping the soldiers was accomplished without mishap. By some mistake one company of the Sixth Massachusetts was left on the wharves when the steamers started. Adjutant Butler Ames promptly chartered a tug and took them out to the transports.

General Miles and his staff arrived in the city at 6:30 p. m. yesterday, and went out to the Yale. It was stated positively that the two ships would sail for Santiago. The Sixth Massachusetts is quartered on the Yale, while the Illinois men are on the Columbia. The expedition numbers 1720 men. There are still in the city 4000, and others are expected from Chickamauga.

Wounded Taken to Tampa.

Key West, July 9.—Four transports carrying wounded from Santiago entered the lower harbor yesterday afternoon with the intention of landing the most serious cases here. A government tug went out to them and gave some information which resulted in the hospital ships proceeding to Tampa. Key West is having its hands full in the attempts to minister to the 300 soldiers brought by the Iroquois Tuesday. The local facilities are limited, and the town just now, during the hottest spell of the year, is suffering from an ice famine in consequence of the breakdown of the only ice making plant in the place. Probably those conditions influenced a change of plans with regard to the latest cargoes of wounded.

Town Wiped Out.

Cuba, Mo., July 9.—A courier from Steelville, the county seat of Crawford county, brought the news that the town had almost been wiped out by a waterspout Friday morning. The known dead are: Mrs. Louis Tucker and babe, St. Louis; Charles Abrams' daughter, St. Louis; Mrs. John Woods and two children; Mrs. James Taff and three children; Mrs. William Lesough, Luther S. Lesough, and a colored man, unknown.

As soon as the news was received a relief party started for the stricken town. The town was in ruins. Few buildings were left standing and groans of anguish could be heard on all sides as the searchers sought for loved ones among the debris. The waterspout occurred outside of the town, but swelled Yadkin creek, which came down in a mighty flood; sweeping all before it. Thirteen bodies have been recovered; but it is thought more have perished. Steelville was a town of 1000 inhabitants.

Series of Clinches.

Philadelphia, July 9.—A six-round go between Ben Jordan of England and Ellwood McCloskey of this city last night was a disappointment. The bout was a series of clinches, during which the Englishman landed repeatedly on McCloskey's wind, the referee making no effort to interrupt the clinching.

It is a marvel how some men will risk their lives by sheer neglect. They sleep away entirely oblivious of the danger creeping upon them. Men can hardly be made to realize that a little sputtering spark of disease which might be stamped out in an instant may mean death if it is allowed to keep on. Dyspepsia, constipation and liver complaint seem like trifling matters but they will eventually wreck the constitution as surely as a spark will blow up a keg of powder.

If your health is not strong and vigorous it is a simple and sensible thing to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., and obtain from him and his staff of eminent specialists, without charge, professional advice which will enable you to put your constitution on a solid basis of health and strength forthwith, before these ailments have a chance to reduce you to a physical wreck.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is acknowledged as the most wonderful medicine ever devised for those diseases which are caused by imperfect action of the liver and digestive organs.

Mr. F. M. Robinett, of Xenophon, Hancock Co., Tenn., says in a letter to Dr. Pierce: "I can heartily recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and torpid liver. I tried different doctors with but little result, I could scarcely eat anything—it would put me in such dreadful distress in my stomach. I had a dull aching pain in my stomach, and continual hurting behind my shoulders, bad taste in my mouth, tongue coated brown, had faint spells with a tired worn-out feeling. I took eleven bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and received great benefit. I am now able to work. If it had not been for this wonderful remedy I believe I would not be living to-day."

The most difficult diseases to cure are those which are aggravated by constipation. In such cases Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be taken in conjunction with the "Discovery." They never gripe. All good dealers sell them.

CLOSING INCIDENTS.

Rancor and Enthusiasm Enliven the House Session.

Angry Members on the Verge of a Riot.

Adjournment Followed by an Exhibition of Good Feeling.

Washington, July 9.—In the house yesterday Mr. Handy, by moving to strike from the records a part of the speech which appeared as that of Mr. Ray (Rep., N. Y.), started a dispute which brought on a closing incident of sensational nature, during which a question of veracity arose between Messrs. Ray and Handy. Finally Mr. Cannon (Rep., Ills.), by denouncing the Democrats for delaying business by calling for tellers on the motion to strike out, came near precipitating a riot. The mace was brought into service before order was restored.

When Speaker Reed declared the session adjourned without day, a great cheer arose, and then began a scene which, while similar to the closing scenes of sessions, far surpassed in enthusiasm and good feeling any episode in the memory of the oldest member of the house. The occupants of the packed galleries who had risen to go paused as they heard a half dozen members singing "America." Other members hurriedly crowded around the speaker's stand and joined the other singers, until within a short time it seemed all members present were aiding in swelling the volume of song. Presently a voice here and there in the galleries joined in it, and it was not long until members and all spectators were singing the patriotic hymn.

The scene was a marked transition from the partisan demonstrations which had been witnessed such a short time before. Democrats and Republicans were now singing in accord a national anthem. When the song ceased some members proposed three cheers for the "nation's president," and the roar of sound that followed came from a united house. Then "north, south, east, west, a united country," was proposed, and then in turn came the heroes of the war, Dewey, Schley, Hobson, Sampson. Finally Representative Wheeler, who is now clinging, though ill, to his command in front of Santiago, was named, and the hall resounded with cheers of thrilling strength. Then the singing proceeded.

"PRIVATE" JOHN ALLEN OF MISSISSIPPI.

Meantime Sergeant-at-Arms Russell had brought 200 small flags, and every member was waving one. "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung while flags waved and the galleries cheered. Later followed "Yankee Doodle" and "Dixie," the latter perhaps for the first time in the house joined in by members from every section of the country. Cheers for the speaker were given. The patriotic demonstration continued a half hour and then the members began leaving, saying farewell to colleagues. "Home, Sweet Home" and "Auld Lang Syne" supplanted the patriotic airs and impressed more strongly upon the hearers that another session was ended.

Clerk McDowell, when the singing ceased, mounted the clerk's stand and announced that Mr. Allen of Mississippi had opened a recruiting office in the ways and means committee room, and a few minutes later Mr. Allen, popularly known as "Private John," arose and said: "The congressional rough riders will report to me in the committee room and enlist for Cuba." The announcement was suggestive of his speech delivered a number of days ago in which he proposed that a company of congressmen be recruited.

In the senate Mr. Morgan opposed the adjournment, maintaining that it would be far more desirable for congress to take a recess until the first Monday in September. Mr. Morgan said: "There is absolutely no necessity for an adjournment at this time. It is a hasty, improvident and dangerous step. Thus far the president has not indicated to congress, so far as I know, that he desires to be rid of us, and until he has manifested such a desire we ought to remain here. It seems to me that the war with Spain is drawing to a conclusion. The ending of the war will bring to congress questions of the highest importance, of the gravest consequences in our history. I should not be satisfied to go away in the circumstances, leaving the president without our support. We do not know what emergencies confront us, what dangers lie just ahead. If the army in the intense heat of a tropical sun can stay in the field we, in the midst of comfort, can remain here. It would be a reproach to the government if, after we had gone away, the president in 30 or 40 days should call us back, and I do not doubt that he will do so."

Mr. Allen was of the same opinion, but the motion was carried.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

DOTTED GRENADINE GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

Some of the most expensive, as well as certain more simple, imported costumes are made with hip yokes, either of embroidery, insertion, or material of the dress.

A dainty grenadine gown of rose pink wrought with black silk dots, over a drop skirt so faintly green as to be almost white, is made with a hip yoke of undulated form, to which is shirred a wide flounce that continues straight and full up the back, framed by the ruffled edges of the yoke at the top. An apron front is outlined by three graduated ruffles of coral satin ribbon that follows the curves of the yoke, while the yoke itself is bordered with three similar narrower frills. Another cluster of frillings edges the flounce at the foot.

The waist whose long shirred sleeves of cream silk muslin are trimmed with tiny ruffles in the outer seam and at the wrist, has a collarette rolling from a muslin guimpe, which is bordered with a deep lace headed by three narrow ruffles, while a still narrower group is around the lower edge of the collar. A touch of character is given by bands of black velvet ribbon which cross the ront diagonally, passing loosely over the folds of the blouse, and are finished by fluffy rosettes of the velvet graded in size, the lower one apparently attaching the narrow belt. Each bow has a tiny coral ornament as its centre. The proper cut of this gown can be obtained only from the cut paper pattern published by Harper's Bazar, where the gown appears.

The hat, in the favorite turban style, is draped with a puffy scarf of striped gauze in cream and shaded coral, which holds two jetted quills at one side.

Quantity of material for gown—Grenadine, 46 inches wide, 5 yards; silk muslin, 1 1-2 yards; velvet ribbon, 2 3-4 yards; satin ribbon for skirt ruffles, three widths, 15 yards each. Ribbon for yoke and collarette, 16 yards; ribbon for collar and sleeves, 7 yards; lace for collarette, 2 yards.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 10.
Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The consecration of ability.—Hag. ii, 1-9; Mark xii, 29-31.

(Prayer for the international Christian Endeavor convention.)

All have not the same talents and abilities in life. God has placed some in high position and some in low. To some He has given great wealth, to others poverty. To one man He gives power and influence; to another He does not. Some men have five talents, some but two, some but one. But whether much or little has been given it has all come from God and should be used for Him.

1. Ability should be consecrated to God because it is the gift of God. All things belong to God and are gifts from God, given not to be used for ourselves, but for Him.

"The silver is mine and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts." "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," saith the psalmist. It is God who exalteth one man and debaseth another. The man who has five talents received them from God. They therefore belong to God and should be consecrated to Him. Great talents possess a great danger. We are apt to be proud and selfish, to imagine that the greatness is inherent in ourselves, and that we can use it for our own glory and advancement. No matter how great may be our talents and ability, let us remember that all comes from God, and thank Him by using all our gifts for Him and His cause.

2. Ability should be consecrated to God, because it brings great responsibility. God will demand of us an account for all He has given us. The man who had five talents had to account for five talents. We often envy those who are rich, those who occupy high positions in life, and wish we had similar riches and positions, but when we think what great responsibilities come with these things had we not perhaps better thank God that He has withheld them from us. Think of accounting to God for the use of $1,000,000! Think of accounting to God for the power and ability to influence for good or evil hundreds or thousands of human beings, possessing immortal souls! The only way to bear the responsibility of ability, however great or small, is to consecrate it to God, to use it not as belonging to ourselves, but for Him.

3. Ability should be consecrated to God, because it is a divine command that our all should be given to him. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength." This, says Christ, is the first commandment. With heart, soul, mind and strength, with our entire beings, we are to love and serve God. This is His own commandment. Abilities of head, heart and hand are to be used for God, however great or however small they may be. All that we are, all that we may hope to be, all that we have, comes from God and should be used therefore for Him.

Bible Readings. — Deut. vi, 1-5; Judges vii, 15-23; I Sam. xvii, 45-54; II Sam. xxii, 33, 35, Ps. xcvi, 7-13; civ, 24; cxxi, 1-8; cxxiv, 1-8; Math. xxv, 14-30; Luke xvi, 19-31; xix, 11-27; Rom. xii, 1; I Cor. vi, 19, 20; x, 31; Eph. iv, 11-16.

Maturity and Symmetry.

When a soul is born anew, it is "a babe of Christ," and as such is an object of interest, gratitude and expectation. The hope is that it will not always be a babe. Birth itself is a great event only if it is the antecedent of something greater. The family does not exist simply that children may be born, but chiefly that they may be trained into mature and symmetrical men and women, that the race may be advanced in strength and well being. The church does not exist simply that men may be born again, but chiefly that they may be developed into "full grown men," attaining "the stature of the fullness of Christ."—Commonwealth, Baptist.

Man's Extremity.

When men get into trouble, they are often anxious to be saved from their troubles, though they were unwilling to take advice before. It is our duty to ask God to keep us from running into temptation as well as to ask Him to help us out. The best time to ask God's help out of trouble is before one gets into it. Many a child cries lustily for help to get out of the pond who refused to obey his mother and stay away from it. It is true "man's extremity is God's opportunity." But man had better not wait for the extremity, but take counsel in time that he may be saved from the extremity.—Christian Instructor.

No Authority.

Judge Hardy of the Superior court does not believe in the curfew law, which takes the control of children out of the hands of parents. Passing upon the proposed by law of Winthrop, he says; "I do not approve of this by-law, because the petition does not set forth the article in the warrant upon which action was taken by the town and because I am of the opinion that the town has no authority to make such a by-law."

—The national bankruptcy bill which congress sent to the president for his signature last week will affect business men throughout the country. It will go into full force and effect immediately, except that voluntary petitions in bankruptcy cannot be filed for thirty days and involuntary petitions for four months after the passage of the act. The great advantage gained by the enactment of the law is that hereafter the bankruptcy proceedings in all the states will be uniform, instead of varying widely, as they have in the past. A Massachusetts man, for instance, who has a debtor in New York will stand on equal chance hereafter with all the other creditors, if his debtor fails, instead of losing the whole amount of his debt, as the case has been usually in the past. Business interests are to be congratulated on the enactment of the law.—Somerville Journal.

A Trenton, Me., storekeeper, who yet keeps on hand some 75 cents a yard calicos bought in war time, evidently never heard of bargain days."

WITH THE BOYS.

Secretary Hoehn of Quincy Y. M. C. A. With Fifth Regiment.

July 8, 1898
In Camp Dalton,
South Framingham, Mass.

Editors of the Ledger:

Gentlemen: Well here I am with the boys of the Fifth Regiment in their city of tents and among the boys who have left our own fair ctiy in the ranks of Co. K to go forth in serving their country's flag. I find them all a contented and happy lot with not one word of complaint.

Capt. Kincaide says his men are all well and he himself is ready for a move when the orders come.

The work of the Christian Commission with this regiment just begun and at present is situated in No. 3 mess hall, but will remove in a day or two to the large tent near the hospital tent.

It is surprising to see the large number of men who throng these rooms. Here are some playing games, chess checkers, crockniole, etc. Here are others pouring over the contents of daily papers and the magazines and at other tables are men writing letters to their homes.

It is all a sight seldom to be witnessed. Here is a man near me while I am writing reading from a Bible, looking up a verse or two to incorporate in his letter home. Yes, men all about me ready to be influenced for good.

Mr. E. J. Collins of Attleboro has been appointed secretary of the Christian Commission of the Fifth Regiment and will move with it. This week he has the assistance of the Episcopal rector from Attleboro. The Commission is doing a commendable work and has the hearty co-operation of Col. Whitney and Chaplain House. Capt. Kincaide of Co. K said while in conversation with him, that "it was a grand good thing." On Sundays, religious services are held in the tent and many men have already expressed a desire to lead Christian lives.

It will pay any one in Quincy to run out and see what is being done at Camp Dalton and what is being done here is being repeated throughout this country in the various camps by the Christian Commission. It needs your help and financial assistance. Money may be sent to Miss Hubbard, treasurer at Quincy, as well as any donations of magazines or other reading matter, writing materials, or Bibles.

Very sincerely,
WILLIAM F. HOEHN.

LIKE A WITCH.

The Boston Adertiser says, "The 21-ft. open class brought out Recruit for her maiden race and she won it handily making a show of Tacoma, whom she beat 10 minutes and of Elsa, who was 20 minutes behind. Com. Rice's boat sets lightly on the water as a racing machine should, and seems to skim over it rather than through it. If the comparison be made only with the class she sailed like a witch and won handsomely. But, without attempting criticism, the fact that Privateer, a cabin boat, sailed the same course on practically the same time makes Recruit's first race seem less of a marvel. Tacoma and Elsa must have been badly off their form to have been so far behind Privateer's time. This class got away at 3.10 P. M., the cup-defender sailed by C. F. Adams showing the way over the line with Tacoma, Elsa and Yahoo following. Their course was a beat to red can bouy 6, a reach to Deer Island light, another reach to Point Shirley, a bea to 6 again, and down the wind home. Recruit was never headed and had a long lead over the nearest boat at every mark.

Tacoma lost the race on the first leg to windward, and was never within striking distance after Recruit rounded buoy 6 the first time. The 21-ft. cabin craft sailed the same course. On the start Omeme and Harriet went over the line almost together. Once across they fouled, each lodging a protest against the other after the race. Privateer was right on them but tacked ship and escaped a second collision. Before the two colliding yachts got clear Privateer had a good lead and kept it all over the course. Harriet made a stern chase of it to no avail, while Omeme withdrew disabled.

WAS NOT PUSHED.

The Globe says, "The yacht racing was made notable by the first racing appearance of Com. Fred B. Rice's 21-footer Recruit, which is to deffend the Quincy Club's $500 challnege cup. She was sailed by Charles F. Adams, 2d, and made a most creditable showing, particularly in her work off the wind. Recruit had a fine start on the other 21-footers, and turned to windward very fast, gaining materially on the class ahead. Tacoma and Elsa seemed slow in comparison. Running to Deer island the Recruit caught up with the 25-footers, and still further improved her position on the reach to the judges' boat, being close to the Little Peter, which was third boat. On the second leg to windward, however the Recruit slowed up materially, either because of the lighter air or because her skipper knew he had time to burn, and was passed by even the last of the big ones. Her time, only nine seconds better than that of Privateer, shows that she was not pushed to her best the last part of the way. Tacoma finished nearly 10 minutes behind the Recruit, with Elsa 10 minutes further astern.

THE STAR EVENT.

The Journal says, "The performance of the Quincy Yacht club's defender of the international challenge cup, the Recruit, was the star event on the racing calendar. She started in class L, and shot across the starting line like a race horse, and on the first leg to the windward she dropped her own class and rounded the mark away ahead. On the run before the wind, the nimble craft made a great spurt and pulled well up to the first class boats reaching home, she caught and cassed the Beatrice, Tantrum, Nettie and Little Petter."

MUST GO FASTER.

The Herald says, "In the 21-foot class, interest centered in Mr. Bice's new boat, the recruit, which was sailing her maiden race. Against her were the Tacoma, the Elsa and the Nahant dory Yahoo. The Recruit soon shook off her rivals on the beat to buoy 6, and on the next two legs, both reaches, she went like a ghost, running up into the 25-footers that started five minutes ahead of her. The second time out to windward she did not seem to do as well, and all the 25-footers beat her with sheets aft. Of course it was her first race, and she cannot yet be judged for her real speed, but when her time is compared with that made by the cabin boat of her length, the Privateer, it will be seen that she must go faster if she is to be classed as a world beater. The Hoodlum over that course would have lost her. The Tacoma had no trouble in keeping far ahead of the Elsa for second money, and the Yahoo withdrew."

BRAINTREE.

Mrs. H. H. Snow and daughter are at Houghs Neck.

Mrs. N. G. Torrey is in New Hampshire for the summer.

Lawrence Hewes, formerly editor of the Observer, has graduated from Dartmouth college.

The First church Sunday School picnic will take place at the New Downer Landing, Quincy Point, next Wednesday. The round trip will cost sixteen cents.

The chorus at the First church is having a few weeks' vacation and the singing will be done by a quartette, composed of Mrs. Jennie Thayer Haskell, soprano; Mrs. Ellsworth, alto; Dr. Ernest Bent, tenor; and Mr. Charles Kohler, bass.

Arrangements have been made to erect five standpipes for the purpose of watering the main streets. They are to be put in at the expense of Mr. McConarty of Quincy, who will be paid for his labor by subscription. Let the good work go on.

A handsome flag has been raised over the East Braintree post-office.

Editor Crooker and family spent the Fourth at his old home in New Hampshire.

The members of the Hook & Ladder Company, No. 2, were out for practice on Wednesday evening, under the charge of Capt. Carmichael.

Frank Torrey of East Braintreee met with a painful accident on Monday. A bunch of fire-crackers became ignited in his pocket and he was badly burned before he could remove them.

Rev. A. A. Ellsworth and family of Braintree go to Point Allerton today for a week.

The Fore River Engine company have commenced to build two new buildings, one 70 by 250 feet and the other 54 by 126 feet; both buildings are expected to be used as steel mills. The company expect to receive contracts from the government for the building of several boats for the navy.

Walter Harrison of Hollis avenue entered the 100-yard swimming race for boys under 18 at North End beach, Boston, on the Fourth. He won this race by 20 lengths, thereby winning the first prize, a gold medal, which was presented to him by Mayor Quincy. In the relay race which followed later he won a sliver cup.

Miss Bessie Kennedy will lead the Young People's meeting Sunday evening, July 10. Topic, "The consecration of ability." Hag. 2:1-9; Mark 12: 29-31. (A meeting for special thought and prayer for the Nashville convention.)

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Davenport of Middle street are entertaining a little son.

The champion cherry picker to date is Willie Brooks of East Braintree who picked 76 pounds of cherries in four hours on Monday. This is a fact. Next.

That must have indeed been a pleasant meeting when Mr. Charles G. Richards took the hand of his old friend, William Leonard, whom he had not seen for thirty-five years; and the two short hours at their disposal were improved in relating experiences and talking over old times. Mr. Leonard holds an important position on a St. John boat where he has been for thirty years. When he lived here he and Charlie Richards were always together, and it is no wonder they were pleased to meet after the long separation. Willie Leonard would get a warm reception from the old friends if he would come to South Braintree.

SUNSET BY THE SEA.

I stood upon a cliff whose sheer dark side
Went shelving downward steeply to the shore.
A sultry haze had all that day enwrapped
The heavens and earth and ocean. Overhead
The tyrant sun flamed in his sapphire realm,
And, merciless, untired, abated not
The cruel brightness of his wanton fires.
Parched was the earth and fevered. Every flower
Drooped its sweet head, the very birds were still.
No kindly awning of wind fretted cloud
Checkered the swaying corn with rippling shade,
The sea did mock the aching blue above,
And motionless upon its molten waves
The fishing boats upreared their baffled wings;
But now the pallor of the dying day
Mellowed the steely sky to softer hues.
At last the sun had stooped, in act to dip,
Beneath the ocean's rim, yet westward still
The blood red story of his orb did stain
The sullen clouds with crimson. One bright shaft
Of quivering, dancing light, athwart the sea
Reached from the western heavens to the shore.
Save for that lambent path, the earth and sea
Sank down beneath the scepter of the night.
The breeze that swooned away and died at morn
Sobbed itself back to life, and homeward bound
A brown sailed ship forged slowly through the waves
And passed into the flood of fairy light.
Lo! For a moment she was glorified.
Enkindled were her masts and tapering yards
And wreathed with golden fire. Around her hull
Soft sighed the phosphorous ripples, till she passed
Into the dim and darkling space beyond,
And all her borrowed radiance fled away.
Slowly the gorgeous hues did fade and die
Wherewith the sun doth on his latter path
Incarnadine the firmament of God.
A moaning sigh was wafted from the sea.
The long grass shuddered on the wind swept cliff.
Far, far below me I could hear the plash
Of breakers on the beach, though all that day
Voiceless had been their ebb. Upon my ear
Fell the gull's scream, and round about my head,
Grim myrmidons of night, the dusky bats
Wheeled on their phantom flight, and one by one
From ship and harbor flashed the twinkling lights
Athwart the sea, as though to mock the gleam
Of mightier beacons in the starlit sky.

—London Spectator.

HOW DEATH COMES.

They wrapped Isdale in his blankets when they had outspanned and placed him under the wagon to shelter him from the night dews. He moaned a little, but seemed unconscious as to who was about him and where he was. They made their fire near him, and sat so close to him as possible, and hoped the boy would slip off that way quietly during the night without pain. Nothing more could they do to save him. Their experience of the fever made them feel assured his death would be easy, but the great horror was that he should perish in the veldt wilderness, and he but six months out from home.

The great full moon, which seems to gaze more nearly and more sadly on Africa than on other lands, was directly over the camp. In its light the thin bushed veldt glimmered as an ocean of silvery billows, close bounded by solemn shadows. From these shadows what would come to the men tonight, stalking unseen through the midst of them, bearing the sword of death?

Copeland laid his pipe down and knelt beside Isdale, feeling his pulse.

"How is it?" Paget asked when Jack came back.

"Very feeble. He don't know me at all. Smiles and whispers something about going fishing with Judy in the river. Wants to know why it's so cold on the banks."

"Judy's his sister," Paget said. "He showed me her photo. I fancy they were a lonely pair — playmates."

"Fishin in the river, eh?" old Hannen grumbled in his gray beard. "Then it's all up with the kid. It's always the river when they're goin off. It was so with me too."

Somebody laughed grimly.

"When did you die, Hannen?"

"I didn't—might say I wouldn't. It was on the northwest plains of the States and I was huntin with a party of eastern toffs. Got typho malarial, same as Isdale got his—don't know how. Nobody else got it. They dropped me at a half abandoned army post, for there was no town near, and put me in the soldiers' hospital. I was in an awful bad way — a most interestin case the bloomin doctor told me after, and off my head most of the time, and thin! I was afraid of the lookin glass for a month after it was over. They had swing doors at the end of the ward, and the bed at the doors was called the deathbed, because it was handy, you know, to get a cold man out without disturbing the other patients. So one evenin when I was lyin in a cot near a big box stove the doctor came round, and 'Put him in the deathbed,' says he to the hospital steward. 'He'll go some time tonight.' They thought I couldn't hear, I suppose, but I did and was too badly sick to care a rap. They changed me and put a screen round me and left me to die whenever I got ready.

"I suppose I went right off my head again. I had the queerest dreams, off through the prettiest green fields you ever saw, with the hedges and daisies and children playin in them, only I was cryin all the time because I was so cold. Somehow I got to a river, not a big one, it seemed, yet it was sort of dark on the other side, and the water was tumblin down, brown and noisily, like a trout stream in the Scotch hills. I lay down about ten yards from the bank, and it was awful cold. Years and years before a boy I'd been chums with at school had died and I'd near broke my heart about it. Now, from the other side of that river that boy sang out to me, only his voice wasn't very near like: 'Why don't you come, Jim? You can wade across.' And somethin seemed at the same time to be drawin me to the water. Well, I wouldn't. I was born pig headed, I suppose. It was too bally cold, and that settled it. The more the boy called and the more it, whatever it was, tried to push me and drag me to the water the more pig headed I got. I gritted my teeth and held on to the bank. Next thing I knew it was mornin and the doctor was hustlin me back to the box stove, sayin that I'd a wonderful constitution. That's all. But I tell you the people who made up these songs about 'The Other Side of Jordan' and 'When We Meet Beside the River' and all that knew what they were talkin about."

He looked thoughtfully at the moon.

"If I hadn't been born pig headed," he added dreamily, "I might have been havin good times now with my old chum instead of wearin my heart out for years in this unholy country."

"Well," said Paget, "if the end of a fever is as easy as that," and he glanced at Isdale, "with greenfields and trout streams, I shouldn't mind that way so much, though I've always thought I'd prefer a bullet."

"But it isn't always that," said Copeland. "I think sometimes death never comes twice in the same form. But, don't you know, I'm sure that under certain conditions people whom—a—don't you know, he—death, you know—wasn't after at all, might know, you know, he was near at hand. I'll tell you what I mean—if I can, you know. I was really beastly sick when I was in the sixth form with smallpox, and lots of other fellows were down too. There were three or four of us in the sick bay, and we pulled out all right in the end, except one. We who were convalescent were put in a room by ourselves and had a whacking time getting well, feeding like pigs and treated like angels. But Wyking, who was horribly ill, they left with trained nurses and all that kind of thing, you know, in the sick bay.

"I was pretty weak, and one night I woke up about 12 o'clock with the most ghastly feeling. I could barely breathe, and I couldn't cry out for the nurse. I knew somehow at once that death was in the house. I was covered with a cold sweat, and my breath seemed to come with terrible effort. I thought it was me who was wanted, and I never thought of praying, you know, or anything like that. I did like Hannen. I bit the pillow and held on desperately. I fancy it lasted about ten minutes, and then there was suddenly the sweetest relief. The sweat passed. I breathed gently and went to sleep again, but I knew death had passed and taken somebody.

"In the early morning I was awake when the nurse came with her medicines, and I asked her at once, 'What time did Charley die?' Charley, you know, was the boy left in the sick bay. She stared and gasped and asked me who had been in the room talking to me. I told her 'nobody.' She looked frightened, and told me I was foolish to think of such nonsense, and all that sort of thing, you know. But she ran out and brought in the doctor, who chaffed me, you know, but felt my pulse and his eyes looked strange. They stuck it out between them that Charley was all right, but I knew from their eyes they were afraid to tell the truth, because of the shock it might give us in our weak state. They owned up after we were strong that Charley did die at 12 o'clock that night. But why, I wonder, you know, did death pass so close to me on his way? The other fellows rested quietly that night, and Charley was too far off in that big school for me to hear any noise in his room."

Paget rose up and whispered to Isdale to ask if he wished for anything, but the sick lad was unconscious.

"He'll remain like that, do you think?" he asked softly as he came back to the fire. No one answered. The moon was sailing now toward the shadowy peaks of the gloomy, distant mountains. From the darkness of the far veldt came suddenly the long alarmed cry of a deer pounced on by a lion. Isdale muttered and moved, and Copeland threw wood on the fire and stirred it into a fierce blaze. A low voice spoke from the side of the flames farthest from the wagon.

"You were right, Mr. Copeland," said Maynard, the old elephant hunter, "right according to my idea about death coming never twice in just the same shape. It seems to me he studies the man he's sent after, and has his orders to disguise himself according — merciful or vengeful. But there may be more than that. I saw something once which made me think that the Lord sometimes allows a wronged dead man to come back at the appointed time and do death's work. It was in the north Transvaal country, long before gold was found on the Witwatersrand, but a man called Blakely and I were prospecting and keeping as far away as we could from the Boers on one hand and the Zulus on the other. We built a bit of a hut in a ravine in the hills and lay close. There I was taken ill, and Blakely nursed me, and when I was nearly well it was his turn and I nursed him.

"Blakely was always a silent, glum chap, and no particular pal of mine, but we had taken up together because two's better than one and there was nobody else about in Kimberley at the time we started out willing to risk his life prospecting in that wild country, for this thing was before the Zulu war. Blakely was sick. I soon saw his chances were mighty slim to pull through. He had never talked to me before of where he'd come from or what he'd been doing, but now he got delirious and began chattering at a great rate. I wasn't more than half recovered myself, weak as a girl, and a sight more nervous than most girls. When he began to talk to people I had never heard of, as if they were present, and to talk, too, of things it made me white to hear of all alone in that silent, lonely but in these horrible, gloomy, watching mountains, I had a mind to cut and run. But whatever he had been, he was my mate now, and I stuck by him, wondering if I'd have strength enough to bury him decently deep. One night the rains came on, and you know what they are in the mountains. The water came down with a crashing roar on the huge gray rocks which nigh equaled the rolling thunder peals in the clouds. I wanted a comrade bad that night. I'd have welcomed a Zulu. Blakely was raving, and I was trembling so with weakness and nervous far I could not bring him a cup of water without spilling it. Then what must he do? What but get it into his crazy head I was a priest, and he wanted to confess. He got out of his blankets and came to the log of wood I was sitting on, or shaking on, and knelt at my knees. In his delirium he was far stronger than I was, and I couldn't push him away. He blurted it all out, with all that crash of clouds and roar of rain to emphasize the eternal horror of it.

"Those ghastly hills are full of the ghosts of people long dead, seekers for gold. Men may laugh at the notion, but spend a day and a night among them alone and you'll know it for certain. They were all out that night in the storm in and about our hut, and Blakely knew it, too, for if ever a man was in a hurry to confess and get absolution he was that night. I'm not going to tell you the story in full. Indeed he was often incoherent. He'd been in Australia with a chap he called simply Tom, prospecting, of course. They'd had bad luck and were about giving it up when Tom got news from home inclosing a draft for some hundreds of pounds, a legacy left him. Off the two went to town to cash the draft, and I suppose Blakely thought that Tom would use the money to start the two afresh. But Tom was sick of it and wanted to go back to England. I tell you it was a beastly cruel thing to sit shivering on that log and listen to Blakely excusing himself for what he did. Tom cashed his draft in gold, and Blakely, when they were staying in the same room in a tavern where they had been drinking that night, crept to his sleeping mate's bunk, dashed a knife into his heart and took the money and got safe away. It eased the wretch to confess, for he slipped back to his blankets and lay on his back, quiet, with his eyes closed. The storm kept up, and I sat sweating there, afraid to stay with the murderer and afraid to go out among the howling devils in the hills. I was so weak and unstrung I sat just moaning and crying and stuffing my ears against the riot of the rains.

"First I knew I began to shiver with a chill, and, just like Mr. Copeland when he was at school, I felt death coming and thought it was for me. I was nearer dead than alive. The hut grew cold as an icebox, and suddenly, as I shivered, the strip of canvas we had fastened for a door was pulled aside and in walked a likely looking young fellow, calm as could be. He was dressed in a shabby blue shirt and loose jacket, broad slouch hat and heavy miner's boots, and he carried a long, open clasp knife in his right hand. He paid no attention to me, but walked straight to Blakely's side with a devilish, ugly look.

"'Hello, Blakely!' he said. 'Where's that gold of mine?'

'Blakely opened his eyes with a gurgle in his throat and tried to scream out and couldn't. But the look on his face was fearful. The miner waited for no answer, but raised his knife and dashed it down on the murderer's breast. I couldn't call out or move. But just as the point touched Blakely's skin it stopped, and the miner and it were gone, not out of the door—God knows how. Then my mate found voice and strength and sat up in bed and screamed—a fearful scream, and he fell back, turning to me.

"'Water,' he whispered. 'Oh, man, I thought I was gone. I had such a horrible dream.'

"I couldn't move. I couldn't get him water. I could only sit and shake and try to pray. Blakely closed his eyes again, moaning weakly, and so lay until the hut grew cold again and the canvas was lifted aside and the miner stepped in as before and up to the blankets. His face wore a hideous, mocking, cruel smile.

"'Hello, Blakely!' he said. 'Where's that gold of mine?'

"Again Blakely gurgled with terror stricken eyes, and again the knife fell and again stopped just in time. The miner vanished and Blakely screamed in agony and then turned to me and begged me to give him a drink and hold his hand.

"'I'm dying! I'm dying!' he howled. 'I'm going to h—l! Tom's come for me!'

"Lord forgive me! I couldn't move, save to slip to the ground on my belly and hide my face and say over and over the Lord's Prayer, while Blakely moaned and muttered and howled. I heard the miner again, but I dared not look up.

"'Hello, Blakely!' he said. "Where's that gold of mine?'

"I heard it again and again through that long, hideous night, death playing at cat and mouse, and I stuck by him, wondering if I'd have strength enough to bury him decently deep. "'Hello, Blakely!' he said. "Where's that gold of mine?'

"I heard it again and again through that long, hideous night, death playing at cat and mouse, and I lay there, shivering one minute and sweating the next, while Blakely's screams and cries for help and for the priest rose shrilly above the noise of the rain and the thunder. At last I heard the miner's voice sound out with a shout of vindictive triumph:

"'Come, Blakely, come!'

"There was a long, long series of howls, and I heard Blakely struggle and gurgle and choke, and then it was all still, and the hut grew warmer. When I dared to look up, the storm had dribbled off, and it was dawn. That," said the old elephant hunter, "was one shape death took in passing."

Nobody spoke. The fire was failing, but nobody moved to revive it. The moon was on the ragged reef of topmost peaks, and the shadows were closing in about the party, while jackals yelped and whined dismally in their unseen depths. The old hunter bent forward to relight his pipe with an ember, and just then there was a weak cry of pleasure from the bundle of blankets under the wagon. The men started up, and Paget stooped to pass his arm under Isdale's shoulders. The boy was struggling to sit up, and the firelight showed his face, his eyes kindled with joy. He stretched out his arms, oblivious of Paget, of all of us.

"Judy, Judy!" he said quite clearly. "I've been looking for you this side ever so long. How did you get across? Stay there. I'm coming—I'm coming. It's not deep, but it's cold—so cold!"

He dropped back, and Paget covered his face as the others stood about, uncovered.

Two days after Penby and his Kaffir rode into camp after two weeks' absence with medicines and the mail he had been sent for. There was a letter with a deep black border for Isdale.

"Of course," said old Hannen. "She's dead. Judy was dead before him. He saw her on the other side."—New York Sun.

Expansion of Solids by Heat.

The expansion of solids by heat is exemplified in the following cases: A glass stopper sticking fast in the neck of a bottle often may be released by surrounding the neck with a cloth taken out of warm water or by immersing the bottle in warm water up to the neck. The binding ring is thus heated and expanded sooner than the stopper, and so becomes slack or loose upon it.

In an iron railing, a gate, which during a cold day may be loose and easily shut and opened, in a warm day may stick, owing to there being greater expansion of it and of the neighboring railing than of the earth on which they are placed.

The iron pillars now so much used to support the front walls, of which the ground stories serve as shops with spacious windows, in warm weather really lift up the wall which rests upon them and in cold weather allow it again to sink or subside.

The pitch of a pianoforte or harp is lowered on a warm day or in a warm room, owing to the expansion of the strings being greater than of the wooden frame work, and in cold the reverse will happen. A harp or piano which is well tuned in a morning drawing room cannot be perfectly in tune when the crowded evening party has heated the room.—New York Ledger.

THE INVASION OF CUBA—GENERAL SHAFTER'S TROOPS LANDING AT BAIQUIRI. FROM HARPER'S WEEKLY.
After a Drawing by T. de Thulstrup. Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

We reproduce today a picture by Thulstrup from the pages of Harper's Weekly, which represents the debarkation of General Shafter's troops at Baiquiri. The men were put ashore at an old wooden dock which runs up out of the shoal water to a short stretch of sandy beach. They fell at once into marching formation and disappeared immediately in the tropical underbrush, so that not more than three or four hundred were in sight at a time. There was, therefore, no display on the water front, and the movements on the shore presented no indication that thousands of soldiers with their equipments were beginning the invasion of Cuba.

On the water, however, it was quite a different affair. The spectacle recalled the pictures of old marine operations when armed crews in small boats and boarding parties, bristling with muskets and cutlasses, were familiar features of naval warfare. In the offing, steaming slowly to overcome the current, lay the huge transports, their decks crowded with men eager to exchange the irksome confinement of the troop-ship for the freedom of the camp. Farther out to sea were the convoys, stripped for action and ready to repel any interference with the landing, with keen-eyed lookouts in every fighting-top to watch the shore as well as the sea. Between the beach and the transports the water seemed covered with row-boats and a few steam and electric launches darting here and there filled with officers and shouting orderlies. In the apparent confusion the most perfect order prevailed. The soldiers were packed in the boats like the proverbial sardines; each man carried his gun and all field accoutrements, and had his blankets slung over his shoulder.

The intricate and critical disembarkation was completed without an accident or mistake, and in the evening the flagship signalled to the headquarters' transport, "Admiral Sampson congratulates General Shafter."

RETRIEVED HIS DEFEAT

Maher Outclassed His Recent Conqueror.

Scored Knockdowns From the Beginning.

Goddard Prevented a Knockout by Ending the Bout Abruptly.

New York, July 9.—The third meeting of the heavyweight pugilists, Peter Maher and Joe Goddard, in the ring for a 25-round contest with five-ounce gloves attracted a large and representative crowd of sporting men last night. Among those present were Pugilists Corbett, Sharkey and McCoy. The opening bout was between Otto Zeiloff of Detroit and Tim Kearns of Boston. These boxers met at 135 pounds and were to box 12 rounds. They started in at a lively pace, swinging on each other heavily, and it was seen at once that the battle would not last many rounds. In the second round Kearns got in left-hand jabs on the face, but the Detroit man kept up a continuous swinging of both hands on the head and body. He landed a heavy swing on Kearns' head in the middle of the second round which sent the Boston man to the floor. When he got up Kearns was very groggy, and was soon down and out from a left swing on the head and a right swing on the jaw. Kearns lay helpless in a neutral corner, and his seconds had to carry him to his corner. The referee awarded the fight to Zeiloff.

PETER MAHER.

The betting on the big event up to this time was 100 to 90 against Maher, but there was little Goddard money in sight. Finally the Maher people offered 2 to 1 on Maher, and several wagers were recorded at that figure. Goddard's weight was said to be 177 pounds and Maher's 171. Both men seemed trained to the hour. The men shook hands at 10:30.

Round 1—Goddard opened with a left jab on the chest. Maher jabbed a hard left on the ribs, and Goddard hooked his right on the ribs. Maher hooked the right to the head and put Joe to the floor. Goddard got up quickly and rushed, but Peter met him with a left upper cut on the face and swung a hard right to the head, which staggered Goddard. Goddard's nose was bleeding when he returned to his corner.

Round 3—Maher sent Joe down with a left swing on the face. When Joe got up Maher sent him down again with another left swing on the face. The gong saved Goddard from more punishment.

Round 4—Goddard swung two lefts on the head, stunning Maher at the close of the round.

Round 5—Maher's right eye was swollen. After rough fighting Maher sent Joe down with a right hook on the head. Joe stayed down nine seconds. Maher put him down again with another right hook. Joe stayed down nine seconds this time also. When he got up they exchanged very stiff lefts three times on the face.

Round 6—An exchange of lefts on the face was followed by a clinch, but they broke at the referee's bidding. Maher swung his left on Goddard's right eye, cutting it.

Round 7—They exchanged hard lefts on the face, and Maher sent a hard straight right to the face which sent the blood flying from Joe's right eye. They again exchanged lefts on the face, and Goddard sent Peter's head back three times with straight lefts on the face. Peter sent his right on the head, sending Joe to his knees. Goddard had just got up when time was called.

Round 8—Maher jabbed his left on the face. Goddard was unable to defend himself, and held his head down with the arms crossed in front of his face. Maher went at him, but could not land a knockout blow. Goddard backed away and stretched out his hand, saying as he did so: "This is more than nature can stand," as he shook Maher's hand. The referee then awarded the bout to Maher.

ERRATIC WILLIS.

Eight Passes to First—Bostons Could Not Hit Donohue.

Philadelphia, July 9.—Pitcher Donohue Friday performed the remarkable feat of shutting out the Bostons without a hit. This is the second time this season that the champions have been so harshly dealt with, Hughes of Baltimore having performed the same feat early in the season. Donohue's pitching yesterday was the only bright feature of the game. While the Boston men were batting out flies off Donohue the Phillies were kept busy dodging around the plate, for the erratic Willis, Boston's pitcher, was in the box. He gave eight bases on balls, hit two men and struck out seven, Cooley being a victim three times.

Donohue did not seem to exert himself in the least in making his great record against the beaneaters, but he made excellent use of the gray matter beneath his auburn locks. First, it was a tantalizing slow one and then a very speedy curve. His change of base could not have been excelled, and his opponents were shooting ducks from start to finish. There was not the semblance of a base hit, and had it not been for errors by Cross and Lauder, only two visitors would have reached first base, these being given bases on balls. Score:

The Clevelands whitewashed the St. Louis team in a scientific battle, 5 to 0.

The Chicagos hit Hill of the Cincinnatis very hard in the first inning. Woods pitched well for eight innings, but weakened at the finish, and the Cincinnatis won, 11 to 8.

Frazer of the Louisvilles was easy for the Pittsburgs, and, after giving 10 hits for 21 bases and 13 runs, Dowling was substituted in the fourth inning. Score: 14 to 3.

Four singles and a sacrifice netted the Washingtons three runs in the opening inning of the game with the Baltimores, and won the game, 3 to 2.

The Montreals needed 10 innings to defeat the Springfields, although outplaying them at every point from the start.

Egan of the Providences held the Torontos down to one hit up to the fifth inning, and then the Torontos bunched them, and each streak in the fifth and sixth was topped off with a homer by Gatins which plied up runs very fast. Score: 11 to 2.

Hard hitting in the first two innings won the game for the New Yorks with the Brooklyns, 6 to 2.

FAVORABLE FEATURES.

Not Wanting From the Country's Business, and Confidence In Betterment.

New York, July 9.—While the tone of general business partakes of midsummer stock-taking quietness, Bradstreet reports that the number of favorable features has not materially lessened and confidence in a good business in the fall is still widespread. Business in speculative circles is restricted. Railroad earnings are showing the effect of comparisons with periods last year when the improved conditions manifested themselves, and the result is that gains now are of considerably smaller volume, the gain in gross earnings for June this year over last on 45 roads being only slightly in excess at 1 percent against a gain in May of 14 percent. The good showing made by the roads during the first six months of the year was due to the fact that the business handled by the railroads in this country during the first half of the year was the heaviest ever known. Net returns for May point to the fact that economies in transportation have enabled business to be handled at a profit, gross earnings of leading railroads for that month increasing 14 percent over last year, while net returns increased by over 22 percent. The tone of prices, particularly for cereals, has shown a slight improvement for the week.

Rather less than the usual midsummer shading of prices is indicated. The apparent net result indeed is toward a higher range of values, as reflected by the approximate index number, but this is due to exceptional movements in tea and rubber, the former of which being affected by the revenue tax, has advanced nearly 40 percent during June, while the latter reflects the growing world's demand and inadequate supplies. Excluding tea and rubber there is a slight falling off in the general level, but while 42 out of 104 articles declined in value, 37 remained unchanged and 25 advanced. Comparisons with preceding periods of late years are very favorable. Compared with Jan. 1, more than one half of all staple articles are higher, while compared with July1, a year ago, fully three-fourths of all products have advanced.

Business failures for the week number 241, as against 173 last week, 213 in this week a year ago, 219 in 1896, 266 in 1895 and 229 in 1894.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

CHOICE CANNAS.

Effective and Satisfactory Plants In Gardens Large or Small.

Cannas form the most showy plants that can be chosen for a garden. They grow rapidly, multiply freely and are altogether satisfactory. In regard to varieties, both new and old, The Rural New Yorker advises as follows:

In selecting cannas the habit of the plant must be considered and whether the situation demands a tall or dwarf variety. For a dwarf yellow canna Eldorado is our first choice. The color is very brilliant and does not fade out badly under a hot sun. Premier, a seedling from Queen Charlotte, brilliant red with broad yellow edge, is another good dwarf. Tarrytown, one of the new introductions, appears to be the ideal dwarf of its color. The flowers are a bright cherry red, foliage green, growth extremely short and compact. The flower spikes are very dense and are produced with great freedom. They stand summer storms admirably, seeming to be much firmer in texture than many other varieties. The flowers are produced so freely and continuously and the habit of the plant is so neat and compact that it surely will be of great value planted alone in large beds or in borders where a solid effect is required. It will also be fine for edging a group of taller sorts. No doubt a fine effect would be produced by using it to border a bold clump of the tall orchid flowered variety Austria, with its golden yellow blooms.

Franz Buchner, though not a new variety, hardly seems to be fully appreciated by amateur gardeners. This is a dwarf, though taller than Tarrytown, probably attaining a height of three feet. The flowers are deep orange suffused with scarlet, having a wavy line of yellow around the edge. It is very distinct in appearance and very satisfactory in growth.

Alphonse Bouvier has always been a favorite among crimson flowered cannas, but the drooping habit of the spike has sometimes been regarded as a disadvantage. The newer Depute Ravarin gives flowers of similar color and type, but the spikes are held erect to a height of five or six feet. It makes a noble looking plant either singly or in groups.

Chicago, with large flame red blooms, and Flamingo, bright crimson, are both too good to be set aside by the newer sorts. Black Beauty, with purple bronze foliage and glowing red flowers, and Egandale, a standard among taller dark foliaged sorts, are still among the best of the dark type. A worthy companion is President Carnot, with dark foliage and scarlet flowers.

Copper Sulphate.

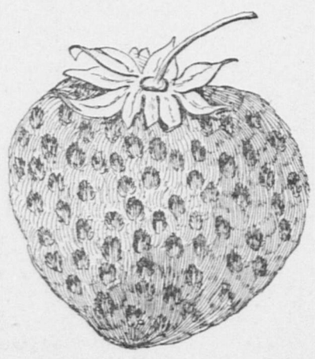
Weak Solution.—Copper sulphate, 1 pound; water, 150 to 200 gallons.

Very Weak Solution.—Copper sulphate, 1 pound; water, 250 to 300 gallons.

The above weak solutions of copper sulphate may be used late in the season, when bordeaux mixture would spot the fruit. The first can be used with safety upon nearly all crops, but for a few, such as the peach and bean, the second will be safer. Its action is equal to bordeaux mixture, but as it is more readily washed from the foilage than bordeaux mixture its effect is not as lasting. Like bordeaux mixture, these preparations are for the destruction of fungous diseases, and they should not be relied upon to destroy insects.—American Gardening.

The Glen Mary Strawberry.

Of the recent strawberry Glen Mary a New Jersey correspondent of Country Gentleman says: On my grounds Glen Mary promises well. It is rather soft, as are most berries of large size, but of good quality, form and color and exceedingly productive, though I have failed to obtain the enormous crops described in various catalogues. This variety requires good soil and clean culture to obtain size and uniformity, and for nearby market will pay for rich soil and careful culture. With me the main objection is the time of ripening, which brings it into the market in midseason at a time when even its large size will not command an extra price. The accompanying illustration is from life and shows accurately the form of the variety as grown here.



THE GLEN MARY.

Mammoth Black Twig Apple.

Mammoth Black Twig is a seedling of Winesap, which originated in Arkansas about 40 or 50 years ago, but was brought to public notice at the New Orleans exposition in 1884. In size it is larger than Winesap and in shape somewhat less conical. Its color is a dull, dark red. In flavor it is subacid, somewhat like that of its parent, but not quite so rich or spicy. It keeps about the same as Winesap, but not quite equal to Ben Davis. In point of profit it is not up to that great market variety. The trees bear well.—Professor H. E. Van Deman.

THE HOPE OF PEACE.

PROSPECTS BRIGHTER FOR A SPEEDY END OF THE WAR.

Spain's Administrative Inefficiency and Pitiful Display of Armament Have Lost Her the Chance of Allies — Effect of Dewey's Victory In Hastening the End.

The Spanish government and the Spanish people now stand confronting a military situation which they confess to be absolutely hopeless. As this was from the first a necessary preliminary to a treaty of peace its undoubted existence today may safely be said to make the prospect of an early end of the war brighter than most of us expected it to be by this time.

The truth is the collapse of Spain has been swifter than anybody could have foreseen. She has managed to avoid bankruptcy so far, though her finances are in ruinous condition, but her frightful display of administrative inefficiency and the pitiful figure her navy and fortifications have cut have lost her the possibility of allies and have bowed the Spanish people in humiliation and despair. A victory at the beginning, or at least a semblance of one, was absolutely essential to the game Spain was playing. She not only hoped for this, but she apparently had reason to expect it. Good judges on the continent and in England, who had no doubt of Spain's ultimate defeat, thought and said that she might win the first successes. If we had rushed our raw recruits to Cuba to face Blanco's veterans, the story might have been different, but as all the operations so far have been naval and as Spain's naval power is turning out a ridiculous, almost an imaginary, quantity the pricking of the bubble has come earlier than could have been predicted.

We probably are not yet able fully to measure the great moral effect in this connection of Dewey's surprising success at Manilla within ten days of declaring war. It was not simply the skill and gallantry he displayed, not simply the revelation he gave the world that the old traditions of the American navy had been worthily maintained. There was more in his victory than all that. His stroke not only laid low the Spanish fleet, but also laid bare the corrupt and feeble system of Spanish administration. Consider what the people had been told about the defenses of Manilla! The prime minister stated in the cortes that it would be found nothing had been neglected. On the very eve of the battle the minister of marine said that everything was as it should be in the Philippines, and that "very shortly the splendor of victory would burst forth and illumine the country." No wonder the rose colored vision of this official read a victory into the dispatches telling of irremediable disaster. When the truth would out, and Minister Bermejo rose to defend himself in the cortes, he said that it was useless to lay down torpedoes in the bay of Manilla, but that he had sent 150 good ones which were then on their way.

Such fatal lack of foresight, such absolute unpreparedness for the war, such dawdling incompetence in office, came upon the Spanish nation like a thunderclap, and the future historian of the war will, as we say, doubtless attribute to Dewey's dashing victory a powerful effect in breaking the Spanish spirit and so hastening the end of the war. And all that has happened since then has but sunk Spain deeper in hopelessness. The gunnery of her artillerymen at San Juan and Santiago is about the poorest the world has ever seen. Even the unskilled Egyptians, with smoothbores and no range finders, hulled the British ships 75 times at the bombardment of Alexandria. But our fleet, even when exposed to fire with apparent recklessness, has escaped practically untouched. As for Cervera's squadron, on which such high hopes were built, it is ignominiously shut in a harbor where surrender or scuttling is only a question of time. We mention all these reverses of Spain not to exult over the misfortunes of a weak antagonist, but to show how probable it is that this unbroken series of disasters may now incline the Spanish government to ask for the best terms possible.

For our part, if we could now secure peace without further fighting it would wonderfully heighten our triumph. We should have succeeded in a difficult war with an astonishingly small loss of life. Not ten Americans, we believe, have so far been killed in battle. We have spent millions and are ready to spend millions more; we have called over 200,000 men to arms; we have greatly strengthened our fleet; we now have the campaign well in hand and can push it to certain victory. But no victory, won after months of fighting and lavishing of treasure and life, could possibly be so glorious as would be a peaceful settlement with Spain without the firing of another gun. If she is ready to treat, we must meet her half way. Our government has shown by its conduct of the war that it is both wise and humane—wise in looking for just such a breakdown in Spain as we are now witnessing and humane in determining not to risk one American ship or sailor or soldier unnecessarily. By keeping our untrained levies out of Cuba our authorities have hurt Spain more than they possibly could have done by sending them. But the same wisdom and humanity that have marked the carrying on of the war thus far must surely lead the president and his advisers to welcome the first approaches of Spain with the aim of peace.—New York Evening Post.

He should look around carefully, so that when he does buy a lot he has one that is a pleasure for him to look back on.

Keith's Theatre.

A valued critic recently paid the following deserved tribute to Keith's Theatre as a summer resort: "Keith's as the warm weather comes on realizes more and more the perfect ideal of a comfortable playhouse, It is one of the most striking sights of the town to see the heated, hurried throng of the sidewalk grow so quickly calm and cool and serene as they pass through the long delicately-adorned foyer, palm-lined and clear-lit, to the great auditorium, which though continuously full almost for many hours is so marvelously sweet and pure. The wonder of it all never ceases, and were there no performance the resort would be a most agreeable one. But the performance is also exceptionally good." The concerts furnished by the Boston Symphony Orchestra players are proving a delightful treat to music lovers, and Director Zach is making his selections with good judgment, so as to give pleasure to the greatest number. The biograph will continue, with new pictures, and it is worthy of note that it has never been more popular than at present, nor shown a finer lot of pictures.

Castle Square Theatre.

The attraction at the Castle Square theatre next week will be the comedy drama "A Scrap of Paper" by J. Pulgrave Simpson a play that has made a rare record of success on both sides of the Atlantic in former years. In this comedy the intrigue incidental to the plot is worked out with skill; the situations are exceedingly amusing; the action is brisk and its construction gives constant evidence of the ingenuity of its author. The play made one of the prominent successes of the Boston Museum's productions some eighteen years ago and it offers some fine opportunities for the members of the Castle Square theatre company. Patrons attending Tuesday's matinee will receive as a souvenir a bottle of violet water—the same being in a neat and attractive form with glass stopper etc. On Monday, July 8th, the Castle Square theatre management announces an elaborate production of Alfriend and Pitou's drama "Across the Potomac."

FIGHT TO THE FINISH.

Armistice Over, and the Siege Prosecuted.

Renewal Opened by Gunners on Spanish Side.

Gen. Toral Willing to Evacuate on Conditions.

Hopelessness of Defense Realized, and Looting Already Begun.

Port Antonio, July 11.—Hostilities were resumed Sunday afternoon by the Spanish because of the refusal of General Shafter to agree to Toral's conditions in accepting the American demand to surrender control of Santiago. The Spanish commander, in his letter Saturday, attempted to conceal his realization of his helpless position. With boastful assurance, he called General Shafter's attention to the fact that he had received a large number of re-inforcements, and declared that his entire garrison was strongly entrenched in a commanding position. He also asserted that he had plenty of ammunition, and expressed his firm conviction that the Americans could not take the city by assault without sustaining an enormous loss of life. General Toral, with fine sarcasm, referred to the fact that the departure of 20,000 refugees from the city into the American lines had greatly diminished the consumption of food within his own lines, and that, as a result, the Spanish soldiers had a supply that would enable them to hold out indefinitely. In view of these conditions, General Toral proposed that the Spanish army should evacuate Santfago unmolested, taking all of their cannon, arms and ammunition and standards, together with their sick and wounded.

In support of his contention that the Americans would do well to accept these conditions, General Toral wrote that his troops were acclimated and that the Americans, on the other hand, would suffer greatly from disease if compelled to endure the hardships of a long siege. "I shall never surrender the city except on these terms," the Spanish general declared.

General Shafter, after receiving this letter, was helped into a carriage and was driven to the front. After consulting with General Wheeler, the American commander sent a reply to General Toral, in which he refused to entertain the Spaniard's proposition. General Shafter bluntly notified General Toral that nothing but the unconditional surrender of the city and the Spanish army would be considered.

Before Shafter could give the signal for the attack, the roar of artillery was heard along the Spanish lines, and light guns began to throw shells toward the American entrenchments. This only hastened matters, and the signal was given to Grimes' and Capron's batteries to reply to the enemy's fire.

Our men were only eager for the word, and in a few moments they were pouring a destructive fire into the positions occupied by the Spanish batteries. The fire on our side was most effective. All along the line everything was in readiness for the attack.

The truce of the last few days had been utilized by Shafter's men to strengthen their positions and plant their batteries so that they would command the Spanish lines to the best advantage. Not only that, but every day saw them still further advanced towards the enemy's lines. They kept creeping forward all the time, and every morning the dazed Spaniards saw American entrenchments much nearer to them than they were the night before. They evidently did not dare to resent this encroachment by firing, but seemed to be glad to be let alone.

The dynamite gun had been placed in a position where it could throw shells into the city, and in alother place 12 mortars were mounted in one battery in a position which commanded an important section of the city. Three batteries posted on El Poso ridge were so placed that they formed a splendid support for the Grimes and Capron batteries. In some places the field guns were so placed that they had to be fired over the advance American line, and careful instructions had to be given to avoid accidents in case any further advance by the first line of troops was necessary.

On the extreme left of the line was General Bates' division, which included General Duffield's command and the Ninth Massachusetts. This division had made a marked advance during the past few days. It was since the battle of San Juan planted along the edge of a precipitous ravine, the walls of which are about 80 feet high. This ravine is about 700 yards long and about 400 yards wide. General Bates moved the Twentieth infantry to the side of the ravine nearest Santiago and placed the Thirteenth at right angles to the line of the Twentieth. To the right of the line was the division commanded by General Lawton; this included the Second Massachusetts. Between the extreme ends of the line the American forces were disposed in a huge semi-circle, every mound or hill and every natural configuration of the landscape being utilized to give them all protection possible. Our forces were thus in excellent condition to begin the attack, and the result was that soon after the Spaniards opened fire their gunshots began to grow fewer and fewer.

Up to this time it was almost altogether an artillery duel. There was scarcely any musketry fire. Our forces could therefore keep themselves well sheltered, and the result was that after we had silenced the enemy's guns we found that we had only three men wounded. General Shafter made no attempt to follow up with a general advance. Having silenced the enemy's guns he decided to wait until today for the final attack. One reason for this was that reinforcements have just arrived, and Shafter wished to have them properly placed and provided for. He also wished to perfect plans which he has arranged looking to the complete surrounding and crushing of the enemy when he makes the final attack. Every road from the city will be guarded, and after the Spaniards find themselves hemmed in there will be no chance for them to escape from the city.

Admiral Sampson is quoted throughout the army as saying that he will drop one shell into the city every five minutes.

PEACE DISCERNIBLE.

Only Question, the Opportune Moment of Intervening.

Carlists Recommend Struggle to the Death.

Spanish Sentimentalism Touched by Praise of Soldiers.

London, July 11.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times, commenting on the growth of the peace sentiment, says: "Facts have begun to be recognized and calculations are published showing the losses of each of the warring parties. These statistics dispel all illusions and prove that the final results cannot be doubted. The only question remaining is as to the most opportune moment for opening peace negotiations. Silvela's organ puts it very plainly in these words: 'If there be anyone who still hopes that, after the destruction of our squadron, Cuba can be for Spain anything but an amphitheater where the martyrs of our army will astonish the world by their sufferings and heroism, let him say it aloud. For our part we know nobody who has any doubts on the subject. Some sanguine people still imagine that America may yet be sickened of war, but they have been reminded that the Americans also have a national amour propre, and that if defeated they will insist on taking their revenge before negotiating. In that case woe to the antagonist who should first be completely exhausted.' "

The correspondent then refers to influences counteracting the peace sentiment, such as the feeling of the army on the subject, and says: "The Carlist organs recommend fighting to the death. All things considered, I should say peace is in sight, but it is still a long way off. As to its approaching or receding in the immediate future, much depends upon the attitude of the American government and press. Nothing has fostered peace tendencies here more than the recent generous recognition by the Americans in official dispatches and newspaper articles of the soldierly qualities of their antagonists. 'After all,' it is said by men who formerly used very different language, 'these Americans are people with whom we can make war or even perhaps peace.' "

Another dispatch says: "The fall of Santiago will convince the most sanguine of the hopelessness of the struggle and will give the government the desired opportunity at least to suggest an armistice for the discussion of terms. Circumstantial statements are already in circulation to the effect that the war is virtually ended, and that the government has actually opened peace negotiations, but they cannot be verified.

"A detailed account has been published that Spain lost 21 warships and 21 merchantmen as against practically no losses on the American side. The whole commercial and industrial interests of Spain are bringing strong influence to bear in favor of peace. Every day that passes without disturbances strengthens the peace party.

"It is believed, however, that there is a strong undercurrent in favor of continuing the war and the attitude of the Carlists and republicans causes anxiety. A mysterious, black-edged, unsigned manifesto appeared in the leading squares of Madrid Sunday bearing the municipal stamp and headed: 'Cleria victis,' with an angel supporting a dead, naked soldier. The manifesto contains an eloquent appeal from Spanish mothers, calling for the reorganization of the country on the basis of the army and crying, 'Down with bribed politicians and a bought press.' Four million copies of the manifesto have been distributed throughout Spain, and it is attracting considerable attention."

Views of a Paris Paper.

Paris, July 11.—A Madrid correspondent says: "The end is impatiently awaited; even the government no longer attempts to disguise its conviction that after the fall of Santiago the time will have come for thinking about overtures of peace, especially as all the European chancellories advise this course. The meetings that are being held at Bayonne in the province of Navarre and along the Pyrennean frontier are greatly disturbing the ministry. The partisans of Carlos are making no secret of their intention to rise if the terms upon which peace is concluded should entail a loss of territory.

"General Blanco cables that it will be impossible for re-inforcements to reach Santiago in time to aid in the defense, the duration of which will depend upon the supply of food and ammunition, unless the garrison attempts a desperate sortie."

The Times, commenting upon the foregoing dispatch, says: "What should decide neutral cabinets to give wise counsels to Madrid is not only the fact that the latest developments of the war have entirely changed the complexion of the situation, which was already grave enough for Spain, but the further fact that there are trustworthy indications of a beginning of a reaction in favor of peace in official circles."

TOO BAD!
It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.
Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.
In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "'leventy-'leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.
The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. They are not worth $15.00, but we know of no one who sells them for as little money. 100 percale and white shirts with attached collar and cuff and and fancy bosoms, at 45c. 125 fine percale and French madras, at 69c. 100 best quality madras shirts, detatched collars and cuffs, at 98c. Bear this in mind, we sell our shirts for all they are worth. But we know of people who sell them for more money and claim they are worth twice as much.

An Adams Academy Boy.

Zerah W. Torrey of South Weymouth, who was an Adams academy boy 25 years ago and has since been graduated from West Point, was among the injured before Santiago, but a telegram informs his mother, Mrs. Emily Torrey, that it is not serious. Capt. Torrey has been stationed at White River, Colo., and afterward at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He has served 18 years in the army, and at the breaking out of the present war he was stationed at Fort Thomas, Ky. He is an experienced marksman, and has now several medals. He was bravely leading his men against the rifle pits when he was wounded. He is personally popular in army circles, and a man in whom the soldiers place the most implicit confidence.

Warning to Woodward Girls.

The African Review says: It's solemn yet mirth-provoking fact! The Dutch Reformed minister of Kroonstad attributes the protracted drouth, rinderpest, and the other ills of South Africa to "the pernicious and sinful habit of dancing!" We certainly fail to see the connection, but of course, there may be special sources of inspiration accessible only to a Dutch divine.

Linfield—Browne.

Only the immediate families were present on Friday, July 8, at the wedding of Mr. Bertram French Linfield, A. M., and Miss Eltha Nana Browne at Spring Hill, Somerville. Rev. Charles Macomber Smith, D. D., was the officiating clergyman. Mr. Linfield is on the staff of teachers at Adams academy in this city and a Harvard graduate, class of '94. Mr. and Mrs. Linfield sailed on Saturday for Paris. Fortunately they were not on the Bourgogne which sailed a week earlier.

W. Y. C. LADIES' DAY.

Enjoyable Sail Followed by Refreshments and Dancing.

The rain Saturday morning threatened to upset all plans made by the Wollaston Yacht club to observe its ladies' day, but as the time drew near the hour set for the opening of the festivities, all fears of the early part of the day that a postponement would be necessary were happily banished by the clearing away of all threatening clouds and the appearance of a bright sun.

At three o'clock the fleet took up its position west of the float laden with happy and expectant yachtsmen and their guests to wait for the signal to pass in review of the commodore.

Fifteen minutes later the signal was given from Fleet Captain Nelson's yacht, sheets were close hauled and the procession of prettily decorated yachts started, each yacht as she passed in review, dipped her colors and in turn were answered by the commodore in a like manner. After having cleared the flag ship all yachts laid to until the Commodore took his position at the head of the line, when the fleet captain gave the signal to sail over the club's regular course once, a distance of four miles.

To make the ladies feel easy and prevent any exclamations of regret that they were on the sea instead of dry land, two and three reefs was the order. After the return to the float the party assembled at the club house where refreshments were served by the entertainment committee.

In the evening the house was filled just a little beyond its capacity, but to the extent that the members wished they had more extensive quarters. From eight till eleven-thirty Mr. William Wilson furnished music for dancing and before, twelve o'clock one of the most enjoyable events given by the club since its organization had become a matter of pleasant memory.

WINS AT SPORTS.

Co. K. Shows Up Well at Camp Dalton.

Camp Dalton,
July 11, 1898.

Drill was suspended at camp Saturday afternoon and the boys of the regiment participated in a series of athletic sports. Members of Company K took an active part in several of the events.

At a three-innings game of ball between Companies K and M victory came to K. In the hammer throw Corporal Hermanson of Co. K won. Corporal Hermanson was an active member in all of the sports of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and his training there stood him a good turn.

In the tug of war, L beat M, and B defeated K. The tie will be pulled off today.

Sunday on the tented field opened up with a beatiful day. Just enough breeze for comfort. From early morn until taps, thousands of visitors thronged the grounds. At one time there were seven hundred bicycles stacked in one place besides several hundred. which were outside the grounds Several clubs made runs from surrounding towns. Quite a number came fom Quincy. The fair sex were well represented and the boys are well supplied with dainties of all descriptions.

Guard mount took place as usual and during inspection of arms Private G. P. Roberts of Co. K was complimented by Adj. Bancroft with having the cleanest and best taken care of gun.

LIEUT. WHITNEY.

The inspection is very severe and the boys are fast learning to take particular care of their arms as they are sent to camp to perfect themselves if they are not up to perfection.

Private Lamtrom was again appointed orderly.

Lieut. Whitney was lieutenant of the guard Sunday.

There is no use in talking, Co. K has just a little the best of it in the way of officers. The men appreciate it and through their efforts will undoubtably come out as the crack company of the regiment.

The influuence of the fund is already felt in camp. Capt. Kincaide ordered shoes and shirts for the most needy ones on the strength of it. Everyone who has contributed would be well paid if they could see the smiles of satisfaction and hear the remarks which are passed along. To say they appreciate it is putting it small.

Lieut. Spear's wife favored him with a visit Sunday.

Capt. Kincaide went to Quincy Sunday.

Ten days' rations will be issued tomorrow but that signifies nothing as it would be an easy matter to return them and issue travelling rations. There is no doubt in the minds of the officials but that we will be on the move by next week Monday. We probably go south to reenforce.

There was an inspection of parcels Sunday and several citizens came to grief by having liquor on their person. Such persons are dealt with rather severley and after a few hours in the guard house learn to their sorrow that Uncle Samuel allows no fooling.

The 5th has a good name in Framingham and will continue to hold it. No mounted guards have as yet been posted in town, as was the case with other regiments.

Co. K's visitors were too numerous to mention, but we will be able to mention a few of them tomorrow. The boys will be ready to welcome the visitors who intend to come Wednesday. They are ready to do that at any time.

Private Morrissy was agreeably surprised by the receipt of two well filled baskets sent him by the members of the Quincy police force of which he is a member.

The Ledger still continues to be the paper and is eagerly sought after.

LATEST.

Ten days' rations was issued to the regiment today which is taken to mean that the regiment will soon move. Lieut. Col. Weaver when interviewed said that it was the general custom to issue ten days' rations at a time but he had no doubt but what the regiment would be ordered to move inside of ten days.

Gus. Livendale, wagoner for Co. K was selected as orderly today making the sixth man to be selected from Company K.

Sergt. Phillips was sergeant of the guard Sunday.

The regiment is doing company drill today.

Governor Wolcott and staff will visit the camp Tuesday.

Capt. Kincaide returned to camp this morning from Quincy.

Private Morally and Sevens are visiting their homes today.

The receipts at the bicycle stand Sunday were $65, and the receipts at the canteen amount to over $100 a day.

Perilous Ballooning.

Many who witnessed the balloon ascension and parachute jump at New Downer Landing Saturday afternoon, thought that in a few minutes there would be one less balloonist in the world. A high wind was blowing and it was with difficulty that the big canvas bag could be filled. The men worked hard to fill it, and it was after 6 o'clock before the anchor was cast off and the professor shot up into the air. Hardly had the balloon left the ground before it was discovered that it had taken fire. The man on the parachute was dragged roughy through the trees and the balloon now all ablaze sailed over toward Germantown. When over the river the balloon began to settle but for some reason the professor did not cut himself loose, and it looked as though he would be dashed to pieces. The trouble was that the knife that was to cut the parachute loose failed to work. Realizing his danger the professor jumped and landed in the water where he was picked up by a boat uninjured. The balloon landed at Germantown and was burned. There was a very large crowd present at the grove Saturday evening and another large crowd present Sunday, when the National Guard band gave two excellent concerts.

There was an abundance of good things, many declared it the best picnic that the church ever held. Superintendent Branch and his efficient corps of workers have great reason to feel proud of the school.

CHICKAMAUGA PARK.

A Quincy Boy Writes of the Great Military Camy.

Editors of the Ledger:

Perhaps a few words from the great National Military Camp at Chickamauga Park in the northeast corner of Georgia would be of some interest.

I have been here since Friday, June 24, and find the life quite easy after training in Co. K.

Enlisted June 20 in Company M, 8th Regiment, of Somerville. The strict examinations and hard work and very plain food has developed a company and regiment of sturdy and seasoned soldiers, fit for any duty.

Acclimating is rather hard at first, a number of the recruits in our company having dropped in the ranks, the air being some what rarafied, and the sun beating down almost directly overhead.

The seasoned men, however, can do a skirmish drill across a half-mile open field in rushes of ten or fifteen yards, throwing themselves flat on the ground at the termination of each rush. It is no boys play, I assure you. The 5th will not have the hardships and trials that the 8th has had.

I will not attempt to enumerate them all; but take the matter of food at first. For ten days after leaving South Framingham the only food these men had was salt bacon or pork, dubbed "sour belly" hard tack and green coffee, except for the time they were on the train when they had canned beef and roasted coffee. It made a pretty sick crowd of them for a while and no wonder, after such a sudden transition from home fare.

The food is very good now. Baked beans Sunday mornings, tomato soups, beef soups, liver, beef steak, boiled beef, potatoes and onions, bread, and coffee without milk being standard with each meal. Have had string beans twice since June 24.

All drinking water in the 8th Regiment has to be boiled, and therein comes the worst feature of a soldier's life here. There is hardly an hour in the day during which the men do not suffer from thirst. The water after being boiled, is put into barrels, and naturally in this hot climate, seldom gets cool enough to drink. The water around here is not as good, anyway, as it is in the north. Last night I walked half a mile to the 1st New Hampshire camp to get a decent drink of water.

The 8th Regiment, in common with most of the regiments on the field, has a canteen where is sold beer, tonic, rootbeer, cigars and cigarettes, with beer occupying the top position as to sales. As far as my observation has gone they are not responsible for any drunkenness or disorder, and I must say that for myself a cool drink of rootbeer in the evening brightens things wonderfully after a long thirsty day.

Candles are used exclusively throughout the camp, even by the officers, the only exception being the Y. M. C. A. tent. The Y. M. C. A. Army Christian Commission has put up the finest tent connected with the 8th Regiment. It is on a line with the regimental officers' tents, and next to the canteen, which it will shortly put out of existence, the conditions imposed being that the Y. M. C. A. furnish distilled water free of charge. Money is needed to carry this out and the Secretary says it can be sent to Mr. F. O. Winslow, 167 Tremont street, Boston.

The place is well fitted out with long tables, and is well provided with reading matter, writing paper and envelopes free, in the evening there being a regular stream of them going over the counter, organ, singing books, games, checkers and carroms, and chairs, the last named being the only ones in the regiment. They also sell stamps and send money orders for the men. It is all heartily appreciated by the men, and no wonder, for they are doing all that practically could be asked by the most exacting soldier.

It is an interesting sight to see, every night, twenty-five or thirty men, as many as the place will accommodate, with the games, industriously writing to their friends at home. And last but not least we have the secretary in charge, Mr. William J. B. Oliver, a nephew of Miss Hubbard, the proprietor of one of Quincy's best known stores. He has secured the respect of the men and I predict that he will prove himself the right man in the right place. The good that the Y. M. C. A. has done is noticable even in a week, but if time allows, it will be incalculable.

One thing is especially noticeab le in this great camp of 60,000 men. It is the size of the men. The great majority are tall and well built and as for good nature it is absolute throughout.

In the same brigade with us is the 12th New York, a fine marching regiment and the 21st Kansas, composed of tall angular fellows, but poorly fitted out at present. There are regiments from twenty-two states on the field, and as the men are true representatives from their section of the country, it is very interesting to wander round.

In our immediate vicinity are regiments from Ohio, Pennsylvania, Missouri, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Minnesota and Indiana.

The army mule is another interesting subject of interest. There are about 125 with our regiment. Their peculiar song is heard at all hours of the day and night, it being about as soothing as the whisting buoy that helped to make things interesting for Company K at Gloucester. "As stubborn as a mule" is exemplified many times in the corral where the colored men shoe them, most of them for the first time. The Kodak fiend, of which there are many here, find in his antics a frequent subject for pictures.

A lot of brown duck suits has been issued to the recruits, the old men being already equipped with them. The other regiments do not have them, and therein lies one of the principal points of superiority of the Massachusetts troops over all others. They were furnished by the State, which had intended to equip all of the militia with them this year. The 5th was probably the first regiment in the country to have them, having paid for them from the company's treasury in 1896. They are one of the finest things ever devised for a soldier's comfort.

The boys of the Somerville company are a whole-souled and good-natured set, and withal well officered. I do not think I could have made a better choice of a company to enlist in if I had made a more extended search. I was surprised a few days ago by a visit from a former Quincy boy, Alfred Bouchier. He is learning a soldier's life in a company from Lynn.

It looks as if the 8th would go to the front very soon now and I sincerely believe that if the 8th Massachusetts has the opportunity it will give a good account of itself. JOHN S. ODOM

Chickamauga, July 6, 1898.

Council Business.

There is considerable business to come before the meeting of the City Council tonight, but whether there will be any prolonged debate upon the matter is a question.

The joint committee on Sewers and Ordinances will report an ordinance governing house connections with the sewer.

The Committee on Streets will report on the petition for underground conduits for the telephone company, or the flag staff at Wollaston, the location of poles for the Electric Light Company, and on the orders widening Hancock street at the junction of Granite street, and between the Music Hall block and School street. They also may report on the $25,000 sidewalk order.

The Committee on Public Buildings will report an order for finishing a room at the John Hancock school building.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains will report on the petition for drains on Old Colony avenue, and the License committee on petitions for a number of minor licenses.

In the calendar are orders for $475 for a catch basin at corner of Sagamore and Prospect streets; catch basins and drain on Garfield street; wall on Furnace brook; relocating lines of Washington and Canal streets; alterations of Hose houses; $3,500 for rebuilding Crescent street; laying out of Payne and Putnam streets and East Elm avenue, and improvements of North street.

The Finance Committee have some matters before them but what they will report on is not known.

BRIEF LOCAL NOTES.

Miss Lizzie Earley of Brockton is the guest of Miss Mamie Sullivan of Linden street.

The Bemis family of Atlantic street have gone to Vermont on a fortnight's vacation.

William F. Cummings and family of Clive street are spending a week in Winthrop.

Miss Bessie Mahoney of Walnut street and Miss Mary O'Neil of Water street, Atlantic, are among the latest of bicycle riders.

The President's proclamation for thanksgiving and prayer was read in most of the local churches, and generally observed.

An appeal from the Women's Relief Corps for old linen and contributions for the soldiers was read in the churches, Sunday.

The T. R. & S. nine walked all around the Boston & Maine club at Merrymount park Saturday afternoon, winning the game by the score of 19 to 0.

The alarm from Box 49 at 3 P. M. Sunday was for a slight fire in a shed which contained about one ton of hay at the residence of John Shatzel. It was extinguished before it could even smoke the hay.

Early Sunday morning Officer Holloran found a woman at Atlantic very much the worse for liquor. She was so drunk that she did not know her name or where she was but did say that she was a dressmaker at Park square, Boston. Officer Holloran gave her a ride to Quincy centre and long towards noon Sunday she sobered up enough to say that her name was Nellie Fitzgerald but did not know how she came to be at Atlantic.

HANDICAP RACE.

The Chatham Hustler and Vexer Lead Procession.

The second handicap race for the Quincy Yacht club's championship cup was sailed off the club house on Saturday afternoon. A good whole sail breeze prevailed, stiffening up at times.

Interest centered in Mr. J. Warren Nightingale's new boat, the "Autocrat" which was just out from Embree's yard. She was not tuned up and consequently was not in even good cruising trim. Her balance was so poor that it was impossible to sail a straight course. This will be remedied in a few days, so that at the next race she will be in good trim. She was handicaped at her full length, 16 minutes, which is the largest handicap in the club. In this race she did not make so good a showing as the race committee anticipated. But at the next race the committee expects her to even matters up.

The "Chatham" put up a good race and with Frank White at the stick showed the rest of the fourteen racers the path around the triangle. "Clut" Collins put up a good fight in the Hustler, but could not get a grab at the bone.

The "Stella Manning" again carried away her bowsprit and withdrew. The "Thisbe" parted her side stays, but stuck it out and finished fourth.

The "Chatham" got 100 per cent; the Hustler 75; the Vexer 50; and the other boats 25 each.

The judges were Secretary Whiting, Dr. F. E. Jones and Arthur B. Holden.

FIGHT TO THE FINISH.

and if that is not sufficient to do the work he will drop one into the city every two minutes. This fire, in addition to what the land forces will turn in, it is thought, will be sufficient to reduce the Spaniards to a point where they will surrender.

There is a possibility that the enemy, when too closely pressed, may seek to escape from the city and retreat to the mountains upon the north and west. This could be accomplished without hindrance were it not for the difficulties involved in the carrying of supplies. The road by which the reinforcements marched in is the road by which the army could march out. General Shafter's army does not surround the city on the north or west. It is entrenched upon the south in the direction of Sibney and to the north and east as far as El Caney, but there is a distance of four miles between the latter place and Santiago which does not seem to be covered by our troops. Over a road in the direction of San Luis the Spanish army could move in the direction of Holguin, a town about five days' march distant, but it is not easy to see how it would subsist in the meantime, as the country affords no opportunity for foraging. If, however, it should manage to get away, leaving Shafter with nothing but the bag, so to speak, the situation would be extremely embarrassing for our army.

The attempt to follow the Spanish would present almost insurmountable obstacles. It has been hard enough to get supplies to the front of the line from headquarters a few miles in the rear. At times our soldiers have been compelled to go on half rations. It would be anything but a satisfactory experiment to try to move 25,000 men over a new country, with bad roads and with the enemy hidden in ambush all along the way, harrassing the flanks of our army, interfering with the supply trains and otherwise adding to the natural dangers and difficulties of the onward march.

What became of Admiral Cervera's treasure chest is a leading question among the officers of the American fleet. It is customary for the admiral of a fleet to carry enough cash to purchase supplies while away from home, and Admiral Cervera, when he left Cadiz, had $200,000 in silver and gold. Cervera paid a portion of this sum for coal delivered by British vessels near Curacao and for supplies bought at Martinique, but it is said that he still had $100,000 left when the fleet arrived at Santiago, and that the greater part of this sum remained untouched at the time the fleet dashed out of the harbor last Sunday. Cervera kept this chest on the flagship, and it was burned with the vessel. The hinges of the chest remain, thus showing that the fire was not hot enough to destroy the money. Nevertheless, the money is gone, and only $20,000 in silver can be traced.

The Spaniards have already begun to loot the city. The officers permitted the soldiers to break into houses vacated by refugees, on the pretense of searching for food, but in reality to smash everything not of use to them, and to take whatever of value that was found. The refugees complain that they could take very little with them when they were forced to leave the city and seek refuge in the American lines.

The road from Santiago to the coast is still lined with unfortunate women, carrying their children and big bundles of goods. Tugging at their dresses are hundreds of tots overloaded with little treasures and childish trinkets. I saw several youngsters carrying live pigs, and one boy was trying to make the best of the situation by holding tenaciously to a bleating kid he had in his arms. Many of the children among the refugees are sickly. It is a common sight to see refined women sitting by the roadside weeping and begging for food, wearing all of their finery, and making desperate attempts to maintain their dignity in distressing circumstances.

Hot Time at Manzanillo.

Port Antonio, July 11. — Captain Adolph Marix of the converted yacht Scorpion and Captain Purcell of the Osceola had a hot time July 3 at Manzanillo, where they had established a blockade. Manzanillo had until lately been unguarded, and the Spanish have used it for a port of supplies. General Pando and his branch of the army being there, it was decided "to lock the stable door" last week, and July 3 the Scorpion and Osceola were before the place. It is on a long, deep bay, and a close examination by Captain Marix convinced him that its defense was one small fort and four gunboats.

LIEUTENANT COMMANDER MARIX.

On Sunday morning Captain Marix decided to go in after the gunboats, and so signalled to Captain Purcell. Captain Marix tells the story as follows: "Imagine our surprise upon finding, instead of gunboats and a small fort, the shore filled with artillery and infantry. The fire we moved into was a desperate one, considering that we did not have any protection for our men or the guns. For 25 minutes we stayed at it, and I think we must have done a lot of damage. I had no pilot and could not move in closer. We were hit frequently, and at last when a shot had cleaned our galley and I saw that it was useless to risk the men's lives we moved out.

"The gunboats laid behind the hills in a small cove, and we could not get them. We moved out slowly, and the fire ceased. The next morning we captured a large lighter and a sloop filled with provisions. No attempt was made by the gunboats to come out to the defense of these ships. The Spanish steamer Purisima Concepcion, which had been around the coast looking for a place to land money and provisions, is in the harbor and has discharged her cargo."

Arrival of Prisoners.

Portsmouth, July 11.—The St. Louis and Harvard arrived Sunday with the 1100 prisoners taken at the downfall of Cervera. Ninety-one of the captives, including several of the Spanish officers, are sick, some with pneumonia, but all are expected to recover. The majority of the cases of sickness was caused by exposure during the battle, when the men were obliged to jump into the sea from the sinking vessels.

All the officers of Cervera's fleet signed paroles on board the St. Louis and were given the freedom of the vessel. The governor of Santiago, who was among the prisoners taken, refused to sign, and is being held under a close guard.

The prisoners were dressed in clothes of every description, as most of them had very little clothing when taken, and what they are wearing was given them by the officers and men from the American fleet.

Admiral Cervera shook hands with the health officer and in good English said he was situated very pleasantly on the boat, and had received nothing but the kindest and most considerate treatment from both officers and men ever since he had been taken prisoner. He had not been feeling well for the past three or four days, but expected to be all right in a short time. He presents the appearance of a broken-hearted man, and keenly feels the loss of his fleet, containing the pick of the Spanish navy.

Admiral Cervera consented to talk with representatives of the press Sunday afternoon. "You ask me," he said, "how I like America, and I answer you that I have always liked and I may say loved your people, but this war has been a duty with me. I knew that the American fleet clearly outclassed us, but it was a question of fighting either in the harbor or outside. I have many friends in America and have only the kindliest feeling for them, but every man has a duty to perform to his country, and all Spaniards tried to perform that duty. There has been much feeling in Spain, and I want all Spain to know the truth that every ship of my squadron fought until the last, and when we could do no more we surrendered."

Portsmouth, July 11.—The cruiser Harvard arrived off Fort Constitution with 400 Spanish prisoners from Santiago last night. The prisoners were brought to the city this morning.

Archbishop Ireland Preaches.

St. Paul, July 11.—Archbishop Ireland chose the war and the proclamation by the president as the theme for a sermon at the cathedral Sunday. In the course of his sermon he said: "God's power and will are above armies and navies, and on him far more than armies and navies nations depend. Let us praise and thank God. He blesses us in the war our armies wage today. Victory follows victory; the starry banner waves triumphant in Cuba and the far distant Philippines. Small has been the sacrifices demanded as the price of victories. Wondrously great is the result of our victories. A new America has risen up; a new era has dawned in our history. America as never before is conscious of her power; the nations of the earth as never before understand her power. The child of a century is a giantess whose arms reach beyond her own vast continent, across distant oceans. God indeed has blessed her. The ideals of America are, in God's designs, the ideals of all humanity; and America triumphs that popular liberty may triumph and a new order of things spring up for all humanity."

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND.

Campos Favors Further Bloodletting.

Madrid, July 11.—Marshal Campos, in the course of an interview at San Sebastian, said it was impossible that negotiations for peace should be entered upon by the Spanish and American governments for the reason that the time was not yet ripe. He had always advocated reforms in Cuba since 1869, but not autonomy. He fully recognized that autonomy had not yielded the expected results, partly in consequence of the island war and partly because it had been granted too late. In 1896, he said that Senator Canovas when premier had proposed to him to introduce autonomy, but he (Campos) declined to do so, considering the time unfavorable.

General Campos denied a remark attributed to him that he was less concerned at the loss of Admiral Cervera's squadron than at the position of the queen regent. "I believe," he declared, "that Spain and the monarchy are intimately connected; but I am first of all a Spaniard. My affection for the queen regent is great, but my affection for my country is greater."

PROCTOR ON THE WAR.

Great Question Opened Up by Dewey's Guns at Manila.

Heavy Responsibilities That Cannot Be Shirked.

"Hereafter Our Flag Will Float on Every Sea," Said the Statesman.

Rutland, July 11.—At a thanksgiving meeting here Sunday Senator Proctor made a speech in which he said: "We are in the midst of war, but there are things worse than war. There are wrongs which cannot be righted in any way yet devised except by force. The American people decided that the long continued tyranny of Spain in Cuba must stop, and the only way to make this sure was that her flag must leave that island. This war is the result of that decision.

"There were many in high places, many men of intelligence and wealth and business and political standing, who asked almost in the words of Cain, 'Am I my brother's keeper?' and the people answered not hastily, but, after hearing and considering the facts with patience and long suffering, 'Yes, you are,' and more to the extent that we will not longer stand idly by and see our brotherman robbed and stabbed and murdered if it is in our power to prevent it.

SENATOR PROCTOR.

"Dewey's guns in Manila opened up great questions before our nation. Territorial aggrandizement was not in out thoughts, but the events of that Sunday disclosed great responsibilities upon us which we cannot shirk. I cannot doubt that the issue will be met as becomes a people free and enlightened, and wishing all people to share like blessings. The destinies of more than 10,000,000 people will be in our hands. They are strangers to us in blood and race; strangers to our laws and customs, and in a large measure to our civilization. It is not best for us or for them that they should be made a part of our body politic. Hereafter our flag will float on every sea and its stars flash in the morning sun of every clime, and all of our people, north and south, east and west, born and adopted, will be proud to avow their citizenship."

In Boston Sunday.

Boston, July 11.—Joseph Rewell, an employe at the new station, was instantly killed by the fall of a derrick yesterday afternoon, while Charles A. Kelly was seriously injured. Rewell was married and lived in Cambridge.

The new Dominion line passenger and freight steamer New England arrived at the Hoosac tunnel dock, Charlestown, Sunday morning, after a record-breaking run from Queenstown of six days, 11 hours and 38 minutes.

Adam Boycomsky, a waiter, was arrested last night on the charge of assaulting John Randolph with a knife. It is said that Boycomsky bore ill will against Randolph. Randolph's wound is considered serious, but not fatal.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, TUESDAY, JULY 12.
Sun rises—4:17; sets, 7:21.
Moon rises—12:58 p. m..
High water—5:45 a. m.; 6:15 p. m.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The body of Ira Townsend of Wellfleet, Mass., was found floating in the Gloucester harbor. He was last seen about midnight Saturday, and it is supposed that his tender capsized while he was rowing out to a yacht.

Lieutenant Governor Crane and other members of the Massachusetts delegation chosen by the legislature to report at the trans-Mississippi exposition arrived on a special car in Omaha Sunday morning. Today is Massachusetts day.

When a Cunard steamer arrived in Boston the other day the immigration officers were surprised to find a 3-legged Italian boy among the passengers. His father accompanied him to America, and the two were bound for Middletown, Conn.

The steamer Parklands, from Boston for Parrsboro, N. S., ran ashore in a thick fog. She had a hole broken in her bow, which caused her forward compartment to be filled with water. She has been beached at West bay, and is leaking at the rate of a foot an hour.

Returns from the elections in British Columbia give the following results: Government, 15; opposition, 17; doubtful, 6. Premier Turner was defeated in Chilliwack, but will be returned from Victoria City. Victoria returns the government candidates. The latest returns indicate not more than a government majority of two in the house, which consists of 38 members.

You say of the weather sometimes, but it is never hotter than you can make your home (if you want to) when you buy a Furnace from that popular dealer, BATES. He has just bought two-carloads. Do you want one?

Incidentally, you might want one of those fine Ranges or a Parlor Stove when you return from the mountains.

SHAFTER IS CAUTIOUS.

Washington's Construction of His Apparent Inaction.

Wants to Avoid Needless Sacrifice of Life.

General Blanco Treated as the Stumblingblock to Peace.

Washington, July 12.—The delay in taking Santiago is explained by the statement that General Shafter did not care to force an attack upon the city as long as any outlet which afforded an avenue for the retreat of the enemy remained open. It is known that instructions have been sent to General Shafter from the highest authorities in Washington not to hasten the bombardment of the city or expose the American troops to a general engagement if the surrender of the city can be accomplished through a siege, the idea of the president being to avoid, if possible, any further sacrifice of American lives. The capture of the city is known to be inevitable, whether the Americans fire a shot or whether they remain perfectly quiet in their trenches. Consequently there is no disposition to hurry the attack or to expose our army to unnecessary danger.

This is the answer which is made to critics of the apparent paralysis which seems to have overtaken the troops in front of Santiago. When someone suggested that Great Britain would have begun to bombard the minute that an ultimatum expired and not allowed the enemy to begin the firing, much less would have apparently temporized with Spaniards as General Shafter seems to have done, it was stated that the conditions were different and that the American forces would lose nothing by delay.

So far as cen be ascertained, the navy continues to do nothing. There is certainly no co-operation yet visible. The navy refuses to enter the harbor, and the army declines to storm Morro castle. Consequently the ships rock idly on the ocean, while the army pays no attention whatever to the shore batteries, but proceeds to move upon the city. There seems to have been an effort on the part of some of the ships to send a few shells over the hills into the city, but the reports show that the effort was not successful. The lack of co-operation between the army and the navy led to a conference between the president and Secretary Long and the naval war board at the White House yesterday. It did not result in positive action.

It can be again asserted that the administration has no knowledge whatever of any movement in the direction of peace, but that, on the contrary, there is every reason to believe that Spain proposes to prolong the war. General Blanco is undoubtedly a stumbling block in the way of peace. He has been cabling to Madrid that he is able to hold Havana against an army of 200,000 men and insists that the Spanish land forces be given an opportunity to retrieve the disasters which the Spanish navy has experienced.

It cannot be foretold, of course, whether his advice will have any weight at Madrid, but the probability is that his representations will postpone, for a time at least, any propositions looking to the termination of the war. As a matter of fact, if Spain decides to accept the fall of Santiago as inevitable, and if she is also willing to lose Porto Rico and suffer the loss of Admiral Camara's fleet, which must certainly occur within a comparatively short time, the United States will have considerable difficulty in capturing Havana, and then subduing the Spanish army in Cuba.

The military advisers of the administration realize this fact, and sincerely hope that the war will be brought to a close before the necessity arises for an assault upon Havana. The city has been very thoroughly fortified during the three months which have elapsed since the war began. Blanco has been industriously strengthening the defenses all around the city and has brought into Havana all the Spanish soldiery in the neighborhood of the city.

Commodore Schley has cabled to the navy department expressing regret at the controversy which has arisen regarding the officers who should have the credit for the victory off Santiago on July 3. The credit properly belongs, he says, to the commander-in-chief. He says that Rear Admiral Sampson, in his official reports, will distribute praise to those deserving it. Although Rear Admiral Sampson has cabled to the department that there is no friction between himself and Commodore Schley, officials here are trying to interpret the admiral's treatment of the commodore after Cervera's surrender. While Captain Cook was returning to the Brooklyn, the New York, with Admiral Sampson on board, ran in between the Brooklyn and the prize, and ordered Captain Cook to send the prisoners on board the New York. Commodore Schley, seeing this, megaphoned over: "I request the honor of receiving the surrender of the officers of the Cristobal Colon." No answer was vouchsafed him from the New York, and a ship that had not fired a shot took the honors. Commodore Schley then raised the pennant: "A glorious victory has been won, details later." The answer from the New York was: "Report your casualties."

Word comes that General Shafter believes that the main body of the Spanish army has abandoned Santiago and is now fleeing to the westward. It is expected that the American army will be in full possession of the city today.

A Flag of Truce.

Playa Del Este, July 12.—At 9:30 o'clock Monday morning, after several range finding shots over the ridge protecting Santiago from the sea, the Newark opened fire into the city with her 8-inch guns. The signal corps officers at the top of the ridge reported the effect of the shots. The New York, Brooklyn and Indiana participated in the firing at intervals of five minutes.

The bombardment lasted for two hours, when General Shafter reported that the shells were mostly falling in the bay and doing put little damage. The last shot, however, struck a prominent church in the heart of the city, which was heavily stored with powder and ammunition, causing a tremendous explosion. The extent of the damage is not known.

When the warships ceased fire and before General Shafter had begun a land attack, a flag of truce was seen coming from the city. The object of this was not known when the correspondent of the Associated Press left the front. In the afternoon General Miles and the Columbia arrived. Rear Admiral

A REMARKABLE YEAR.

Export Trade Increased In Quantity and Value.

Totals of Preceding Periods Greatly Exceeded.

Shipments of Wheat Equalled Only by a Single Showing.

Washington, July 12.—The record of the most remarkable year in our export trade was completed Monday by the bureau of statistics so far as relates to the exportation of wheat, corn and other breadstuffs, pork, beef and other provisions, cotton and mineral oils. These articles form a large percentage of the total exports aside from manufactures. The figures show in most cases a large increase in quality and value of the articles exported, though in some cases, notably mineral oils and cotton, the export price per unit has averaged less during the year than in the preceding year.

The cotton exported during the year increased from 3,103,754,949 pounds to 3,341,332,800 pounds, while the total value last year was $230,890,971, and that for the year just ended $229,907,477. The exportation of mineral oil increased from 973,514,946 gallons to 1,022,210,379 gallons, yet the total value in the year just ended was only $55,171,001, against $62,635,037 in the preceding year.

In provisions, including beef, pork and dairy products, the value of the exportations was greater than last year, being $154,454,074, against $137,138,084 last year. In wheat, corn, oats and rye the increase in both quantities and value was strongly marked. The exportation of wheat for the year (including flour as wheat) amounted to 215,17,961 bushels, which exceeded the exportation of a preceding year, except that of 1892, which amounted (flour included) to 225,-665,812 bushels. The value of the wheat and flour exported during the year just ended amounted to $212,891,639, a sum only surpassed in 1890 and 1892, the total in 1890 being $225,879,502, and that of 1892 being $236,761,416.

In corn the exports for the year exceed both in quantity and value those of any preceding year, the number of bushels (including cornmeal) being 209,-859,102 bushels, valued at $75,260,067. The largest exportation of corn in any year was 178,817,417 bushels in 1897, valued at $54,989,213, while in no year prior to 1897 did the quantity of corn exported ever reach half of the year just ended. In oats, oatmeal and rye the exportation also greatly increased, the total in each case for the year just ended being about double that of the preceding year. The value of the exports of oats and oatmeal in the fiscal year 1898 was $22,339,752, against $9,827,547 in the previous year.

The value of rye exported was $3,-795,820, against $3,667,505 in the previous year. The total value of breadstuffs exported was $324,706,060, against $197,-857,219 in the previous fiscal year.

Senator Cullom Chairman.

Washington, July 12.—The American members of the commission appointed by the president under the act annexing Hawaii to the United States were in conference Monday. Senator Cullom was chosen chairman.

M. W. Blumenberg, one of the official reporters of the senate, was appointed reporter of the commission. It was decided that the entire clerical force should be composed of employes of the senate in order not to add unnecessarily to the salary roll of the commission. It is impossible to fix a definite time of departure, but August was agreed upon as the approximate date for sailing from San Francisco.

SENATOR CULLOM.

Among the questions with which the commission will have to deal are the public lands, the elective franchise and fortifications. The members of the commission generally express the opinion that steps will be taken to protect the islands against all possible foes both by erecting fortifications and by maintaining a force of men sufficient for a probable emergency. The present land laws of the islands are quite complicated, and the chief end in view when they were formulated was that of inducing white immigration. The probabilities are that they will be retained under the new system, in the main.

The president's intention of continuing President Dole as the governor of the new territory was discussed at the meeting as a matter decided upon, and was spoken of most approvingly. The commissioners favor a full territorial form of government, with a delegate in congress and a local legislature.

TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother to'd him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "'leventy-leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. They are not worth $15.00, but we know of no one who sells them for as little money. 100 percale and white shirts with attached collar and cuff and and fancy bosoms, at 45c. 125 fine percale and French madras, at 69c. 100 best quality madras shirts, detatched collars and cuffs, at 98c. Bear this in mind, we sell our shirts for all they are worth. But we know of people who sell them for more money and claim they are worth twice as much.

Good Afternoon.

It may be taken for granted that something wrong transpired aboard the La Bourgogne, between the time of collision and the sinking of that unfortunate vessel. The stories of cowardice and brutality on the part of the ship's company may have been exaggerated, the lack of discipline may not have been total, but the fact that so few were saved and only one from a large number of women, points to only one conclusion, merely that something was decidedly wrong and that better management would undoubtedly have resulted in the salvation of many more persons. The fact is, that on many of the great liners the state of discipline, while good enough for ordinary purposes is not perfect enough to control the panic produced by a great and unexpected danger.

The verandas of the Hotel Pemberton offer a welcome retreat on a hot day. The main trouble with such days is, that no air is stirring or if there is, it comes hot and feverish from the interior and generally from the south. The thing to do, therefore, is to so place yourself that the breeze must come for some distance over the water, so that it shall lose some of its heat and pick up as much refreshing and invigorating ozone as possible. Some of the popularity of the Hotel Pemberton is doubtless due to the fact, that it is excellently situated for this purpose.

Councilman Little thought the order should go through as rapidly as possible.

President Pinkham called Councilman Sidelinger to the chair and taking the floor said, We have a committee to look over these orders and this one should go to them. The order had never been written out in full and the Council might make a mistake to suspend the rules especially as assessments were to be levied.

Councilman Swithin wanted to see the order passed.

The motion to suspend the rules was lost, and the order was referred to the Committee on Ordiances.

The Braintree Universalist church without any solicitation on his part, has kindly granted its pastor, Rev. Edgar W. Preble, two weeks additional vacation, beginning from next Sunday. After the 17th therefore there will be no preaching service in Pythian hall, until the first Sunday in September.

The President's request for thanksgivings and prayers to Almighty God on behalf of our beloved country was regarded with earnestness and heartiness in the First Presbyterian church Sunday, at both services. The evening order of worship was unique. After the opening service the pastor made brief introductory remarks, which were followed by the alternate reading ot battle psalms and singing of soldier hymns. It was made manifest that our hymns of this order are concerned with spiritual warfare, and that the psalms while they glorify war for a righteous cause yet exalt peace as the thing most greatly to be desired. There were large congregations at both services.

The Georgia railroad commission has taken the position that the requirement by the Western Union Telegraph company and the Southern Express company, that their patrons pay the war tax on messages and receipts as a condition precedent to the sending of telegrams and packages, amounts to an exaction of that much in addition to their usual rates. These companies have been cited to appear July 10 and show cause why they should not be held guilty of violation of the law.

LADIES AS GUESTS.

Jolly Tars of Quincy Yacht Club Entertain.

That the Quincy yacht club is a popular organization was manifest in many ways on Monday, the annual ladies' day of the club. There was a large fleet of yachts to take out parties, and there were hundreds of Quincy people with their friends to enjoy the sail. The day was pleasant and comfortable, possibly a little too cool, with a good breeze for sailing.

Early in the afternoon the yachtsmen and yachtswomen began to arrive by boat and electric cars at the commodious club-house at Houghs Neck. Yes, all were yachtsmen, the young men wearing duck trousers and sweaters or dark blue coats, while the regulation Q. Y. C. caps were numerous. The fair ladies were in yachting gowns cap and all, and it was a gay scene about the clubhouse especially at the departure and return from the sail. It was soon apparent that it was not dress alone that distinguished the ladies as yachtswomen.

Before 3 o'clock most of the yachts with their crews had left the club float and were ready to pass in review of Commodore Rice on the flagship Skylark. The signal was given about 3.15 and as each yacht passed it dipped its colors and was saluted by a gun.

Course No. 1 was sailed and it was a very pretty sight as the yachts started on the port tack for Jack-knife ledge buoy. This was left on port, and the yachts were away for Pig Rock beacon. Leaving the beacon on starboard, they sailed to the Black Can buoy off Bumkin island. The wind had died out considerable by this time, and the homeward trip between Sheep and Grape islands was not run so quickly. The Skylark and Athlete steamed in and out and around the yachts and gave their guests a long sail.

The Redskin led all over the course, but it was not a race and the skippers generally were under reef, and watchful for the safety of guests.

The yachts returned shortly after 5 o'clock, and soon the clubhouse and verandas were crowded. Promptly at 5.30 refreshments were served by T. D. Cook & Co., including sandwiches and delicious ices with cake.

In the evening there was dancing to Daggett's inspiring music, and the only regret was that the clubhouse was not many times larger. It was continued until after 10 o'clock.

The house committee whom much of the success of the day was given were: Vice Commodore Davis, Charles W. Hall, Commodore Rice, Secretary Whiting, Gordon M. Keating, Herbert W. Barker, George W. Jones, Dr. Frederick E. Jones, William H. Shaw, George D. Follett.

AN AWFUL FALL.

A Wollaston Park Boy Fatally Injured.

A sad accident happened at Wollaston Park Monday night which threw that usually quiet neighborhood into a fever of excitement such as it has not experienced since the tragic death of the little MaDonald child early in the spring, who lost his life by being burned while playing about a grass fire. This time the victim was Worth, the nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. MacIntyre who live on Hamden circle, Wollaston Park.

It appears that the little fellow in company with Ethel Marr the seven years old daughter of George Marr, entered a partly finished building on Hamden circle about 5.15 o'clock after the workmen had gone home. They ascended to the attic when the boy was attracted by the chimney hole in the roof and climbed up to get a view of the surroundings. The Mar girl told him he had better come down, whereupon she descended to the floor below. Just as she reached the second story she heard a shriek and a dull thumping noise. She barely caught sight of his falling body but realized what had happened. She quickly descended to the cellar where she found the limp and unconscious form of her little playmate lying on his left side. Unlike many little girls placed in a like situation, instead of running away frightened she hastened to his side and with heroic strength she raised his body and attempted to carry him from the celalr crying loudly for help. Immediately Mr. Fred Pearson who lives next door to where the accident took place came to her assistance. Mr. Pearson conveyed the unfortunate child to his own residence while little Ethel awake to her duty summoned her mother and then hurriedly notified Mrs. MacIntyre who lives about two hundred yards away. The mother of the boy quickly appeared upon the scene and when realizing the full extent of the injury to her only child her feelings can better be imagined than described.

Dr. Record was summoned and in company with Dr. Bruce of Atlantic who happened along at the time they made a brief examination of the boy's injuries and ordered him to the Quincy City Hospital where he was conveyed as tenderly as possible by Mr. Fay.

Mr. MacIntyre arrived from the city on the 6.30 train and was met between the station and his home by a kind neighbor who broke the news to him as gently as possible. The heartbroken faher turned toward Quincy with tears in his eyes and was soon by the side of his unconscious child.

At eight o'clock the little fellow had not regained consciousness and the doctors in attendance gave no hope of his recovery, as is injuries were of a very severe nature.

Beside a badly broken leg and internal injuries, concussion of the brain was manifest.

It is not known whether he slipped from when he was standing or lost his hold in coming down. Hs fall must have been about thirty-seven feet down the chimney-way.

The little sufferer died just before 2 o'clock this afternoon.

DIFFERENT TENTS.

Changes Made in Squads of Co. K at Camp.

Camp Dalton,
Tuesday, Juy 11, 1898.

Today is simpy a repetition of the past week. Plenty of sun but a cool breeze.

A great many changes have taken place in K street today. The 1st and 2d sergeants were put in one tent. The four remaining sergeants were placed in the next.

The rest were each placed in charge of a corporal and filled up with privates. Each of the duty sergeants is placed in charge of three corporals. This has caused just a little disactisfaction as strong ties have grown up between some of the men. But it cannot be avoided, as it is military law and we simply acquiesce.

George Phillips who was sergeant of the guard Sunday was complimented by the officer of the day for the manner in which he performed the duties of his position. George is sure to come to the front if given a chance.

Chief of Police Litchfield was in camp again Monday. He is a frequent visitor now and always enjoys his visits.

New leggins and belts are being issued.

The drill today was a little the best yet. Squad drilling has been abandoned and company drill instituted. The effect of the primary drilling is now apparent.

The new band instructor arrived today and took charge at once. He is Prof. Lynn late of the Cadet band.

Major Morrison this morning took some members of other companies into Co. K street to show them how well Co. K men took care of their tents. It was an object lesson to them.

Last night for the first time there was a dress parade of the full regiment at which the band made its appearance for the first itme. The band can only play three tunes, viz: "Yankee Doodle." "Star Spangled Banner" and "Marching Through Georgia." It did very well however.

Company K will look after all visitors on Governor's day in good shape.

Considering that there are 750 green men in the regiment, many of whom had never seen a dress parade, they did well and were complimented by the officers.

Tomorrow, Wednesday, is Governors' day and there will be thousands of visitors to the camp.

Mrs. J. McLoud and Mrs. G. W. Wardwell are visiting friends at camp today.

Those home today on leave of absence are Privates Jones, Roberts, Levangie, McPhee, Brown, Mahoney, Jameson, Martelle, Clark and Briggs.

Rather cool at camp today but the boys enjoy it.

Zeigler Given the Decision.

New York, July 12.—Owen Zeigler of Philadelphia and Billy Ernst of Brooklyn met for a 25-round fight at the Greater New York Athletic club last night. The men gave their weight at 138 pounds each. In the early rounds of the bout the Brooklyn man had the visitor guessing, but as the bout progressed Zeigler got the upper hand, and if the referee had not interfered it is more than likely that Ernst would have been knocked out.

The bout was stopped in the 17th round by Referee Brown when the men had been fighting about a minute. Zeigler and Ernst had got into close quarters, and with one arm free Ernst uppercut Zeigler three times. Zeigler was not fighting at the time, and Ernst's arm was around his neck. The referee, in answer to an appeal from Zeigler, ordered the men to their corners and awarded the bout to Zeigler. Although Zeigler had the better of the go, the referee's action was not well received.

ON SEAVEY'S ISLAND.

Spanish Prisoners to Be Held There Until Given Their Liberty.

Portsmouth, July 12.—One of the most touching incidents of the day in connection with the debarkation of the Spanish prisoners at Seavey's island, where they are to be detained, was the farewell of Captain Moreu of the Christobal Colon. Few who saw the tenderness with which the big hearted and jovial commander walked down the line and affectionately embrace each seaman as if he was his only son could refrain from tears, while the whole scene will be remembered by those who witnessed it as one of the touching examples of devotion and reverence in which the seaman of every ship holds his commander.

The crew of the Colon had landed with the rest of the prisoners, and with them came Captain Moreu, who assisted Colonel Forney of the marine corps in his labors as mustering officer. This work took time, as each man's name and description had to be recorded, but at last it was over, and then Captain Moreu turned to the American officer and asked permission to say a few parting words to the men who had stood by him so nobly. The request was readily granted, but Captain Moreu, instead of making a formal and eloquent address to the long line, walked up to the man at the head of it, and taking him warmly by the hand, tenderly kissed the grim sailor on the cheek. When the men saw the action of the commander they wept as if their hearts would break, and as the captain walked down the line shaking each by the hand and kissing each sun-burned cheek as if it had been that of the most beautiful senorita in Spain, each man threw his arms around his commander's neck and gave him a most hearty embrace.

The first meal served to the prisoners showed the measure of hospitality of Uncle Sam towards his unfortunate enemies. It was far more generous in quantity and more substantial in quality than many a hard-working man in our cities secures for his principal meal. The prisoners were drawn up in line by detachments, and eight cooks went past and served them roast beef, potatoes, onions, bread and coffee in utensils provided for them. As a supply for this first supper of the men on American soil, there were 1000 loaves of bread, 600 pounds of beef and 50 gallons of coffee, besides sufficient quantities of onions and potatoes.

About five acres of the island will comprise the prison yard of the captives. The space will be enclosed with a fence eight feet in height. Outside this fence at a space seven feet from it a barbed wire boundary, eight feet high, is also to be constructed, beside which the sentries will be placed. At commanding points also gatling guns will be placed, thus making escape practically hopeless to the prisoners. In the southeast corner of the enclosure, and close to the water, are the newly erected buildings that are to be both living and sleeping quarters for the men. There are 10 of them in all, long, low and flat-roofed, and if need be each can shelter 200 men. The buildings are 18 feet wide, 100 feet long, and are raised from the ground and thoroughly ventilated. Besides the prisoners' quarters there are a hospital building, a cook house equipped with 21 ranges, and all necessary utensils

Blanco's Colored Report.

Madrid, July 12.—General Blanco has cabled the government as follows: "The proposal for an unconditional surrender of Santiago being rejected, hostilities were resumed at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. I ordered Santiago to defend itself vigorously. The enemy commenced by a cannonade, setting fire to the wreck of the Alfonzo XII, which henceforth it will be impossible to save. The Americans also appear to threaten Baturanao bay.

"The cruiser which I sent with 30,000 rations to force the blockade at Santiago was pursued by the enemy and abandoned its cargo. This attempt to revictual the town therefore has failed.

"The enemy opened the attack on San Juan and Morro castle at 4:15 by a brisk fusillade and by guns. Our troops maintained their positions, and the enemy abandoned their advanced trenches and those on the hill of San Juan. The firing ceased at 7 o'clock. Our troops behaved admirably and our losses were slight."

Another Havana dispatch says: "The Americans abandoned their positions at Santiago. The Spaniards had one cavalry officer wounded."

Captain Aunon, minister of marine, denies that Admiral Cervera had instructions to leave Santiago bay. The government left it to his discretion to make an exit if he were unable to resist in the bay.

An official dispatch from Iloilo, Philippine islands, says: "Seven chiefs and 2000 rebels have made submission to the military commander."

Massachusetts Volunteers Disabled.

Washington, July 12.—Among the sick and wounded soldiers brought to Port Tampa on the Cherokee are the following, the letters after the names indicating the companies:

Second Massachusetts volunteers — Corporals Joseph W. Easton, D; Leonard L. Richardson, F; Fred A. Simmons, M; Privates Alfred E. Ross, B; Edward Donnour, D; Frederick W. Slate, D; Peter N. White, A; David A. Detour, E; Joseph M. Farrell, L; Fred C. Schiller, L; Howard Mayrich, B; Ernest P. Marble, I; Anthony Kane, D; Arthur L. Gary, H; Patrick J. Bresham, G; Christopher Reardon, B.

Ninth Massachusetts volunteers — Corporal James F. Cunningham, F; Private E. B. Hyde, D.

Her Maximum Concession.

London, July 12.—The Berlin correspondent of The Standard says: "The queen regent is willing to open peace negotiations with the United States without any mediation of the powers, provided the conditions are not too severe. Her maximum concession at present is a declaration of the independence of Cuba."

Disapproves With All His Soul.

London, July 12.—The Madrid correspondent of The Mail says: "Cardinal Vaughn, archbishop of Westminster, has written as follows to his brother at Valladolid: 'I have profitted by my first opportunity to declare that I dis approve with all my soul the unjust conduct of the United States against Spain the latter being the least powerful nation and trying to defend its rights.' "

Shafter's Revised Report.

Washington, July 12.—Adjutant General Corbin has received from General Shafter a revised and corrected report of the casualties before Santiago on July 1, 2 and 3. It slightly increases the number of killed and wounded as given in his first report, and is as follows: Killed—23 officers, 208 men; wounded—80 officers, 1203 men; missing, 81; total, 1,595. General Shafter is of the opinion that the number of missing will be reduced somewhat.

Cabinet Goes Out.

London, July 12.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: "Sagasta went to the palace Monday and tendered his resignation and that of the cabinet. It is said that he advised the queen regent to appoint a new cabinet, largely consisting of the military element, which would not necessarily mean the adoption of a warlike policy, but probably the reverse."

It is generally expected that the resignation will be accepted; but the result may possibly be merely a partial reconstruction of the cabinet.

On leaving the cabinet council, the ministers declared that they had mutually engaged to maintain the strictest reserve on the subject of their deliberations. Duke Alemodvar, minister of foreign affairs, had an audience with the queen regent, and subsequently an important conference with the French ambassador.

It is alleged that the cabinet resigned in consequence of irreconcilable differences of opinion on the question of initiating peace negotiations.

Matters Bostonian.

Boston, July 12.—George Smith, alias Herbert Billings, pleaded guilty yesterday to an indictment charging him in two counts with breaking and entering, and was sentenced to state prison for a term of not more than 10 nor less than eight years. Smith has a bad record.

Freeman Emmons, notary public and pension agent, and John P. Callahan, notary public and real estate agent, were arrested yesterday. There are six cases against Callahan, one of which relates to the fraudulent execution of a pension voucher and the other five relate to the receiving of pension certificates as pledges. Emmons is charged with receiving certificates as pledges.

Governor Wolcott considers that the exigency which required the presence at different points along the coast of the commonwealth of the First regiment of heavy artillery is now past. He has addressed a letter to the secretary of war, informing him of this fact, and thus placing the regiment absolutely at the disposal of the national government for any service that may be required of it.

Senator Seriously Accused.

Wilmington, July 12.—Senator Richard Kenney was put on trial Monday upon a charge of aiding and abetting W. N. Boggs, who has confessed to robbing the First National bank of Dover, of which institution he was paying teller, of the sum of $107,000. The counts in the indictment, to which Senator Kenney has pleaded not guilty, involve about $3500.

Ezekiel T. Cooper of Milford and Thomas S. Clark of Dover have been convicted of similar charges and are now serving terms of 18 months and five years respectively in the New Jersey penitentiary at Trenton. Boggs was the principal witness for the prosecution in each case. His story was to the effect that the greater part of his stealings was expended in stock speculations and gambling, and that in the speculations the defendants were associated with him by participating in his deals, and that they gave him their checks when they had no funds in the bank, Boggs taking care of them from the bank's funds.

Had Played With Matches.

New York, July 12.—Philomena Caferia and Julia Partato, a child 5 years old, living in an Italian apartment house, were burned to death yesterday. Joseph Partato, the father of the child, and his wife went out, leaving their four children in the charge of Mrs. Caferia. The children were playing with matches and Julia's clothing took fire. In her efforts to extinguish the flames on the child, Mrs. Caferia's clothing took fire. Many occupants of the building crowded to the rooms, but were too excited to offer any assistance, and the victims perished before their eyes.

LOST THE FIRST.

Louisvilles Defeated on Their Return to the Champions' Abiding Place.

Boston, July 12.—The Boston champions returned to the south end ball park yesterday afternoon after a three weeks' absence in the west, and by way of celebrating the day annexed a victory to the accumulating list at the expense of the Louisville colonels. It was a pitchers' matinee so far as big hitting was concerned, and only Lowe's long hit for a homer got a place on the score cards for anything better than a single. As Cincinnati lost to Baltimore it gave the boys a chance to climb a step higher.

NED TENNEY.

The team from the blue grass region is made up of a lot of left and right-hand hitters, placed in juxtaposition to each other on the batting list, commencing with Hoy, the silent center fielder, a south side hitter, followed by Stafford of Webster, Mass., a right-hander, and so on down the line. Tenney's first-base play and run-getting contributed largely to the victory. Score:

The Philadelphias easily defeated the Clevelands, 9 to 3.

The New Yorks won from the St. Louis team in the first two innings. Doheny and Taylor pitched poorly. Score: 10 to 4.

Dolan's wildness in the second inning enabled the Montreals to win from the Springfields. Souders was batted out of the box in two innings by the Springfields.

The Brooklyns dropped a game to the Pittsburgs through the effective twirling of Tannehill, who was backed up in good shape by his comrades. Score: 3 to 2.

The Washingtons played a sleepy game and were easily beaten by the Chicagos, 7 to 2.

Pitcher Dammann was ordered off the Baltimore ground by the umpires. The Baltimores had a shade the better of the argument in the field and at the bat, and won from the Cincinnatis, 6 to 4.

Manager Kuntzsch has offered to turn the Syracuse team over to the players and give them $1000 and the use of the park, providing they will agree to run the club until the end of the season. The offer will probably be accepted.

Arrangements were closed last night by Ottawa for the purchase of the franchise of Rochester in the Eastern league.

Busy Career Ended.

Washington, July 12.—Admiral Ammen, whose death was reported Monday, was executive officer of the North Atlantic blockading squadron at the outbreak of the rebellion. At the reduction of Port Royal, Nov. 7, 1861, he commanded the Seneca, of the South Atlantic blockading squadron, and was sent ashore to hoist the Union flag over the surrendered forts and to hold them till the army took possession. He commanded the forces entering via Whale branch in the attack on Port Royal ferry, and was also engaged in the operations against Fernandina. He commanded the Patapsco in the attack on Fort McAllister and Fort Sumter. In May, 1864, he was ordered to Aspinwall in command of 220 seamen as passengers on board the California passenger steamer, Ocean Queen. Two days out from New York a well organized mutiny was suppressed by him, aided by several officers and a few volunteers among the passengers. Subsequently Admiral Ammen participated in the two attacks on Fort Fisher in the winter of 1864-65. He reached the grade of rear admiral in 1887. Of his service 21 years and one month were spent at sea.

Providence Man Dead.

New York, July 12.—The body of a man was found on the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at New Brunswick, N. J., yesterday. He had been killed by a train, but whether he was a passenger or was walking along the track is not known. In a pocket an insurance policy was found made out in the name of John Brayton, Providence. The policy was dated four years back and was in favor of his wife, Kate Brayton.

It is the primary duty of every woman to wear in her face the lilies and roses of health. It is one of woman's natural missions to please, and one of the first attributes of a pleasing woman is a complexion that shows the bloom of health.

No matter how beautiful a woman may be at the outset, if she suffers from weakness and disease of that delicate and important organism that is the threshold of human life, she will soon show traces of suffering in her face, and very shortly become haggard and homely. She will lose her animation of manner, the sparkle will fade from her eyes and the roses from her cheeks, her form will lose its roundness and her step its sprightliness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription imparts strength, health, vigor and virility to the feminine organism. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and tones the nerves. It makes weak women strong in a womanly way and able to bear the burdens of maternity. It banishes the suffering of the period of gestation, and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It restores the lost complexion and imparts strength, vitality and health to the entire system.

"I am very thankful for what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for me," writes Mrs. Etta E. Smith, of Grenola, Elk Co., Kans. "About a month before I was confined I had such pains that I could stand up only a little while at a time. I could not rest at night or at any other time. I could scarcely eat anything. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and after the second dose I felt better. From then until I was confined I carried all the water that was used up a long hill and worked in the garden every day, besides my other work and did not feel at all bad. When the baby was born I had a very easy time. The women said I had an easier time than any one they ever saw for the first time. The baby is very healthy. I got up when she was five days old. After two days I began my own work and felt stout and healthy."

Hotter than a Furnace

You say of the weather sometimes, but it is never hotter than you can make your home (if you want to) when you buy a Furnace from that popular dealer, BATES. He has just bought two carloads. Do you want one?

Incidentally, you might want one of those fine Ranges or a Parlor Stove when you return from the mountains.

My store is as full of bargains as an egg is of meat, and the war with Spain is nothing compared with the havoc in prices. It will cost you nothing to examine and but little if you carry away anything you want. "Remember the Main(e)" thing this week is to see

WHAT SHAFTER WANTS

Would Have the Warships Enter Santiago Harbor.

Toral Sends Word That He Will Not Surrender.

Plans About Completed For Reducing the City When Firing Is Resumed.

Port Antonio, July 13.—Santiago has not surrendered, under the intermittent and ineffectual bombardment of our army and navy guns since Sunday afternoon, and General Shafter with all his reinforcements of guns and men sticks to the belief that Admiral Sampson must force the harbor and attack at short range to make the Spanish commander yield soon. The president, on the advice of Secretary Long, has been unwilling to risk our ships by ordering Sampson into the harbor, as General Shafter has before suggested, and Admiral Sampson, having been notified by the navy department that he was not expected to take such a risk, has refrained from doing so, regardless of his own desire, and will await further orders.

Tuesday General Toral sent out a reply to General Shafter's second demand for the unconditional surrender of Santiago, made by the latter Sunday afternoon. In his reply General Toral referred to his refusal to accede to the American demand made on Sunday, and again reiterated his determination to resist. Notwithstanding this the American batteries did not open fire. It is hoped that all of General Randolph's batteries will be in position by today. The siege guns landed Monday will also be brought up as soon as possible.

The Cubans under General Garcia took Caimenes without opposition Monday night, and have entrenchments on either side of the road. The Americans are now in position to strike the enemy on the left flank and roll it up, making the Spanish entrenchments north of the city untenable.

During the bombardment from the sea Sunday the army extended its lines and drew closer to the city, so that at noon Monday every trail leading out of the city was guarded and the escape of the Spanish soldiers seemed impossible. The only way they could get out of the city was to ferry across the bay to the western side of the harbor, and even then they could not get away without encountering American troops. During the time the warships were bombarding the batteries of artillery on the hills facing the city shelled the entrenchments and received but a light response. The American sharpshooters also sent in a deadly fire, and the Spaniards fell back to their last entrenchments, offering but little resistance. A Spanish battery on the left of the town, engaged by Capron's battery, fired only a few shots, but a battery on the right fired spiritedly until a guncotton shell from Wood's dynamite gun exploded directly in front of it, tearing up two trees and dismounting a gun. It was the last shot of the afternoon and was greeted with cheers. Two men in General Kent's division were killed by a shell and several were wounded. Sergeant Jefferson and Private St. Clair of troop B, Ninth cavalry, are among the wounded.

Two ridiculous gallery plays were made by Spanish officers which excited amusement in the American line. Loud talking was heard from the first line of the Spanish entrenchments. An interpreter was called, and soon came in on a run to report that a Spanish officer was addressing his men, urging them to stand fast for the honor of Spain, as the morrow would be the last day of fighting, for the American army would be wiped out the first thing in the morning. Faint cheering followed, much less distinct than the officer's voice. The American sharpshooters ruthlessly fired in the direction of the Spanish line, and the hero who was going to wipe out the American army made a quick dive for the trenches, from which no Spanish heroes have yet emerged.

A Spanish deserter who came to our lines for food said: "The Spaniards are as good fighters as the Americans, and if we had food and cigarets in abundance we would fight forever."

Many shells from the ships burst in the northeast part of the city, which it is difficult to see from the American lines. It is impossible to say what effect they had. Several burst in the center of the town, with very great effect. One shell, of whose action a good view was had from San Juan hill, burst in a small street. When the atmosphere cleared it seemed as if the entire street had been blown out of existence. A large hole was torn in the ground and many buildings were demolished. If 100 other shells could be landed with similar effect they would destroy Santiago.

General Shafter signalled Admiral Sampson to cease firing. Then the general sent General Wheeler into the Spanish lines under a flag of truce with a message to General Toral, the Spanish commander, reciting the fact that the American ships had given complete demonstration that they could throw shells into the city and destroy it at will; that the American troops had the city practically surrounded, and that there were 18,000 Spanish and Cuban refugees starving to death at El Caney, and that our army had no means of feeding them. He demanded the unconditional surrender of the city, and coupled this demand with the statement that unless General Toral acceded the assault upon the city both by the land and sea forces would be renewed at once. Several huors elapsed before any reply was received from Toral, and then he sent a message to the effect that the matter was of such importance that he had been obliged to refer it to the Madrid government. It was then late in the afternoon, and General Shafter gave orders to all the troops to get as much rest as possible and be prepared to resume the attack at any moment.

Destruction of All.

Santiago, July 13.—The four ships and two torpedo boat destroyers of Spain are totally destroyed. The only ship not burned or blown up is the Colon, but she has rolled over and the heavy surf is beating her to pieces. One of the destroyers was blown up and shot to pieces and went down in deep water within a mile of Morro. Several of her crew escaped. The other destroyer was riddled with shot from the Gloucester, and ran ashore at Cabanas, two miles from Santiago harbor. She was cut in two by the rain of steel, her stern washing upon the reef and her bow piled up on the sandy shore.

The Santiago Cable.

Playa Del Este, July 13.—Captain Young of the Hist, commanding an expedition composed of the Hist, Hornet and Wampatuck Monday, while off Santa Cruz, succeeded in cutting the cable connecting Havana with Santiago, via Cienfuegos, Trindad, Tunas and Manzanillo. Under cover of the night Captain Young went in, facing superior forces, and located the landing place of the cable. He remained in hiding until daybreak and then cut the cable 15 miles southeast of Santa Cruz in 10 fathoms of water. Then he cut off 160 feet of the strand and towed the ends in opposite directions, each for a couple of miles.

Merriam In Control.

San Francisco, July 13.—General Otis issued an order yesterday placing Brigadier General Miller in command of all troops left at Camp Merritt and the presidio, including the expeditionary forces. He will be under Major General Merriam, who was recently instructed by the war department to take entire control of all forces after General Otis' departure.

In Honor of Schley.

Frederick, Md., July 13.—An enthusiastic demonstration in honor of Commodore Schley and his victory at Santiago was held here last night. The commodore was born here in 1840, and many of those who participated in the celebration were his lifelong friends. After a procession in which several thousand people took part, a mass meeting was held in the city square. Resolutions were adopted amid great enthusiasm, congratulating Commodore Schley upon his splendid success. These were signed by the city officials, engrossed and forwarded to the vice admiral of the United States navy.

Canteens a Part of the Army.

Chickamauga National Park, July 13.—General Brooke has received countless letters from ladies of the Woman's Christian Temperance union in all parts of the country, urging the closing of canteens, the letters showing that most exaggerated statements are afloat in regard to the condition of regimental stores. The general, finding it impossible to reply to these letters and deeming it of general importance and due to the friends of the soldiers here, has made the following statement: "No intoxicants are sold in the canteens. Beer

RISK OF REVOLUTION.

None Incurred by Spain In Abandoning the War.

Sagasta Seeks to Avoid Hard Conditions.

British Greatly Interested In the Probable Terms of Peace.

London, July 13.—Madrid has taken the defeat of Cervera so quietly that peace is possible without risks of revolution. Sagasta is not willing to sacrifice his political reputation by proposing peace under hard conditions. He is bent on having a convenient substitute incur the unpopularity. When peace has been made he will return to office and die in the harness.

There is great interest here in the conditions of peace which the United States may propose; and there will be general disappointment if a war indemnity based upon the Philippines be so meagre that either France or Germany can raise the money and obtain possession of the islands.

It is believed here that the European powers will not intervene in any way unless a high indemnity is proposed. In that event the powers may use their diplomatic offices for obtaining a reduction of the indemnity. Whether the indemnity be high or low, Spain unaided will never pay it; but unless it be a substantial one, some European power will pay it and the United States will be empowered to withdraw from the Philippines, precisely as Japan has retired from the mainland of China. England eagerly desires America to remain permanently in the Philippines.

All Have Resigned.

Madrid, July 13.—All the Spanish ministers have handed their resignations to the premier, who has explained the situation to the queen regent; but the difficulty is that nobody is willing to accept the premiership. Marshal Campos would accept it, but he does not command a majority in the chamber of deputies.

While the military party urges war, a large proportion of the civil population is desirous of peace. It is pointed out, however, that if the United States insists upon the cession of Porto Rico and the Philippine islands the general feeling will be in favor of a continuation of hostilities, many Spaniards believing that the situation in Cuba will enable Spain to prolong the struggle for a long time.

Sagasta's Laconic Answer.

London, July 13.—The Madrid correspondent of The Mail says: "Mr. Sagasta, on being asked whether a decision had been taken regarding peace, replied: 'No, but what remedy can there be but to make peace?' "

The ministerialists assert that the regular army in Cuba does not object to a conclusion of peace, but that the 20,000 volunteers are determined to continue the war.

Sent Out From Boston.

Boston, July 13.—The state board of registration in medicine began its examination of 205 applicants for registration yesterday. The subjects were surgery, pathology and obstetrics. Of the 205 applicants 16 are women, and 35 of the number have already failed once, or more than once, to get the average of 70 percent in all five branches which alone entitles one to registration.

The subscription for 3 percent government bonds in the district covered by the sub-treasury in this city closed yesterday afternoon, and Sub-Treasurer O'Neil reports the last day's applications footed up to $202,850, and the total subscribed for in Boston as $2,527,326.

The first session of the eighth American whist congress was held yesterday. The principal business was the adoption of the report of the committee on system of play, which recommended the long suit system as the most scientific, as it is productive of the highest intellectual pleasure and is the most successful in respect to trickmaking.

Law's Purpose Clear.

Washington, July 13.—An assistant attorney general, in a ruling on the much discussed liability of common carriers under the war revenue act, says: "The purpose of the law is very clear. It was to tax the carrier and not the shipper; and these provisions undoubtedly fix upon the express companies and other carriers the duty of providing, affixing, and cancelling the stamp, and their failure to so provide, affix and cancel such stamp subjects them to the penalties provided by the law.

"It is suggested that some of these carriers are refusing to receive goods for shipment until the shipper pays the tax. While it is not in my province to advise as to the recourse which the shipper may have in instances of this kind, yet I am sure that the laws are ample to require public carriers and express companies to receive goods tendered for shipment, or suffer damages for such refusal."

Cleveland's Disaster.

Cleveland, July 13.—Repeated attempts were made Tuesday by rescuing parties to reach the scene of the explosion in the tunnel, but in every case they were driven back, almost overcome by suffocating smoke and gas. Fully 5000 people surrounded the mouth of the tunnel all day, many of them relatives of the victims of the disaster.

State Highway.

There have been numerous inquiries as to how much of Washington street the $7000 allotted by the State Highway Commission will rebuild.

Commissioner Knowlton who has been interested in having the commission accept the street, says that the amount will build the street to the full width of sixty-five feet from the Quincy Point bridge to Chubbuck street. Beyond that point the street will have to be widened before the State takes it.

There has been some speculation as to the advisability of the city giving up any of its streets to the Commission, as Weymouth and other towns who have State roads are said to have all that they want. The trouble, however, seems to be that the Highway Commission awarded the contract for building the streets accepted to the towns, and the later having taken the contract too low lost money.

Good Soldiers.

The Quincy merchants set Co. K a good example today by keeping to their agreement to pay them a visit. They evidently desire that Co. K shall not be pleasant weather soldiers, but that they shall fight it out on the lines laid down, through thick and thin, if it takes all summer. Therefore at 12.12 a good-sized delegation left Quincy, and more joined them in Boston, and they left the Boston & Albany station on the 1 o'clock train.

The boys probably regret that they have not pleasant weather for their guests, but as the day is stormy and dull, they will doubtless appreciate the visit more.

Within Thirty Days.

Shall Quincy organize a provisional company within thirty days. The Journal reports that all commanding officers and enlisted men of the Fifth Regiment, Volunteer Militia, excepting the Lieutenant Colonel and the Paymaster, who have not entered the service of the United States under the second call of the President, are relieved from duty until further orders by a general order issued yesterday.

Lieutnant Colonel William H. Oakes, Fifth Regiment Infantry, will take command of the Second Brigade, Massachusetts Volunteers Miltia. Brigade commanders are authorized to order elections for commissioned officers in the companies of the Provisional Militia. They will also establish boards of examinations for non-commissioned officers of Provisional Militia companies nominated by company commanders. When the non-commissioned officers are appointed by them, brigade commanders will issue warrants. The full number of recruits should be enlisted within 30 days to insure service to date from enlistment. Colonel Richard D. Sears, Assistant Adjutant General, is detailed as Inspector General, of Rifle Practice and will at once assume the dutes of that office.

I. O. O. F. Parade.

The Odd Fellows of this vicinity are making great preparations for the parade in Boston, Sept. 21. As already announced the lodges of Quincy, Wollaston, East Weymouth and Cohasset have formed a battalion to be known as the South Shore battalion. They have made choice of Edward L. Goodridge as chief marshal o r major, and have been very fortunate in securing the Whitman Fife, Drum and Bugle corps of 26 pieces for music. It is probable that 300 men will be mustered and it is proposed to have a short march in Quincy before the departure for Boston.

HALF A THOUSAND.

Over $500 Now Banked for Members of Co. K.

The Quincy delegation to Camp Dalton today were able to report to Capt. Kincaide of Co. K that Quincy citizens had contributed a fund of over $500 for the company, and that it was now on deposit subject to his check for the needs and comforts of the boys. As there are 106 members of the company this amount would average $5 per man. The citizens of Quincy have certainly done nobly, and they will undoubtedly do more if the war continues. Mr. George H. Wilson has been the most prominent in raising the fund for Co. K, but he has had able assistance from Charles F. Pettengill, Charles Sampson, Arthur W. Stetson and Frank F. Prescott, and the publicity given by the Daily Ledger has contributed toward the grand result. The latest subscriptions are:

Tied by the City Clerk.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at City Hall on Tuesday evening, in the presence of the Chief of Police and Officer Sandberg. The officiating officer was City Clerk Cleaves and the two hearts to be united were those of Matti Rajala and Marija Hoaanieni.

The wedding was announced to take place at 7 o'clock but City Clerk Cleaves was a little late in arriving. The bride was a little impatient and Judge Tirrell offered to perform the ceremony, but the bride said no, that no one but a Finn sympathizer would do. Shortly after the appointed hour the City Clerk arrived and the groom was escorted from his room which was number 2 of Chief Litchfield's hotel, to the City Clerk's room by Officer Sandberg and the ceremony was soon over.

The bride, a pronounced blonde, was accompanied by her best friend. Reporters were excluded from the ceremony and further particulars were unobtainable. The chief however says that City Clerk Cleaves did it up brown.

City Stable Bids.

Bids were opened Tuesday afternoon at the office of the Commisioner of Public Works for building the new city stables for which the City Council has appropriated $5,000. There were nine bids received, only one of which was below the appropriations. The several bids were as follows:

W. F. Steadman,	$8,700.00
Mitchell & Wilder,	8,547.67
Fred A. Perkins,	7,800.00
T. H. Kingston,	6,962.00
W. D. Higgins,	6,700.00
George O. Langley,	6,520.60
George E. Thomas,	6,520.00
A. W. Parker,	5,500.00
F. W. Grant,	4,900.00

Unless the bid of Mr. Grant is accepted or the appropriation increased, the stables cannot be built upon the present plans, because the city charter does not permit work to be commenced unless sufficient sum of money is appropriated.

ORANGES AT CAMP.

And Why Not on Orangemen's Day—A Grand Treat.

Camp Dalton,
Wednesday, July 13, 1898.

Just a little cool Tuesday but comfortable for drilling. Capt. Kincaide personally conducted the drill and was very well satisfied with the work done.

Comparison of the men the day we arrived and today would surprise people. The interest taken by the men is the cause of it all and when the time comes the old 5th will have chance to be proud of its successor. It will be the best equipped and best drilled regiment to leave the State.

Some of the boys are so anxious to go to the front that they are talking of being transferred to the other regiments for fear they will get left. Such a process would take two months at least and by that time our regiment will be there if the thing lasts. Men surely could never be as well used or have as much care taken of them as they have now and are sure to have as long as we continue under our present officers.

Preparations are being made to receive the Governor this afternoon, if the rain does not prevent his attendance. His Excellency will present the officers with their commissions.

The Quincy people who come will do well to stay for dress parade and review at 7.30.

G. A. Pelos the tonsorial artist marched into camp Tuesday afternoon with a box of oranges on his back which he dealt out to the boys. Gabe is a prime favorite with the boy and is sure of a welcome at any time. He was given three hearty cheers and deserves them.

Private Johnson of Co. D was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital Monday, suffering from appendicitis. He is reported to have passed through an operation successfully.

Today ends the second week in camp.

The supper hour is now at 5.30 instead of 8 P. M. It was a long stretch from noon until 8 o'clock, but now the men may feel the need of a lunch after the evening parade.

Lieut. Whitney of Co. K is commander of the guard today.

George W. Prescott was among the visitors Tuesday, and several of the Co. K boys congratulated him on the kindly interest the Patriot and Daily Ledger were taking in them.

The boys of Co. K are requested to hand in the names of their visitors to the Ledger correspondent. All such favors will be appreciated.

Today is a terror for the boys at Camp Dalton. The rain has been coming down in sheets all day, and everybody is wet through. The streets are running rivers, the water being over the shoes, and the boys that are without shoes are having a hard time of it. They will however be provided with shoes this afternoon.

The visit of Governor Wolcott and staff has been postponed on account of the rain until Friday.

The men were drilled this morning in the large mess tent.

There are a few visitors here today and they are keeping inside of the tents out of the wet.

A walk of a few hundred feet today is enough to insure a ducking.

City Assessor, I. M. Holt, was a visitor at the camp yesterday.

MACK.

The Daily Ledger is now for sale at the newly established canteen, and all the income derived therefrom will be paid to Harry McLaughlin, the Ledger representative. A large supply will be sent so that all will be able to obtain a copy before worn oat.—Eds.

Forty-One.

For some weeks past Superintendent Nicol of Mt. Wollaston cemetery has been having considerable trouble with chipmunks who have made havoc among the flowers more especially geraniums; nearly all of which have been ruined. The little animal would attack the plant near the ground and eat the stalk which ruined the plants. On some lots every plant was killed and the dead stalks scattered over the lot. Several methods were tried to exterminate these animals but without result.

On Tuesday Superintendent Nicol armed one of his men with a shot gun and when the spoils of the day were counted up it was found that forty-one had been killed.

The man was a good shot as evinced by the fact that out of the first thirteen shots twelve chipmunks fell.

The will of Elijah A. Morse late of Canton was admitted to probate at Quincy this morning. The public bequests have already been published.

—Dr. Warren Pierce of Plymouth died Monday.

TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "'leventy-'leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. They are not worth $15.00, but we know of no one who sells them for as little money. 100 percale and white shirts with attached collar and cuff and and fancy bosoms, at 45c. 125 fine percale and French madras, at 69c. 100 best quality madras shirts, detatched collars and cuffs, at 98c. Bear this in mind, we sell our shirts for all they are worth. But we know of people who sell them for more money and claim they are worth twice as much.

Prevents Insurgents from Attacking

GRANDE ISLAND

Admiral Dewey then Bombards and Captures the Island.

Manila, July 13. — The insurgents reported to Admiral Dewey that the German War vessel Irene had prevented them from attacking Grande Island in Sebic bay. Admiral Dewey sent the Concord and Raleigh to the bay and they proceeded to bombard the Grande Island. Upon the appearance of the American vessels the Irene pulled up her anchor and left. The island was captured and 500 prisoners taken. Upon the return to Manila the Irene said that she intefered in the interest of humanity and offered to give up the refuges she had on board which Admiral Dewey refused.

The Herald has this to say about the new life boat: The Quincy Yacht club has taken a step that, is winning the highest praise. Realizing that with the yearly increase of bathers and boating at Quincy the danger of accident is always great it has purchased from the Humane Socley of Massachusetts the l ifeboat John Adams, together with all the life saving apparatus that goes with her. The boat was recently put into commission and is kept moored off the club floats ready for instant use. This is just the kind of thing that yachtsmen have learned to expect of the Quincy club, for it has a record that any club might well be proud of.

SUPERLATIVE PRAISE.

French Major's Deep Admiration For Our Soldiers.

Superb Body Individually and as an Army.

World Has Not a Better Lot of Fighting Men Than Wears the Blue.

Washington, July 13. — Major De Grandprey, military attache of the French embassy, has just returned from the American headquarters near Santiago, where he was observing for his government the progress of military operations. "I have the most complete admiration for your men," he said to a reporter. "They are a superb body individually and as an army, and I suppose not throughout the world is there such a splendid lot of fighting men. It is the fighting characteristic of the men which is most apparent. They are aggressive, eager for action, never needing the voice of an officer to push them forward. Another marked characteristic is the self-reliance of each man—what we call the character of 'initiative.' It is almost unknown in European armies, where every movement and the move to meet each action of the enemy await the initiative of an officer; but with your men they fight to the front, meeting each emergency as it arises, overcoming obstacles by their own initiative. Such self-reliant fighting men make an exceptionally impetuous army, for every unit contributes to the irresistible onward movement. The Spanish troops do not have this characteristic. They are more passive, more cautious. The impetuosity of such fighting material has the effect of inspiring a morale among the troops, making them feel that success is assured and at the same time carrying disorder and depression into the rank of the enemy."

Major De Grandprey said that the fighting about Santiago was something entirely different from the warfare of European and other armies of modern times. The dense vegetation and tangle of tropical vines made it impossible to observe the usual military formations. As a result there was little or no effort to fight in solid formation. Every man was fighting for himself, pushing forward through the shrubbery, vines and tall grass. It was impossible to see the enemy. There was no line of battle ahead against which the assault was directed. Only through the reports of the pickets and from the crack of rifles here and there ahead was it known that a fighting force was there. This made the shooting irregular, as it was seldom possible to see one of the opposing soldiers to get a distinct aim at him. The main result of this was to bring the two fighting forces close together gradually, until they were fighting at short range. In this respect, Major De Grandprey pointed out, it was a return to the fighting of 200 years ago, when the short range arms then in use compelled fighting at close quarters.

As was always the case at close range fighting, the casualties were far greater. With the usual open field fighting of European armies, the range was long, and as a result the casualties were not so great in a given period. It had the effect also of allowing time for each side to gauge the strength of its adversary, and in this way decisive results were often achieved in long range fighting before a general assault had occurred.

The major spoke highly of the efficiency with which the American troops and supplies were started on the expedition and debarked in Cuba. This has come in for considerable criticism in this country, but De Grandprey said that, considering the brief time allowed for equipping the expedition, remarkable results were secured. European military expeditions, such as those of England or France to Africa or other points, he said, were planned six months ahead, which allowed ample time for working out the most minute details. The first word of Cervera's entering Santiago harbor was on May 16, and the vast military preparation was well under way and the expedition started early in the following month. This and the insignificant loss of men and animals landing, Major De Grandprey said, were an exceptionally good showing, judged by the best military standards. He stated that the foreign military observers were more concerned with this matter of embarking and disembarking troops, supplies and animals than with the actual maneuvers, as the moving of large forces constituted one of the most important problems of military science.

Alleged Murderer Caught.

New York, July 13.—Captain McClusky of the detective bureau has under arrest William Mason, alias "big Bill," whom he describes as one of the most desperate criminals in the country, and who is wanted by the Philadelphia police for the murder of Major William C. Wilson, an aged librarian, who was found murdered in his book store in August of last year. According to McClusky, the police all over the country have been trying to arrest Mason, and a number of other crimes are said to have been committed by him. With Mason three other criminals were captured—George, alias "red," Spencer; Thomas Reilly and Jim Coffey.

Lynching of a Villain.

Charlottsville, Va., July 13.—John H. James, a negro, who criminally assaulted Julia Hetopp on the public road near her home Monday, was lynched two miles west of the city by 200 armed men. The authorities started the prisoner to Staunton on a special train for safekeeping. The train was stopped and the prisoner was taken off. Then he was hanged to a tree and his body riddled with bullets.

The Magazines.

The August number of The Delineator is called the Midsummer Number and presents the usual attractive combination of fashion, literary and household features that distinguish this publication as the woman's favorite magazine. The Bugles Sang Truce, a romantic war story by Francis Lynde, is charmingly appropriate at this time. A timely sketch on the Women of Cuba, by Kate Coventry, throws a light on their household life. The article on Using the Camera, in the series of Amateur Photography by Sharlot M. Hall, is of practical value to the expert as well as to the novice. Summer desserts choice and varied, home-made ices, hot-weather housekeeping, vegetables in new guises, and provision for the housework form an excellent group of household subjects, and the regular departments offer the characteristic variety of interesting matter. The Delineator is issued by the Famous Fashion Publishers, The Butterick Publishing Co. (Limited). at 7 to 17 West Thirteenth Street, New York, at the remarkably low rate of $1.00 for a Year's Subscription, or 15 cents per copy.

The July issue of Little Folks appeals to the youngest readers by giving the best there is, and putting that best in the most palatable shape possible. The patriotic enthusiasm of its frontispiece and contents of this issue make it most appropriate reading for the little patriots these stirring days.

is only on sale in limited quantities, no one being able to obtain an excess. No soldier is required to serve as salesman or in any other capacity in these stores. The articles sold mainly are cigars, tobacco and light forms of food. The store is a regimental affair, managed by the regiment, and all profits go to the use of the company. These canteens are, by army regulations, a part of the army, and General Brooke has no authority to close them. He, however, ordered close supervision of all of them. Careful observation of the camp since its establishment has shown that there has been no drunkenness originating with the canteens, and very little from any quarter except as the moonshiners have made secret sales of whisky."

Most Satisfactory Showing.

Washington, July 13.—Surgeon Van Reypen of the navy has received a report from the surgeons with the fleet, showing that in the many cases of wounded, some of them serious, not a rise of temperature or an accumulation of pus has appeared in any case. From a medical standpoint, this is said to be a marked advance from the conditions during the civil war, and it is attributed to the introduction of antiseptic treatment of wounds. It shows that no fever follows the wounds ,and that with the absence of pus the wounds heal rapidly without complications. Considering the great number of wounds to be treated, now and hereafter, this is regarded as a most satisfactory showing not only in medical science but also in the alleviating of suffering.

Mines No Longer Necessary.

Washington, July 13.—In cases where it is safe an effort will be made to remove harbor mines instead of exploding them. Wherever there is any doubt they will be exploded. The action of the sea in some instances causes the dynamite in the ellipsoidal vessels to ooze out through the screw threads where the plug is inserted, and unless the greatest care is taken the removal of the plug may cause an explosion. It will be some days before the actual operation of removing or exploding the mines can be put in operation, and the question as to whether the interests of commerce demand it will be left to the discretion of the engineer officers having jurisdiction over the various districts.

While the mines proper are to be removed all the incidental attachments necessary to their installation and operation will be retained, such as the casements, anchors, connections and the switch board, so if it is found necessary to replace the mines it may be done on the shortest notice.

Won't Care to Go Home.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 13.—The prisoners of war will receive the best of treatment while confined here, and it is expected that they will be so well pleased that they will not care to return to their native country. There are intelligent men among the prisoners, and they do not hesitate to say that they expected capture in their escapade at Santiago.

Some of the petty officers in confinement are doing a rushing business selling Spanish coins as souvenirs to visitors who are allowed to land on the island. Colonel James Ferncy, commandant of the marines in charge of the prisoners, has named the camp "Camp Long," in honor of the secretary of the navy.

Tuesday afternoon Paymaster Loomis commenced the work of issuing the regular uniforms to the Spanish prisoners. The result was that 150 of the men were equipped with hats, and were it not for the difference of features they would easily be mistaken for Uncle Sam's own jackies. The prisoners are behaving finely, and the officers do not have the slightest fear of any demonstration.

Searching For a Phantom Ship.

Victoria, July 13.—In response to the request of the United States consul of Vancouver, Admiral Palliser, commander of the Pacific British squadron, stationed at Esquimault, has dispatched H. M. S. Amphion, a second class cruiser carrying nine guns, and the sloop of war Icarus, mounting eight guns, on a cruise in the waters of the north to search for the Spanish privateer, which, according to reports that have reached the ears of the consul, is hidden in the vicinity of Dixon entrance, the passage for south bound treasure ships. The existence of such a privateer, however, is regarded as very doubtful, as reliable reports regarding it have not been received.

Sloop Carried Beer.

Key West, July 13.—The British sloop Wary, another would-be blockade runner, was captured July 2 by the St. Louis and arrived here under Port Officer F. J. Albrecht and two men. The Wary is a 22-ton vessel, and was loaded with provisions of a miscellaneous character, including flour, rice, cheese, lard, potatoes and beer. She was bound from Kingston for Cape Cruz. It was first suspected that her British flag was a subterfuge to enable her to pass the blockade, but later it developed that her patent, dated April 10, 1897, was bonafide, and that she was boldly attempting, in the face of all risks, to land her cargo for the starving Spaniards in Cuba. When sighted by the St. Louis the sloop was becalmed, and Captain Moss, who was unfamiliar with the water thereabouts, was expecting a pilot to take him in. The St. Louis sent four or five shots from her six pounders, but as the sloop showed no indication of surrendering, the gig was lowered and half a dozen men pulled toward her, peppering her sails with shot from their small arms. Captain Moss afterward said he thought all this was done in sport, but when he found himself a prisoner of war he became badly frightened and spent the whole time between capture and arrival here in praying and weeping.

Another schooner, the Wickerson, was captured by one of the converted yachts at about the same place two days before the Wary was taken. She was owned by two German merchants, who were aboard and who protested so vigorously that the prize was taken over to Santiago for a formal report to Admiral Sampson. She was bound from Jamaica to Manzanillo.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, THURSDAY, JULY 14.
Sun rises—4:20; sets, 7:20.
Moon rises—12:34 a. m.
High water—8:15 a. m.; 8:45 p. m.

The cool, easterly winds now prevailing promise to continue through tomorrow and may through Friday. The unsettled conditions in the south will probably cause partly cloudy or cloudy weather another 48 hours, with light rains on the southern coast, and there is a chance of them developing into a storm of considerable energy and causing copious rains.

Explosion Killed Eleven.

New York, July 13.—Two explosions which killed eleven men, wounded about 20 others and wrecked two buildings, occurred at the plant of the Laflin-Rand powder works at Pompton, N. J., yesterday morning. The first explosion was in the house where guncotton was being made and the second, presumably superinduced by concussion, was in the drying house close by. Three men were in the mixing room when the explosion occurred, and they were blown to atoms. Chief Engineer Craig, who was in the engine room, had his head crushed into a jelly in the wreckage of the boiler house, the side of which was blown out. John Phillips was standing near a tree some distance from the drying house. His head was blown from his body and was picked up 80 feet awey. His body was frightfully torn by the force of the explosion, and his clothes were whipped from his limbs. The foreman of the drying room was also blown to pieces, and three Italians who were digging a trench in the rear of the building were also killed. The most seriously injured is W. H. Emmons, a private of company I, Third New Jersey volunteers. He was horribly torn by flying splinters. On one side of his head the scalp was torn away, and from the other side his ear was severed. Splinters were driven into his body and legs, and it is not likely that he will recover.

After the explosion there was some talk of a Spanish spy being implicated in the attempt to destroy the powder mill, but the theory of the men connected with the works is that a grain of gravel or sand got into some powder which was in process of handling in the mixing room and that as it went through the machinery the foreign substance came in contact with a metal surface and threw out a spark which ignited the explosive.

Corbett and McCoy Matched.

New York, July 13.—W. A. Brady, representing James J. Corbett, and W. R. Gray, representing "Kid" McCoy, met here yesterday and decided that Corbett and McCoy should come together on the afternoon of Sept. 10 at the quarters of the Hawthorne Athletic club, Buffalo. They will fight 20 rounds for a purse of $20,000. Only a few details remain to be settled before the papers are signed. Pictures will be taken of the fight in detail.

After the meeting Brady wired Corbett at Asbury Park, and the ex-champion sent back his approval of the arrangement.

HAD A WALKOVER.

Kentucky's Ball Team Lost the Second of Its Boston Games.

Boston, July 13.—Kittredge's running and catch of a foul fly, Dexter's fielding and Wagner's and Clingman's infielding were features of the Louisvilles' work yesterday. Nichols pitched a beautiful game for the champions, and his command of the ball is shown by the fact that he did not give a base on balls. Left-hander Dowling was very accurate for the Louisvilles, giving only two passes to first, Stahl's in the eighth counting a run. The home team touched the left-hander's curves up for some hard shots when hits meant runs, while Nichols was invincible except in the second inning, and the chances would have been good for a shutout had Collins played Dexter for a sure thing in this inning. Catcher Zearfoss has been released by the New Yorks.

The Clevelands defeated the Philadelphias by good hitting aided by the loose fielding of the Phillies in the sixth inning. Score: 6 to 3.

The Washingtons lost yesterday because they could not hit Kilroy of the Chicagos, and made many errors. Score: 7 to 3.

The Cincinnatis played pennant ball yesterday, in striking contrast with the work of the former pennant winners, and won as they pleased. Score: 10 to 5.

The New Yorks captured Tuesday's game from the St. Louis team because they hit the ball when hits meant runs, and backed it up with good base running. Score: 7 to 1.

The Brooklyns won in the third inning from the Pittsburgs by making four runs. The game was long drawn out and uninteresting. It is reported that Pitcher Stein of the Brooklyns has received his walking papers.

The Toronto club has not accepted the 20 percent cut in salaries. An offer of 10 percent reduction was made on behalf of the management, but the feeling is that it should be refused. It is reported that Irwin has secured Birmingham, a first baseman, and another infielder from the disbanded New England league.

BULLETIN ON CROPS.

Abundant Yield of Hay, Plenty of Oats, and Apples Short.

Boston, July 13.—Weather Observer Smith reports that so far comparatively little damage has been done, but the point has been reached where a continuation of the dry weather will entail serious injury to grain, potatoes, vegetables and fruit. The soil is too dry for cultivation in many southern sections. Hoeing, however, in many sections is completed. The weather has favored haying, which has been pushed with great success. The light frost of the 6th nipped the more tender vegetation in the lowlands of the northern states. The hailstorms of the 4th in the southern states was of sufficient violence in some sections to injure crops, especially in Connecticut. In parts of Rhode Island and Connecticut the drought has ruined pastures, the grass being as "dry as hay" and feed becoming short. The cool weather of the closing days of the week has restrained somewhat the ruining effect of the drought.

In parts of Maine, notably portions of Cumberland county, large crops of barley and oats are assured. There is still some complaint of oats rusting in Connecticut and western Massachusetts. With few exceptions corn is growing rapidly and is improved in color. All agree that this crop is backward from 10 days to two weeks. Rye is nearly ready for the reaper.

The ideal weather for hay has been productive of most beneficial results. Haying has progressed with a rush and the grass has been gathered and housed in excellent condition. The warm, dry weather has fully matured the crop and the quality will be exceptionally fine. Capacity for storage is being taxed to the utmost on account of the generally large yield, with little or no loss. More than half of the crop is yet to cut in Maine.

The apple crop as a whole will be short. In some sections of all states the trees are full of fruit, while in others there is practically none. The dry, warm weather is considered favorable, though in some orchards the apples continue to drop. Other fruits will be fairly plentiful.

FIRST RESIST AND THEN GIVE IN.

Such the Tenor of Blanco's Alleged Advice to Toral.

Cabinet Stirred Into Taking Energetic Action.

Command Issued that Guns Speak at Once.

Diplomacy Paves the Way For Yellow Jack Among the Troops.

New York, July 14.—The Sun prints the following from Madrid: "The war office has received from Blanco a notification that he has instructed General Toral, the commander at Santiago, to resist the Americans as long as possible, but fully empowering him to end the struggle at his discretion."

PARLEYING ENDED.

Peremptory Order Sent From Washington to Bombard Immediately.

Washington, July 14.—The administration at last has taken the matter into its own hands decisively, and has directed that parleying be ended and that the work of subduing the Spanish garrison and compelling its surrender be proceeded with at once. After days of postponement and parley, Shafter, by direction of the powers in Washington, has submitted his final demand. It is no different in fine to be sure than the various so-called "ultimatums" which have preceded it, but it is different in this—that the administration has given notice that bombardment must proceed at last without a further extension of time. It was ordered that unless the Spanish garrison therefore shall surrender today, the guns of the army and of the fleet will be turned upon the city, and it will be buried under a deadly rain of shells. The understanding is that Sampson is to use his discretion in forcing the harbor.

In answer to the peremptory direction, Shafter sent the following: "Your telegram saying no modification of orders allowed just received. Have had an interview of an hour and a half with General Toral, and have extended truce until noon tomorrow; told him that his surrender only will be considered, and that he was with hope of escape and had no right to continue the fight. I think it made a strong impression on him, and hope for his surrender. If he refuses I will open on him at 12 noon with every gun I have, and will have the assistance of the navy, who are ready to bombard the city with 13-inch shells."

A few days ago it was stated that the president would insist upon unconditional surrender, but it appears that conditions had been modified. This was done from a desire to avoid useless bloodshed, for General Toral's army, removed to Spain, would be harmless to prevent our further operations in Cuba, and would serve as good a purpose as would the destruction of the Spanish army. To allow the Spanish general to withdraw to the interior and fall back on Havana on the other hand would put us under the obligation of overcoming that additional force when it comes to the siege of Havana. Our government also is moved to make this proposal to remove the Spanish forces to Spain through a strong desire to close up the operations at Santiago at the earliest possible moment.

This desire has been materially strengthened by the appearance of yellow fever within the American lines. It was at first supposed that the men were falling ill with malaria and climatic fever, so the cases were reported as simply suspicious. Now, however, it is the final admission that they are genuine yellow fever, the war department making public the following statement concerning the condition of things in the hospitals near Santiago: "On the 11th of July a telegram was received from Lieutenant Colonel Hope, chief surgeon of Shafter's army, informing the surgeon general that there were 14 cases of yellow fever in the field hospital which had been established for the care of such cases. Since that time information has been received that a number of additional cases have occurred. Every effort will be made to arrest the progress of the disease by the establishment of isolation hospitals, in which the sick will be treated by immune surgeons and cared for by immune nurses."

The appearance of fever at this stage does not surprise the medical officers of the department. They made every preparation that science can suggest to protect the American troops from the fever, but it is fully realized that men working in trenches half full of mud and water, soaked for 24 hours at a time in tropical rains, recklessly disregarding the advice of the medical corps in the matter of drinking unboiled water

It is not doubted that General Shafter has done all that is possible to prevent close communication between the soldiers and the refugees for sanitary reasons; but in his efforts to assist the poor people he has been obliged to make use of the quartermaster's department to deliver supplies to them, and from the exposure thus resulting the 14 cases reported found their origin, as the latest dispatches say that nine of the cases were among the quartermaster's department employes and five among refugees. The cases are regarded as mild. The promptness with which the sick men have been isolated and the thorough precautions adopted to secure for them the best nursing and medicine, combined with the improved methods of treatment of fever that have been developed by the United States marine hospital service and adopted by the army, would seem to warrant the confidence expressed by medical officers here of the ability of the surgeons to prevent any extension of the fever. The presence in the camp of Dr. John Guiteras of the university of Pennsylvania, one of the most famous yellow fever experts in the world, is an additional source of confidence in the proper management of the situation.

DR. JOHN M. GUITERAS.

According to the best information obtainable by the navy department there has been no sign of contagious diseases among the men on any of the vessels of Sampson's fleet, nor among the marines at Guantanamo, the first of the American forces to land in Cuba. The exemption of the latter from disease, although they have been camped out in the tropics for over a month, is undoubtedly attributable to the ability of the marine officers to enforce very much stricter conditions upon their men than are possible of observance among volunteers and regular soldiers.

General Duffield, who is ill in front of Santiago, is down with the yellow fever. The dispatch to the war department announcing his illness does not make this statement, but it says that he has been isolated. No other construction can therefore be placed upon the telegram. His condition is said to be serious. It will be remembered that General Duffield's brigade was stationed at Siboney, the town which General Miles ordered burned because it was the nucleus of infaction.

Turning to the far east, it was refreshing to receive good news again from Dewey. In fact it is beginning to be remarked that that officer is usually able to make felicitous reports. The administration is very much pleased with the readiness shown by the admiral in meeting, as he did, the grave issue presented to him at Subic bay. Naval officers too were not a little gratified at the speedy retirement of the German Irene after the appearance of the Raleigh and Concord. A comparison of the ships shows that the Irene was much superior to either of the American vessels, and in tonnage was almost as large as the Raleigh and Concord together. From this it is inferred that the retirement of the Irene was from motives of general policy rather than from any indisposition to try conclusions with the two American ships.

The Germans Interfered.

Hong Kong, July 14.—Letters received from Cavite under date of July 9 say that while the Spanish steamer Filipinas was hiding in the river near Subig, the crew mutinied and killed the officers. They handed the steamer over to the insurgents, who armed the vessel and dispatched it to Subig for the purpose of making an attack an Grande island. The Germans interfered, and it was not until the Raleigh and Concord shelled the place that the Spanish commander made submission and gave up his sword. The 500 men comprising the garrison were made prisoners and their rifles were taken from them. Forty thousand rounds of ammunition and one hotchkiss gun were also captured. This

A YARN ABOUT BLANCO

Two Men and a Woman Held For a Bank Robbery.

Grieved Over Fate of Admiral Cervera's Fleet.

Information Brought From Havana to Key West by a "Loyal Cuban."

Key West, July 14.—According to advices from Havana received here, Governor General Blanco attempted to commit suicide when he learned beyond doubt that Admiral Cervera's squadron had been annihilated.

Long before the admiral's dash out of Santiago harbor all Havana had been boasting of his ability to outwit the Americans; and when misleading dispatches gave the impression that he had eluded the American fleet, the demonstrations of joy in the Cuban capital partook of the nature of a festival.

When the true story of the defeat came, it was discredited until definite confirmation from Madrid no longer left room for hope. Gloom settled upon the city, all gayeties were stopped, and every public and many private buildings were hung with crepe and other black draperies. Blanco was in his palace when the news reached him, and he became almost frenzied. He was closeted with his staff and General Arolas of the Spanish forces, discussing the news, when he made the attempt on his life. After a struggle he was subdued and disarmed, but the shock was so severe that he was prostrated and compelled to keep to his bed for several days. When he arose his first order was to prohibit any food supplies to leave Havana for interior towns, where the distress is most poignant and where many are starving daily.

This information was brought by Joseph Blanco, who indignantly repudiated a suggestion of kindship with the governor general. He says he is a loyal Cuban and escaped to avoid the necessity of fighting against his cause, as every male in the island who is able to bear arms is being pressed into the Spanish service. He obtained a fisherman's permit to go outside Morro, and on Monday morning put off in a small boat. The Bancroft was stationed six miles out, and he rowed to her, the Cojimar batteries, east of Havana, firing two shots at him when he was observed passing beyond the prescribed limits. The Bancroft transferred him to another vessel, and he was brought here, where the local junta will care for him. The sailors of two American ships made up a liberal subscription for him and gave him some new clothing.

Blanco says the living conditions in Havana are constantly growing worse, the greatest distress necessarily falling on the Cubans, because nearly all the food is seized by the troops. Of these there are about 70,000 in the city, consisting of volunteers, mobilized troops, militia and regulars. Their rations are largely rice and beans, without even bacon. Jerked beef, Blanco says, sells for 30 cents a paund; bread of poor quality for 50 cents; lard $1; meat 75 cents; cornmeal 25 cents, and rice 50 cents. Shark food is even eagerly sought, and the day before Blanco left the city one shark caught in Havana harbor sold for $13.50.

Those of the reconcentrados who have sufficient influence with the dispensing authorities sometimes contrive to get one wretched meal a day, but the others starve, and it is no uncommon thing, says Blanco, to see persons drop dead in the streets. Even among the Spaniards, starvation is rapidly sapping their loyalty, and large numbers of men are banding together awaiting the first American attack on Havana as a signal for revolt. The grocery and provision stores are empty, and the only articles on the Havana wharves are about 1000 barrels of cement, wet and useless. Only liquor is to be had cheaply.

Work on the defenses continues with tireless vigor. Two lines of cables bearing torpedoes have been strung across the harbor from the city side to Morro castle, and the same has been done in the bay at Mariel where, it was reported in Havana, American troops are to land.

Blanco further reported that three weeks ago the Spanish steamers, Montevideo and Santo Domingo, crept out of the harbor at midnight with all lights out and safely got through the blockade. The Spanish ships now in the harbor, he says, are five gunboats, several of which are unfit for service. The guns have been removed from the Alfonzo XII and used for shore batteries, and the cruiser has been converted into a hospital ship. There are also in the harbor a number of smaller warships of the nature of converted yachts. All these vessels except the Alfonzo XII are always ready to move on short notice.

More of Spanish Puerility.

Madrid, July 14.—The newspapers here publish a statement to the effect that the Spanish minister of marine has secured proofs that the Americans used incendiary projectiles, thus explaining the burning of the Spanish ships at Cavite and Santiago. Some of the papers urge the government not to protest to the powers on this subject, but to use the same weapons in Spanish ports against American ships.

Good Afternoon.

The pay of soldiers and sailors from Massachusetts is $22.60 per month—$15.60 by the National government, and $7 by the State—with State aid of $1 per week to dependent relatives. We should be as liberal as we can with the soldiers. Will the city add $7 per month more?

Five hundred dollars makes a pretty good send off after all. When Co. K left Quincy they were attended by a silence that might be heard, and judging from appearances alone, one might have inferred that Quincy was less patriotic than the other places represented by the regiment. But if it is true that money talks, and that actions speak louder than words, our boys will not regret that instead of a noisy demonstration at the start they have received the more substantial offering of cash down on the nail.

One would judge from the Boston dailies that it was not a red letter day Wednesday for Co. K at Camp Dalton, but the delegation from Quincy was under the impression that they made their presence known and the cheers given them by Co. K were right royal ones' which told all the regiment that something unusual had happened. The Quincy gentlemen were about the only visitors and should not have escaped the eagle eye of the half dozen Boston men. Is it possible there were no reporters of the Boston press here, or do they write the letters without leaving their desks in Boston?

Small—Knowles.

Fred Ossian Small, graduate of Bowdoin college, Me., and Miss Margaret Fanning Knowles of Lubec, Me., were united in marriage at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Eliab W. Chandler, at Wollaston Heights by Rev. C. W. Foster of Neponset, on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Small has been the principal of Washington academy, East Machias, Me., for two years. Miss Knowles was a graduate from Bates College in '97, and has been teaching in Bristol, Conn., the past year.

How to Make Mustard Sauce.

A cup vinegar, a teaspoon salt, a teaspoon sugar, a tablespoon butter, a tablespoon mustard, the yolk of an egg. Put vinegar, butter, salt and sugar in a saucepan over the fire. Mix the mustard in a little cold water. Beat the egg. When the vinegar is hot enough to melt the butter, add the mustard gradually, stirring to prevent lumping. The hot mustard mixture is now added to the beaten egg. Pour in a small, steady stream, stirring constantly to prevent curdling. Return to the saucepan, place over the fire and stir until it thickens. Pour out at once. If properly made, this sauce will be as thick and smooth as the best mayonnaise, a delicious sauce for all meats and an excellent salad dressing.

How to Prepare Lobster Cutlets.

Choose a large lobster and two small ones. Reserve a piece of the coral; pick and pound the remainder with a little fresh butter, a little salt, red and white pepper, a blade or two of mace, a little nutmeg and a desertspoonful of anchovy sauce. When well pounded, add the yolks of two eggs, the white of one. Lay the mixture on a pasteboard, roll it out until an inch thick, cut into small squares, do them over with egg, dip in bread crumbs and fry a light brown in lard. Mix the coral remaining with a little melted butter and anchovy sauce. Pour it into the middle of the dish, with the cutlets arranged around. Cut the horns of the lobster into pieces an inch and a half long. Place them between each cutlet and serve hot. A very pretty way to dress them is to form into the shape of lamb cutlets, placing a piece of the horn in the center of the extremity to resemble the bone.

APPRECIATED.

Co. K Receives the $500 Subscribed.

Presentation Speech Made by Ex-Mayor Hodges.

Capt. Kincaide Responded and Men Cheered Lustily.

Camp Dalton,
Thursday, July 14, 1898.

The bright sun was never more appreciated than this morning, especially as the prediction was "rain Thursday." Yesterday it was rain, rain, rain and more rain. It started during the night and continued throughout the day. It came in showers, sheets and buckets full. The company streets were overflowed and a large crowd of men were at work all day digging trenches to drain the camp. Several other camps were flooded out but the water did not get up to Co. K's floors. The officers were lenient with the guards and they were allowed to get under the nearest shelter to their posts, still it was just a little inconvenient with your feet and clothes wet and no chance to dry them. Just grin and bear it. All drilling was done in the mess houses.

Firing drill has commenced, and a large number of imaginary Spainards bit the dust. If the boys will be as anxious in battle as they were Wednesday afternoon, Co. K will come home covered with glory.

With bad weather and all, Wednesday was the most eventful day in Co. K's existence. It will be a day long remembered without its few discomforts. Quincy's fund had reached a sum which its promoters concluded would be good for a start and a number of representative Quincy citizens arrived in camp at 2 o'clock, very much the worse for wear but with true and staunch hearts beating under their wet coats. Nothing had been done to receive them, as they were not expected in the rain. After three rousing cheers they were made as comfortable as possible.

In the party were ex-Mayor Hodges, George H. Wilson, C. F. Pettengill, A. W. Stetson, Frank C. Packard, Fred W. Tirrell, George W. Jones, E. W. Sheppard, D. E. Wadsworth, Brainerd Dyer, Walter Wilson, James Dunn, Willard Hodges, Frank F. Prescott and others.

The call to drill came just as the Quincy gentlemen entered the camp, and after a hurried welcome, Co. K was hustled off to the mess hall for two hours work, 1st Lieut. Whitney being the instructor.

The gentlemen went over to see the boys do their drill and after seeing their browned faces and noting their eagerness and willingness, were well paid for their efforts. They said they could not postpone their visit for anything, as the money was ready and by coming today and on such a day, would cheer up the boys and show them that they were not fair weather friends.

At 3.30 the gentlemen came to the centre of the mess section where the boys were drilling. Capt. Kincaide introduced ex-Mayor Hodges and the delegation and the boys were allowed to gather around them. Mr. Hodges then presented the company with a bank book representing over $500 contributed by Quincy people. He spoke a length with no attempt at oratory, but as man to man, and the boys were visibly affected, tears gathering in some of their eyes. Capt. Kincaide was hardly able to control himself.

Mr. Hodges said it reminded him of a presentation of a sword in the "late unpleasantness" of the 60's when the spokesman was at a loss for a presentation speech, and blurted out, "Here, Captain, is a sword from the boys" and the Captain who was in a like predicament said, "And it's a darn good one, Bill!" He was pleased at the appearance of Co. K, and was proud that the name of Hodges was represented in its ranks, as it had been in all the wars of this country. He had confidence in Capt. Kincaide that the money would be expended where most needed.

Capt. Kincaide in a few words thanked the gentlemen in behalf of Co. K for their most kind and generous gift. He assured them that the money would be used where it was most needed, and mentioned a few of the needs of the men which would be looked after at once.

There were hearty cheers by the company for Quincy's patriotism, by the visitors for Co. K, and by the company for Mr. Hodges and the committee.

The company resumed drill and the Quincy gentlemen were pleased to see the interest of the boys in firing "by volley" and "at will."

Capt. Kincaide took the visitors to the headquarters of Col. Whitney, and each gentleman had the pleasure of grasping his hand. He assured them that Co. K and the entire Fifth regiment was doing superior work; that the Quincy gentlemen had done a very proper thing in raising a purse to better equip the boys, and that the money could not be entrusted in better hands than Capt. Kincaide's.

Some of the gentlemen inspected the cuisine, and found that the boys were supplied with choice beef, excellent potatoes with bacon, beans, canned goods, etc., for variety. With the exception of the bacon, which was thick and fat, the food gave general satisfaction. The cooking squad scarcely get any time for military drill.

At the mess rooms occupied by the Army Christian Commission, the men have an excellent place to write letters, read papers and books, play checkers, chess, dominoes, crokinole, etc.,

Co. K returned from drill shortly before the Quincy men left for home, and there was an opportunity to visit the boys in their tents and see the discomfiture of a stormy day. But they found all happy and contented, enjoying delicacies which some of the visitors brought.

After their departure the Ledger correspondent interviewed Capt. Kincaide. His emotion was visible to a large degree. He feels the kindness more than most people would, as the gentlemen who were at the head of this noble idea are his social and business companions at home. He says he never felt so much like giving way in his life. This evidence of friendship shown by these men is something which a man with less feeling than the Captain would be carried away with. He will turn the money over to the Company treasurer and will at once buy what is most needed. Economy will be used so as not to deplete the fund. Capt. Kincaide is already idolized by the boys but today's events will bring him still higher in their estimation and not a man but would follow him through anything.

A visitor to camp today would never know that it had rained hard Wednesday. Trenches were dug through the camp, and then filled with small stones which carried off all of the water, leaving the grounds perfectly dry.

Selectmen Bicknell and Gardner of Weymouth were among the visitors Wednesday.

Mr. E. P. Waterhouse of Wollaston sent Capt. Kincaide a substantial check this morning for the boys.

"Bob Evans," Co. K's rooster, had a fight with "Dewey" this morning, in which the latter was vanquished.

Sergt. McGrath and privates Chase, Dennison and Pierce are at home today.

His Nibs Comes to Grief.

We see by a New York paper that the famous Boston terrier known in this vicinity as His Nibs, has at last come to grief, and is in the hospital. It will be remembered he was bought by a New York gentleman at a fabulous price a year ago, and since he went to his new home has had a great fondness for cats. He has disposed of them by the score, but last Sunday he tackled a pet maltese who went for him much as our navy at Santiago went for Cervera's fleet. At the end of five minutes poor Nibs was rescued in such a terribly battered condition that it is feared he will never take another prize. The maltese won a great victory.

Honor to Quincy.

Mr. George Randall Lewis, Class of '98, Quincy High school, has passed all of his admission examinations at Harvard without condition, and has received honors in history, algebra, English, elementary Latin, and advanced Latin. Mr. Lewis also passed in two hours of work additional to the required amount. Such a record is an honor to Quincy. All of Mr. Lewis's education was received in the Quincy public schools.

Co. K Fund.

It is hoped to swell the Co. K fund a little more. It is not yet as large as that of some of the other companies in the Fifth regiment. No further personal canvass will be made, but subscriptions may be forwarded to the Ledger office or to Messrs. Wilson, Pettengill, Stetson or Sampson. These additional sums are acknowledged:

HOUGHS NECK.

Wednesday was a dismal day at the beach. There were few if any visitors and the cottagers for the most part kept in doors and amused themselves as best they might. The booths and peanut stands along Sea street were simply deserted.

The dam at the Fensmere have been repaired, but how long it will stand is a question. The proper way to fix it would have been to drive down some piles to hold the gravel.

Now that the Quincy Yacht club ladies' day has come and gone, people are looking forward to the annual illumination.

H. C. Leonard and family of Brockton are at their cottage.

C. Hursh and family of Boston are in the Bird cottage.

If a visitor to the beach is looking for a fine view it will repay them to climb Great hill.

Deasy and the ladies prize was captured by Miss Susie V. O'Neil of Somerville. Mr. Edmund F. Fitzpatrick and Mr. Wm. Field entertained with songs and speeches.

DUSTING FURNITURE.

How Best to Do It and the Proper Appliances to Use In the Operation.

All furniture should be carefully dusted at regular set intervals, and if treated in this way will last much longer than that which is allowed to become dust clogged before it is dusted and is then only cursorily dusted or wiped off with a damp cloth, says the New York Tribune. A soft thick paintbrush is a good article to use in dusting out the interstices of carved furniture. After thoroughly brushing out the carved work wipe off the plain surface of the wood and use a little kerosene on another paintbrush to clean out the dust that cannot be brushed out. Rub off any oil left with a soft cloth or thin chamois skin. A chamois skin is better than any cloth to dust the piano. When the keys of this instrument have become yellow, the best authorities advise opening the instrument in front of a sunny window and allowing the sun to bleach the keys white. While the instrument is better for being closed at night, it should be open at least for a short time every day.

A feather duster is an article which should be abolished, with the mop and several other utensils which seem to be invented for the use of slatternly workers. The bamboo whip, on the contrary, like nearly all household devices received from oriental lands, is thorough in its work. It is light, and therefore easy to wield. It is not good for upholstered furniture, as its blows are likely to reduce part of the filling to powder and then drive it out. There is therefore no use in beating upholstered furniture. Covers that can be removed as well as rugs and hangings should be beaten with bamboo whips, but not upholstery. All that can be done where the upholstery is tufted is to brush out the tufts with a stiff whisk of broom corn or of stiff bristles, and afterward brush off the smooth portion of the covering. The feather duster simply removes dust from one portion of the room or of the furniture to another. What should be done is to gather up the dust, and this can be done with a soft cloth better than with almost anything else. The cloth should be taken out of the window frequently. Only where the dust is in crevices and cracks must it be brushed out instead of gathered up.

—All the flags for British ships of war, except the royal standards, are made in the government dock yards, and the enormous number required may be judged from the fact that in the color loft at Chatham alone, about 18,000 flags are made in a year.

Sewer work has commenced on Washington street from Canal street toward City Square.

Who will be the first to have his residence connected with the new sewer system?

We learn that Mr. James F. Gay of Atlantic who has been ill so long, is now in a very low condition.

The Sunday School of the Atlantic Methodist church is holding its annual outing today at Highland Park.

Copies of the Acts and Resolves of the General Court of 1898 have arrived at City Hall for free distribution.

The City Council Committees on Finance and Streets meet tonight, and the Committee on Ordinances Friday night.

On Saturday the T. R. & S. base ball club will have as opponents at Merry Mount park the South Weymouth A. A. nine.

The City water has of late an ancient and fish like odor. Fish chowder is all right in its way but rather objectionable when mixed with water.

The question is often asked in Atlantic what has happened to the Squantum Inn which was expected to attract so many people the present season. The summer is fast slipping by.

There may be some question whether the couple who came from Maine to Quincy to get married, and had a Boston minister tie the knot, are legally married. One of the three should reside in Quincy.

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Wiggins of East St. Louis, Ill., are guests of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Westly Peach. Dr. Wiggins, Mr. Peach's uncle, is chairman of the surgical section of the Illinois Medical Association.

The sidewalk being built in Atlantic goes along about as fast as the sewer job on Hancock street, but by the time snow flies it will be all finished from the depot to Gurney's store and then the pedestrians will greatly enjoy it.

Mr. John H. Wilder, the well known wheelman of Ward Six, is out this week on one of his long journeys. He left Atlantic Saturday morning for a trip across the State to Niagara Falls, where he expected to arrive in about five days. He went alone and was anticipating a very pleasant vacation.

Vacations in the permanent police department commenced Saturday night when Officer Hanson and Bradley leave for a two weeks' outing. Officer Barry will take Officer Hanson's place at the police station, Officer Goodhue will patrol Officer Bradley's beat, and Officer Curtin the beat of Officer Barry.

Squaw Rock at Squantum was a very lively place on Monday. Fourteen young ladies of Atlantic went to this historic spot early in the day on a picnic party and had a most delightful outing. Roaming about the rocks and an elaborate spread were greatly enjoyed before the party returned to their home.

The Whatsoever Ten, King's Daughters of Wollaston, held a whist party at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Adams on Wednesday evening in aid of the Fresh Air Fund. There were eight tables. The ladies prize went to Miss Edith Holbrook of Holbrook, and the gentlemen's to Mr. Edward W. Newcomb of Boston.

TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "'leventy-'leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. They are not worth $15.00, but we know of no one who sells them for as little money. 100 percale and white shirts with attached collar and cuff and fancy bosoms, at 45c. 125 fine percale and French madras, at 69c. 100 best quality madras shirts, detatched collars and cuffs, at 98c. Bear this in mind, we sell our shirts for all they are worth. But we know of people who sell them for more money and claim they are worth twice as much.

How to Make Bean Croquettes.

A pint of dry beans, a small onion, grated; half pint grated bread, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two eggs. Salt and pepper to taste. Soak the beans in cold water for 12 hours. Boil them until soft, then rub through a colander. To this pulp add the bread crumbs, parsley, salt, pepper, butter, grated onion and eggs, well beaten. Mix well together. Form into cylinders, dip in beaten egg, then in cracker dust and fry in deep fat, draining on soft paper before serving.

How to Make Lemon Extract.

At this season, when the juice of lemons is being used in so many ways, a quantity of pure and fine lemon extract may be cheaply made from the rinds. Put a pint of alcohol into a quart glass jar, and when you make lemonade or use lemons in any way and only wish the juice and pulp, peel off the thin yellow rind, being careful not to use any of the white, which is the bitter part, and put it into the alcohol and keep it covered. Continue to add the finely chopped lemon peel to the jar of alcohol until there is all the lemon peel in it that the alcohol will take up. After two weeks add half a pint of water and shake well. The peel may then be strained from the liquid and the extract will be ready for use.

SEARCHED FOR A YEAR.

Said to Have Made an Attempt on His Life.

Accused of Getting Away With $33,000.

Crime Committed In 1897 In a Town In the Province of Ontario.

Boston, July 14.—Through the efforts of the police of Boston, Manchester, N. H., and Montreal, and of the Pinkerton detectives, the almost forgotten burglary of the Dominion bank in Napanee, Ont., on the morning of May 28, 1897, by which that bank was robbed of $33,000, has been solved. Three persons are under arrest and one of them is behind the doors of Boston's city prison—Caroline Saucier in Montreal; Edward Pare, alias George Belanger, her brother, in Manchester, and William H. Holden in this city. Of the money stolen, the police have recovered within a few dollars of $10,000.

The burglars gained an entrance to the bank through a woodshed that was in the rear of the bank building, and a hole was broken through, allowing a person to gain entrance to the hall of the bank building. Here the bank burglars worked the combination and then forced the heavy vault boxes with jimmies. They obtained by this haul $23,000 in Canadian money and United States gold. The other $10,000 was in Dominion $10 bank notes, which did not bear the signatures of the cashier of the bank, E. H. Baines, Jr.

For a long time there was no clue to the robbers, although shortly after the robbery the teller of the bank was arrested on suspicion. He was afterwards discharged, and the matter was apparently dropped until three months ago. The bank officials, however, had called to their aid the Pinkerton agency, and men from the offices in New York and this city have been at work on the case for some time. The appearance in April of the $10 Dominion bills with the forged signature in various parts of the country and Canada proved an incentive to the work, and the officers at once began to run down various clues. A greater part of these bills turned up in Montreal and Manchester, and after a month or more of hard work Caroline Saucier was arrested July 7 in her cigar store in a suburb of Montreal. In her possession were found 103 of the Dominion bills, three of which had the forged signature of the cashier. It was learned then that the Saucier woman had a brother named Pare in Manchester. He was arrested on the morning of July 9 in his house. He refused to make any statement and denied all knowledge of the robbery. None of the stolen money, at least none of the Dominion bills, was found on his person, but as it was known that he was an expert carpenter and machinist, a most careful and thorough search was made of the premises. Every room in the house was gone through, the carpets were taken up, every chair was pulled apart and the rest of the furniture demolished. Finally a toolchest was found in a sleeping room, and that, too, was carefully enspected. In it were burglar's tools, and after taking out the trays and pulling the sides to pieces, the supports on the four corners of the chest were taken out. The bottoms of each of these supports were found to be plugged, and when the piece of wood was removed the officers found that the center had been hollowed out and contained 96 of the stolen Dominion bills. Of these, 57 had the forged signature, while the balance were unsigned. A further search in the woodshed brought to light a box under a lot of coal, containing 218 of the unsigned bills.

By some means the officers traced an associate of Pare, one William H. Holden, and a photograph of the latter was shown in the vicinity of Napanee and identified as that of a man who left there about a year ago for Boston. Word was then sent to this city requesting that Holden be looked up, and after considerable difficulty he was finally located last week living on Hunneman street, Roxbury. Although a quick search was made after his arrest no bills were found on him. In the room at the time were his wife and daughter, the latter about 11 years old. Mrs. Holden denied having ever seen any of the Dominion bills, but while the officers were making a search of the premises she was seen to throw a package hastily into the fire. By quick work the package was snatched from the stove and found to contain 19 of the Dominion bills. They were somewhat charred, but were readily identified.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Judge Garry of Chicago has signed the bill of exceptions in the Luetgert case. The record is now ready for transmission to the Illinois supreme court.

Judge Newman of the United States court for the northern district of Georgia yesterday issued a decree granting the petition of G. L. Wallace of Boston, who asked for the release of W. P. Wallace, a minor, from company M, Eighth Massachusetts, with which he had enlisted without the consent of his parents.

Harry A. Moore, a negro, accused of setting fire to a large stable and oil tank at Auburndale, Mass., the property of L. B. Peterson, pleaded guilty, and was held in $4000 for the grand jury. In course of their investigations the officials discovered evidence, which, they claim, implicates Moore in two other fires.

Private Walter House, Fourteenth Minnesota, was convicted in Chickamauga of having been asleep on duty and was sentenced to three months' hard labor and to pay a fine of $20; W. B. Whitehorn, company G, Sixth Ohio, was sentenced for the same offense to pay a fine of $60 and be deprived of all privileges for two months.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

The world has never before seen such extensive activity in war, naval and shipping circles. Ammunition, guns, projectiles and war machinery of all kinds are being rapidly turned out from our arsenals, shipyards and foundries. The great nations are spending over $1,000,000,000 annually for the reconstruction and increase of their war and maritime equipments. The existing international complications are of such gravity that these warlike activities indicate that a great struggle for supremacy is impending between the great nations of the world. All mankind, however, will rejoice when Cuba is free and the Spanish soldiers are obliged to evacuate it. Thousands of helpless men, women and children have been massacred or barbarously starved to death there. Other powers looked helplessly on, while we waited and hoped that hostilities on the island would cease and peace reign again. There is one hero of the moment, and he is the soldier or sailor. All things must be put aside, and every one must help to meet this great emergency. Trade must necessarily remain at a standstill until this matter has been settled, and let us add that we can see only one way of its settlement. The boom in building, the boom of prosperity, will be immediately sounded on the cessation of hostilities. There are millions of dollars in gold being imported day by day. The war will release all this metal, when it will do good by being in circulation. At present, tied up, it does nobody any good.

If you contemplate building, now is the time, as shortly we may expect a rapid rise in materials. Get your contracts closed while you are able to get low estimates on your work. This design, if you are not going to the front, will be worthy of your consideration. Parlor, library, dining room, kitchen and large reception hall constitute the first floor. The front veranda and conservatory off the dining room are very pleasant features of this building. The parlor and dining room both contain good fireplaces. On the second floor are five good, large chambers, each containing closet and bathroom, hot and cold water, wash basin, water closet and bathtub. The balcony over the front piazza is connected with one of the front chambers. The attic contains three large finished rooms for use as store or spare bedrooms. The entire house, including conservatory, is heated with hot water. This home was erected about 40 miles from New York.

CARE OF FURNITURE.

Cleaning Oilcloth and Painted Floors. Cane and Rattan Chairs.

Linoleum or oilcloth should never be washed with hot water. Make a good suds of soft, lukewarm water and ivory soap and wash your oilcloth, changing the water frequently as it grows dark. Nothing causes oilcloth to look dull and grimy so quickly as cleaning with insufficient water or strong rosin soap. After having been all over the surface with soapy water, drying as the work proceeds, go over it a second time with a mixture of half skimmilk and half water. It makes the oilcloth look clean and bright and is very little trouble. This is the best method of cleaning stained and painted floors also.

Cane and rattan chairs can be cleaned a few times by washing with strong salt and water. After that you can stain them with any kind of wood stain. Scrub them with hot soapsuds, rinse well and when nearly dry apply the stain boiling hot. Two coats may be needed to give a uniform color; then apply a coat of varnish, or they may be painted with enamel paint, choosing white or some delicate color, and will always look well.—McCall's Magazine.

Indoor Flowers.

The aloysia, or lemon verbena, has very pretty light green foliage and is indispensable for mixing in bouquets. This can be wintered anywhere the oleander can. This grows to the height of about four feet and scents the air for some distance when brushed against.—"How to Grow Flowers."

victory gives the Americans control of Subig bay, a Spanish strategic point, and frustrates the Spanish plan to prolong their domination in the Philippines. The Spanish were endeavoring to protect it with submarine mines, and to make it ready for occupancy of the Spanish fleet supposed to be on its way from Spain.

The Spanish prisoners, in spite of their protests, were handed over to the insurgents with the captured arms and ammunition. The Germans, it appears, fraternize with the Spaniards and German officers are often seen in the Spanish trenches.

Agitation In Spain.

Washington, July 14.—Mr. Thiebaut, secretary of the French embassy, called at the state department yesterday and made inquiry as to some dead and wounded sailors of Admiral Cervera's squadron. The families of the Spanish sailors are deeply agitated, as no exact list of the saved, dead and wounded has reached Spain thus far. The relatives of the seamen are besieging the Spanish authorities, and the inquiries are in turn made through the French authorities here, who, with the Austrian officials, have charge of Spanish interests. The authorities here are giving every possible facility to the relatives of the Spanish seamen, and in addition to furnishing identification lists facilities will be given by which the friends of the sailors can send them money and supplies.

Gatlings on Seavey's Island.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 14.—The St. Louis did not sail from this port for Annapolis yesterday afternoon owing to the boisterous weather. Everybody was on hand at the sailing hour. The 11 Spanish officers who were landed for a second time yesterday have been comfortably housed on Seavey's island, near the enlisted men. There are four lieutenants, three surgeons, two chaplains and two ensigns in the party. These officers also retain their body servants. All the officers who so desired were permitted to send messages to Spain.

Every possible effort is being put forth to make the enclosure secure. Gatling guns are mounted on all the bridges, and at several points on the island. Colonel Forney has taken this precaution in order to relieve the anxiety of townspeople over a possible escape of prisoners.

Admiral Cervera has quickly felt the beneficial effects of the New England climate, for while indisposed since his arrival, he is reported to be in his usual health. He is very much pleased with this port as a visiting place, and desires to return a little later if our government will permit him to do so.

For an Anglo-American Alliance.

London, July 14.—The inaugural meeting of the Anglo-American league was held last evening under the presidency of the Duke of Sutherland, who was supported by Earl Grey, the Earl of Jersey, Baron Farrer, Baron Brassey, James Bryce, radical members of parliament for Aberdeen and author of "The American Commonwealth," and Henry M. Stanley, the explorer. Others present were the archbishop of Canterbury, the archbishop of York, Cardinal Vaughan and the Duke of Westminster.

The Duke of Sutherland, in opening the proceedings, said the league was quite apart from ordinary politics, its object being to express the feeling of cordiality which existed between the people of Great Britain and the people of the United States, an effort which he believed would be appreciated and reciprocated in America.

LORD THOMAS BRASSEY.

On the motion of Lord Brassey the following resolution was adopted: "Considering that the peoples of the British empire and the United States are closely allied by blood, inherit the same literature and laws, hold the same principles of self-government, recognize the same ideals of freedom and humanity in the guidance of their national policy, and are drawn together by strong common interests in many parts of the world, this meeting is of opinion that every effort should be made in the interests of civilization and peace to secure the most cordial and constant cooperation on the part of the two nations."

A representative executive council was then appointed.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, July 14.—The Post asserts that "the American people are in no mood to tolerate interference from outside in the settlement of the conditions of peace, and the perils whose shadows already stretch across the nation's path arise from this source as well as from the strong tendency toward a rash imperialism."

"General Shafter in his persistent negotiations for a surrender," observes The Journal, "has been moved by a humane desire to save the lives which would be sacrificed if another assault were made on the city's fortifications."

The Advertiser notes that "a fixed purpose exists to belittle the patriot cause in order that a show of excuse may be found for breaking the solemn pledge which was made by our government at the beginning of the war not to seize Cuba and hold it as a conquered province."

Accident to a Steamer.

New Haven, July 14.—The Fall River line steamer Plymouth, Captain Williamson, plying between Providence and New York, was towed into New Haven harbor disabled. She had on board 200 passengers and 60 carloads of freight. The passengers were taken on board the New Haven steamer, C. H. Northam, and carried to their destination. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning, when off Cornfield reef, one of the wheel eccentrics broke and the steamer came to a standstill. Anchors were dropped and few of the passengers knew of the accident. The Plymouth's signals for assistance were finally seen by the Luckenbach of New York, which towed her to New Haven.

Peculiar Accident to a Train.

Boston, July 14.—While the afternoon Brockton and Woods Hole train was crossing the drawbridge just outside the Kneeland street station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad yesterday, a schooner's bowsprit struck it and nearly tore the roof off two of the cars. Two of the passengers were injured very slightly.

Daniel Lynch, 34 years, made an unsuccessful attempt to kill himself with a table knife because of idleness.

The American Whist club scored one match over the Woburns yesterday, while the matches between Cleveland and Chicago and between Hyde Park and New Jersey were tied. The second round of the finals was played in the evening, and each match was very close. The Hyde Parks beat the Americans by three tricks; the Newtons defeated the Clevelands by 11 tricks; the Knickerbockers downed the New Jerseys by two tricks, while the Chicagos defeated the Woburns by fire tricks.

Postal Clerks Elect Officers.

New Haven, July 14.—At the second annual field day of the Postal Clerks' Mutual association the following officers were elected: President, Frank P. Gillon, New Haven; vice presidents—for Connecticut, W. H. O'Donovan, New London; for Massachusetts, W. H. Connell, Everett; for Vermont, Frederick Rand, Barton; for New Hampshire, Charles Farrer, Newport; for Maine, John H. English, Portland; for Rhode Island, W. H. Davis, Providence; secretary and treasurer, E. L. Knowles, New Haven.

Tragedy In New York.

New York, July 14.—Matthias Fischer, a saloonkeeper, and Frederick Kauffman, owner of the building containing the saloon, were found dead in the rear room of the place. The police think Fischer shot Kauffman and then himself. Fischer had bullet wounds in the neck and abdomen, and Kauffman two in the head.

Danes Are Quixotic.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., July 14.—The Danish government, it is understood, will refuse to allow the steamer Southard to leave port. It is also reported that permission will be refused to American warships desirous of using the stock of coal on deposit here, and coal can only be obtained in limited quantities from the dealers. It is contended that the purchase of the Southard's cargo was made previous to the declaration of war and that, therefore, it is not subject to the neutrality laws. It is not probable, however, that complications on the subject will arise.

[The steamer Southard cannot be identified in the marine registers in New York. The vessel referred to may be the United States steamer Southery, which was last heard from June 26, when she left Hampton roads for Key West.]

May Send Them to Spain.

Washington, July 14.—The disposition of the prisoners of war held by General Shafter is a matter to which the president and Secretary Alger have been giving considerable attention. The putting of them aboard several of the transports and sending them to Spain has been discussed. To forward them to their native land would remove the possibility of the men again taking arms against the United States and would relieve General Shafter of a burden which he should not be compelled to carry. Already he has enough refugees on his hands to absorb all the rations which he can at this time spare.

For Uniform Practice.

Boston, July 14.—At a meeting of the judges of probate and insolvency for the several counties of the state the recent United States bankrupt act and the stamp act were discussed, and for the sake of uniform practice throughout the commonwealth, the following conclusions were ordered to be promulgated:

1—It is not advisable that petitions, either voluntary or involuntary, should be received under Massachusetts laws after July 1, 1898, during the pendency of the United States bankrupt act; and if any have been so received no assignment of the debtor's property should be made before it is legally determined that our courts have jurisdiction.

2—No power of attorney upon a claim presented after July 1 should be voted upon without a United States stamp having been first affixed.

3—The registers should be advised that they do not seem to be obliged to stamp checks made by them in the distribution of estates in composition cases.

4—No official paper or certificate made by the judge or register requires a stamp.

5—All bonds of executors, administrators, guardians and trustees require a 50-cent stamp.

6—Where such bonds are signed by a surety company, additional stamps to the amount of one-half a cent on each dollar or premium received by the company are required.

7—No stamp is required on the jurat, upon petitions for administration, etc., or upon accounts.

8—No stamp is required on certificates of value of estate, or the sufficiency of sureties, upon the back of bonds.

Was Going Rapidly.

Halifax, July 14.—The inquiry into the collision between the Bourgogne and Cromartyshire was resumed yesterday, with Captain Henderson of the latter vessel on the stand. Captain Henderson reiterated his statement that the quartermaster had told him that the Bourgogne was going 18 knots an hour, and the fourth engineer said she was traveling at full speed. His own opinion was she was going 15 knots an hour.

Captain Smith, the presiding officer, stated that it might seem strange that Captain Henderson should have heard the steamer's whistle in the chart house while the chief officer failed to do so on the deck. Such, however, was a common phenomenon which he himself had frequently experienced.

The witness said that he himself had made every effort, as soon as he saw the rafts with the survivors, to save them. Every soul was saved that it was possible for him to save. The captain of the Grecian agreed with him when the tow to Halifax was started that it was useless for him to remain longer with any hope of saving further lives. This concluded the evidence of Captain Henderson.

Three Were Killed.

Racine, Wis., July 14.—Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the 3-story structure of the Racine Malleable and Wrought Iron company, resulting in a pecuniary loss of $100,000, the death of three persons and serious injury to a score or more of others.

The fire started in the varnish room, and so little was thought of the blaze at first that the men in the room did not give the alarm, thinking they could put it out without the assistance of the fire department. Suddenly the flames leaped out into the main shop and enveloped the whole building in which were 100 men. Those on the ground floor had no trouble in escaping, and most of the men on the second floor got out without injury. The workmen on the third floor were caught as in a trap. So suddenly did the flames reach them that several were blinded or suffocated by the smoke before help could reach them. Though the fire company was a block away, the building was a mass of flames before the department arrived. Many of the workmen appeared in windows crying for help, while others jumped to the street below, receiving fatal or serious injuries.

Hoar Hits Norton.

Worcester, July 14.—The sixth summer school at Clark university was opened yesterday morning with a larger registration than ever before in the history of the school. The feature of the opening was an address by Senator Hoar on "Americanism and American Honor." The speaker paid his respects to the recent utterances by Professor Norton of Harvard, whom he characterized as color blind and music deaf, and whom he charged with being unable to comprehend his countrymen, or national honor. "There can be no worse lesson, it is a lesson which will never be taught in Clark university, than to tell the youth of a country that their country is base," declared the senator with some spirit.

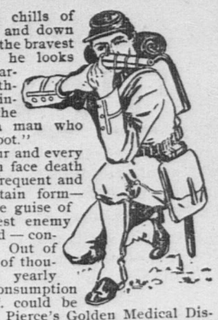
The cold chills of fear run up and down the back of the bravest man when he looks down the barrel of a death-dealing Winchester in the hands of a man who means "shoot."



Every hour and every minute men face death in a more frequent and equally certain form—death in the guise of that deadliest enemy of mankind—consumption. Out of all the tens of thousands who yearly die from consumption 98 per cent. could be saved. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is an almost unfailing cure if taken in the earlier stages of the disease. It will cure consumption and all allied diseases, as bronchial, throat and nasal affections. It cures by going to first principles. A man's body starves a long time before consumption attacks him. The tissues of his lungs starve for lack of sufficient nourishment. They become inert and half dead and then are attacked by the baccilli of consumption. The "Golden Medical Discovery" restores the long-lost appetite; it strengthens the weak stomach and corrects the impaired digestion; it promotes the flow of digestive juices and facilitates the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food into the blood. When the blood is pure and rich, old inert tissues are torn down, carried off and excreted, and new, healthy, muscular tissues replace them. It allays inflammation of the mucous membranes, soothes the cough, facilitates expectoration, and deepens the breathing, supplying the system with a much needed stock of oxygen. It drives out all impurities and disease germs. Medicine dealers sell it.

"I was first taken nearly two years ago with choking and aching in my throat," writes Mrs. D. Z. Moore, of Deming, Grant Co., N. Mexico. "I took everything I could think of and spent a great deal of money. Three doctors treated me. My throat ulcerated and I lost my voice. I could scarcely talk. The doctors called the trouble bronchial affection, and said the larynx was badly affected. I was almost dead with consumption. My neighbors thought I would not live a month. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. From the first, I commenced to improve and now have as good health as ever. I owe my life to Dr. Pierce."

PARLEY PAID.

Capitulation of Santiago Spanish.

Dreaded the Alternative of Bloodshed.

Commissioners Met to Agree Upon a Basis.

Territory and Armament Are American Possessions.

Before Santiago, July 15.—"General Toral formally surrendered the troops of his army—division of Santiago—on the terms and understanding that his troops shall be returned to Spain. General Shafter will appoint commissioners to draw up the conditions of arrangements for carrying out the terms of surrender. This is very gratifying, and General Shafter and the officers and men of his command are entitled to great credit for their sincerity and fortitude in overcoming the almost insuperable obstacles which they encountered. A portion of the army has been infected with fellow fever, and an effort will be made to separate those who are infected and those free from it, and to keep those who are still on board ship separated from those on shore. Arrangements will be immediately made for carrying out the further instructions of the president and yourself."

This is the language of a dispatch sent from here Thursday afternoon to Secretary Alger by Major General Miles. As the situation stood yesterday morning, General Toral, the Spanish commander, faced surrender or defeat. He had reached the point where Shaftr would no longer tolerate his procrastinating methods. The presence of yellow fever had banished all thought of further dickering. An ultimatum was served upon him and he had his choice between peacefully yielding or being battered into absolute nothingness. He wished to yield.

Ever since General Blanco made his fatal mistake of ordering Cervera's fleet ou of the harbor and leaving the army without support, Toral has realized the hopelessness of his situation and was willing to make any terms. The trouble was that he was not his own master. Havana on the one hand and Madrid on the other urged him to resist. Madrid yielded first and grudgingly told him that he could surrender at his discretion. Blanco was firm to the last. From his palace in Havana the captain general of Cuba commanded Toral to resist, appealing to him with all the extravagance of the Spanish language.

General Toral realized the hopelessness of the situation and concluded to be guided by the permissive instructions from the government. Accordingly he communicated his desires for an interview with General Shafter, and between them the terms of capitulation occurred, the only stipulation being that the disarmed soldiers should be given safe transportation to Spain by the United States.

The first chapter in the land campaign of the United States against Spain was closed yesterday, when the Spanish colors gave place over Santiago to the American flag. Next will follow the transportation of the Spanish troops back to their native land and the capture of Porto Rico, unless peace soon intervenes. The siege of Santiago has lasted two weeks, being remarkable in many respects, and in none more than the heavy percentage of loss through death, wounds, or sickness of the soldiers and sailors engaged on both sides.

Looking back over the record of these two weeks, it is seen that a great ironclad squadron has been destroyed, that nearly 1000 Spanish sailors have been drowned or killed by shell and flame, and that an untold number of Spanish soldiers have died in the trenches of Santiago. On the other hand about 250 American soldiers have been killed, and in round numbers 2000 more have been sent to the hospitals from wounds, fevers and other ailments. Our fleet has had a remarkable exemption from disaster in the many engagements it has had with the forts at the entrance of the harbor and with the Spanish squadron.

The surrender not only means the fall of Santiago, but the whole eastern end of the island falls into the hands of the United States without firing a shot, together with all the Spanish troops at Santiago, Guantanamo, Caimanera and Sagua, composing the Fourth corps of the Spanish army. The territory surrendered includes about one-third of the province of Santiago. The western line as described by General Shafter begins at Asseradores, a point on the southern Cuban coast about 25 miles west of the city of Santiago, and runs almost due north 50 miles to Dos Palmas, thence northeast to the city of Sagua, on the northern coast. It comprises something like 5000 square miles, with a population exceeding 15,000 when the country is in its normal state. It includes the important cities of Santiago, Guantanamo, Sagua and Baracoa. It is exceedingly rich in minerals, sugar and coffee. The large iron and copper mines at Juragua, Baiquiri and vicinity are owned by American companies. In the Guantanamo district are extensive sugar plantations. Baracoa carries on an extensive fruit trade with the United States.

It appears that on Monday General Shafter did not again demand the unconditional surrender which General Toral had refused on Sunday, but he offered, as an alternative proposition, to accept the capitulation of the enemy, and to transport the Spanish officers and troops to Spain, they to leave all their arms behind and he to accept their parole. It was this proposition which General Toral declined Tuesday.

Tuesday morning it was decided to hold a personal interview with General Toral. General Miles and his staff, accompanied by General Shafter and his staff, rode out to the front under a flag of truce. A request for a personal interview with the Spanish commander-in-chief was made and acceded to, and at about 9 o'clock General Miles, General Shafter, General Wheeler, General Gilmour, Colonel Morse, Captain Wiley and Colonel Maus rode up, passed over our entrenchments and went down into the valley beyond. They were met by General Toral and his chief of staff, under a spreading mango tree, at the bottom of the valley, about half way between the lines. The interview that followed lasted almost an hour. The situation was placed frankly before General Toral, and he was offered the alternative of being sent home with his garrison or leaving Santiago province, the only condition imposed being that he should not destroy the existing fortifications and should leave his arms behind. This latter condition the Spanish general, who does not speak English, explained through his interpreter was impossible. He said the laws of Spain gave a general no discretion. He might abandon a place when he found it untenable, but he could not leave his arms behind without subjecting himself to the penalty of being court-martialed and shot. His government, he said, had granted him permission to evacuate Santiago; that was all. Further than that he was powerless to go.

Without saying so in words, General Miles said the tenor of General Toral's remarks betrayed his realization that he could not hold out long. When General Shafter explained that our reinforcements were coming up; that he was completely surrounded, and that new batteries were being posted, General Toral simply shrugged his shoulders. "I am but a subordinate," said he, "and I obey my government. If it is necessary we can die at our posts."

General Toral is 60 years of age, with a strong, rugged face and fine, soldierly bearing. His brave words inspired a feeling of respect and admiration in the hearts of his adversaries. Nevertheless, the Spanish general's anxiety to avoid further sacrifice of life in his command was manifest, and he did not hesitate to ask for time to communicate the situation to Madrid, although he dubiously shook his head when he spoke of the probable response.

During the course of the interview General Toral said the bombardment of

PEACE FEELING GROWS

Commercial Circles Anxious For the War's Termination.

Fear of Inordinate Demands the Only Check.

Statesmen of Spain Maintaining Strict Silence About Their Purpose.

London, July 15.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: "The feeling for peace is growing daily, especially in commercial circles. The chamber of commerce has received telegrams in this sense from Cadiz, Vigo and other towns. It must not be supposed, however, that the desire is for peace at any price Peace with honor and without great territorial sacrifices more accurately describes the movement. Inordinate demands might easily arouse the warlike spirit of the people to such an extent that the government would be compelled to go with the current regardless of the consequences.

"The government itself maintains the greatest reserve. I believe that Duke Almedovar, the foreign minister, only desires authentic information of what the American government intends to demand in the way of territorial concessions. There are various channels by which this might be privately ascertained without employing the good offices of any foreign government. For example, it is no secret that in one or two European capitals the Spanish and American representatives have remained on friendly terms. Whatever channels it employs the result will have great influence. It must seriously affect the attitude of the Spanish government, because, however desirous ministers may be to spare their country further sacrifices, there are certain concessions suggested in the American press which public opinion would not allow them to make. Spain's colonial empire may be diminished in area, but it must not be destroyed. The question of pecuniary indemnity has not yet occupied public opinion in this country.

"Some persons who were supposed to be well acquainted with official and unofficial opinion in the United States declare that President McKinley will be very moderate in his demands, but his insisting upon the unconditional surrender of the garrison of Santiago does not seem to indicate a conciliatory spirit. The manner in which the first advances on the part of Spain are met will have great influence on the subsequent course of events, because the Spaniards, who are themselves a most courteous people, are inordinately sensitive about matters of form to which more practical nations are comparatively indifferent.

"The minister of the interior is quoted as saying that he could not deny that a portion of the cabinet was in favor of peace; but, he added, 'peace is a very difficult problem to solve.' "

BOSTONS GAINED.

Defeated the Louisvilles Twice and the Cincinnatis Played a Tie.

Boston, July 15.— The first game yesterday was an easy victory for the Bostons, Willis holding Captain Clarke's Kentucky colonels in the palm of his lengthy hand, allowing them but seven hits, four of which were made by Hoy. The Louisville boys made a game struggle in the ninth of the second soiree, and tied up matters with a fine rally on Kloby's pitching, four singles counting for a trio of runs, making the score seven apiece. Kloby was taken out at the beginning of the tenth and Lewis substituted with success. The home team won the game in the last half of the twenfth, with two men out, on Tenney's run, which was scored by Stahl's short infield hit, the Louisville's pitcher having no time in which to get the speedy "Chick."

New Advertisements Today.

Apartments and stores to let.

Good Afternoon.

Capt. C. N. Hunt's son, who is in the Manila expedition, has fowarded from Honolulu, copies of the Evening Bulletin of June 24 and 25, reporting at length the arrival of the three troopships. We were surprised to see such large, clean enterprising papers printed in English there. The Bulletin is of eight pages, and one would not realize at once that it was a foregin paper. There are several familar American advertisements while all look American. The Bulletin advertises to do "up to date" job printing.

It is rumored that the joint committees on Finance and State Aid of the City Council will report adversely on the order authorizing the payment of $7 per month to soldiers enlisting from Quincy, because of an opinion from the City Solicitor that it is illegal. One of the Councilmen said that Everett and Taunton had nevertheless authorized such payment, and waived the right to bring in a minority report.

The New England Chautauqua is to vie with Camp Dalton as an attraction at South Framingtham. The Evening News of that town with commenable enterprise published in its illustrated edition of Thursday the complete daily programme from Monday, July 18 the opening day, until Friday, July 29, the closing. There is a new superintendent this year, Rev. A. E. Dunning, D. D., while Prof. Boyd will continue to direct the music. Among the speakers will be Senator Hoar, Dr. Lorimer, Dr. Connell, Rev. Codman, Dr. Grant, Dr. Young, Commander Booth-Tucker, Senator Roe, and many more. The Scottish day will be July 21, the Children's day July 25, National day July 26, Recognition day July 28.

QUINCY CELEBRATES.

Among the First to Enthuse Over Victory.

Daily Ledger Gets News of Surrender About 3.30.

Promptly Bulletined—Whistles, Bells and Guns Spread the News.

A well known citizen who took the 4.30 train from Boston yesterday afternoon and arrived in this city at 4.50 thought Quincy was crazy. He did not believe Santiago had surrendered, "for none of the Boston papers had bulletined it at 4 o'clock."

But Quincy was not waiting for the Boston papers. It had confidence in the Quincy Daily Ledger, and when that newspaper put out the following bulletin about 3.30 it promptly accepted it.

SANTIAGO
SURRENDERED.
AND ALL OF EASTERN CUBA.

Within five minutes it was followed by another bulletin:

SPANISH TROOPS
AT SANTIAGO
GOING TO SPAIN

The "only daily" promptly notified by telephone several of the quarry owners with whistles and long before Boston dailies arrived with the announcement pandemonium reigned in Quincy. One whistle took the news from the other and at 4 o'clock the church bells were ringing, cannons booming, and fire crackers and horns added to the celebration, for "The Daily Ledger says Santiago has surrendered."

Of course there were some who doubted the authenticity of the news, and they may be still doubting.

The enthusiasm awakened by the Ledger, sold all the papers which were sent out from Boston but the public obtained no satisfaction. Even the morning papers today could only reprint as news the brief dispatches of yesterday, which the Ledger bulletined early in the afternoon.

When the people realize that Santiago did not surrender until 3 P. M., they will see that it was only a few minutes later that the Ledger gave Quincy the news.

For the Volunteers.

The Volunteer Aid Association of Quincy met in Grand Army Hall, Tuesday afternoon. Quite a large number of ladies were present, and considerable work was accomplished. A NEW COMPANY K.

Steps Toward a Provisional Militia Company.

An effort is to be made to form a provisional militia company to take the place of Co. K which has been mustered into the United States service. The necessary papers and applications for the formation of the company have been received from the proper authorities by Eugene C. Hultman, a son of Councilman Hultman who is now ready to receive application for membership, and give information in relation to the same. Long's hall, the old armory of Co. K, has been engaged for next Monday evening when a meeting of all those interested will be held, and all young men are invited to be present. In the mean time all young men who desire to become members may leave their names at the Ledger office.

If the company was to be located in Quincy there would be no trouble in obtaining the sixty-one men necessary. It is, however, understood that these provisional companies must be formed in the towns in which the companies they replace were located. In this case therefore the new company would have to be located in Braintree unless influence was brought to have the company located in Quincy.

That Quincy is the place in which the company should be located goes without saying, as over fifty per cent. of the present Co. K are residents of Quincy, the remaining per cent. being distributed among the towns of Braintree, Weymouth, Randolph and Holbrook.

No Cure, No Pay.

"To be or not to be" was the question uppermost Wednesday in the minds of the young ladies of Atlantic who were to take part in the dramatic entertainment to be given in the evening. The showery deluge that that formed the chief feature of the climatic condition of the of the day was certainly very forbidding but the uncertainty of pleasant weather probabilities for some days finally induced a performance and though some of the musical talent did not appear Miss Ethel Louise Ring of Dorchester was able to be present and sang "Life's Lullaby" by Gerald Lane and "La Rose d' Amour" by Richard Stahl receiving hearty encore.

In the drama "No Cure, No Pay," the acting was very meritorious and all of the performers seemed to achieve a success. Miss Ella Horton as Mrs. Languish was a capital repesentative of unconscious invalidism. Her daughter, Miss Laura Hall was complete in the acting of her two parts one of them being that of a deaf old lady physician. Miss Corrinna Wilde as the daughter's friend and planner of the scheme to frighten Mrs. Languish into health made an excellent impression on the audience in that role, as well as in that of the "healing medium" where she showed much fine acting. Miss Jennie Wilson and Miss Hattie Chisholm, each representing a female physician were equally amusing in the conception of their parts which were admirably accomplished showing much skill in acting. Miss Winnie Seaman as the kitchen maid did he part well and drew tears of sympathy from the audience in her sorrow for her mistress in her seeming illness. Aunt Maria Midget was an unique character well carried out by Miss Eva Clare, who was constantly making the most laughable mistakes through her deafness, and when the two deaf old ladies, including Miss Laura Hall, attempted to carry on a conversation the audience was convulsed.

In "Bachelor Maids" while all the acting was very good that of Miss Lillian Waterhouse as Miss Beatrice Sinclair seems to claim especial menton for its naturalness, vivacity and ease. Miss Emma Curtin as a nurse made an excellent impression as did Miss Alice Coe the novelist, Miss Lovering the writer of advertisements, and Miss Florence Thomas as a member of College Settlement. Miss Annie Hall as Golden Lilies, Miss Beatrice Sinclair's Japanese maid, was a nearly perfect picture of the character as she represented in a lovely Japanese costume and with a continuous smile upon her face.

There was a very good attendance considering the state of the elments and all seemed to enjoy the occasion.

Had the weather been propitious there is no doubt that the church would scarcely have held the people who would have been present.

IN SIX ENGAGEMENTS

Herbert W. Tapley of the New Orleans Writes Home.

U. S. S. New Orleans
June 24th, 1898.

We are still at Santiago De Cuba, that is off there, we have not got in yet and I guess it will be a hard job. The place is naturally fortified as the entrance to the harbor is only 30 feet wide. The harbor and city are out of sight. There is a high bluff all along the water front, that completely conceals everthing and provides the best of locations for the Spaniards to locate batteries, and sharpshooters to pick off troops who are landing. There are a good many Spaniards there. I don't know how many, but there is a great squadron laying off here and 16,000 troops have been landed besides 7,000 Cubans.

The first troops were landed under the guns of the New Orleans at a place 13 miles from here. It was the greatest sight I ever saw. The Spaniards pulled down their flags and got into the trees on the sides of the hills where they could shoot down on the boat, but we soon fixed that —by shelling the hills. They then waved white flags and set the town on fire and got out. There were a thousand Cubans to meet the troops. It was the first time I have had a chance to see what a tropical forest looks like. It is very handsome, I would give a good deal to get in there and get some fruit. We could see cocanut and banana trees, but that was all the good it did us.

I should like a good feed. I don't believe there is a prison in the State that feeds as poor as the United States Navy does. We lived for about three weeks on stale hard tack brought over from England, stale canned beef, and coffee, with bean soup twice a week for a luxury. We have potatoes and onions now, so it is not so bad. I am all right only my stomach don't like the grub any better than I do. It is very hot here.

Key West, July 4th, 1898.

This is the Fourth of July, but it don't look much like it here in Key West, only that it is a very hot day.

We are here for supplies and repairs. We arrived here last Friday but have been coaling and taking on provisions so steadily that this is my first chance to write, unless I wrote after 8 P. M., and then I was too tired.

Dispatches have been received that Santiago has been taken. We all think it a pretty mean trick calling us away just before the final battle as we have done more damage at Santiago than any other ship. But now we won't get any credit for what we have done. Well we can't kick much because we have not had fighting enough; we have been in six engagements. We bombarded the forts four times. One night a torpedo boat came out and if she was sunk the New Orleans did it. I can swear that neither the Massachusetts nor the Oregon did. I saw the boat not more than 200 yards off our starboard quarter and we fired over 50 shots inside of five minutes; the other engagementwas at Daignore landing the troops.

THE DAILY EVENTS.

The Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

Fair and warmer Sunday.

Quincy is getting warmed up over the war.

The Republican State convention will be held in Boston, Oct. 6.

A meeting of the Sewer Commissioners will be held tonight.

There will be dancing at the Casino, Houghs Neck, Saturday night.

Mr. E. Rosedale formerly of Atlantic is boardin g at the Wilson farm.

Mrs. B. J. Weeks and children are at Exeter, N. H, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. McCormick are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a son.

Mr. E. E. Hayden is driving over the road to Newmarket, N. H., where he will join his family.

The employes of the street railway got out the old Pilgrim fog horn, Thursday, and for nearly an hour there was a deafening din.

The West Quincy Methodist church held its annual outing Thursday at Highland Park. They made the trip by electric cars.

The whistle at the power station at Quincy Point had no muzzle on Thursday, but some of the near neighbors thought the noise it made was something terrible.

When the employes of E. J. Qualey & Co. at South Quincy heard the good news Thursday afternoon they got out a large cannon and the racket it made was enough to wake the dead.

At a meeting of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., held Thursday night it was voted to give $10 to Co. K and $15 to the Volunteer Aid Association. The veterans know the need of such contributions.

The political campaign will be short this year. The Republican caucuses for the selection of delegates to the various conventions are to be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 27 and 28, and representative caucuses may be held on Oct. 4 and 5.

Henry W. Spargue of this city who was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U. S. Signal Coprs, has already been promoted to first lieutenant and his friends expect to hear of another stripe being added soon. His corps was ordered to Santiago and has reached Tampa. Whether it will go farther in view of the surrender of Santiago is problematical.

Dr. C. F. Taugeman, one of Cincinnatti's (Ohio) most eminent eye and ear physicians, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Mayer on Sunday at their home on Beach street, Wollaston Park. Having never been so far east before, the doctor was greatly taken with Boston and its pretty suburbs, especially Wollaston Park, which had, owing to its boating and bathing facilities a charm to him, beside the picturesque view afforded from all along the beach. After a pleasure trip of two weeks in Boston and New York Dr. Taugeman will return to his home at Fern Bank, Cincinnati,

TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a " 'leventy-'leven " dollar suit for " umpty um " dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. EARLY PEACE

Is What President McKinley Looks For.

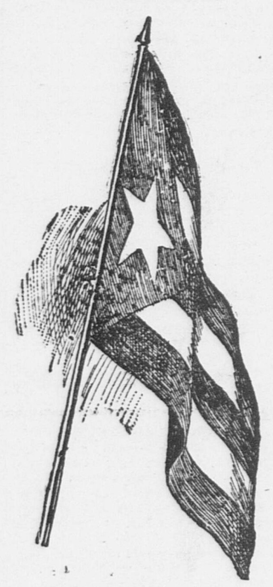
WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

Washington, July 15—President McKinley in speaking of the fall of Santiago says he now looks for early peace.

Honorable Peace.

Madrid July 15—An official decree has been issued suspending personal liberty throughout the domain. This is construed to mean that Spain is suing for peace. The Carlites are said to be furious over the decree and are likely to make trouble.

Primier Sagasta is reported as saying that Spain is willing to accept honorable peace.



More Prisoners Arrive.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 15 —The United States cruiser Harvard arrived this morning with 800 Spanish prisoners. They will be conveyed to Seavy island.

Prisoners Sick.

Portsmouth, N. H. July 15—It is learned that a large part of the men on board the Harvard which arrived this morning are sick. Six died on the voyage from Santiago and one died after the crusier arrived here. Forty are confined in a sick berth and as many more are sick at their quarters. These prisoners are not the sailors captured with Admiral Cevera's fleet, but are soldiers, volunteers and unknown captured by the army before Santiago. They are remorseful and hard to communicate with.

Porto Rico Alarmed.

San Juan, July 15,—The people are alarmed at the prospect of an attack by the Americans, and the city and suburbs are deserted.

—In 1893 about 32 per cent. of the towns in Massachusetts spent less than $1,000 annually on streets, and 81 per cent. spent $4,000 or less. The bulk of that money went for repairs. Today the appropriations have largely increased and good roads are becoming the rule.

—Miss Helen Gould is understood to take her wealth seriously and to have maped out a programme of distributing a certain percentage of her income to deserving charities. God bless her for her good sense.—Mansfield News.

—Hyde Park is to have a public library building to cost about $40,000.

CAME TO GRIEF.

A Cat that Gets the Best of His Nibs, the $1,000 Dog.

Which goes to show that a fighting dog
May tackle the wrong tom-cat.
—EUGENE FIELD.

The following appeared in one of the New York journals this week and is of local interest as "His Nibs" came from the Squantum kennels of Dr. W. G. Kendall. The dog is now at New York where an attempt will be made to furnish him with a glass eye.

One common, ordinary maltese cat, gender unknown, has rendered useless for prize winning purposes J. Pierpont Morgan's $1,000 Boston terrier His Nibs. The encounter between the maltese cat and Mr. Morgan's expensive dog took place on Sunday last at Highland Falls, N. Y. Up to that time His Nibs, had he carried a revolver notched for victims, as the fabled Western bad man does, could have counted forty notches, each representing a deceased cat.

Next to railways in difficulties and bonds issues, Mr. Morgan loves dogs. His collection of collies is the finest in the United States, and at the dog show last spring he made no entries in this class, because it was a foregone conclusion that he would win all the prizes and he wanted to give other breeders a chance. But he does not confine himself entirly to collies, and his Cragston Kennels, which are just across the road from Mr. Morgans's summer home at Highland Falls are the home of dogs of blue blood and of many breeds.

At the dog show in Madison Square Garden in 1897, Mr. Morgan purchased from Dr. W. G. Kendall the Boston terrier, His Nibs. The price paid was $1,000 His Nibs entered his puppy stage of existence on October 5, 1895. In aristocratic dogdom his number is 43,066. His father was Tom Sayers, named after the famous prize fighter, and his mother was a dog known as Vic, whose progeny carried money values equal to the price of a Brooklyn house and lot.

The Boston terrier is rather a new breed of dog. His popularity is a matter of recent growth. He is renowned for his tenacity of purpose as well as for his symmetry of form. As His Nibs sold for $1,000 when he was scarcely more than a pup it must be inferred that for symmetry of form and tenacity of purpose he ranked right up with the oil paintings of his ancestors Mr Morgan presented His Nibs to his daughter, Miss Annie Morgan, and the high-priced beast became the family pet. The vicinity of the Morgan home on Madison avenue became a sad territory for cats after His Nibs was installed as protector of the Morgan interests It was no uncommon thing for the policeman on the beat to hear a despairing yowl at almost any hour of the night and find the corpse of an able-bodied cat on the south side of the Morgan home the next morning.

About a year ago His Nibs wandered down to Fifth avenue and got lost. For several days the detectives kept a lookout for him and policemen in every station house in town had their eye peeled for the $1,000 dog. It so happened that the man who found His Nibs knew something about dogs, and the valuable animal was restored after a series of diplomatic negotiations that cost Mr. Morgan more or less money. The first night after His Nibs reached the Morgan mansion twenty-seven cat lives were snuffed out, according to the policeman's count—he having heard three despairing yowls, each marking the end of the multifarious existence of one cat. When the Morgan family went to the country for the summer His Nibs was taken along. He went through the cat colony surrounding the country house of Mr. Morgan like an American shell through a Spanish war ship, and many a tabby bit the dust of the road beween Highland Falls and Fort Montgomery, victim of the warlike disposition of the $1,000 Boston terrier.

Last week Mrs. Charles F. Tracey, whose home is near that of Mr. Morgan, imported from this city a fine Maltese cat, of medium size and roaming disposition. This Maltese was the pride of the Tracey household and at once established itself the dictator of the Highland Falls feline population. On account of the distance separating the Morgan and Tracey places the Maltese and the Boston terrier were strangers until Sunday.

They met on the road and the combative instinct of each was aroused immediately. The Boston terrier made a straight run for the Maltese, which arched up its back waved a signal of defiance with its plumed tail and awaited the shock of battle. The shock came.

Those who live at Highland Falls the year round and to whom lives of dogs costing $1,000 are dreams engendered by the fumes of the seductive poppy looked at the fight and applauded. It lasted five minutes. At the end of that time one of Mr. Morgan's men arrived on the scene and rescued the most discomfited Boston terrier that ever came out of a fight.

The Maltese cat had not been scratched. His Nibs was loser one complete eye and part of the other, and his symmetrical form had been clawed into the likeness of a platter of spaghetti. One of his ears was fastened to his head at three places while his nose was criss-crossed with deep lines. It was all Mr. Morgan's man could do to pull off the enraged Maltese, which was evidently out to avenge the forty felines which have fallen victims to the prowess of His Nibs. In the dispassionate judgment of the Highland Fallers Mr. Morgan would have been out $1,000 in dog flesh and the price of a funeral had the fight continued another five minutes.

His Nibs was carried to Cragston Kennels and doctored superficially. Then he was put on a train and hurried to this city, where he is now under the care of the director of a dog hospital, who hopes to save the sight of his remaining eye. Mr. Morgan' s family feels keenly the disgrace and the pain that has smitten His Nibs so forcibly, and the Boston terrier lacks for nothing that money can buy.

In the meantime the Maltese cat walks through the backways of High-an d Falls with the air of a conqueror. Highland Fallers affirm that all the cats in town bow their heads three times and then turn a somersault in the air when they meet the Tracey feline. Close inspection of the Maltese has shown that the sharp teeth of His Nibs did not get within reaching distance of the soft fur and skin.

Mr. Morgan's dogs get Highland Falls into the papers every summer. In 1896 Blue Ruin, one of his collies, gave birth to a pup that had but three legs, one in front and two behind. Last summer his prize winning collies Sefton Hero and Rufford Ormon rescued a woman from drowning.

Long Distance Swimmer.

Hardly a day passes but some new champion comes to the front in some sport or other, and, while Quincy is not crowded with that class of people we have a few who are able to make a good showing in most any game that attracts the attention of the sport loving public.

The latest addition to these ranks is Mr. Fenton C. Fowler of Wollaston Park, a lad of 18 years who promises to show the way to the best of our present long distance swimmers. Mr. Fowler on Sunday last went into the water at the foot of Beach street and swam to a point on the Squantum shore, a distance of one and one half miles, rested ten minutes and returned to the starting point making three miles in just one hour and fifteen minutes, including the rest. He was accompanied by Mr. Walter Hey, Joe Prario and Edward Sennett in a row boat. Fowler was urged to return from Squantum in the boat but the sand had not all been washed out of this plucky young man so he refused.

This feat is not claimed as a record but when it is considered that it was his first long swim and is far above the average swimmers ability, it betokens that with training, and the adoption of a scientific stroke, (he uses the open hand) he will become a champion long distance swimmer.

Mr. Fowler is well known in Wollaston, is very modest and of a retiring disposition, and when questioned by the Ledger correspondent regarding his swim asked, Why are you so particular about the details of my swim? O nothing! nothing! But here it is.

GOVERNOR'S DAY.

And Capt. Kincaide of Quincy Officer of the Day.

Camp Dalton,
Friday, July 15, 1898.

Capt. Kincaide of Co. K has the honor today of being officer of the day. It is an important day in camp for Governor Wolcott and staff are expected this afternoon to present the officers with their commissions. A review will precede the presentation.

There was a small fire in the cooking department of Co. G mess room this morning, which was however quickly extinguished.

There are rumors of departure next Wednesday probably to Porto Rico.

The perfect day yesterday was improved for field work and steady progress is noted.

The news of the surrender of Santiago which came late in the afternoon caused rejoicing and afternoon drill was curtailed that the boys might jubilate.

Several from Quincy were among the visitors today.

A practice drill for today's parade was held last evening and every line and movement was about perfect. Not a break in any line. It was gone through twice.

The Governor and staff and representative citizens from different towns will arrive at three, and will at once inspect the regiment. A large delegation from Quincy is expected.

Evidences of the fund were seen today when several dozen shirts were issued. The boys can now keep comfortable. A few shoes were also issued.

No evidences of Wednesday's storm remain. Everyone has got dried and the camp is in perfect order.

Several members think the surrender lessens our chances of engagement, but the more thoughtful ones consider it in a different light.

The boys of Co. K are requested to hand in the names of their visitors to the Ledger correspondent. All such favors will be appreciated.

MACK.

The Daily Ledger is now for sale at the newly established canteen, and all the income derived therefrom will be paid to Harry McLaughlin, the Ledger representative. A large supply will be sent so that all will be able to obtain a copy before worn out.—Eds.

How to Whip Cream.

Put one pint of thick cream in a stone bowl. Then with an egg whip beat the cream till thick, taking care not to beat it too long; in that case it will turn to butter and be ruined. Set the whipped cream for several hours on ice or in a cool place. In serving take the cream from the top, which you will find quite firm and will float on chocolate quite a while. If you wish to use gelatina, put one teaspoonful of granulated gelatina in a cup with one tablespoonful of cold water. Let it stand five minutes. Then set the cup in a pan of hot water on the stove. Stir until the gelatina is dissolved. Let it cool off and add it slowly to a pint of whipped cream while beating constantly. Place for one hour on ice or set in a cool place.

How to Make Glass Icing.

Take a cup of light brown sugar and two spoonfuls of water, a very small spoonful of butter and a few drops of lemon extract. Boil eight minutes and pour over the cake while hot, spreading it evenly.

How to Cook Spiced Rice.

The evening before using wash thoroughly and put in a double boiler a pint of rice. Cover it with warm water and let it soak until morning; then fill the lower part of the boiler with boiling water and pour boiling water over the rice. Boil until the grains are tender and drain off any surplus water there may be. Add to the rice a tablespoonful of cinnamon or nutmeg, same of salt, butter the size of an egg and a teaspoonful of milk. Let it cook a few minutes longer, stirring carefully, and serve with cream and sugar.

How to Cook Eggs Hindoo Style.

Boil hard, cut in half lengthwise, remove yolks and mash them fine with grated ham, butter, pepper, salt and mustard to taste. Refill each half, brown in the oven and serve hot on toast.

SUPPLIES FOR CUBANS

Successful Landing of the War's Largest Expedition.

Difficulty In Evading the Watchful Enemy.

Earthworks at Las Tunas a Mass of Bloodstained Dust.

Key West, July 15.—Those champion filibusterers, the Florida and the Fanita, under convoy of the little auxiliary gunboat Peoria, have landed the largest and probably the last expedition sent to the aid of the Cuban insurgents. It was a task beset with peril and difficulty. Captain Nunez, brother of General Nunez, was killed; Winthrop Chanler of New York was shot through the right elbow, and five Cubans suffered trifling injuries. How many Spanish lives answered for this will never be known, but there were enough to more than balance the score.

The debarkation was effected July 3 at Palo Alto, on the southern coast of Cuba. Fighting occurred before then, but the consummation of the job was without mishap. To the Peoria, one of the newest of the acquisitions to the mosquito fleet, and until lately a pilot boat in Philadelphia, goes the full glory of the achievement. The Florida and the Fanita left Key West June 25, under convoy of the Peoria, commanded by Lieutenant T. W. Ryan. On board the steamers were 650 Cubans under General Nunez, 50 troopers of the Tenth United States cavalry under Lieutenants Johnson and Ahearn and 25 rough riders under Winthrop Chanler, brother of Colonel W. A. Chanler. The cargoes were enormous. There were the horses of the cavalry and 169 sacks of oats and 216 bales of hay to feed them. Topping the list of arms were two dynamite guns with 50 30-pound porjectiles to fit them, and two full batteries of light field pieces, 10 three-inch rifles of regular ordnance pattern, with harnesses that go with them, and 1500 cartridges. In the matter of infantry rifles there were 4000 springfields, with 954,000 cartridges, and 200 mausers with 2000 shells. Fifty of the Cubans aboard were armed with mausers and the others had springfields. For the insurgent officers were provided 200 army colts and 27,000 cartridges. Two hundred books of United States cavalry and infantry tactics translated into Spanish were taken along. In the expedition were also 1475 saddles, 950 saddle cloths and 450 bridles. For the Cuban soldiers there were 7663 uniforms, 5080 pairs of shoes, 1275 blankets, 400 shirts, 450 hats and 250 hammocks. There were the commissary stores, calculated by pounds: Bacon, 67,275; corn meal, 31,256; roasted coffee, 10,200; raw coffee, 3250; sugar, 2425; mess pork and beef, 9600; corned beef, 24,000; beans, 18,900; hardtack, 1250; cans of corn, 1250.

The expectation was that the landing would be effected at San Juan point, on the south coast of Cuba, midway between Cienfuegos and Trinidad. This place was reached Wednesday evening, June 29. A scouting party put off in a small boat and pulled towards shore, but had made only half the distance when there came a lively fire from what had been taken to be an abandoned blockhouse near the point. The men were called back, and the three ships moved to the eastward. About 4 o'clock the next afternoon they arrived at Las Tunas, 40 miles away. Four miles west of the town, at the mouth of the Tallabacoa river, stood a large fort built of railroad iron and surrounded by earthworks. The Peoria ran boldly in and fired several shots from her three pounders, but brought no response and no signs of life. Here was thought to be the desired opportunity, and another scouting party was organized. This was made up of 15 volunteers under Winthrop Chanler and as many Cubans under Captain Nunez. The Peoria took a position within short range of the fort to protect a landing or cover a retreat, and the small boats headed for shore. They reached it 500 yards east of the fort. The boats were beached and their occupants cautiously scrambled toward the brush; but at almost the very moment they set foot on the sand the fort and the entrenchments around it burst into flame, and shot and shell screamed about the little band of invaders. Captain Nunez was stepping from his boat when a short struck him between the eyes, and he went down dead. Chanler fell with a broken arm. The others safely gained the thicket and replied with a sharp fire directed at the entrenchments.

Meanwhile the Peoria set all her guns at work and rained shells upon the fort until the enemy's fire ceased. The moment the gunboat slackened fire, however, the Spanish fire was renewed with fury, and it became evident that their forces were too large to allow a landing there. A retreat was ordered, and the party on shore rushed for the boats; but volley after volley came from the shore and they were compelled to throw themselves into the water and paddle alongside the boats with only their heads exposed until the ships were reached. The Spaniards had the range, however, and five Cubans were wounded, though none seriously. Returning to the Peoria the men reported that a vicious fire had come from a grove of palms to the eastward of the fort. The Peoria opened her guns on the place indicated and must have killed many Spaniards, for her shells dropped into the smoke and flash of the adversaries' fire, silenced it at once and forced them to send up rockets for help. A number of volleys were sent at the Peoria with a view of disabling her gunners, but they were badly directed and fell against her side and into the water.

When the small boats reached the ship it was dark. Then the discovery was made that besides Captain Nunez, whose body was left on the beach, there were missing Chanler, Drs. Lund and Abbott, Lieutenants Agramonte and two Cubans. It was reported that Chanler had been mortally wounded and was kept afloat in the bushes along the shore by the two doctors. Rescue parties were immediately organized, composed of volunteers, and no less than four were sent ashore during the night. Toward morning Lieutenant Ahearn, in charge of one of these, found Chanler and his companions. Chanler's wound proved to be in the right elbow. After sunrise Agramonte and his Cubans were discovered and brought off.

The next day the Helena, under Captain Swinburn, arrived, and Friday morning she and the Peoria steamed in towards Las Tunas, which the Spaniards had been vigorously fortifying. Tunas is connected by rail with Sancti Spiritus, a town of considerable size and reinforcements, and artillery had been rapidly coming in. Range buoys had been placed in the bay, but, avoiding these, the ships drew in to close range and opened fire, the Peoria at 1200 and the Helena at 1400 yards. The Spaniards had several field pieces of three or four inches mounted on earthworks along the waterfront, and they began a vigorous, but ill-directed reply with shell and shrapnel. The fire of our ships was most accurate and terribly destructive. The Spanish gunners had not fired more than 15 or 20 shots before their guns were flying in the air, their earthworks a mass of bloodstained dust and their gunners running for their lives. Both the Peoria and the Helena were struck several times, chiefly by shrapnel, but no one on either ship was injured. As they withdrew several buildings on shore were in flames.

That afternoon both ships again turned their attention to the fort and the entrenchments at the mouth of the Tallabacoa river, and for half an hour poured a wicked fire upon them. The Spaniards had been largely reinforced during the day, and some field pieces had been mounted near the fort. These replied to the American fire, but without effect, and the shells of the two ships speedily silenced them. The iron blockhouse was struck repeatedly and the earthworks were partially destroyed. No damage was done to the ships, and they again withdrew. That night the Spaniards burned a large wharf and the adjacent buildings, evidently expecting a landing in force the next day.

It was learned from various sources that reinforcements were pouring into Las Tunas from all directions, a newspaper from Sancti Spiritus saying that 2000 men had been dispatched from the nearest trocha. It was determined to proceed during the night with the landing expedition to Palo Alto, 50 miles to the eastward, the Helena remaining at Las Tunas to confirm the Spaniards in the belief that an attempt was to be made to land there. At 10 o'clock Saturday, July 2, while the Helena lay off shore making lively play with her searchlights toward the shore, the Peoria, the Florida and the Fanita, with all lights out, slipped silently away. Palo Alto was reached at daybreak. There was not a Spaniard to be seen, and the men and cargo were put ashore without a single obstacle. Gomez, with 2000 men, was known to be in the vicinity, and scouts hurried to his lines. On July 4 the old warrior appeared in person at Palo Alto. An awning was spread over the end of the abandoned wharf, and a conference was held. The veteran commander-in-chief said he was greatly pleased at the successful result of the expedition, which he thought would exercise an important influence upon the war. He outlined a plan of campaign, which he later submitted in writing to Lieutenant Ryan for transmission to President McKinley.

The Tenth cavalry has dubbed the Peoria "the little Dewey," because of her valor. She had arrived from the north only a few days before taking out the expedition, and this was her first war experience—under fire four times in 48 hours. Her batteries are four Hotchkiss three pounders, two Hotchkiss revolving cannon and one Colt repeating rifle.

When Chanler fell, Drs. Lund and Abbott carried him into the brush, and all three sank up to their necks in a swamp. Dr. Lund, who was formerly a German army surgeon and who is a giant in stature, managed to extricate himself, stripped off his clothing with the papers and eatables which he carried, and which still lie somewhere in the thicket, and swam naked and in darkness to find the ships. A boat from the Florida picked him up, and he was taken over to the Peoria. As the strange figure clambered up the ladder the sentry on guard at the gangway challenged him; but Dr. Lund brushed pass him and strode in all his nakedness up to Lieutenant Ryan, gave the customary salute and, with the utmost gravity, said: "I have to report that the men ashore require assistance." When Chanler and Abbott were rescued they were still in the water up to their necks, but, except for Chanler's slight wound in the elbow, they were none the worse for their experience.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Plymouth, Mass., celebrated the surrender of Santiago last night with great enthusiasm. All the bunting in town was flown, bells were rung, whistles were blown and salutes were fired.

A wagon containing three persons was struck by an express train near Down's View, Ont. Jacob Strong, aged 70, and Mrs. Peterboro were killed; Melinda J. Strong was badly hurt.

The plan of the war department for returning the surrendered army of General Toral to Spain will not necessitate the use of American vessels. It is the purpose of the department to ask for proposals from all steamship companies which desire to compete for the business.

The explosion of a lamp in the postoffice block in Great Barrington, Mass., caused the gutting of a shoe store occupied by Edward J. Mahoney, with damage to the amount of $7000, and a millinery store, occupied by Flora C. Tillotson, with a loss of $1600. The damage to the building was $750.

The resignation of Chaplain Harris, Second Tennessee, has been tendered to Colonel Anderson at Camp Alger. There is a disposition, however, to courtmartial and punish the chaplain for a disturbance he created in a Washington hotel. Private Frank Pauly, Fifty-ninth Indiana, has been sentenced to six months' hard labor and dishonorably discharged. He become drunk and "ran amuck" in the company streets recently.

PARLEY PAID.

Sunday and Monday had done little damage. He admitted the shells from the guns of the fleet had destroyed four houses, but he asserted that only half a dozen soldiers of the garrison had been injured. He also volunteered the information, when General Miles gallantly inquired after General Linares' condition, that the latter would probably lose his left arm at the shoulder. General Miles, at the interview, did not attempt to assume the direction of the negotiations, but as general of the United States army he vouched for the conditions General Shafter offered.

GENERAL YOUNG.

General Duffield is suffering from malarial fever, but he is not wounded, as was reported in the United States. According to the last accounts, General Duffield was still commanding at Siboney, in the place of General Young who is sick and on his way home.

The rain now falls in sheets every day, drenching the soldiers, washing out the roads and swelling the streams into torrents. In fact our base of supplies is actually threatened by the mountain streams. Two bridges were carried away Tuesday afternoon after a downfall in which an inch and a half of rain fell. The Aguadores river is impassable. The water, shoulder deep, is running like a small Niagara. A mule ambulance, filled with refugees, which attempted to cross the river, was carried 200 yards down the stream to Caney, where the passengers were rescued with difficulty.

TO PRESS ADVANTAGE.

Aggressive Action Against Porto Rico on the Boards Now.

Washington, July 15.—President McKinley, who is delighthed with this prompt fruition of his hopes, proposes to press the advantage thus gained, and has ordered the Porto Rico expedition to start next week, and the eastern squadron to leave by Monday for the Canaries and the coast of Spain, and to destroy Camara's fleet.

The administration fears, however, an artful request for an armistice by Spain, to stop our further proceedings, with plausible offers of peace designed to compel protracted negotiations, which might or might not result in a treaty of peace, and is determined, on receiving the expected intimation from Spain that she desires to treat, to demand that she shall make promptly and definitely a proposition that can be disposed of without delay.

Madrid had no opportunity yesterday to make the clever move for delay expected of her, because the surrender of General Toral was not announced in time, but it would not surprise the administration if Spain's request for an armistice for peace negotiations should come today or Saturday, and it is regarded as certain to arrive before Admiral Sampson and General Miles and General Brooke can get to Porto Rico, or Commodore Watson can get to the Canaries, unless the surrender at Santiago arouses a feeling in Spain which would make it impossible for the Spanish government to even go through the form of proposing peace.

McCalla Meant Business.

Playa Del Este, July 15.—A French gunboat of about 2000 tons displacement attempted to go into the harbor about dusk last night without permission and met with a surprise party. Captain McCalla's Marblehead fired a blank shot, but no attention was paid to this, and a shot from a 6-pounder was sent out. This too was disregarded, the gunboat going along under full steam.

COMMANDER M'CALLA.

For a few minutes it looked as if a row was possible. The trumpet on the Marblehead rang out a call to quarters, and another shot was sent across the gunboat's bows, this time in uncomfortable proximity. That warning was sufficient, however, and the Frenchman stopped with extreme suddenness.

It is against naval custom for a war vessel of one nation to enter a port which vessels of another nation are blockading unless permission is given. The captain of the French gunboat was either in ignorance of the American occupation, or chose to disregard until forcibly reminded of the fact by Commander McCalla. The gunboat was allowed to anchor for the night.

Yarn Spinner a Liar.

Havana, July 15.—The story circulated throughout the United States by a Cuban named Blanco, to the effect that the captain general had attempted suicide on receiving notice of the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet, is a baseless fabrication.

Was Carranza Impersonated?

Montreal, July 15.—There are rumors that Lieutenant Carranza did not sail with Du Bosc. Yesterday is was stated positively that he was impersonated by some unknown person and did not board the ship. Where Carranza is is a mystery.

TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "'leventy-'leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. They are not worth $15.00, but we know of no one who sells them for as little money. 100 percale and white shirts with attached collar and cuff and and fancy bosoms, at 45c. 125 fine percale and French madras, at 69c. 100 best quality madras shirts, detatched collars and cuffs, at 98c. Bear this in mind, we sell our shirts for all they are worth. But we know of people who sell them for more money and claim they are worth twice as much.

TORAL DISPOSED TO HAGGLE.

Undertook to Prescribe the Terms of Surrender.

Delayed the Bombardment and Then Trifled.

Emphatic Instruction Sent by Secretary Alger.

Siege Was to Be Resumed of Perverseness Continued.

No Concession as to the Retention of Arms Allowed.

Washington, July 16.—Amazement and chagrin took the place of satisfaction, when a dispatch was received from General Shafter, that he and General Miles had been deceived by the Spanish commander at Santiago. Instead of an unconditional surrender, Miles and Shafter find that the Spaniards intended a capitulation on terms which they should be allowed to dictate themselves. At least this is the interpretation put upon a message from the front, the way for which had been prepared by an earlier message announcing that the commissioners appointed to arrange details had been unable to agree. It is inferred from the words of Shafter's dispatch that Toral has repudiated the agreement which both the American generals believed was fully understood. The lesson is a hard one, but it is not without its value, for it forces home upon the administration the value of Spanish promises and the folly of undertaking negotiations with them except at the point of the sword.

It has been the president's intention to continue hostilities in this spirit, and to give Spain to understand that we shall negotiate only as we fight, and this experience at Santiago will strengthen him in this intention. It will have the effect doubtless of preventing anything like an armistice, pending negotiations for peace. Of course, the episode can defer the inevitable for only a short time. As General Shafter says in his dispatch, "It cannot be possible that there will be failure in completing arrangements," but the very fact that it was possible for him to write that sentence shows how far apart the Americans and Spanish commanders were in their interpretation of the terms under which the surrender was to take place.

GENERAL TORAL.

General Miles understood that the surrender was absolutely without conditions except the single one proposed by this government, that our ships should transport the Spanish garrison to Spain. Toral seems to have made a saving clause in his own mind that he should be allowed to lead his men out of the city in such a way that their departure would look like a voluntary evacuation, without the humiliation of acknowledging defeat. It may be that the commissioners will be able to arrive at an understanding today, but this understanding must be in line with that of our generals. Anything less than this will involve a renewal of the assault upon the city, and a forcing of the Spaniards to our terms at the mouths of our guns.

It is only too plain that the object of General Toral in consenting to a surrender was to defer if possible the inevitable fall of the city, to compel our troops to continue their weary vigil in the unhealthy trenches, where they have been lying for a fortnight, and if possible to bring about a condition of affairs which would be more gratifying to the Spanish idea of honor. He will be mistaken in this, and doubtless Miles and Shafter will be able to convince him of the seriousness of his mistake. The ultimate result will probably be less satisfactory to him than it would have been if he had acted in good faith from the beginning.

It does not appear that our generals are in any way to blame for the unfortunate terms of the negotiations. Their understanding with Toral was clear and explicit, and with representatives of any other nation in the midst of war it would have been final, but they evidently failed to take into account the devious windings of the Spanish mind. When a defeated army surrenders and a commission is appointed to arrange details it is understood that the work of this commission shall be formal and shall have to do not with the character of the surrender, but only with the determination of the manner in which the surrendered forces shall be treated, as the representatives of any civilized nation would act in dealing with representatives of any other civilized nation. The result is a reflection not upon them, but upon General Toral.

After an extended conference with the president last night, at which three other members of the cabinet were present, Secretary Alger said: "The situation is just this: The Spaniards at Santiago are prepared to surrender, but they want to carry their arms. We have determined to grant no such concession, except the generosity of this government to transport them to Spain." The secretary was asked if it was not the expectation that when it was known that no other terms would be granted the surrender would not take place, and replied that such was the case. In any event no other concession would be offered by this government. Secretary Alger did not say how much time would be allowed the enemy to reach a conclusion, but it is known that the administration will make it very short and submit to no further parley with General Toral. The next move is to surrender upon the terms of the United States government or immediately attack the Spanish forces by army and navy.

In accordance with the decision reached at the conference, General Shafter was notified that nothing but an unconditional surrender by Toral would be satisfactory to this government. In view of Shafter's last dispatch, no fear is felt that the negotiations will not be prosecuted to a successful conclusion. General Toral, it is known, at first insisted that his men should be permitted to carry their arms with them to Spain. The unusual delay which has puzzled the war officials is accounted for by the difficulty which Toral is having in surrendering that part of the force under his command which is not in the city of Santiago. General Shafter estimatees that there are from 12,000 to 15,000 men in Santiago and nearly as many more in the province outside of the city. It is believed some may question Toral's authority to surrender them without definite instructions to that effect from Madrid.

SPANISH CHICANERY.

Employing Diplomacy Their Favorite Game of Diplomacy, Santiago Dicker.

Port Antonio, July 16.—Santiago is not yet in the actual possession of the American forces, nor has the Spanish army laid down its arms. This is the actual situation. Having avoided a directed encounter with American guns in a struggle in which the odds would have been greatly against them, the Spanish have resorted to their favorite game of diplomacy, in which they are more than a match for the frank and sincere officers of the American army. At the same time, there is no doubt as to the outcome. Santiago will surely fall, even if it becomes necessary to throw diplomacy to the winds and invoke the terrible but more certain exercise of the rifle and the sword.

Two factors have contributed to the delay: General Toral demands that his army shall not be compelled to lay down their arms; the authorities at Madrid seem to have discovered that Toral yielded too quickly, and are embarrassing the situation by new instructions.

The fact that the cable between Santiago and Madrid is in working order adds to the perplexities of the situation. When the town was first threatened the cable operators left in great haste, fearing that a bombardment was imminent, but after the situation became less dangerous they promptly returned, and since that time have been at General Toral's service in sending messages between the Spanish capital and the besieged city. This being the case, it is barely possible that the Madrid authorities have informed the Spanish commander that he surrendered too quickly, that the yellow fever had broken out among the American soldiers, and that Admiral Sampson has positively refused to take his ships into the Santiago harbor.

It is also known that at first General Blanco positively refused to give orders regarding the surrender until the Madrid authorities had approved them. Afterward he seems to have directed General Toral to yield, and it is now possible that the Spanish government is claiming that it was not consulted.

No English Employed.

Washington, July 16.—With all our disposition to be on friendly terms with the British, our naval officers are quick to resent the allegations to the effect that Dewey owed his success at Manila to the employment of English gunners whom he had engaged at fabulous wages at Hong-Kong before he sailed for Manila. Such a statement as this was made by an ex-member of parliament, in a communication to one of the British neswpapers. Captain Crowninshield, chief of the navigation bureau, is directly in charge of the personnel of the navy, and when this statement was called to his attention he said: "We never have yet been called upon to get Englishmen to teach us how to shoot. An inspection of the muster rolls of Dewey's squadron will convey the amplest refutation of this charge and show how absolutely false it is. Even later than the muster rolls are the prize lists prepared for the use of the auditing officers of the treasury department, and by comparision with the muster rolls as the squadron was originally formed they show very clearly that no Englishmen were behind the guns that sank the Spanish fleet and silenced the forts of Cavite."

No Cause For Alarm.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 16.—The 800 prisoners on the Harvard, which reached here yesterday, were subjected to a rigid examination in the afternoon for traces of yellow fever. The physicians found that there was nothing more serious on board than malarial fever, which could be more effectively treated than was possible on board ship as soon as the patients could be landed. After a consultation it was thought best not to take the men ashore until today.

Naval Physician A. C. Feffenger said: "I have no cause for alarm, as the cases on the Harvard are exactly like those on the St. Louis. But you see, these men are half starved and were nearly dead when captured, and in addition to this they have been crowded aboard the Harvard, and the conditions under which they lived are worse than those on the St. Louis."

The Harvard left Santiago Sunday at 4 p. m., and made fair progress. The 800 prisoners on board belonged on the vessels in Admiral Cervera's fleet, and were the men who went ashore and gave Roosevelt's rough riders such a hard fight at Siboney, and who returned to the fleet the day before Cervera sailed from Santiago.

Blanco's Undying Hatred.

Havana, July 16.—General Blanco has declared that if he could prevent it there would be no peace between Spain and the United States on the basis of Cuba passing from Spanish control, and that he favored waging incessant warfare against the United States. Owing to General Blanco's great influence with the political powers in Spain, his firm determination not to encourage peace proposals contemplating Cuban independence is of much importance.

"I am very sorry," the general continued, "that I am not young enough to give my entire life and all of my faculties to fighting that nation, whose only idea has been to damage and calumniate my country, which I love devotedly." General Blanco rose from his seat as he pronounced these words of undying hatred for the United States.

Halstead Going to Hawaii.

San Francisco, July 16.—The transport Valencia arrived at Honolulu July 7, closely followed by the Newport. There was a slight accident to the machinery of the latter on the way, and she was hove to for several hours. Just before noon the Newport, with General Merritt and staff on board, left the harbor, and all the vessels of the fleet moved off.

Before dark the Indiana, the flagship, returned, accompanied by the rest of the fleet, with the exception of the Newport, which went on ahead. The officers of the Indiana reported that the boilers had sprung aleak.

MURAT HALSTEAD.

Murat Halstead arrived by the Newport. Since leaving San Francisco, Mr. Halstead has been suffering from a low fever, and was transferred from the ship to the local hospital, where he was likely to remain for some days.

Wolcott Addresses Volunteers.

South Framingham, Mass., July 16.—The Fifth regiment, Massachusetts infantry, United States volunteers, was formally commissioned yesterday by Governor Wolcott, the ceremonies incidental to it being the fifth of this nature at which the chief magistrate of the commonwealth has officiated. In a brief address his excellency said:

"You go forth to imperil your lives if need be for a just cause and to defend the honor of the flag and the nation. There can be no greater privilege than this. Officers, bear in mind that the lives of these young men are in your keeping. Look after their health and welfare. Men, yield ready and perfect obedience to your officers. Be good comrades with those with whom you touch elbows, march and bivouac. There are few nobler examples of duty done than those that have appeared in this war, and Massachusetts has been well to the front. Remember that these men are brothers, sons of the old commonwealth in the service of the United States. Remember that the good soldier is the man who is ever ready to respond to the call of duty. The spirit of Massachusetts goes with you in every danger and may the God of battles, the God of our fathers, as he is the God of loving kindness, lead you to speedy peace. Massachusetts has put into the field many loyal and brave men, and she feels sure that this regiment is the peer of any gone before."

Massachusetts Soldiers.

Fort Monroe, Va., July 16.—Among the sick and wounded who have arrived from Siboney in the steamers Breakwater and City of Washington are the following Massachusetts men:

Second Massachusetts—Corporal Lathrop, company K; Private Coats, company I; Private Fortier, company A; Private Gagnon, company A; Private Smith, company A; Private Squires, company A; Private Traver, company A; Private Scannell, company D; Private Willis, company E; Private Kent, company F; Private Bachelor, hospital corps.

Ninth Massachusetts—Corporal Maston, company I; Private Laplant, company F; Private McDonald, company M; Private Larkin, company G.

Any inquiries as to the above men, or any contributions of delicacies, clothing or the like, should be addressed to the post chaplain, Fort Monroe, Va., who will gladly give information desired, either as to the sick men themselves, or with reference to the articles most needed for their comfort.

Guarantee Abrogated.

Madrid, July 16.—A decree of the captain general of Madrid, which has been affixed to the walls of this city, says decrees suspending the constitutional guarantees throughout the kingdom having been published, and a state of war existing, it is ordered that no meetings take place without the previous authorization of the military authorities. It is also forbidden to publish, without previous authorization, any writings, engravings or designs whatever. The decree concludes with specifying the punishment which will be meted out to those who disregarded the orders issued.

Premier Sagasta declares that the government in Cuba has not intervened in the negotiations for the surrender of Santiago. He adds that the surrender came within the province of General Toral and under his responsibility, and the general simply announced that the garrison had capitulated.

TORPEDO-BOAT "ERICSSON" RECONNOITRING UNDER FIRE OFF SANTIAGO HARBOR. FROM HARPER'S WEEKLY.

AFTER A DRAWING BY H. REUTERDAHL. Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

The obtaining of accurate information as to the whereabouts and strength of an enemy is even on land a dangerous business, but scouting on the water is doubly perilous. There is no disguising a despatch boat; there is little possibility of evading detection on the open sea and unlike such operations on the land, a marine reconniassance must be made in full view of the enemy and often under direct fire of his guns.

Such service, however, is quite as essential and important in the navy as it is in the army, and is usually performed by swift running torpedo-boats which dash at high speed close to the enemy's fortifications and battleships, and whose course can be changed so quickly and readily that it tests the accuracy of the most skilful gunner to get a sight on the elusive flyer. From her deck the officers take what hasty observations they can of the hostile forces, and endeavor to form a definite idea of the weak and vulnerable points in the fortifications.

Such daring work as was performed, for example, by the Ericsson at Santiago was of incalculable value in the formation of future plans of attack both to Admiral Sampson and General Shafter. A stirring picture of this exciting episode of the war we produce today from the columns of Harper's Weekly.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

THE MUSKMELON.

A Growing Demand For the Smaller Varieties—Insect Enemies, Etc.

All things considered, there is probably nothing grown in the garden that surpasses the muskmelon as a delicacy. While the demands of city markets are met by shipments from the large melon growing districts, average town, country and village homes are usually without this fruit. It is to create, if possible, more interest in the melon and to increase its production that the New Hampshire station furnishes data acquired in its own experiments, in which occurs the following:

The selection of varieties seems to be one great point of error. We are usually disappointed in the fruit offered on the menus of hotels. It is almost invariably inedible. Possibly the size of the fruit may have some bearing on the subject. It is quite evident at the fairs that size rather than quality is sought. With the melon more than any other fruit increase in size beyond the average is accompanied by a corresponding decrease in flavor. At present, however, the markets are changing in this respect, and there is a growing demand for the smaller varieties, which are sold in half bushel baskets, about 16 melons to the basket. The ordinary peach basket was first used, but the market basket with a handle is rapidly displacing it.

Insects are sometimes very troublesome. Those causing the greatest trouble were the small yellow leaf beetles—the striped cucumber beetle (Diabrotica vittata), yellow with black stripes, and the spotted cucumber beetle (D. 12 punctata), yellow with 12 black spots on its back. These insects live over winter under leaves, rubbish, etc., and begin their attack as soon as the first two cotyledonous leaves make their appearance. By liberally spreading tobacco dust upon and around the plantlets as soon as the insects made their appearance we were able to keep them off. We have tried nearly everything, and this seems to be the most effective. The other insect liable to be troublesome is the common squash bug. The best remedy is to hand pick and destroy it in the cooler portions of the day. If boards are placed about the hills, the bugs will take refuge under them. The eggs, which are usually laid in clusters on the leaves, are also easily destroyed. Worms and insects do more or less damage by working into the melon where the fruit comes in contact with the ground. This is easily overcome by placing something under the fruit—small pieces of board, stones, etc. Fungous diseases are quite prevalent in melon growing sections. The remedy is to spray with bordeaux mixture.

The small sized varieties were more productive than the large. Also the rule so frequently quoted, "The finer netted, the sweeter the fruit," has too may exceptions to be relied upon.

An Old Favorite.

Of late years there has been a decided preference shown for some of the old hardy perennials once popular, but for the time forgotten in the desire for new varieties and especially for those of bright hues. Country Gentleman illustrates some of these desirable plants which are especially suitable for grounds of large dimensions, such as usually surround the average farm home. Among them is the following: The Chinese bellflower or platycodon, belonging to the harebell family, is a plant deserving of a place on all grounds. It forms a dense branched bush of upright habit and attractive foliage and is in constant bloom from late in July to nearly the 1st of October. The blossoms are large, handsome and bell shaped and vary in color from pure white to the deepest blue, frequently showing forms with white or blue flowers handsomely veined with the opposite color. Although the plant grows well in any ordinary garden soil, it succeeds best in rich loam.

CHINESE BELLFLOWER.

Horticultural Brevities.

For borers near the collar of fruit trees the use of various alkaline washes is desirable, as they keep the bark smooth and the eggs are not likely to be deposited. The addition of paris green, lime, sulphur and carbolic acid is recommended by some orchardists.

The genista will require a partial rest during the summer. The plant may be either planted out or the pot plunged in the ground until September, when it should be repotted, says Rural New Yorker.

When peach leaves begin to curl or blister, they should be sprayed with copper sulphate.

From midsummer to autumn grape leaves may be affected by a little jumping insect known as the "thrips" or leaf hopper. The remedy is to spray with kerosene emulsion diluted with nine parts of water.

The daily cutting of roses greatly benefits the bushes. The bloom will be much greater than where the flowers are left to wither on the stalk.

There seems to be an increased interest in dahlia culture.

How to Make a Nice Breakfast Dish.

A delicious breakfast dish can be made as follows: Keep the remains of cold boiled tongue. Hang it up until quite dry and hard. Then grate as much as is required on a grater. Put this into a small saucepan with enough cream to make it into a nice paste. Add pepper and salt to taste. Warm up, but not boil, and serve on small squares of buttered toast.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 17. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Christianity compared with other religions.—Acts xvii. 22-31. (A missionary topic.)

Christians need never fear a comparison of their religion with the other religions of the world. Many good people feared the world's congress of religions, but such fears proved to be groundless. Elijah was not afraid of a test between the God of Israel and Baal, the god of Israel's enemies. Paul was not afraid to stand upon Mars hill, in Athens, and compare his God with the innumerable gods of the heathen Greeks. Our religion today will stand the test of comparison with all other religions. In the grandeur of its beliefs, the effects produced upon the lives of its adherents and the sublimity of its hopes for the future Christianity far surpasses all the other religions of the world.

1. Christianity surpasses all other religions in the grandeur of its beliefs. Its doctrines of God, of man and of the relation existing between God and man are infinitely superior to all modern religions. Brahmanism, the caste religion of India, is both pantheistic and polytheistic. Buddhism, which holds beneath its sway so many millions in India, China, Japan and other places, is essentially atheistic. It has no conception of God at all. Confucianism, the state religion of China, is also practically atheistic, having no real conception of God, and in all of these idols made by man's hands are worshiped in place of God. Mohammedanism has a distorted Christian idea of God. None of these religions has a higher idea of man than its ideas of God, and none has any way by which it can explain the relation existing between God and man. How inferior to our beliefs in an infinite, eternal, personal God, who has created man in His own image and who, though separated from God by sin, may be united to Him through Jesus Christ, His Son!

2. Christianity surpasses all religions in the effect it produces upon the lives of men. Christianity presents to man the highest ideals of life and gives him lofty motives for striving to reach these ideals. It teaches that a pure and holy life should be the aim of all, and everywhere the world over it produces the highest standard of moral life that the world has ever seen. The ethical teachings of Jesus are the best the world has ever had. Other religions debase and debauch men as a necessary result of their false doctrine and beliefs.

3. Christianity surpasses all other religions in its conceptions of the future. Buddhism is a religion of darkness and despair both for this life and the life to come. It is hopeless. The Mohammedan's idea of the future is a life of the grossest sensuality and sin. The hope of the Brahman is at last to be lost in Brahm, the universal soul. Death to the Brahman is the loss of consciousness. There is no hope of a resurrection, of a Father's home, of recognition of friends, only a rapid passing from one form of life to another until lost altogether in the one great soul. How hopeless! What despair as to the future! And how much more infinitely so when placed beside the Christian's hope of eternal glory and happiness in heaven!

As we compare Christianity, our beliefs and our hopes with those of others, now our hearts should burn within us to send them the gospel to give them true knowledge about God, themselves and the future!

Shall we, whose souls are lighted
With wisdom from on high—
Shall we to men benighted
The lamp of life deny?
Salvation, oh, salvation,
The joyful sound proclaim
Till earth's remotest nation
Has learned Messiah's name!

Bible Readings.—Ex. xx, 1-6; Deut. vii, 16; I Kings xviii, 17-40; Ps. ii, 1-12; Isa. lii, 7; Dan. ii, 27-45; Math. xxviii, 19, 20; Acts viii, 26-40; Rom. i, 14-32; x, 14, 15; II Cor. vi, 14-18; I Thess. i, 2-10; I Tim. ii, 1-7; Jas. i, 27; I John v, 21.

The Truest Friend and Helper.

The church teaches no one to do evil. It has no mixed standard of right and wrong. It aims to keep those who have not gone astray in morals in the straight paths of honesty, truth and virtue. It teaches parents to love their children and exhorts children to honor their parents. It warns men what will come to them if they choose the wrong in preference to the right. It is a great conserving force among men. Who can tell how great the wrongs of the world would be if we had no church?

When all distinctions become so confused that black is white and white is black, when wrong is right and right is wrong, it will then be possible to make out a case against the church as the enemy of mankind. But while love stands opposed to hate and virtue is better than vice the church must be accounted the truest friend and helper of mankind.—Independent.

Questionable Methods.

One of the drawbacks with which the church of Christ has to contend is the tendency to endeavor to raise money as a contribution to religious or benevolent causes by questionable means. This really deadens the nerve of true Christian benevolence and places giving on a wrong basis, while it taints the enterprise thus supported. Far better to give a smaller sum outright as a willing and thankful offering than to bring discredit upon the entire matter of Christian charity by ministering to frivolity or the passion of any questionable amusement in the name of religious benevolence.—Moravian.

The Picket Guard.

Missionaries are the picket guard of civilization. So much may certainly be said that the gospel and the mission schools are at present the most truly civilizing influences which work upon the natives, and that upon those influences more than upon any other agency does the progress of the colonial races depend.—Bryce's "South Africa."

More Money Wanted.

It is more than probable that Commissioner Knowlton will ask the City Council for an additional appropriation to build the new city stables. When the first plans were drawn up it was estimated that the building would cost $4,600. The committee, however, thought it advisable to make certain additions to the building which was done, but the amount asked for was not increased and the order as passed called for $5,000.

All of the bids for the building with one exception exceeded the $5,000. There was one for $4,900, which was below the appropriation, but it is very questionable whether it can be built for the amount named, and complications are feared.

Fund Now $550.

Fifty dollars more were banked this morning to the credit of Co. K, swelling the amount to $550. Who will make it $600? The boys go next week.

BREAKS LAST NIGHT.

Two Stores Entered and a Little Change Secured.

The grocery store of L. M. Pratt & Co. and the drug store adjoining, run by Mr. Frost, were entered by burglars early this morning, and from the appearance of things and the manner in which entrance was made leads the police to believe that the parties were familiar with the premises.

It was about 3.30 when Mr. Frost, who resides over the drug store, was aroused by a noise in his store. He climbed out the rear window onto the roof of the L and looked over and observed a man standing at the corner of the building. Had he possessed a revolver he could have made it unpleasant for the fellow, but unfortunately he was in his night garments and possessed no weapons of any kind, and therefore did not dare to make any attempt to stop the fellow.

Mr. Frost, however, used his lungs and shouted, at which the fellow started toward the railroad track and was followed by his companion, who jumped out of the drug store window.

Chief Litchfield was notified and started out and soon overhauled two hobos, who, however, were not the men wanted.

The Chief started down Pleasant street and saw a man upon the opposite side of the street who answered the description of the man Mr. Frost saw. The Chief spoke to the man, upon which he started on the run up Water street with Chief Litchfield in hot pursuit.

The race was a short one, for Mr. Frost put in an appearance in front of the fellow and drawing a revolver, which he pointed at the fleeing man, at the same time commanding him to stop or he would shoot.

When taken to the police station the fellow gave his name as Michael Murray and said he belonged in Cambridge. He had no money about him and when questioned said he did not know why he run, and was sorry that he did. He will be held on suspicion until Mr. Frost has a look at him.

Investigation of the building this morning showed the method of entering, and from appearances it would seem that the fellows went into the cellar of the Pratt store by the bulkhead. They then went into the potato bin and got into the store by a small scuttle in the floor.

Up stairs a jar of milk was taken from the refrigerator to the sink, where a glass was used in drinking it. The money drawer in the cash register was cleaned out of about $4 in change.

A cleaver was then taken and the exit made by the back door and the window in the rear of the drug store smashed in with a cleaver. About $5 in money was taken from the drug store.

Later a money drawer and two overcoats were found on the rocks just west of the railroad track between Mr. Pratt's store and Granite street. The money drawer proved to be one from Pratt's store that had not been used for some time, and why it was taken is a mystery.

Murray says that there were two men with him last night, and the only crime he has committed is to beg for his breakfast. He will be held until it is proven that he was not concerned in the break.

To March in Washington.

A Boston paper has it that the 5th regiment will move from camp within a few days; possibly Monday next will see it on the way south. Thursday Mr. Simmons, New England passenger agent of the B. & O. R. R., visited Col. Whitney and had a long talk with him. At the conclusion of the interview, it was privately announced that his visit had to do with transporting the regiment south, and was made at the suggestion of Col. Kimball, United States quartermaster in New York city.

Col. Kimball was desirous of having the command march across Washington city, and desired Col. Whitney's assent. It was also stated that the 1st Connecticut regiment now being mobilied at Niantic, Ct., from stations along the New England coast, was to go south, and it was the desire of the quartermaster's department to get the 5th out of the way before attempting the movement of the Connecticut command.

Following the interview between Col. Whitney and Mr. Simmons, the colonel wired Col. Kimball that he was agreeable to having his regiment march across the capital city. Up to late tonight nothing further is known of the matter, yet everybody here has commenced getting ready for departure. Mr. Simmons states that it will take a least 60 cars of all kinds to move the command, and that it will be the largest military transporation effort ever made in the East.

New Pleasure Route.

Arrangements are being made for the opening next week of a pleasant trip by the street railway which can not fail to at once become popular. The trip in question is to Marine Park, South Boston. The route is to Squantum by street cars thence by steamer to Marine Park. It is proposed to make half hour trips when once the route is opened. The cost of the round trip from Quincy will probably not exceed twenty-five cents. The wharf for the steamer to make its landing at Squantum is now being built and it is expected that it will be completed so to put the line in operation early next week. It is also proposed by the street railway to run through cars from Neponset bridge to Squantum.

THE DAILY EVENTS.

Letter from Harry Osgood.

Mr. Harry Osgood of Wollaston, who is in the 18th U. S. infantry and is now on his way to Manila, writes from Camp Merritt, Cal.—We hav not yet been paid off and I don't think that we will get any money before August. We are all dead broke, but when we do get our pay I will be able to save more than if we were paid every month. I have been in the army just a month and if I don't get a chance to get into a battle or two I shall be one of the first ones that will try and get out when the war is over. I don't think much of a soldier's life unless he can be right at the front where there is some excitement going on. We have pretty good food here, although I eat things I would never eat at home, and when I do come home I won't be so hard to suit about my food. I guess I can eat fish or boiled dinner or most any old thing.

The weather is cold here and the nights are something awful. I will proably go to Manila in the next expedition which will start in about a week.

Trench Flooded.

Messrs. Sheahan, the contractors of the Wollaston section of the main brick sewer, burst a ten-inch water main Thursday night, and before the water was shut off this trench was flooded and the embankment caved in. It has been found that so much quicksand has been pumped out from the sewer trench that the street has settled in places, and now the question is, who makes the repairs, the Sewer or Street department.

GREAT DAY IN CAMP.

Governor Wolcott Presents Commissions Before a Crowd.

Camp Dalton,
Saturday, July 16, 1898.

Governor's day in camp was a complete success. Governor Wolcott and staff arrived at 3.10. The camp ground was crowded with people. Camp Dalton never looked brighter. The morning drill was held as usual. In the afternoon the men went out at two o'clock but were recalled at three. A change was made from brown to blue uniforms. A little after four the regiment marched to the drill ground and faced in battalion front towards Brigade headquarters. The boys, dressed in their neat fitting blues, their shoes blacked and every rifle and hand in place on one side and the Governor with his staff and the line of spectators on the other side made a very imposing sight, long to be remembered by those present.

After an exhibition drill commanded by Col. Whitnney, which was done as well as a body of regulars could have done.

Gov. Wolcott advanced to the front and in clear tones praised the men and officers of the "old Fifth," in the name of the State of Massachusetts. He laid particular stress on the conduct of the officers toward the men whom he said were their special charge, and on them depended their comfort and welfare.

After a ten minute talk he presented the officers with their commissions. As each officer received his commission he was given a hearty cheer.

Capt. Kincaide and Lieuts. Whitney and Spear received a generous share of the applause.

The men were then marched to their quarters and an inspection of tents was made by the Governor and staff. Co. K's street received a good word from members of the party.

After visiting among the camp the party returned to Boston well pleased with their trip.

Co. K is said to have carried off all honors in the line. It was as straight as an arrow.

A report is current in camp that we leave for Dunn Loring, Va, next Wednesday.

Alfred Trudell of Worcester received a telegram Friday morning which called him home, owing to the serious illness of his mother. We all sympathize with him in his trouble.

There were two fires Friday in the rear of the mess halls. One in G's and the other in K's. The fires were quickly put out and no damage done.

Charles Hearn, the popular druggist, supplied Co. K with choice cigars. Oh, I guess he is all right. Three cheers for Hearn.

A great many of the boys received boxes Friday. People don't seem to forget the dainties when they come.

Several of the boys were late for supper last night and were compelled to run up and down the company street at double quick time ten times. They will be on time after this.

Private Clark of Weymouth is the Company barber and is just a little the best in camp.

Gus Livendale can be heard a mile out, is always jolly and full of fun. He is getting his voice in shape for the mules to come. Gus is our wagoneer you know.

Among the many visitors on Friday were: City Clerk Cleaves, N. B. Furnald, Miss Furnald, C. C. Hearn and wife, Henry P. Kittredge, City Auditor Hall, J. O. Hall, Jr., Miss Nightingale, Mrs. Emma E. Marnock, Miss Jennie Davis, Miss Lizzie Burrell, Miss Lena Manhire, L. Leslie, Master Leslie, J. L. Deslauries, Dr. C. W. Garey, Willard and Edward Hodges, Miss Carrie Tucker, Miss Clark and C. H. Hayden and lady of Quincy; and Mrs. Spear, the wife of Lieut. Spear of Co. K.

Those on leave of absence today are: Privates Oliver, Trudell, Rogers, Doughtery and Carson.

Lieut. Whitney is doing most of the drill instructing at present and deserves a great deal of credit for the appearance of the boys in line.

Lovely weather at camp today.

The boys started in on skirmish drill today.

Everybody at the camp is to be vaccinated and the surgeons will begin with the officers today.

There was a general inspection of quarters this morning, and the afternoon they will be given a half holiday.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Hugh P. Smyth for assault with a dangerous weapon on George H. Buker at Weymouth, was heard and he was held in $300 for the grand jury.

This was a case arising out of a shooting affair at New Downer Landing, July 4. Smyth was shooting in a shooting gallery when one of the shots passed through the partition and and lodged in Buker's back.

Health Fhnd Excursion.

What a scene greeted the eye Monday morning, at Snow's Arch Wharf, Boston! The Children's Health Fund, whose office is at 36 Bromfield street, gave its first harbor excursion for the season. It was worth while to be early, and see the arrival of the 300 children to whom tickets had been given. More than 600 applications were made for this excursion. This was no mistake. Long before the time for sailing of the steamer, City of Quincy, the boys and girls began to come from every part of greater Boston. They were dressed in their poor best, to do honor to the great occasion. What a host, and how many needs they represent! None of them really well dressed, and looking as though really well fed. They are the innocent and unoffending children of poverty, misfortune and vice, and this is the one great day of the year which will forever live in their minds.

The wild delight of the children is irrepressible, and no attempt is made to stifle the exuberance. Every vessel and steamer passed or met is sure of a rousing salute from the lively youngsters who fill the decks. Such hilarity is heartsome to us who are older.

Points of interest are pointed out. The forts are passed. Hull and Pemberton are given the go-by and Nantasket is reached. To say the sail has been enjoyed is to put truth mildly. But now new pleasures await the children. They are alert and ready for them.

As they file off the boat, line is taken for the Ocean View hotel, where arrangments are quickly improved which prepare the children for wading snd swimming

The officers of the Fund have shown the greatest wisdom in planning this part of the day' pleasures, for I verily believe no other word could get the children out of the water than that which now rings out over the clear water and bobbing heads. That one potent word is—"Dinner." What a scramble! What a rush for the shore and hotel! What a pulling off of bathing suits, and what a tumbling into dry clothes! In short metre the tables are surrounded by 300 ravenously hungry chidren. They are simply overwhelmed to realize that they may eat all they want—and they do! Chowder fish, roast meats, pies puddings, ice cream, milk, and for th older boys and girls, coffee. The quantity of food that disappears is appalling to contemplate. Who can tell how many of these had such a meal before and when?

It is 4.30, and the steamer must be boarded again, for the homeward sail. While that will be pleasant there is an evident reluctance to hasten the home-going. Home does not mean to all what it means to the favored and comfortable. Youthful spirit is high however and the determination is to enjoy all that is going while this bright day lasts.

What a day they have had. All pleasure; no work; no accident: no sorrowful incident. They have had the sail to and fro. They have had a swim not off the harbor, but in the very arms of the sea, off Nantasket. They have had a dinner which filled them to the brim. They have been driven in barges along the beach and down Jerusalem Road. They're happy, shouting, joking, chaffing crowd. And that they have enjoyed today they will never forget. The organization needs much more money to continue and enlarge this summer's work. The next excursion cannot be given Monday, July 18, as sufficient funds are not at command of the society.

EN ROUTE TO SANTIAGO

Terrible Strain on the Men Who Fought at El Caney.

LITTLE SLEEP FOR THE TROOPS.

Many Commands Lost Their Way, and the Men Were Ordered Back and Forth. Difficulties In Caring For the Wounded. Sad Plight of the Injured — Gravediggers Ordered to the Front—Fortitude of the Wounded.

Writing under the date of July 2 from the headquarters of the Fifth army corps, near Guama river, east of Santiago, the New York Tribune correspondent describes the fighting before Santiago as follows:

The taking of El Caney yesterday, although at terrible cost, made it possible today to concentrate all the fighting on the breastworks east of Santiago. General Jacob F. Kent's division, the First, accomplished an important forward movement yesterday, and the night was spent in intrenching the positions gained in the day. Shovels and picks were sent to the front after dark, and the soldiers dug industriously until dawn. Their pits were usually about three feet deep. The commissary worked hard, and by means of pack and wagon trains managed to get large quantities of beef, bacon, hard tack and coffee to the front. About 12:30 o'clock this morning the artillery that yesterday was stationed on a hill to the left was moved to the valley road and forward. It had been thought that sufficient headway had been made by the infantry to warrant placing the cannon well to the front.

At daybreak it was found that a serious miscalculation had been made. The Spanish intrenchments were only 500 or 600 yards away, and the rifle fire was so effective that the position of the artillerymen was untenable. Several men were killed and wounded, and there was nothing to do but to hitch up the horses and retire. This was done under a constant rattle of musketry. The tired horses were started back for the heights from which the cannonading had been conducted yesterday. On the indifferent road this was a hard task, and little was heard from the American artillery all day. The Spaniards were more active with their field pieces, but apparently not so effective as on the day before.

The men in the trenches were in poor shape for the almost continuous firing that they had to keep up. Thursday night they had little sleep, last night none at all. Even worse was the condition of the regiments which took part in the battle of El Caney yesterday and were ordered to march back six or seven miles to the road on which the divisions of Generals Wheeler and Kent had moved yesterday and then forward. Thursday night most of the regiments in the Second division had tramped until after dark, only to be set going again at 3:30 o'clock in the morning. They had no hot food, not being allowed to light fires. Then came the long battle, the fighting through the woods, in the heat, and, in many cases, without water for hours.

By dark the men felt that they were entitled to a night's rest at least, but they were not to have it. General Kent and General Wheeler were in a situation where it was of prime importance that they be re-enforced before the next day's fighting should begin. So there could be no delay, and the pitiless march began. The afternoon rain had left the roads in a horrible state, mud ankle deep. To make matters worse some commands lost their way, and after eight or nine hours of tramping, with brief intervals of rest, found that they were only a few miles from the point where they had started at dusk. Fortunately a good many came upon wagon and pack trains loaded with provisions and thus got rations.

The First and Eighth infantry, with Captain Capron's battery, had moved toward Santiago on the El Caney road last night. About 8 o'clock they were warned by some Cubans that they were within half a mile of the Spanish trenches. The Cubans had moved forward until they were fired on. This was no place for two regiments of infantry and one battery, so in the night the forces moved back. This morning they got to the scene of yesterday's battle, to the east of Santiago. It had been planned that an attack be made on the city from the direction of El Caney by General Lawton's division yesterday. The idea was that by 11 o'clock his nine regiments and Captain Capron's battery would have polished off El Caney and would be ready for a movement of some kind on Santiago proper. The Casa Ducrot, north of the city, was to be the rendezvous. But the battle was far more serious than had been imagined possible and took much more time. This, together with the unexpected strength of the fortifications on that side of Santiago, led to the concentration of the forces on the San Juan side.

The march to the firing line was full of interest to the Ninth Massachusetts and the Thirty-fourth Michigan, which reached Siboney only last night on the Harvard. They marched out in the early hours of morning. The road had dried fairly well a few hours after the sun came up, and the marching was not bad. There was a constant stream of the wounded returning to the rear. These had had their hurts dressed at the first aid station and were going to the hospitals in the rear. Some had only slight wounds and were able to walk alone. Some were carried on the shoulders of two men. Big army wagons with four or six mules were used to transport some. On the occasional rough parts of the road the jolting in the great, rude wagons was terrible. A few Red Cross wagons were in use, but not many. Some officers were carried on litters. This was the most comfortable method, but it was exceedingly hard on the litter bearers. Half a dozen field hospitals or dressing stations were scattered along the road, but the chief hospital was four or five miles from the intrenchments. The number of litter bearers was far too few. In addition to the regular divisional corps the musicians were called into service. Even for four bearers it was a hard task to carry a wounded man in the hot sun for several miles. Every soldier whose injuries did not positively forbid it was made to walk to the rear. In some instances this was cruel, especially when the wound was 24 hours old and serious if not mortal. But it was a choice of evils, and the litters and wagons were kept for those shot in the legs or in some vital part.

One man rode on a horse, curiously wounded. Both his feet were bandaged and bleeding. Doubless a shell had exploded near him. Another, also on horseback, was wounded in the head. He seemed barely conscious. One man led the horse and another supported the wounded man as well as he could. But most distressing of all was an artillerymen whose face had been struck by a piece of shell from the side. The center of his face was merely a great hole. He had no medical attention yet. In spite of the terrible appearance of his wound he walked alone, a comrade on either side of him. There was a grim interest in studying the uninjured part of his face. His brow was smooth and calm. He looked from side to side as if actually concerned in what he saw. Two soldiers thought they knew the man, although so little of his features were left that they could not be sure. Finally they agreed it must be Gates.

Just beyond a ford of the San Juan river, a few hundred yards from the blockhouses captured yesterday, lay four corpses. A grave had been begun for them in the rocky soil and was unfinished. A pick lay near by. Evidently the gravediggers had been ordered to the firing line. Along the bank of the river the chaplain of the First volunteer cavalry buried Captain O'Neill, with the help of two privates. The ford of the river at this point seemed to be the especial mark of the enemy's fire, although it was a distance behind the trenches. The Seventh Massachusetts had gone a hundred yards beyond when a shrapnel shell came whizzing by. There was scattering and dodging behind banks until the order came to advance.

Apparently the sharpshooters in the trees knew that this place would be a common halting place for soldiers who wanted to fill their canteens and therefore took perches that would command a view of it. The result was that the bullets sped by there regularly, clipping the foliage with a nasty "zip." Some of the shots struck the water near the ford, and within about an hour four of them hit a live mark. A physician who was accompanying a wounded man was killed, and so was a soldier. The physician was Dr. Danforth of the Ninth cavalry, and his brains were blown out. He had previously been in Cuba in the service of the United States government. Two other privates were shot. One was sitting on the bank of the river with a friend, chatting. Both heard the bullet strike near by and thought it just as well to move on. One of them walked lame, and his companion asked him what the trouble was.

"I don't know," was the answer, "but my leg feels weak." He looked down and saw blood streaming from it. He had been shot without knowing it. Instances of this kind, where a bullet was not discovered until the blood was seen, were not unusual. Indeed a remarkable feature of the battles around Santiago has been the stolidity and pluck of the wounded. The writer saw perhaps 200 of them and heard not a groan. At times, in moments of agony, some would utter a sound of pain, but it was rare.

One incident of the sort was touching. Four litter bearers were carrying a soldier who had been shot in the back. For some reason he was lying face up. Halting to rest, they, without noticing it, set the litter on a stone, which just happened to press in on his hurt. He uttered a cry and said, "For God's sake, boys, move me a little; there's a stone under me." With heartiest expressions of regret, they lifted him up and put him in a more comfortable place. In his death struggle one cavalryman, a boy of 19, shrieked, "Mother, oh, my mother!" but that was the end of the poor young fellow.

The Spanish sharpshooters had no respect for the Red Cross flag. They fired continually on litter bearers and from time to time on hospitals. Of course in some cases this was not intentional, but in others it certainly was. It became dangerous to carry the wounded out of the trenches, and for this reason some were left there until night. Another reason for not removing the injured was that it took so many men. There was great risk in returning to the trenches after the wounded man had been taken to a field hospital. Often the soldiers who had borne away a comrade remained in the rear until nightfall, so the regiments would have been unduly weakened had all who were struck been carried away at once.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

"OLD ABE."

An Eagle That Went to War and Was Present at Thirty-six Battles.

Almost as famous as the president after whom he was named, "Old Abe," the great battle eagle of the war between the north and the south, still perches in the National museum at Washington, though he died 17 years ago. This celebrated bird, of which the accompanying picture is a faithful likeness, is a bald eagle and was captured in Wisconsin in 1861. He was given to Company C of the Eighth regiment of Wisconsin volunteers. He went to the war with his regiment and was present in every battle in which the regiment fought—36 in all. "Old Abe" was carried into battle on a perch beside the color bearer, but would soon spread his wings and soar above the smoke and strife, hovering over his regiment and screaming at the top of his voice. When the battle was over, he would return to his perch and rest contentedly. He was wounded several times, and on a number of occasions he rendered valuable services to the army by announcing the approach of the enemy long before the scouts had time to reach headquarters, it is said. After the war he was presented to the state of Wisconsin. He became the chief attraction of the national army reunions, and became perhaps the most famous bird in history. He died at the age of 20 as the result of injuries received in a fire.—Chicago Record.

How the Little Girls Helped.

A little while ago the principal of the school which Elsie and Lillian McCormick attend had all the scholars assemble in the big room.

"What for?" was the question on all the scholars' lips, for it was quite unusual to assemble in the big room.

When they were all there, the principal began:

"How many of you," she said, "would like to do something for the soldiers?"

Up went every little hand.

"Very well," said the principal, smiling. "I will tell you how you can do it.

"A gentleman in Key West wrote a note asking us to bring something to put in a comfort bag. He also sent a list of things which, if you wanted to, you could bring. Here it is: One spool of coarse white or black cotton, one paper pins, one paper needles, one quire writing paper, one package stamped envelopes, one pencil with point protector and all the old linen you can get. Would you like to do this?"

For a moment there was a confused clamor of little voices saying "Yes!" seeming as if each child was trying to speak louder than her neighbor. However, there was instant silence when the principal opened her mouth to speak.

"Very well," she said. "Have your things here next Monday. Put them in a box and write on the lid, 'Contents of comfort bag.' That is all for today."

It need not be told that when Monday arrived there was a pile of boxes on the teacher's desk in which reposed the contents of a comfort bag. Each little girl had brought one.—Baltimore American.

George Sand and Her Dolls.

When, at 14 years of age, George Sand heard some one laugh at the idea of so big a girl still playing with dolls, like Mrs. Carlyle, she concluded to give them up. With tears and hearty hugs she bade every one of them adieu and locked them into a garret closet. At first the separation from her adored playfellows was almost more than she could bear, and every day she would sit for an hour or two, sad and tearful, outside the closed door, sometimes whispering words of comfort through the keyhole to the poor exiles, but she never broke her vow to have done with dolls, and by and by they were forgotten.

A Little Patriot.

Out Channing avenue the other evening strode a youth in the uniform of his country's defenders. A little boy at dinner saw him from the window. Forgetting his appetite and all else in a passion of patriotism, the little fellow rushed from the house and out to the street shouting again and again: "My country, 'tis of thee! My country, 'tis of thee!" They who heard him were thrilled and strangely moved. The future of the country will be safe in the hands of those who so early learn to love her.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Kitty at the Photographer's.

Some say kittens are only fluff,
But I am made of sterner stuff.
Please, Mr. Photographer Man,
Make me look as gruff as you can.
Take me now! I've ruffled my hair
And put on my very fiercest stare,
For when I grow up I mean to be
A great big lion. You wait and see
How I'll lash my tail and shake my mane
And chase the wild mice over the plain,
And when I'm tired my thirst I'll slake
With milk from a saucer as big as a lake.
Please, photographer, make me gruff
And not like a little white ball of fluff.

RACHRAY ISLAND.

Och, what was it got me at all that time
To promise I'd marry a Rachray man?
An now he'll not listen to rason or rhyme,
He strivin to hurry me all that he can.
"Come on, an ye be to come on," says he;
"Ye're bound for the island, to live wi' me."

See Rachray island beyant in the bay!
The dear knows what they be doin out there
But fishin an fightin an tearin away,
An who's to hindher, an what do they care?
The goodness can tell what'd happen to me
When Rachray'd have me, anee, anee!

I might have took Pether from over the hill,
A dacent poacher, the kind, poor boy;
Could I keep the ould places about me still
I'd never set foot out o' sweet Ballyvoy.
My sorra on Rachray, the ould sea caves,
An black neck divers an weary ould waves!

I'll never win back now, whatever may fall.
Oh, give me good luck, for you'll see me no more!
Sure an island man is the mischief an all—
An me that never was married before!
Oh, think o' my fate when ye dance at a fair!
In Rachray there's no Christianity there!

HER HONEYMOON.

Celia is strong minded. You would not think so to look at her. She is what I call a fluffy girl. She has a sweet face, with large blue eyes and a matchless dimple in her left cheek. But Celia is strong minded. I sometimes even think mamma is a little afraid of her. She has certainly managed us both all her life. Celia has a perfect talent for managing people. When she told us she was engaged to be married to Sir Vernon Branstone, mamma said, "But, Celia, darling, you hardly know him."

"You never know any man unless you are actually married to him," answered Celia who is possessed of an extraordinary amount of worldly wisdom.

Then I put in my word. "I don't like him, Celia," I said decidedly.

"And you haven't got to marry him," replied Celia, in her most putting down manner, "so you needn't trouble about that."

Mamma cried a little and finally gave her consent, which was, after all, only a matter of form, as Celia has money of her own and is over 21.

We sat chatting over her fire the night before the marriage. "Supposing he is unkind to you, Celia," I said. "Oh, Celia, darling, whatever would you do if he were unkind to you?"

"Do?" answered Celia, with an air of great astonishment. "I should leave him, of course, and come back to you and mamma."

I gasped. "You couldn't leave a man you were married to," I said.

"Couldn't I?" she replied calmly. "You'd see, Dot."

"I'm afraid he is rather selfish, Celia," I said presently.

"All men are selfish," replied the wise Celia, "if they are encouraged. I shan't encourage Vernon."

Then we went to bed.

I awoke the next morning feeling depressed. I hated parting with my favorite sister, and I did not care about my future brother-in-law. I must own he seemed devoted to Celia, but he looked so rough and big beside her I was dreadfully afraid he might bully her. But the wedding went off very well, in spite of my misgivings. My sister looked deliciously pretty in her white satin gown, and I thought Vernon looked proud and happy. A friend of his had lent them a house in Scotland for their honeymoon, and Vernon was to have some spring fishing. I saw them off at the station. This was, I know, a dreadfully unconventional thing to do, but it was just like Celia, and she insisted on it. She said it would prevent people from knowing they were newly married, which was absurd, as her hat was covered with rice.

Just before the train was due to start Vernon looked at his watch and said to me: "Well, goodby, Dot. I must be getting in now." I shook hand with him, and Celia, leaning forward, moved The Ladies' Pictorial from the seat opposite. He saw the movement.

"Don't bother to move anything, Celia," he said genially. "I am going smoking." I stared incredulously at him; then I glanced at Celia to see how she would take it. To my surprise, she only smiled and said: "All right. Go and tell Denise to come to me a minute. I want to speak to her."

He went off in a hurry for her maid, who came up just as the train was starting. "Here, jump in, Denise. I want to speak to you," cried Celia. "I can pay the extra on your ticket at the other end."

Denise was bundled in, and the train started without my having time to exchange another word with my sister.

I stood waving my hand until it was nearly out of sight, although Celia did not look once out of the window; then I turned away, feeling disconsolate.

I felt furiously angry with Vernon. How hateful of him to go smoking and leave Celia to travel by herself just when she must have been dying to talk over the wedding and everything! How lonely she would be on that long, dull journey! They were going to stop at York for the night, but she would have nearly five hours alone with her maid.

Poor Celia! I had warned her he was selfish, but it is no use warning people who are in love—they are always so peculiar. I felt a little disappointed in my sister, to tell the truth, for I never thought she would have surrendered so easily. She hadn't even looked cross, but had smiled at Vernon.

How dreadfully soon marriage changes some people! I found mamma still rather watery about the eyes. She asked me a great many questions and was most indignant at Vernon's selfishness.

"Fancy slighting my darling girl like that!" she said angrily.

"And fancy her taking it so calmly," I added.

"I wish she had never left us," sobbed mamma. "I know he will bully her. I never heard of a man doing such a thing in my life. My poor, neglected child!"

We could talk and think of nothing else, and sat down to dinner feeling lonely and miserable. At about half past 9, as I was feeling quite worn out with excitement and fatigue, I thought I would go to bed. I kissed mamma and begged her not to worry about Celia.

"I wonder what she is doing?" she said tearfully. "I do hope they will not quarrel, Dot."

I said I was sure they wouldn't, as Celia had never quarreled with anybody in her life. I was just going up stairs when I heard the front door bell ring violently.

"I can't see any one, Dot," mamma called out to me. "I am too tired and upset tonight."

"We're out, James," I said to the footman, and added reassuringly to mamma, "It will only be what Celia calls a posthumous wedding present."

I waited a moment to see. Suddenly I heard a peremptory voice saying: "Here, James, take in this box. Denise is coming on with the others in a four wheeler. Where is Miss Dot?"

I simply flew across the hall. "Oh, Celia, darling Celia, whatever is the matter?" I cried excitedly.

Celia stopped to kiss mamma, who had rushed into the hall at the sound of her voice, then she slipped her arm through mine. "Come along into the dining room, dears," she said, "and I'll tell you all about it, but do order me some dinner first; I am dreadfully hungry." She spoke quite brightly, but her face was pale, and I don't think her tears were far off. Then she told us what she had done. As soon as I left her she arranged with Denise to get out at Peterborough and catch the next express back to town. Vernon had luckily never seen her. Poor mamma looked rather dazed, as though she hardly understood what had happened.

"It serves him right, Celia," I said angrily, "but whatever will he do? Won't he be fearfully angry?" I felt nervous, but Celia only shrugged her shoulders.

"Likely he will," she replied coolly, "but after all what can he do excepting swear? You see, I have begun as I mean to go on, Dot, and I must await developments. I expect he will soon fetch me back," she added cheerfully, "and try to hush it up. No man likes being made a fool of, but it was really more than I could stand." She yawned and raised her pretty arms above her head. "And now let's go to bed, Dot. I'm so awfully tired. It's useless to sit here and speculate as to what he will do. I am all right in the meantime, as I have brought my trousseau back with me."

* * * * * * *

The next morning Celia received a frantic telegram from Vernon, and in the afternoon he arrived. Mamma and I thought it kinder not to see him. Celia had a long interview with him in the dining room, after which she ran up to us, and, giving us each a hasty kiss, whispered she would tell us all about it tomorrow. Then they drove off together, and Denise followed with the luggage.

I believe they staid at a hotel for the night and caught the express to Scotland the next day. We did not see Celia again for several weeks, and when she wrote all she told us was that Vernon was a "dear." They seem happy now, and I sometimes think I never saw a man kinder or more attentive to his wife. Celia seems devotedly fond of him. Of course I always knew she was strong minded, but I must say I have often wondered how she managed Vernon.—Westminster Budget.

Indians as Runners.

General Crook is quoted by Edward S. Ellis as having seen an Apache lope for 1,500 feet up the side of a mountain without showing the first sign of fatigue, there being no perceptible increase of respiration. Captain H. L. Scott of the Seventh cavalry has related some astonishing feats performed by the Chiracahua Apaches forming Troop L of his regiment. He tells how nine of these Indians, after a hard day's work, by way of recreation, pursued a coyote for two hours, captured the nimble brute and brought it into camp; how, on another occasion, the scouts gave chase to a deer, ran it down some nine miles from camp and fetched it in alive.

Hence I see no good reason for doubting the word of an old timer I met in the Rocky mountains, who told me that, in the days before the Atlantic and Pacific railroad was built, the Pima Indians of Arizona would recover settlers' stray horses along the overland trail by walking them down in the course of two or three days. After this one may begin to believe that "Lying Jim" Beckwourth, whose remarkable adventures early in this century are preserved in book form, was a much maligned man, and that he spoke no more than the truth when he said he had known instances of Indian runners accomplishing upward of 110 miles in one day.—Lippincott's.

Reconciled to Earth.

"What did you say those are?" inquired the man with the old fashioned derby hat who had paused to patronize the curbstone astronomer.

"Those are the moons of Jupiter," replied the proprietor of the telescope.

"Let me see. Jupiter—that's one of the planets."

"Assuredly."

"Well, there's a great deal to complain of on this earth, but it might be worse. With all the drawbacks, I'm glad I live here instead of on Jupiter."

"Of course. You have no assurance that the conditions there would be adapted to your kind of life."

"It isn't that. I'm one of the sort of people who can bunk down anywhere and be comfortable with a piece of hard tack and a cup of coffee. There's only one thing that gives me the blues, and that's seeing the new moon over my left shoulder. It's bad enough on this earth having to be on the lookout for one moon every four weeks, but if I lived on a planet where there were four of them I never would know where I stood. It all goes to show that no matter how bad things are they might be worse."—Detroit Free Press.

BACK FROM SANTIAGO

STORIES TOLD BY THE WOUNDED AT FORT M'PHERSON.

Spanish Sharpshooters Were Hid In Trees by Their Officers and Were Told Capture Meant Death—Causes of Casualties Among Officers—A Battlefield Duel.

The convalescents among the wounded from Santiago were allowed to come to Atlanta the other afternoon, and the town went wild over them and showed its enthusiasm in every way it could think of. Men and women alike clustered about them to hear their stories.

When the wounded arrived recently, the 2,500 men now stationed at Fort McPherson were waiting to cheer them, but this idea was not carried out. The expressions which came from the troops at the post were more of pity than of glorification. The wounded men came from the train, some of them on crutches, others aided by companions, while many had to be carried on stretchers. Their faces were drawn and pinched, their clothes were torn, and many of them were without sufficient clothing. Some of the officers had dispensed with their coats and had placed their shoulder straps on their shirt sleeves to show their rank. Save for these shoulder straps there was no difference in appearance between officers and privates in many cases.

The wounded men were in the hottest part of the fight, and they have interesting stories to tell. Some of them advanced to within a half mile of Santiago, and they declare that they could have held this position had they not been ordered to fall back. On the night of June 30 the men advanced to within a short distance of the city of Santiago and then slept on their arms. The following morning it was found that the pickets had been within ten yards of the Spanish line. For some reason they were not fired upon. On July 1 the battle began. One of the greatest difficulties the Americans had to contend with was the Spanish sharpshooters. It is said that these men did more harm prior to their rout than any other part of the Spanish army. The Americans did not know when or from what tree they would be greeted with a volley of Spanish bullets.

A private says he was fighting near a commissioned officer, a lieutenant, he thinks, who kept dodging from side to side. The officer continued these antics for some time, and then the private advanced to his side and asked if he was wounded. "My God, man," replied the officer, "don't you see that fellow shooting at me? He has been pegging away at my carcass for 15 minutes."

Sure enough, in proof of what the officer said, a moment later a puff of smoke came from the tree pointed out, and a bullet whizzed close to where the officer and private were standing. The officer took the private's rifle and coolly knelt on the ground while he took deliberate aim at the place from which the puff of smoke had arisen. The aim of the officer was good, and at the crack of the rifle the sharpshooter was seen to hang head downward from the tree.

The officers were the principal objects of attack by the Spaniards. The Spanish sharpshooters and the regular lines of infantry all directed their fire at the officers, and when one was seen to fall a cheer invariably went up from the dons. Many privates were naturally victims of the fire, but both the officers and the men who arrived recently say that the Spaniards appeared to take special delight in killing officers.

One story was of a duel on the battlefield between two soldiers, one American, the other Spanish. It was during one of the lulls that occasionally occur on battlefields, when the men of their own accord stop firing in order to let the smoke clear away and to catch a breath of fresh air. The Spaniards had made a charge and had been repulsed. The Americans had pursued them, and one man was left in front of the American line when the United States soldiers retired to their original position. This man was wounded, and near him was a Spanish soldier who was thought to be dead. It developed that he was not. He saw the American, and slowly brought his gun to his shoulder and fired, the ball striking the United States soldier in the leg. The American answered with his gun, and for several minutes the fire was kept up, six or seven shots being fired on each side. The Spaniard was killed and the American was brought back to the line, where he received the plaudits of his companions for his bravery. The man who related this story did not know the name of the American engaged in this duel, but he vouched for the accuracy of the account given by him.

Chaplain Dwight Galloupe of the Ninth cavalry is one of the men brought to Atlanta from the battlefield. He said: "Garcia failed to notify our men of the presence of Spanish sharpshooters in trees. He was supposed to watch over these things, but did not find out that the sharpshooters were waiting for us. Consequently, when we advanced, our men met with a withering fire from among the tree tops, and it was with great difficulty that these men were dislodged. After the fire had ceased we discovered that a number of men who had been killed were hanging head downward from the trees, and in curiosity we advanced to ascertain the cause of this. We found that they had been tied to the trees by their officers in such a manner that it was impossible for them to escape. Beside each man was a box of cartridges, also tied to the tree. These men had been placed where death for them was almost a certainty, and they were told that capture meant death. This gives a fair idea of the consideration of a Spanish officer for his men and for human life. The men were not tied in palm trees, as is commonly supposed. The tree used for this purpose is a low growth, of which I do not know the name, yet it is a tree and not a brush."—New York Sun.

Big Rift In the War Clouds on the Peninsula.

Bellicose Attitude Undergoes a Change.

Spain's Early Acceptance of Fate's Decree a Certitude.

London, July 16.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: "The royal recree temporarily suspending throughout the Spanish peninsula the rights of individuals as guaranteed by the constitution, promulgated Friday, will probably make a greater impression abroad than at home. The Spaniards know very well that, like its predecessor proclaiming a state of siege, which was issued immediately after the news of the disaster at Cavite, the decree will be very sparingly applied and will not inconvenience the quiet, reputable and well-disposed portion of the population.

"The news of the capitulation of Santiago was received too late for comment by the morning papers. It causes disappointment because it was hoped that, although General Toral was in a desperate condition, the spread of yellow fever might in a few days have compelled the Americans to raise the siege and retire. Official information regarding the conditions of surrender is anxiously awaited.

"The governments unusual reticence concerning the long dispatches received from Captain General Blanco causes anxiety. The correspondents note, as a significant fact, that a certain Cuban magnate who has always declared that he would remain in Cuba so long as he had hope of the island being preserved to Spain has left Havana for some unblockaded port, where he hopes to find a neutral ship to take him to Europe."

Regarding the prospects of peace, Sagasta, when interviewed by a representative of the Military Correspondence, is represented as saying: 'It is certain, most certain, that the government has endeavored to ascertain extra-officially the disposition of the Washington cabinet respecting a pacific solution, but for the moment I can say absolutely nothing, because the enemy might wrongly suppose that we desired peace at any price, and accordingly show himself more exacting. I have read the proposals cabled to The Impartial which are supposed to have been communicated by President McKinley to Mr. Cambon, the French ambassador at Washington. The conditions are so hard that I consider them inadmissible. The government has news of other proposals which are much more acceptable."

In reply to a question as to whether he intended to remain in office to conclude peace, Premier Sagasta said that such was his intention, and he added, respecting the ministerial crisis, this statement: "I can affirm categorically that it does not formally exist, and that there is no danger of its arising so easily as the press indicates."

The Official Gazette publishes a memorandum from the president of the council to the queen regent explanatory of the royal decree suspending the constitutional guarantees, and briefly sketching the military situation. It dwells specially upon the fact that the command of the sea is now completely in the hands of the enemy, and that the probability is that an American squadron will soon appear on the Spanish coast. The memorandum draws the conclusion that "The time has arrived when the administration should strengthen itself."

The Gibraltar correspondent of The Daily News says: "Spain cannot continue to struggle, yet peace will be the signal for revolution and European intervention. The government, through The Epoch, advocates direct peace negotiations with the United States.

The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "I learn on reliable authority that the Austrian court was informed that Spain was prepared to cede Cuba and to pay indemnity, but not to abandon Porto Rico. Mr. Sagasta trusts to be able to retain the Philippines as a Spanish possession, the powers preferring the islands to remain in Spanish rather than American hands."

All the dispatches from Madrid to the London morning papers agree that Captain General Blanco and his staff are now willing to let the decision as to peace or war rest with the home government. This change of attitude is supposed to be due to the lack of provisions and equipments.

The Madrid correspondent of The Daily News, who believes that the activity of the Carlists in the northern provinces is the real reason for suspending the constitutional guarantees and proclaiming a state of siege, says: "Some of the ministers assert that the pretender has a regular organization of salaried agents to prepare the country for a movement in his favor and, above all, to raise armed bands to be ready when the time comes for the king to 'get back his own.' The Carlists, it is said, have lately been supplied with funds from an unknown source. Charles is not, as has been asserted, thinking of abdicating in favor of his son, James, but, urged on by his wife, is said to be ready to take prompt action. The Marquis of Cerralbo, the chief lieutenant of the pretender, and the Carlist senators and deputies, together with the Carlist newspapers, affect a patriotic indignation at the idea that they could harbor a design for rising until the war was over and uptil the conditions of peace furnished a pretext for justifying such action in the eyes of the nation and of the vatican. The proposition of the Carlists is somewhat peculiar. The leaders have certainly thus far endeavored to keep their rural adherents and the local junta quiet, but they are beginning to feel that these will slip away, especially as the impatient elements find favor with the son and the wife of the claimant."

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

FRENCH COSTUME OF ECRU LINEN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

This is emphatically a season of wash gowns, even although the so-called wash costumes are not all precisely adapted in their makeup to an actual passage through the processes of the laundry. Ecru grass linen is the material of the dainty gown shown in our illustration taken from Harper's Bazar. Two kinds of linen are combined in the gown, the one a striped linen which forms the body of the skirt and waist and the sleeves, the other a plain linen covered with all-over embroidery in shades of white and tan. The striped material of the skirt is arranged so that the stripes meet in points in a seam down the front. The embroidered plain material forms a circular flounce which is quite narrow at the front, but slopes up rapidly toward the back, and there reaches midway to the top of the skirt. On the waist the embroidered fabric forms a short bolero jacket, opening on a shirred vest of white silk mull. The belt, collar and breast-knot are of poppy-red satin ribbon. The white straw hat is trimmed with white tulle, poppies, and spangled quills.

STURDY MINERS.

Pittsburgs Take the First Game of the Series in Boston.

Boston, July 16.—The same young man who took a fall out of the Bostons on the spring trip down at Richmond, with the help of Left Fielder Seybold, did the same trick against the champions yesterday at the South End grounds, and with more ease, as in nine innings he shut out the home team 6 to 0. He had fine command of the ball and a fast sweeping curve which broke in fine style over the plate, and speed also. He proved to be the best left-hand pitcher who appeared at the local grounds this year.

McCreery, the ex-giant, hit hard for Pittsburg and fielded well, as did Donovan in right garden. One of Captain Donovan's throws was a beauty, and it shut Captain Duffy off from scoring at the plate. The short field play of Ely and the second base play of Padden was first-class, while the whole Pittsburg team acted as if they would like victory in the first game of the series. Stivetts relieved Tenney at first base in the first of the fifth. Stahl immediately thereafter made "the" catch of the game off Tannehill's line drive of the new ball, pulling it down from the sky when it clearly read "Three bases" in its aerial flight. Score:

The Louisvilles won in New York through the erratic pitching of Meekin and errors by Doyle and Van Haltren.

The Brooklyns won a 12-inning game from the St. Louis team yesterday, 3 to 2. Miller, their pitcher, was taken ill in the second inning, and Dunn took his place. Griffin and La Chance were injured.

Shortstop Wrigley's error in the seventh gave the Clevelands yesterday's game in Washington, 6 to 4.

The Phillies easily defeated the Cincinnatis, 7 to 3. Dwyer was hit hard and was relieved by Hill.

Errors by Schiebeck and O'Brien gave the Providences a good lead in the early stages of the game with the Montreals, but after that the visitors settled down and gave Souders good support. The Montreals pulled the game out by hard hitting in the fourth and sixth innings by the score of 7 to 4.

The Torontos won the game in Springfield by bunching hits and bases on balls. Otherwise the visitors were outplayed.

The Baltimores made a garrison finish yesterday and won in the ninth inning, although the Chicagoes scored six runs in that inning. Everett and McCormick had a fight on the visitors' bench, the result of badinage. McCormic was too badly used up to continue pla Score: 10 to 9.

Fell Down Stairs.

Providence, July 16.—Dennis Sullivan fell downstairs yesterday and was almost instantly killed. An attack of vertigo probably was the cause of the fall. He was 70 years of age.

William Diamond, who has been in jail since the death of his wife as a result of injuries alleged to have been inflicted by him, has waived examination to the charge of manslaughter and is held for the action of the grand jury in $7000.

Movement In Fall River to Curtail Production.

Print Cloth a Drug In the Market Just Now.

Orders For Future Delivery Not Extending Beyond January.

Fall River, July 16.—A movement is on foot among the mill men of this city to close down the entire month of August. In connection with the proposition, it is stated that an effort will be made to pool issues and carry 1,000,000 pieces of the 2,000,000 in stock for a year at a given price. It is the intention to place these goods in the hands of trustees, and it is thought that a shutdown of a month will take care of the remainder of the accumulation.

Manufacturers say that they cannot sell cloth except for September delivery, and that they are losing 1 cent a pound at present prices. If this plan is carried through, with a general curtailment for a month, it is believed that the effect cannot but be beneficial and lasting.

Bradstreet's Weekly Report.

New York, July 16.—Bradstreet's says this week that pending the initiation of fall business, preparations for which are actively under way in all markets, there exists a quiet, mid-summer condition, accompanied, however, in most cases by price steadiness and confidence in a promising outlook for fall trade. Some of the favorable conditions experienced during the first half of the year seem bound to be duplicated during the second half. Export trade returns for the fiscal year just ended have fulfilled most sanguine expectations, and, swelled by record-breaking shipments of breadstuffs and provisions, with large forwardings of raw cotton and mineral oils, furnish a total of $180,000,000 larger than in any year. Imports on the other hand were $148,000,000 smaller than last year, which was one of the very heavily reduced totals. The result is a total of exports twice the size of imports and net imports of gold running close to $100,000,000, in this particular also exceeding previous records. Swelled by large exports of corn and oats, the breadstuff exports for the fiscal year just ended were $25,000,000 in excess of previous records.

The heavy volume of the country's business, despite midsummer influences, is shown by the total bank clearings for this week, aggregating $1,294,412,000, 2 percent smaller than last week, but 16.6 percent larger than in this week a year ago. Though reflecting the sharp reduction in the domestic grain movement, a feature of the June trade, railroad earnings for that month surpass recently preceding records in a total for 112 roads of $42,356,158, 6.5 percent in excess of June of last year, which month marked a progressive gain over previous Junes for three years past. The total earnings of 111 roads for six months, with 100,000 miles of track, aggregate $278,609,157, 13.7 percent in excess of last year, and furnishes the largest total of earnings reported since the boom period just preceding the 1893 panic.

Business failures in the United States number 238, as against 241 last week, 247 a year ago, 255 in 1896, and 284 in 1895.

His Mind Deranged.

Waterville, July 16.—A man of medium height, well dressed and of deranged mind, was taken in charge yesterday by the selectmen of Winslow and committed to the asylum of Augusta pending the finding of relatives. The man's clothing is in numerous places marked "Samuel Tappan" and letters found in his possession are signed "Your wife, Elizabeth," and postmarked "Waverly, Mass."

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, SUNDAY, JULY 17.

Sun rises—4:22; sets, 7:18.

Moon rises—3:06 a. m.

High water—10:45 a. m.; 10:30 p. m.

Excepting the slight chance of thunder storms developing from local conditions, fair weather continues to be indicated for New England. It now seems certain to be clear and pleasant Sunday, with normal summer temperatures and light, variable winds.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Mary A. Brown of Hyde Park, Mass., aged 74 years, was struck by an electric car, and was so severely injured that she died in 15 minutes.

The interstate commerce commission has ordered a hearing into the matter of the alleged disturbance in passenger rates by the Canadian Pacific railroad.

A boiler in the stave mill of Charles Betts in Sycamore, Ont., exploded, killing Charles Betts, John Rambo and James Paine. Joe Lee was fatally and a number of others slightly hurt.

Work is practically suspended at Cudahy's packing house, Omaha. The killing gangs have gone out in sympathy with the laborers. At Swift's the hog butchers are at work. At the Hammond plant matters are unchanged. Over 3000 men are out.

The Bourgogne inquiry in Halifax was concluded yesterday. The witneses examined were the helmsman and the carpenter of the Cromartyshire. Counsel addressed the court, holding that Captain Henderson should be exonerated and urging that the court be so changed that it would have international character.

The joint commission of the Protestant Episcopal church of America on a revison of the bible concluded its labors last night, and will report at the general conference in Washington in October. The commission included Bishop Dudley of Kentucky, Gaylor of Tennessee, Niles of New Hampshire and Hall of Vermont, and also Rev. Dr. Renouf of Keene, N. H.

Oh, what a warm welcome the first little traveler whom Heaven guides to the door of a woman's heart receives from the happy mother. Every thought and care is given to the comfort and well being of the new comer after it has entered into the portals of life and taken its place at the family fireside.

Yet during the time when baby is expected few women do all they should to insure the little one's constitutional strength and vigor. No mother wants to have a puny, weakly, sickly baby yet unless she herself is entirely healthy in the special, delicate structure which makes motherhood possible, the baby is certain to suffer in some way for her weakness or neglect.

The surest way to avoid this is for the mother to reinforce her own strength by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription during the time of anticipation. It will make her perfectly healthy. It will lighten and brighten the time of waiting. It will make the ordeal of motherhood absolutely safe and comparatively free from pain and will insure a strong, healthy constitution for the baby.

Mrs. Nannie J. Taylor, of Lovelace, Hill Co., Texas, says: "I am the mother of eight children. I suffered from female weakness. I tried physicians with no avail. When I last became with child I saw the advertisement of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I bought two bottles and took according to directions. When baby was born I had a very easy time and have not suffered one hour since, from female weakness. Baby is as fat and healthy as can be."

Prospective mothers should send to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., for a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, which will be sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy.

By Trolley to Camp.

It is not only possible to make a trip to Camp Dalton by electric cars but it is a delightful excursion. Take the Quincy cars for Neponset and a car of the Boston Elevated railway to the Park Square transfer station; thence via of Watertown to Newton, Newtonville, West Newton, Auburndale to Newton Lower Falls. Here you are 22 miles from home at a cost of 15 or 20 cents. Five cents more will take you through Wellesley Hills to Wellesley, and another nickle carries you to Natick. South Framingham is about four miles further and costs another five, while another five takes you directly to Camp Dalton. The entire distance is 33 miles and the cost but 30 or 40 cents.

Keith's Theatre.

There will be an exceptionally long and strong bill of attractions at Keith's the week of July 18. Chief among the funmakers are the Sidmans, in their quaint sketch of the countryman's visit to New York, entitled, "A Bit of Real Life." Mr. Sidman has a better conception of the genuine Yankee than any character actor on the stage today, and he ranks with such clever men as Sol Smith Russell and Denman Thompson. Billy Clifford and Maud Huth are also in the coming week's bill. Mr. Clifford does a dude impersonation that is a clever bit in its way, and laughable, too, and Miss Huth enjoys a reputation for singing coon songs that is not exceeded by May Irwin. The Quaker City Quartette is still another feature, and a big one. The Symphony Orchestra will continue, in a new concert programme, but Albert L. Guille, the noted French tenor will be the soloist.

—The Bay State Steamboat Co. whose line is probably one of the most popular of the excursion routes which run out of Boston, is making its usual summer arrangements for the convenience and pleasure of the people who enjoy harbor trip. Beginning next week, the large and commodious steamer Lewiston, formerly of the Boston & Bangor line, will resume the beautiful North Shore excursions, circling the Isle of Shoals, N. H., and returning in plenty of time for out of town people to catch the early evening trains to the suburbs. Hereafter the Lewiston will devote its unexcelled accommodations exlcusively to the large passenger traffic which the Bay State Co. annually carries, amounting last year to 34,000 people in 455 trips.

All stores and places of business were closed Thursday afternnoon during the hour of the funeral out of respect for the late T. W. Sampson.

A committee has been appointed to revise the constitution and bylaws of the Union Choral society and a meeting of this committee will soon be called.

The Brockton street railway will commence soon, running through cars from Brockton via. Highland Park and Randolph to Braintree depot, where they will connect with the big electrics for Nantasket.

At the hearing last Saturday the County Commission ordered the widening of Commercial street as follows: From Kelley's corner to the Weymouth line 70 feet wide; and from the corner to Union street 50 feet wide.

It is not often that we see three generations of haymakers in one family at work in the same field yet this was the case in East Braintree last Tuesday, when Mr. J. B. Allen 83, Mr. William Allen, his son, 53, and Theo. B. Allen 21; all mowing together. In spite of his many years, it is said that the old gentleman cut the best swath. He has not, of course, the endurance of the younger men, but he has not forgotten how to do it.

Mr. I. W. Horne writes us from Maine that there was a frost there Tuesday morning.

A party of young people from here took a trip over the West Quincy railroad yesterday with Superintendent, Mr. L. S. Anderson.

Postively Dangerous.

Editors of Quincy Daily Ledger:

Permit me through your columns to call the attention of the travelling public, whether teamsters, pleasure drivers, pedestrians, or bicyclists, to one of the worst pieces of road in the State. It is very steep, very rocky, very dangerous, a cruelty to horses and directly on the route for overland expresses from Boston. It is besides one of the most frequently used of thoroughfares. I refer to the hill leading from opposite the residence of the late John L. Eldredge to Hayward's Creek, at Quincy Neck. It seems incredible that so much money should be spent for concrete sidewalks, and for widening the road to Houghs Neck, mostly for the benefit of Sunday scorchers, and out-of-town picknikers; and straightening it, mostly for the benefit of the street railway, while there are so many places which are positively dangerous. It is a fact that the portion of the road to Houghs Neck which needs widening most is the portion from the Adams Farm to Palmer street. The portion which is being widened has always been an excellent roadway, even, smooth and picturesquely curving and winding. It is known as the causeway. It would seem to be a pity that street railways should not be made to pay a fair portion of the expense of altering and maintaining the streets which they so nearly monopolize.

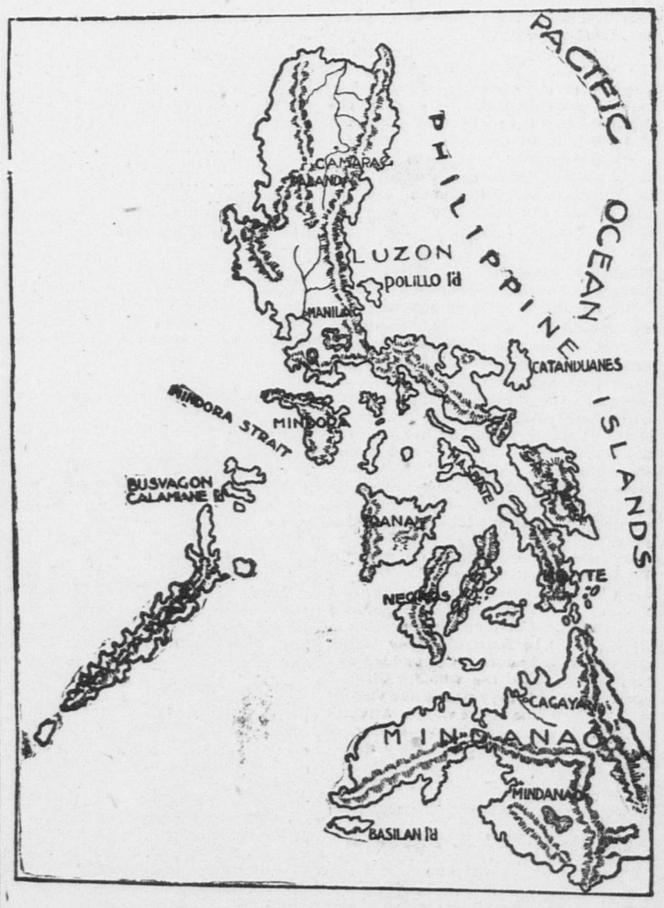
QUINCYITE.

COMMODORE GEORGE DEWEY.

The Asiatic squadron of the United States navy is commanded by Commodore George Dewey, a veteran of the civil war. He is 60 years old and an officer of ripe experience. He took part in the capture of New Orleans, the engagements at Port Hudson and Donaldsonville, and he fought in the two attacks on Fort Fisher, being on the steam gunboat Agawan. He came out of the war with the rank of lieutenant commander.

NATIVE INSURGENT SOLDIERS.

The natives of the Philippine islands, who have been for some time fighting for freedom from Spain, are a small, dark brown people and a branch of the Malay race. The features of the men are coarse and ugly, but they have fine, mild eyes. They are tractable and docile when well treated, but neither quality has been developed by the Spanish.



MAP OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

There are so many islands in the Philippines that the exact number is unknown. There are nine very large ones—Luzon, Panay, Zebu, Leyte, Bohol, Negros, Samar, Mindanao and Mindoro—with more than 1,200 smaller ones. They have an entire area of over 120,000 square miles and a population of about 7,500,000. And here again is found the old story—Spanish officials have ruled with a rod of iron, and the worm has turned. Manilla, the capital of the Philippines and the chief city of Luzon, contains a population of 330,000, principally Spanish creoles, Chinese half breeds and the original natives. The bay of Manilla, the largest and finest in the world, could offer anchorage to the united fleets of Europe.

Castle Square Theatre.

The management of the Castle Square theatre has secured, as an attraction for the coming week, the stirring drama "Across the Potomac" written by Alfriend and Pitou. The play deals with the incident of the Civil War of '61-'65 and scenes and incidents are constantly interesting and exciting. Its earlier performance in this city at the Boston theatre proved it to be a particularly effective drama and the product on of the coming week at the Castle Square will realiaze the fullest possibilities of the play and equal in all its details the elaborate presentation given by the original company organized for its performance throughout the country. The cast will be a large one, there being twenty-five characters. Another production is announced to follow on the 25th inst., this being James Schonberg's play "Red, White and Blue" which recently had its first performance in Philadelphia with immense success. On Tuesday next the matinee patron will be given a souvenir consisting of a portrait of Mr. William Humphrey as Capt. Mathews in "Sheridan."

FLAG IS DOWN

Emblem of Spanish Authority In Santiago Replaced.

Impressive Ceremony at the Formal Surrender.

Bands Played and a Battery Boomed.

The Terms of Agreement Reached by the Commissioners.

Santiago, Cuba., July 18.—The American flag is floating in triumph over the governor's palace in this city, and General McKibbon wields authority as military governor. The warlike aspect exists, but in a modified form from that worn from the beginning of the siege down to the consummation of the agreement of the Spanish commander to abandon his defensive efforts and to knowledge American supremacy in the dominion over which he held sway. After breakfast Sunday morning the formularies attending a capitulation were made use of, Shafter and staff, with an escort of cavalry, accompanying General Toral in a ride through the city in token of a change of possessors.

The ceremony of hoisting the stars and stripes was worth all the blood and treasure it cost. A concourse of 16,000 people witnessed the stirring and thrilling scene that will live forever in the minds of all the Americans present. A finer stage setting for a dramatic episode it would be difficult to imagine. The palace, a picturesque dwelling in the Moorish style of architecture, faces the principal public square. Opposite rises the imposing Catholic cathedral. Across the plaza was drawn up the Ninth infantry, headed by the Sixth cavalry band. In the street facing the palace stood a picked troop of the Second cavalry with drawn sabres, under command of Captain Brett. Massed on the stone flagging between the band and the line of horsemen were the brigade commanders of General Shafter's division, with their staffs. On the red tiled roof of the palace stood Captain McKittrick, Lieutenant Miley and Lieutenant Wheeler; immediately above them upon the flagstaff were the illuminated Spanish arms and the legend "Vive Alfonzo XIII." All about, pressing against the veranda rails, crowding to windows and doors and lining the roofs, were the people of the town, principally women adn non-combatants.

As the chimes of the old cathedral rang out 12, the infantry and cavalry presented arms. Every American uncovered, and Captain McKittrick hoisted the stars and stripes. As the brilliant folds unfurled in a gentle breeze against a freckless sky, the cavalry band broke into the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," making the American pulse leap and the American heart thrill with joy. At the same instant the sound of the distant booming of Captain Capron's battery, firing a salute of 21 guns, drifted in. When the music ceased from all directions around our lines came flying across the plaza the strains of the regimental bands and the muffled, hoarse cheers of our troops. The infantry came to "order arms" a moment later after the flag was up, and the band played "Rally Round the Flag, Boys."

The formal sanction by the Madrid government of the terms of capitulation Saturday unravelled the tangled skein of demands and counter-demands between the opposing commanders which threatened to end the negotiations and compel a return to arms. After numerous conferences had resulted in the agreement already sanctioned by General Blanco, General Toral decided that the approval of the Madrid government was necessary before he would leave the city.

General Shafter maintained that such approval was not necessary; that when General Toral agreed to surrender the province of Santiago and General Blanco sanctioned it, the agreement became an accomplished fact. He insisted that General Toral had either surrendered Thursday or acted in bad faith, but documentary evidence bore out the fact that General Toral mentioned that he only capitulated subject to his government's approval, and the six commissioners by whom the articles were signed at 2:10 Saturday afternoon so ruled. The whole matter was cleared up Saturday morning, however, when General Toral received the necessary sanction from Madrid.

The agreement consisted of nine articles. The first declares that all hostilities shall cease, pending the agreement of final capitulation; second, that the capitulation includes all the Spanish forces and the surrender of all war material within the prescribed limits; third, the transportation of the troops to Spain at the earliest possible moment, each force to be embarked at the nearest port; fourth, that the Spanish officers shall retain their side-arms and the enlisted men their personal property; fifth, that after the final capitulation the Spanish forces shall assist in the removal of all obstructions to navigation in Santiago harbor; sixth, that after the final capitulation the commanding officers shall furnish a complete inventory of all arms and munitions of war, and a roster of all the soldiers in the district; seventh, that the Spanish general shall be permitted to take the military archives and records with him; eighth, that all guerillas and Spanish irregulars shall be permitted to remain in Cuba if they so elect, giving a parole that they will not again take up arms against the United States; ninth, that the Spanish forces shall be permitted to march out with all the honors of war, depositing their arms, to be disposed of in the future by the United States, the American commissioners to recommend to their government that the arms of the soldiers be returned to those "who so bravely defended them." The articles were signed Saturday afternoon after a four hours' session of the commissioners, who agreed that the terms of capitulation should await the sanction of the Madrid government.

The white-haired commander of the Spanish forces was present throughout the session, and appeared to be utterly heart-broken. He spoke bitterly of the fate which compelled him to sue for peace, but had no word to say against the gallant men who had conquered his army. He declared that he had little chance to win. "I would not desire to see my worst enemy play with the cards I held," he said to one of the commissioners. "Every one of my generals was killed or wounded. I have not a single colonel left, and am surrounded by a powerful army. We have counted 67 ships off this port. Besides," he concluded, wearily waving his hands towards the city, "I have secret troubles there."

The volunteer regiments, which have arrived here since the fighting ceased, are standing the climate remarkably well. The men seem greatly disappointed because they arrived too late to share in the battles, but they are seeing plenty of the real hardships of campaigning. The daily downpour of rain last week rendered the camp very uncomfortable. The rifle pits and tents and the ground are soaked with water, and the miserable yellow clay of the Cuban coast makes marching almost an impossibility. The narrow trail from Juaragua to the front is cut to pieces by a constant stream of wagons, and it takes hours for a supply wagon drawn by four starved, exhausted horses, to make the 12-mile trip. The troops look to be in good condition by daylight, but when the swift, tropical nights come down, damp and cloudy, with the men shivering miserably about the sputtering camp-fires, or searching for dry places for their blankets, the great mass of troops seems little like a victorious army. The men do not complain, but accept the rain-soaked hardtack and wet shelter tents with cheerfulness.

The news that the surrender of Santiago was an accomplished fact was wig-wagged Saturday morning from the signal station at Aguadores to the New York. Acting on General Shafter's message Thursday, which stated absolutely that Santiago had already surrendered, Admiral Sampson abandoned all preparations for entering Santiago harbor and a further bombardment. When General Shafter said Friday that a hitch had occurred and the city might have to be taken by force of arms, it was believed that the navy's work would have to be continued and the harbor forced, and the arrangements already in progress for the campaign would be seriously interfered with. The removal of this contingency rendered the news of final victory doubly welcome.

The open handed generosity of American seamen was shown when a subscription was opened on Commodore Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, for the benefit of the young wife of George H. Ellis, the only man killed on the American side during the battle with Admiral Cervera's fleet. The men eagerly offered their money, and many whose salaries are $17 or $18 a month gave $20 and $25 readily. The subscription soon amounted to $907, and one seaman who had a silver coin taken from one of the Spanish vessels offered it for sale for the benefit of the fund, and it was bid in by another seaman for $25. Lieutenant Commander Mason offered a 5-peseta piece from the Infanta Maria Teresa, and its auction brought $60 more.

Since 4 o'clock Sunday morning a stream of refugees has been pouring into the city, some naked, and all hungry and footsore. Many had fallen by the wayside. Santiago presents a dismal sight.

EXTENSION OF SYSTEM

Many Petitions For Rural Delivery of Mail.

Postal Agents Investigating In Several States.

Millions of Inhabitants Are Now Without the Privilege.

Washington, July 18.—The extension of the rural free delivery postal service authorized by the last congress is being pushed forward as rapidly as circumstances will permit. Soon after the intentions of congress were made apparent additional rural service was started from Bradford, Guilford and Milford, Conn:; Moorestown and Riverton, N. J.; Antwerp, Highland, Philadelphia and Watertown, N. Y.; Mariette and Poland, O.; Muncie, Ind.; Rogerville, Morristown, Greeneville and Atoka, Tenn.; Brattleboro, Vt.; and Athol, Mass. One hundred and fifty-seven petitions from 35 states and territories are on file asking extensions of the service to as many towns, and special agents of the department are now in the field in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, North Dakota, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas and Colorado, laying out additional routes for this service.

First Assistant Postmaster General Heath is endeavoring as far as possible to distribute the additional appropriation authorized by congress among those states and territories where the existing facilities for the distribution of the mails by free delivery are the poorest.

With this end in view, he has a tabular statement prepared, showing the population of the different states served with free delivery under existing laws (which restrict the regular free delivery service to cities of 10,000 inhabitants, or $10,000 gross receipts), and the number of people in each state who receive no free delivery at all. These tables show that the following number of persons are now absolutely without free delivery of mails (except where furnished in spots by the experimental rural free delivery service): Alabama, 1,408,265; Arkansas, 1,069,428; California, 638,904; Colorado, 261,155; Connecticut, 362,149; Delaware, 107,062; Florida, 356,939; Georgia, 1,624,919; Idaho, 82,074; Illinois, 2,348,148; Indiana, 1,711,572; Iowa, 1,594,204; Kansas, 1,218,047; Kentucky, 1,561,128; Louisiana, 854,091; Maine, 508,639; Maryland, 569,307; Massachusetts, 750,875; Michigan, 1,431,120; Minnesota, 902,787; Mississippi, 1,242,924; Missouri, 1,942,739; Montana, 28,913; Nebraska, 793,971; New Hampshire, 259,883; New Jersey, 647,504; New York, 2,229,114; North Carolina, 906,701; North Dakota, 172,076; Ohio, 2,397,194; Oregon, 361,198; Pennsylvania, 3,092,030; Rhode Island, 166,270; South Carolina, 1,072,234; South Dakota, 207,121; Tennessee, 1,562,296; Texas, 1,598,017; Utah, 148,173; Vermont, 273,481; Virginia, 1,416,449; Washington, 242,625; West Virginia, 713,121; Wisconsin, 1,336,543; Wyoming, 42,707.

Reports obtained from foreign countries disclose that in every leading country forming part of the Universal Postal union, except the United States, the mails are delivered at the residences of every addressee, either with some slight charge for additional postage, or at the ordinary postage rates. The United States and the South and Central American states stand alone in requiring the patrons of the postal service to send for their mails.

To Lose Its President.

Providence, July 18.—The resignation of Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews as president of Brown university to accept the position of superintendent of schools in Chicago has been received by Rev. Thomas A. Anderson, secretary of the corporation. The resignation is regarded as final and will be accepted. No action will probably be taken until the annual meeting the first Wednesday in September. Dr. Andrews has being president since 1889. He was called to the position from Cornell university, where he held the chair of finance. Previous to that he had held the chair of history in Brown for six years.

Sensational Demonstration.

Paris, July 18.—The arrival of the Touraine from New York at Havre with the survivors of the wrecked La Bourgogne was the occasion of a sad scene and a sensational demonstration on the part of a great crowd which had assembled. The tears and sobs of the relatives of those who were drowned when they found that the lasthope was gone were heartrending, contrasting markedly with the transports of joy of the friends of those saved. The survivors of the disaster were extremely reticent, and their stories failed to develop any new detail.

Took Muriatic Acid.

Richmond, Me., July 18.—Leslie Hall of Dresdon, Me., took a large dose of muriatic acid Saturday afternoon, and died from its effects. She was 25 years of age, and it is supposed that poor health deranged her mind.

ALMANAC, TUESDAY, JULY 19.
Sun rises—4:23; sets, 7:16.

Tonight's Council Business.

Another busy session of the City Council is assured for tonight but if the Council acts upon the business as promptly as at its last meeting it will not be a long session. Among the petitions to be received is one for the laying out of Glover avenue from Hancock street to Faxon road and several for State Aid. The Committee on Ordinances will report on the order for $11,000 for paving Hancock street; the Committee on Rules will report a substitute order amending the rules of the Council; the Committtee on Licenses will report on a number of petitions for minor licenses; the Committee on State Aid will report upon several petitions and the Committee on Streets will report an order in relation to the taking a part of Washington street by the Highway Commission; on naming the locality at the junction of Quincy avenue and Howard street; on the petition for an arc light at the junction of Warren and Standish avenues; on the petition for the rebuilding of the culvert over town brook on Washington street; on order granting the Telephone company a location for poles on Quincy avenue, Copeland, Hancock and Squantum streets and for lights on corner of Squantum street and Huckins avenue. The Committee on Finance will probably report on the order granting Quincy soldiers and sailors in the present war $7 per month. There will also be a report by the Sewer Committee on the Sewer Ordinance. In the calendar are the orders locating a flag staff at Wollaston; granting the Electric Light Company a location for poles on Prospect avenue, and granting the Telephone Company permission to lay underground conduits.

Lights at Houghs Neck.

The prospects are that Houghs Neck will soon be illuminated with electricity. This section has never had anything in the way of artificial light other than oil.

The residents have repeatedly asked the Electric Light Company to extend its lines to this section, only to be met with refusal on the ground that there were not enough takers to warrant the line being run.

This year some of the residents got together and forwarded a petition to the Electric Light and Gas Commissioners who gave them a hearing and last week visited the beach to look over the ground.

They were apparently favorably impressed with the arguments of the petitions and Secretary Henry M. Faxon, who was present said that the company would extend their lines immediately if a reasonable number of takers could be obtained.

In case the system is extended the city would doubtless establish street lights.

A Noble Regiment.

This is what the Boston Journal says of the Fifth Massachusetts Regiment, in which Capt. Kincaide's company is very conspicuous:

The Fifth is a notably good regiment. It is the strongest in numbers which the State has sent away. Its equipment is more thorough. It will go with a better appreciation of just what is expected of it. Its Colonel is a gallant veteran of the Civil war. Its Lieutenant Colonel is an accomplished officer of the regular service who possesses to a remarkable degree the personal qualities calculated to inspire his men with confidence and admiration. Under such leadership the Fifth Massachusetts can be depended on to rise to the full level of duty and of opportunity wherever it may be called. It is a command which the Commonwealth sends forth with the belief that it will win distinction.

BREAD AND BUTTER.

Forty Loaves of Bread, and 25 pounds of Butter for Co. K.

The members of Co. K at Camp Dalton will have a feast for supper tonight which will be all the more enjoyable after their two week's feed of hard tack. One of the things the boys in camp miss the most is home made bread and good butter. Friends in Quincy realize this and that the boys should have one feast before they start for the front an order was given for a special baking and this morning there was put into the ovens for baking forty loaves of bread and this noon, Captain Doane, F. W. Tirrell, Chief Engineer Packard, George F. Wilson, C. F. Pettengill and A. G. Durgin left Quincy for Camp Dalton. With them went the forty loaves of bread and twenty-five pounds of good sweet butter, and these will form the principal article of the menu for supper. That the boys will enjoy the feast goes without saying.

T. R. & S., 15—So. Weymouth, 13.

The Tubular Rivets won a very interesting game at Merry Mount park Saturday afternoon when they had for their opponents a strong team from South Weymouth. The features of the game was the battery work of the home and a fine catch by T. Reidy which resulted in a beautiful double play. Dunn had an "off day" making up for his errors by tieing the game in the eighth with a fine hit to centre. The catching of McAuliff for the visitors is worthy of special mention.

The church was filled by relatives and neighbors.

His playmates gave a handsome pillow of flowers inscribed "Our Playmate."

A crescent of pink and white roses and lilies of the valley from his Sunday school class.

A pillow with the name "Worth" from Mr. MacIntyre's shopmates.

A pretty piece from the firm of John C. Haynes & Co. of Boston where the boy's father is employed, and bouquets of pinks and roses from neighbors and Miss McCormic his school teacher.

Singing was rendered by a local male quartette. Burial was in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The New Company K.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the provisional company being organized in this vicinity by Eugene C. Hultman to take the place of Company K which has been mustered in to the United States service and a number of young men have notified him of their desire to become affiliated with the new company. As previously stated in the Ledger a meeting will be held this evening at Long's hall, Braintree, and it is probable that there will be a large attendance, all young men being invited. Several prominent citizens of Quincy have become interested and it is understood that when organized that immediate steps will be taken to have the company located in Quincy.

PRESENTATION.

Lieut. Spear Given a Sword at Camp Dalton.

Camp Dalton,
Monday, July 18.

Saturday passed off as usual in camp. The afternoon was devoted to athletic sports in which Co. K members were active. A fine dress parade wound up the day's duty.

Lieut. Spear was most agreeably surprised in the afternoon. Several of his Weymouth friends representing the K. P. of which he is a member arrived in camp at three. After a little talk and handshaking to get him at his ease Mr. Charles Bailey, in behalf of the Weymouth lodge of the K. P. presented him with an elegant sword including a service and dress scabbard. The sword represented a piece of excellent workmanship. His name is engraved on the blade and on one side of the hilt was engraved:

C. F. Spear Co. K, Mass. Inf. U. S. V.

On the other side were the words:

Presented to Lieut. Charles F. Spear by his K. of P. friends of Weymouth, Mass.

He was so surprised he could hardly talk but drew himself together and thanked the givers in a most pleasing manner. Charles appreciates the gift and no one is more worthy of such a gift than he. A braver or better man could never carry it. He is liked in his company and this shows the regard that his outside friends have for him.

A few of Sunday's visitors: Mr. C. H. Bearce, Mrs. L. B. Bearce, Jesse B. Baxer, J. Canfield, J. Pritchard, R. Smith, F. Harrington, Miss Louise Whitman, Miss Totman, Miss Nickerson, Miss J. Johnson, Miss E. Carlson, Miss Annie Kennedy, Miss Mary Skate, Miss Carrie Saunders, Miss Alice Hirtle, Miss Annie Tucker, John Capaccioli, Mrs. Mary Malcolm, John Burnie, A. Knight, Miss Martin, George Kelley, Miss Agnes Kennedy, Miss Currie, E. Currie, Miss Mary Macmahan, Miss Louise Farrell, Miss Caddie Farrell, L. Chatman, Miss Grace Pettengill, Miss Mary Powers, Miss Kate Powers, J. Canfield, John Morrissey, Frank Morrissey, Joe Bruce, Joe Nagle, H. Rhines, Miss Mary Gibson, Miss Lizzie Gibson, Mr. G. Wardell, Mrs. F. E. Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. McClellen, and many others.

Gene R. Lord is the last man to be taken from Co. K as orderly. This makes seven now.

During Major Morrisons' absence Capt. Kincaide as senior officer is acting in his place. He fits it too.

Five days' rations have been issued.

The cars that are to carrry the Fifth to the front have arrived at Framingham and it is now thought the regiment will move Thursday.

The mattresses in the company's quarters were removed this morning and the boys will hereafter sleep on the floor.

Capt. Kincaide has received $50 more from the citizens fund and $30 from Adams Chapter, D. of R. and friends.

Lieut. Spear is home on a leave of absence today.

The Daily Ledger is now for sale at the newly established canteen, and all the income derived therefrom will be paid to Harry McLaughlin, the Ledger representative. A large supply will be sent so that all will be able to obtain a copy before worn out.—Eds.

American Girls are Patriotic.

Of course everybody knows that, but Miss Natallie Schenk of Babylon, L.I., who tried to test their patriotism is threatened with nervous prostration on account of it. She wrote letters a few weeks ago to four of her girl friends and asked each to contribute ten cents to the the Red Cross Society's fund for ice for the soldiers in Cuba, and requested her correspondents to write to four more and start an endless chain of letters and ten cent pieces. She succeeded beyond her wildest dreams. Her mail grew to such proportions that she and her whole family could not handle it. Wednesday she received 15,000 letters, and now she has begged the newspapers to tell every body to stop sending letters. She has already sent $3,500 to the Red Cross Society.

Fund Now $562.

And still the fund for Co. K grows. It has now reached $562 and is slowly creeping along toward $600. These additional subscriptions are acknowledged.

NEW RAILWAY LAW.

To Pay a Part of Their Earnings for Use of Streets.

The new Street Railway Law marks a new departure in Massachusetts Legislature because it establishes for the first time the principle of excise tax upon street railways. The right of the people is recognized to compel street railways to pay a part of their earnings for the use of the streets. This is a most important principle to have established. On the other hand, the corporations get something out of it, for municipal authorities no longer have the power to summarily revoke locations. In relation to the excise tax going wholly to towns and cities in proportion to tracks within their borders, the municipalities will have to look after all the repairs of streets, roads and bridges, all paving and the removal of snow excepting in the tracks.

Municipal authorities cannot revoke locations without approval of railroad commissioners, nor impose conditions in franchises for extensions other than provided in the general laws governing all street railway.

The State will collect the excess tax, but it will be distributed according to the mileage of street railway in a town or city.

If at the end of three years either the city or the railroad considers the amount paid as excise tax unreasonable, there shall be a hearing before the railroad commissioners, who shall decide whether or not a change shall be made. The railroad may have cause to believe that the city or town is not spending as much as the amount of the excise tax, or the city or town may hold that the earnings of the company are in another grade of the scale of taxation, or find that the amount received is insufficient to do the work required in the streets.

When a change of grade or re-location of a street is made, the railroad must pay a part of the expense, not to exceed one fourth of the total, including the cost of the re-location of the tracks. The municipal authorities shall determine what proportion the State shall pay but appeal may be made to the Superior Court, as in the case of other bettermnets.

There is also to be a computation tax based on the amount of gross receipts per mile of track. This tax is regulated by a graduated scale according to the amount of earnings. The per cent. per amount of earnings follows:

For less than $4,000, 1 per cent.

For more than $4000 and less than $7,000, 2 per cent.

For more than $7,000 and less than $14,000, 2 1-4 per cent.

For more than $14,000 and less than $21,000, 2 1-2 per cent.

For more than $21,000 and less than $28,000 2 3-4 per cent.

For more than $28,000, 3 per cent..

The excise tax must be revised every three years. So opportunity exists to correct, in the light of practical operation, any inequalities which have been permitted in this law.

Lunch Wagons.

The Worcester Gazette says that the dividend of eighteen per cent on a capital of $25,000 declared by the night lunch cart company of that city is a pretty small profit in comparison with that made by the same carts in the early days of the industry. Three or four hundred per cent. it says, was not at all uncommon and one of the pioneers boasted that he started without any capital and made over $10,000 in a few years' time. A man named Scott (possibly the "Great Scott" we hear so much about) originated the lunch cart in Providence, R. I., but it was perfected and developed in Worcester, and now there is a chain of lunch carts from Bangor, Me., to Denver, Col.

TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "'leventy-'leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. They are not worth $15.00, but we know of no one who sells them for as little money. 100 percale and white shirts with attached collar and cuff and and fancy bosoms, at 45c. 125 fine percale and French madras, at 69c. 100 best quality madras shirts, detatched collars and cuffs, at 98c. Bear this in mind, we sell our shirts for all they are worth. But we know of people who sell them for more money and claim they are worth twice as much.

For the Championship.

New York, July 16.—The terms of the agreement signed by James J. Corbett and "Kid" McCoy for a fight at Buffalo, Sept. 10, or on the next sunshiny day, specify that the contest is to be at catchweights and with 5-ounce gloves. William Brady was present when the articles were signed, and insisted that the words "for the heavyweight championship of the world" should be inserted.

This was done, although W. B. Gray said that Fitzsimmons was the champion and that if McCoy won the coming fight he would not claim the heavyweight championship. Tom Sharkey, who was also present, said that he was anxious to meet Corbett or McCoy, or both on the same day, but this proposition was not listened to. Both pugilists have begun training. Corbett is at Asbury Park and McCoy has established training quarters on the shore of Saratoga lake.

Each of the principals, as well as the managers of the Hawthorne club, will deposit $2500 within a week's time to bind the agreement. The stakeholder agreed upon is Al Smith of this city.

The relations and friends of the boys of the 9th Regiment were pleased to hear from them this morning through the mail. This is he first time they have heard since their departure for Cuba and they write, very interesting stories about the war.

Mr. Herbert Polk of the Park is enjoying a three weeks' vacation. Mr. Polk while out riding his bicycle on Pleasant street, Dorchester, Saturday afternoon, last, narrowly escaped a serious accident. A horse and carriage driven wildly by the occupant came upon him suddenly and his position was such that his only chance of escape was by quickly jumping, which he did. The bicycle however was completely demolished.

Good Templars' Outing.

On Saturday about fifty members of Merry Mount lodge, No . 55, Good Templars, went to Hingham for an outing. The place selected was Captain Lincoln's cottage, which has the ocean in front and the cool green woods in the rear, making it a most delightful place for an afternoons' recreation. The genial captain and his wife provided chowder for the party while the members carried baskets of good things and Webber furnished ice cream etc. Boats were provided and rowing and sailing were much enjoyed.

The captain took the cake when he took his fiddle and seating himself on the chopping block at his door, began playing the old familiar tunes and beating time with his feet setting the feet of every one in motion at the same time. He made a picture that will linger long and pleasantly in the memory of all.

This is the second outing the lodge has had this summer and arrangements are being made for another in the near future. The party returned to Quincy in time to enjoy the band concert in the evening, and all are now looking forward to the next outing.

TORREY'S ROUGH RIDERS.

General Fitz-Hugh Lee Praises the Westerners In High Terms.

General Fitz-Hugh Lee, in command of the Seventh Army corps, stationed at Jacksonville, Fla., recently made the following formal statement regarding Colonel Torrey's regiment of rough riders:

"I graduated at West Point and was assigned to the cavalry just before the war between the north and south and afterward commanded all the cavalry of my uncle, General Robert E. Lee. I therefore have some right to claim some knowledge of that branch of service. I will say now, without reservation, that I never saw a finer body of men or a better lot of horses. I am quite sure should opportunity offer that Colonel Torrey and his regiment will give a splendid account of themselves. I know I feel well satisfied to have the Second United States volunteer cavalry cover the front of my corps in any operations it should be engaged in. So far as my personal observation goes, the conduct of both officers and men has been excellent. I have had no complaints from any quarter that it has been otherwise since the regiment reported to me."

Major B. H. Chever, who put the regiment under a rigid inspection recently, praised it in the highest terms. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HANDS, ARMS AND FEET.

Spanish Bullets Showed a Preference For Them—Souvenirs of the Wounded.

The transports Iroquois and Cherokee brought 450 wounded men from Santiago to Tampa. At daylight the long train of hospital cars was thrown open for the reception of those who were sent to Fort McPherson, and 223 men were placed aboard. Eighty-seven were sent to the general hospital of the Fourth Army corps, and the surgeons there had their first experience in dressing war wounds.

While the sufferers lay upon the rough pine table they gave an account of how the wounds were received. Invariably they said when the bullets struck them they were knocked down, but suffered little. The holes seemed to have been neatly drilled through the flesh or bone, making no laceration. Only one man was unable to walk, all the others having sufficiently recovered to do so. The wounds were mainly in the hands, arms and feet. Men with their feet bundled in white cloths and their arms in slings were in abundance. They talked good naturedly of the fight and spoke highly of the enemy. Many of them have souvenirs, such as machetes and Mauser bullets, some having retained the bullets that wounded them. —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Bet $1,500 on Cervera.

The defeat of Cervera's fleet at Santiago has wrought up the Spaniards of Mexico to a high pitch of excitement and has added to the intensity of their feeling against Americans in Mexico. The news of the defeat was at first not believed by the Spaniards, and one enthusiastic Spaniard of Mexico lost $1,500 which he bet with an American on the result of the fight after the first reports that it had taken place.—New York Sun.

Terrible Punishment.

There is nothing which Commodore Watson's fleet will meet on the coast of Spain either afloat or ashore that can save Spain from a terrible punishment. It will be the beginning of the end when Watson gets there, if indeed the end does not come through the collapse of Spain, morally and materially, before that time.—Boston Post.

The Twins In the Turret.
[An idyl of the chase.]

First Rifle—
Can you see her, oh, my brother?
Can you sight her through the rack?
Is that streak across the smother
Coal smoke trailing from a stack?
Do you hear how louder, clearer,
Sounds the throbbing of our screws?
When we come a little nearer,
Which of us shall hail her? Choose.

Second Rifle—
Let me send a brief opinion
Of the murders on the Maine,
Of the eagle's new dominion
When we've closed accounts with Spain.
There, they've passed the word to crowd her,
Here's our squad, too, on the run.
Glad we've got the smokeless powder.
Now, look out—you'll see the fun

First Rifle—
Are you ready, brother, ready
With your thunderbolt of steel?
Have they got your bearings steady?
Gods, you made the whole world reel!
Now, it's my turn. What? You hit her
In the vitals? Oh, what bliss!
There is naught in life as bitter
For a rifle as a miss.

Second Rifle—
All hell's loose! There's no use talking.
That's the time you ripped her wide!
Look! There's Davy Jones a-walking,
Picking Spaniards from the tide.
Hi! But it's a howling racket
For a great long silent gun!
Easy, now! Don't burst your jacket!
Our death dealing work is done.

America's National Game.

Hamilton leads the league in base running, with Delehanty second.

An independent team has been formed at Taunton, which will be composed entirely of ex-New England league players. Day, formerly of New Bedford, will pitch; Dan Burke will catch, Breckenridge will play first, Bobby Moore second, George Moore third, Joe Harrington short stop, Cuddy (late of Worcester) left field, Frank Sexton centre field and John B. Wiley right field.

Baltimore again has a year of troubles. Corbett has refused all overtures to join the team, and Jennings, McGraw, Keeler and Kelley have been out of the game for lengthy periods, on account of injuries. Still the club has made a grand fight.

Boston has won three games from Pittsburg this season, and has lost three. The scores have all been remarkably low.

The Montreals lead in the Eastern league, the tailenders being the New England clubs.

Saturday's winners in the National league were the Bostons, Philadelphias, St. Louises, New Yorks, Baltimores and Clevelands. The clubs stand as follows: Cincinnati, Boston, Cleveland, Baltimore, Chicago, Pittsburg, New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Washington, Louisville, St. Louis.

The Springfields defeated the Providences Sunday because of the miserable support given Hickman. Fielding in a glaring sun was responsible for misjudging a number of fly balls, but there were rank muffs and bad throws. Score, 11 to 7.

Cleveland, Chicago and Pittsburg have played decidedly faster ball than they did last season, and are very much in the race. New York has not equalled its record of last season. Philadelphia stands in a fair way to show up well. Washington is a faster club. Louisville is more than 100 points behind its percentage of last season, and, while St. Louis has improved, this is due to good work earlier in the season, for its work of late has been very much of the tail-end order. Brooklyn is another club that has failed to do good work, this due to the many changes in the infield.

Pawtucket and Newport will run independent teams the remainder of the season, and be in good shape for a New England league next season.

A UNITED DEMOCRACY.

How a Bay State Man Would Create Harmony.

Opposition to a Large Army and Navy.

Considers the Extension of American Boundaries Highly Impolitic.

Boston, July 18.—"State rights, local self-government and individual liberty as against centralized federal despotism. That is the banner which will lead us to a victory of peace quite as glorious as that of war; and the first victory is to be won here and now in Massachusetts, where Republican centralization is just as hard at work as it is at Washington. Can we not sink our differences and unite our efforts in a cause as noble as has ever appealed to the people of the state?" This is the closing paragraph of an appeal to the Democracy of Massachusetts, issued by Gamaliel Bradford, to subordinate everything to the one issue of opposition to the doctrine of territorial expansion.

"The real object of the war," Mr. Bradford says, "is not the defeat of Spain, not the independence of Cuba, nor even the conquest of territory. It is to keep the Republican party in power. After the Civil war, its object having been accomplished, the army was dismissed to private life, but with lightning rods thrust out into the Pacific, whether at the Philippines or even in Hawaii, the cry will be raised that unless we have an army and a navy equal to those of Europe, we shall be constantly in danger, not only of attack, but of defeat. The appeal to patriotism and support of the government will be worked as successfully as it is now. We shall stand before the world in the much lauded position of having 'taken our place among the nations,' that is, those whose people exist only to support the fighting machines, and as with those peoples, the army and navy may be used for internal as well as external purposes. New York or Boston may be overawed with battleships, Chicago or St. Louis may be placed under military rule for alleged insubordination at the bidding of the rulers in Washington just as well as in Havana or Manila."

He says that "from these evils the sole hope of escape lies in the Democratic party, that party whose policy and principles date from the foundation of the republic, and which has now an opportunity, by checking excess, or rendering at least as great a service to the country and mankind as the Republicans have ever done. A third party is an impossibility. Even a party of peace cannot put forward principles of government. Only the Democrats can take the country out of this slough of despond. Already exPresident Cleveland and the Hon. William J. Bryan, differing in so much, have sounded the common note of warning and resistance. The first thing to be done is to drop for the time the question of currency. It is in no such desperate condition that it cannot wait at least a few years. Even gold and silver are of less importance than the preservation of the institutions which we have received as a trust from our fathers."

Revenue Rulings.

Washington, July 18.—The commissioner of internal revenue has held that receipts used as checks to draw money from banks are subject to the stamp tax. It is said that several banks, in order to avoid the stamp tax, are accepting receipts for cash, which, according to the letter of the law, are exempt. The commissioner, however, has decided that under the circumstances receipts to all intents and purposes are checks, and therefore must be stamped.

In estimating the amount of special tax required to be paid by a bank, based as the law requires upon capital and surplus, the amount invested in United States bonds is not to be deducted. It is held that there is no provision of law which warrants such deduction inasmuch as the tax is not upon the bonds, but upon the business of banking; the capital and surplus, which may include bonds, are taken as a basis for fixing the amount of the tax.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

An insurrection occurred in Kan-Su, the most northwest province of China, arising from dissatisfaction with the new taxes.

The Samuel Dillaway, Kennebec for Baltimore, was run into while anchored between West Chop and Nobska, by a barge, losing her starboard anchor and having her bow damaged.

At the convention of the National Young People's Christian union, the following officers were elected: National president, H. H. Fowler, Akron, O., re-elected; secretary, A. J. Cardall, Boston; treasurer, Omar Petrie, Palmer, Mass.

George Pillsbury of Minneapolis, of the firm of Pillsbury & Co., one of the best known men in the northwest, died Sunday, aged 82 years. He leaves a large fortune, and his public bequests in the past have aggregated over half a million dollars.

The torpedo boat destroyer Farragut, which was launched in San Francisco Saturday evening from the yard of the Union works, was christened by Betty Ashe, a distant relative of Admiral Farragut. The Farragut is a 275-ton boat. Her speed is 30 knots. She will be placed in commission as soon as possible.

The total number of passengers landed in Boston from trans-atlantic ports during the past year was 16,752, against 16,770 for 1896-97, the total decrease being only 18. There was an increase of 338 immigrants from Canadian ports. The amount of money brought was $153,836; 1008 steerage passengers had over $30 on landing; 6664 had less than $30; 2445 had been in the United States before; 7021 had never been in this country before and came here to join members of their immediate families; 370 were unable to read or write.

FLAG IS DOWN.

Most of the houses have been sacked and the stores have all been looted and nothing to eat can be had for love or money. In the streets of the city, as at the entrenchments, at the breastworks and at every hundred feet of the barbed wire fences, were the living skeletons of Spanish soldiers. Twenty-two thousand refugees are quartered at El Caney, 5000 at Firmeza and 5000 at Cubaitas Ebonatio and San Vincente, where they have been living for a fortnight. In one case 500 were crowded into one building, which was a regular pig-sty, with a horrible stench. They used the water from the river, where soiled clothing was washed and all manner of filth is floating.

Steam launches from the New York, Brooklyn and Vixen entered the harbor Sunday and examined the batteries, the wrecks of the Merrimac and the Reina Mercedes, and the torpedo firing station. They discovered six Spanish merchant steamers and one small gunboat in the harbor, and a prize crew was placed upon the latter. In the afternoon the torpedoes were taken up or exploded, after which the Red Cross steamer, State of Texas, entered to give assistance to the sick and wounded in the city. The warships may not enter the harbor for several days, probably not until after the arrangements have been made for the transportation of the prisoners.

"CUBA, U. S. A."

Uncle Sam Secures Half of the Province of Santiago.

Washington, July 18.—It is now Santiago, Cuba, U. S. A. Five thousand square miles of territory were added to the American domain Sunday, when General Shafter raised the stars and stripes over the city of Santiago, and thereby annexed one-half of the province of that name, on the eastern end of Cuba. It is the entering wedge. Gradually but surely the Spaniard will be dethroned and the Yankee will take his place upon the island. Today the president is considering the problem of appointing a governor for the new territory. It might be supposed that General Shafter would be named, but, anticipating his selection, he has already privately advised the president that he does not care for the appointment. There is a possibility that General J. Warren Keifer of Ohio will be selected. He is a soldier, but has also had large legislative and legal experience, and, besides, has the confidence of the president. It is known that his name is under consideration.

This appointment will be the first of many. Customs officers, revenue inspectors, postmasters and all the retinue of government officials are yet to be appointed. Uncle Sam has a new infant on his hands and a large number of watchful nurses will be required to bring it to the full glory of manhood.

The president after his return from church had a conference with Secretaries Alger and Long and Captain Crowninshield. It was stated after the meeting that plans had been discussed for an aggressive movement, in which both army and navy will take part, against Porto Rico. It is expected that General Miles will go direct from Santiago to Porto Rico, and that General Stone and Colonel Michler of his staff will start from New York in a day or two to join the general at Santiago. Secretary Long would not discuss the naval program except to say that active preparations are on foot for a forward movement.

The only disquieting information relates to the yellow fever conditions at the front. It was a dispatch from Colonel Greenleaf, chief surgeon of the army in Cuba, saying that 16 new cases had appeared. While this was regarded with some apprehension by laymen, the surgeon general's department considered the showing entirely satisfactory. Colonel Alden, acting surgeon general during the absence of General Sternberg, said a report of only 16 cases was an exceptionally good showing, as the number must be taken relatively to the large number of men at the front. With the surrender accomplished, there will be better opportunity to get the men on high ground and keep them away from infection. During the day a report was received stating positively that no cases of yellow fever existed on the Harvard, which brought a large number of sick prisoners to Portsmouth. This not only relieved officials as to the condition at Portsmouth, but also as to the Harvard, for it would be a severe handicap to the navy if this crack craft had to go into quarantine.

Prospects of Peace.

London, July 18.— The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "The prospects of peace could be much promoted if the United States were to control properly the impatience and ambition of both the Cuban and Philippine insurgents.

"Admiral Camara's squadron and his transports have nearly reached Spanish Mediterranean ports on their return from Port Said.

"General Weyler had an audience of an hour with the queen regent Sunday. He expressed himself as very grateful for her majesty's gracious welcome; but he assured her that recent events had not modified his opinion as to Cuban affairs."

Riots have broken out at Huelva, capital of the province of Huelva in Andulusia. The inhabitants marched to the municipal buildings, shouting for cheap bread. Rioters to the number of 4000 sacked private houses. They were finally dispersed by the military; and energetic measures will be taken to prevent a renewal of the disturbances.

Bay State Wounded.

New York, July 18.—The Olivette, which arrived Saturday night with 272 wounded soldiers from Cuba, put into the dock in Brooklyn Sunday. As the steamer was being wharfed rousing cheers went up from those assembled on the pier, and along the docks and yards in the vicinity. These cheers were answered by the heroes on the Olivette, and there was a general waving of handkerchiefs on the main and upper decks of the vessel as she was being made fast to the pier.

Out of 100 men sent to the marine hospital last night, 90 were suffering from gunshot wounds. There were five cases of malarial fever and three of prostration from heat, and other causes. None of these cases is considered dangerous, and in fact the surgeons and doctors who had charge of the men on the Olivette assert that, with good care and treatment, none of them will succomb.

Four of the Massachusetts men were sent to the Long Island college hospital. They all belonged to the Second Massachusetts. Private G. B. Bennett of company G is suffering from typhoid fever, which he contracted on board the transport, and he had not a chance of touching Cuban soil. Private Frank Roepall of Springfield had both lungs perforated by one bullet, which passed through from his left to his right side. He is doing remarkably well. Private H. Ariel of company L received a bad shell wound in the left leg, from which some of the muscles were torn away. The only one of the wounded who had signified his intention of going back to service at once is Private Blackner of company L. He received a scalp wound which temporarily incapacitated him. He will return to duty in the hospital corps. Corporal W. Paradise of company M expects to go to his home in Adams in a few days. He has a painful gunshot in the left shoulder, which he received at El Caney. Private R. Coit of the same regiment, who hails from Holyoke, is also at St. Peter's, nursing a severe wound in the left leg, just above the knee, which was caused by a Mauser bullet.

CERVERA AT CHURCH.

Spanish Prisoners In Annapolis Present at Divine Services.

Annapolis, July 18.—Maryland's ancient capital was crowded Sunday with curiosity seekers, who came from Baltimore, Washington and elsewhere by rail and by water in the hope of getting a peep at Admiral Cervera and the men who fought and lost in the naval fight off Santiago. Those who reached here early in the morning were rewarded for their trouble, as nearly all the prisoners, including the admiral, attended services at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, where they offered up thanks for their deliverance from the fate that overtook so many of their less fortunate comrades who fell before the relentless fire of the American guns on July 3. The church, which is the only one of the Roman Catholic denomination in Annapolis, is one of the landmarks of the city, and embraces in its membership some of the most prominent and aristocratic of Annapolis people.

At the close of the services the officers returned to the naval academy and spent the balance of the day in strolling about the grounds, or lounging on the broad piazzas which surround most of the buildings in which the prisoners are quartered. They are rapidly becoming accustomed to their surroundings and seem cheerful and contented. Ample provision has been made for their comfort, their food is plentiful and of the best quality, and clothes will be provided for such as will accept.

Captain Eulate of the Vizcaya is the only one of the officers who has thus far refused to sign the parole pledge. His reasons for it are that Admiral Cervera was only required to give a verbal promise and that his (Eulate's) rank entitles him to the same privilege. The authorities have no doubt that the matter will be amicably arranged and that the scruples of the gallant officer may be overcome.

Hill's Trenchant Criticism.

New York, July 18.—Ex-Governor Hill gives this opinion of one of the measures enacted last week at the special session of the general assembly: "The Black law is not only insolvent and dishonest as a whole, but some of its provisions are unprecedented and positively dangerous. The deputy superintendents—700 in all—are permitted by section six of the act to visit and inspect any house' in the city of New York. The words, 'visit and inspect,' are broad words and confer vast power. The extent of the visitation and inspection is not defined and there is no limitation upon it.

"Its real object is to intimidate and humble unlettered Democrats living in tenement house districts, and prevent their registration and voting. This power of 'inspection' is nothing more or less than a right of 'search,' and violates that constitutional provision which declares that the people shall be secure in their houses against just such unreasonable searches. This infamous statute contemptuously treats the whole city of New York as an infected city subject to inspection; it regards the people as lawbreakers and opens up their houses to the 'inspection' of a horde of Republican partisans; it makes it a crime to refuse to answer any or all of their inquiries; and it is made a felony for any citizen to refuse to 'assist these deputies.'"

A Decrease In Aliens.

Boston, July 18.—The immigration to this city through this port shows a decrease of 947 aliens over last year, according to the annual report of Immigration Commissioner Billings. The total number of aliens was 12,725; of American citizens who returned there were 4027, an increase of 931 over last year. The immigrants for Canadian ports showed an increase of 338 over last year. Three-fourths of all the immigrants came from England, Ireland and Sweden. Other statistics show that 7519 men and 6638 women came in, and 69 were deported. The inspectors supervised the passage of 52,142 passengers through this port during the year covered in the report.

FORTY THOUSAND MEN

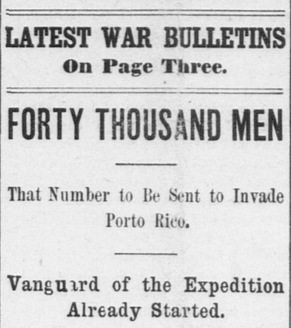
That Number to Be Sent to Invade Porto Rico.

Vanguard of the Expedition Already Started.

Landing to Be Effected Under the Guns of the Warships.

Washington, July 19.—Secretary Alger, as he left the white house at midnight, announced that the vanguard of the Porto Rican expedition had started from Cuba. Orders were sent to General Miles by Secretary Alger and to Admiral Sampson by Secretary Long to start for Porto Rico as soon as possible. The Yale, carrying General Miles and a part of the expedition, and other transports carrying the remainder of the troops of General Shafter's command, destined for Porto Rico, will proceed to the landing place agreed upon under convoy of Admiral Sampson's vessels. Upon their arrival a landing will be effected under the guns of the warships.

Large forces will be hurried to Porto Rico from the United States. The troops at Charleston, which have been ready to leave for several days, are under orders to start at once. Unless delays that are now unexpected should occur, all of the troops will have embarked before sundown today.



VIEW OF THE SAN JUAN FORTIFICATIONS.

The regular troops now at Tampa will be hurried as rapidly as ships can carry them. It is the expectation of the secretary of war that within 10 days 40,000 American troops will be on Porto Rican soil.

The question of transports for the Porto Rico expedition and that of providing subsistence for the army which is to go there occupied the attention of the officials of the quartermaster's and the subsistence departments of the army during the entire afternoon. Ample transports are scattered along the Atlantic and gulf coasts and at Santiago, and these will be concentrated as rapidly as possible at the embarking points. Subsistence stores also are abundant at some of the points from which the troops are to start, and these will be supplemented by additional supplies as fast as they are needed. A vast quantity will be shipped from Newport News. Officials studied the map of Porto Rico with a view among other things of determining the most available port at which to land the army and supplies. They would not say, however, which one had been selected. It was suggested in some quarters that the army might land on the southern coast near Ponce, to the southwest of San Juan.

General Hawkins' Commission.

General Hawkins on crutches, with his wounded right foot, the first of the general officers to arrive from Santiago, got his major general's commission at the war department Monday. He and other officers from the front, with Count Von Goetzen, the German military observer, gave Secretary Alger additional details about the fighting. Count Von Goetzen was particularly complimentary to our officers and men.

GENERAL HAWKINS.

It is believed by the administration that after Porto Rico is taken and the Spanish coast is attacked by Commodore Watson, Spain's pride may become sufficiently humbled to accept the inevitable without waiting for the capture of Havana, postponed until the close of the rainy season, but which the administration hopes will never have to be made by ships and troops. For the present there seems to be no reason to longer hope for overtures from the Spanish government which our government can consider.

It has been decided that none of the troops who participated in the actual fighting before Santiago shall be employed on the Porto Rico expedition. There are two reasons for this, first the men have suffered severely from hardships, the climate and from fever, and are entitled to a rest; second, it is deemed to be very bad practice to allow the soldiers who have been exposed to yellow fever to be brought in contact with those fresh from the United States. There is also still another reason, a purely military one. Ten thousand Spanish troops are at Holguin, Manzanillo and other points within striking distance of Santiago, and they might not lose an opportunity to recover the ground lost at Santiago if the place were left insufficiently protected. Therefore Shafter's entire army is to be kept on guard on the high hills in the rear of the town until the men have stamped out the yellow fever. Then they will take a turn at the Spaniards if they can be found, and it may be that Shafter's march will end at Havana. He will work as far from his base as possible after his army is thoroughly refreshed, hunting the enemy wherever they are liable to be found.

Work of the Navy.

The part which the navy is to take in the assault against Porto Rico has been fully matured. The several transport fleets will have with them one or two auxiliary craft, carrying strong secondary batteries of six or eight six-pounders. The report that three monitors are on their way from Key West to San Juan is unauthorized. It is the general understanding, however, that the navy will rely mainly on armored ships for the bombardment of San Juan, as the big battleships and monitors afford the best means of offensive warfare, while their armor belts protect them from such fire as the San Juan batteries can bring to bear. The fortifications there are much like those of Santiago, with a castle at the entrance of the harbor and a number of lesser fortifications leading up to the city. These, however, are viewed with less awe since an examination of the promontory batteries at Santiago has shown them to be antiquated and capable of little effective resistance.

The movement of the ships from Santiago to their new fields of action will begin at once, and it is probable that some of Sampson's ships were detached yesterday and proceeded with General Miles' first expedition towards Porto Rico. They will be needed to cover the debarkation of the troops. The others will follow as soon as the full army expedition is ready to make a landing, when the attack will begin simultaneously on land and sea.

For the Government of Santiago.

By direction of President McKinley a state paper has been issued which provides in general terms for the government of the province of Santiago, and is the first document of the kind ever prepared by a president of the United States. The paper is not only an authorization and instruction of General Shafter for the government of the captured territory, but also a proclamation to the people of the territory of the intention of the government of the United States regarding them and their interests. It marks the formal establishment of a new political power in Cuba, and insures to the people of the territory over which the power extends absolute security in the exercise of their private rights and relations, as well as security to their persons and property. Among other things it says:

While it is held to be the right of the conqueror to levy contributions upon the enemy in their seaports, towns or provinces which may be in his military possession by conquest and to apply the proceeds to defray the expenses of the war, this right is to be exercised within such limitations that it may not savor of confiscation. As the result of military occupation the taxes and duties payable by the inhabitants to the former government become payable to the military occupant, unless he sees fit to substitute for them other rates or modes of contribution to the expenses of the government. The moneys so collected are to be used for the purpose of paying the expenses of government under the military occupation, such as the salaries of the judges and the police, and the payment of the expenses of the army. Private property taken for the use of the army is to be paid for when possible in cash at a fair valuation, and when payment in cash is not possible, receipts are to be given.

All ports and places in Cuba which may be in the actual possession of our land and naval forces will be opened to the commerce of all neutral powers, as well as our own, in articles not contraband of war, upon payment of the prescribed rates of duty which may be in force at the time of the importation.

Uncertain of Their Ground.

Santiago, July 19.—The residents of the city seem to be uncertain of their ground, moved alternately by regret that the Spanish sovereignty has ceased to be potential in Santiago province and by a feeling of happiness that the Americans are here to feed them and to keep the Cubans in leash.

As a rule the residents are well dressed, the men wearing brown duck clothes and the women being attired in light fabrics, tastefully patterned. All appear to have money and to be willing to spend it liberally for food.

Absolutely nothing is left in the city except wine, so that the residents for the present must be dependent upon the Americans for supplies and upon the Red Cross staff for medical attendance.

Brought In Two Prizes.

Key West, July 19.—Monday prize crews brought in the Three Belles, a schooner, and the Pilgrim, a sloop, seized July 6 near Manzanillo. They encountered suicide and Spanish bullets, and, buffeted about by hostile winds, drifted helplessly about in strange seas until well nigh hopeless of ever reaching shore. Both prizes were under the British flag, bound from Kingston for Manzanillo with food supplies. The Belles' captain, an Englishman, jumped overboard after a debauch.

Several Gunboats Grounded.

London, July 19.—A special dispatch from Havana dated Monday says: "Seven American warships heavily bombarded Manzanillo this morning. Three steamers of the Mendez line were set on fire. Several gunboats in the harbor issued for the defense of the town, but were stranded. The result of the bombardment is not yet known here."

All of the Prisoners Landed.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 19.—All the prisoners in the sick bay of the Harvard were landed Monday afternoon and taken to the new hospital building near the other fever-stricken patients. While the condition of the men in the hospital, speaking generally, is improving, the critical cases are still likely to result fatally, two deaths having occurred yesterday. At 5:30 these bodies were given burial with the usual honors.

Orders were received allowing the transfer of six Spanish nurses from the stockade to the naval hospital, but as their officers refused to vouch for their safe return, Colonel Forney had them returned to the stockade. The health of all the men inside the stockade is excellent.

The Harvard took on board supplies of water, coal and stores, while the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid association sent on a barge load of food and clothing which is to be forwarded to the men at the front.

The arrangement of the guard and battery at the camp now makes escape out of the question. Captain Russell is quoted as saying: "You cannot drive these Spaniards outside the stockade. They are just beginning to find out what life is."

Not Recognized by Dewey.

London, July 19.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "United States Consul Wildman informs me that as the German cruiser Irene was passing Mariveles, off Manila, the other day, the Hugh McCulloch was sent after her to ask her to stop. As the Irene refused to obey a shell was sent across her bow and a small boat went to discover what she was doing. The German admiral protested and insisted that German ships had a right to enter the harbor without being searched, a claim which Admiral Dewey declined to recognize.

"It is reported that Admiral Von Diederichs, who is in command of the German squadron at Manila, interviewed Captain Chichester of the British cruiser Immortality as to what he would do if the Germans interfered with the bombardment of Manila. Captain Chichester replied that only Admiral Dewey knew himself."

Fainted at Seeing Blood.

South Framingham, July 19.—Eight companies have now been vaccinated, and it is expected that the remaining four companies forming the third battalion will have been inoculated by tonight. One 6-footer recruit fainted at seeing blood while a comrade was having his arm scratched.

About 1200 bicycles were checked on the field Sunday, and the receipts from this and other sources netted nearly $500, a good showing for Sunday, which goes into the regimental exchange. Chaplain House, the fund treasurer, says he has now a surplus of about $600 in profits from the exchange, which will be disbursed as a dividend among the companies.

The greatest anxiety obtains as to when the regiment will move. Rations were issued up to Friday, and now others for five days more have been laid. As the two orders for rations preceding this last one were each for 10 days it appears that the regiment's stay in present quarters is not to be of prolonged duration.

Sick and Wounded.

Cincinnati, July 19.—The second hospital train with 84 sick and wounded soldiers from Santiago has arrived at Fort Thomas, Ky., and all are reported as doing well. Promptly on arrival the transfer was made to the hospital. All will recover. The following are among the arrivals: Second Massachusetts—Arthur L. Carey, company M; David DeTour, company A; John W. Eaton, corporal, company B; Edward Demour, company D; F. C. Schiller, company L.

Buffalo to Be Made Useful.

Washington, July 19.—There is yet some dispute over the final disposition of the Buffalo, formerly the Nictheroy, now at Norfolk. The bureau of construction has reported that to put her in first-class shape would cost $250,000. The department refused to expend such an amount, and for a time it was supposed the Buffalo would not become a cruiser. Commander Hamphill, who will command the Buffalo if she is converted into a cruiser, informed the department that with a crew he could make the repairs deemed necessary, such as tearing out the woodwork and replacing it with ironwork, and getting rid of yellow fever germs that may be lurking about the ship. It has been decided to allow this, and the ship will be fitted out with guns and sent to the war. She has been ordered to New York.

BOOTLESS INTERVIEW.

An Emissary of General Aguinaldo Dickered For Peace.

Asked Spanish Ruler to Agree to a Republic.

Americans Were to Be Persuaded to Withdraw Ships and Men.

Hong Kong, July 19.—An important interview has just been held between General Aguinaldo's secretary, Legarda, a prominent white man, and the Spanish commander, Captain General Augustin. The insurgents' representatives urged General Augustin to surrender the city, asserting that 50,000 insurgents surrounded Manila and were able to enter it at any moment. Thus far, they added, the insurgents had been restrained with difficulty, but if the Spaniards continued stubborn the result would be that the insurgents would be compelled to bombard and storm the city, "with the inevitable slaughter, unparalleled in history, because in the excitement of battle they cannot discriminate." Continuing, the captain general's visitors advised him to disregard the official fictions regarding alleged Spanish victories in Cuba and reinforcements coming to the Philippine islands, and proposed a reconciliation between the Spaniards and the Philippines under a republican flag and a joint endeavor to persuade the Americans to abandon hostilities in the Philippines. Finally, the representatives of the insurgents proposed an appeal to the powers to recognize the independence of the Philippine islands. The captain general replied that he must fight, however hopeless the Spanish cause. Legarda then returned to Cavite, taking with him the white man, who is a paroled prisoner.

The natives inside the city say they received a fortnight ago a concerted signal to prepare for storming the walls. A second signal, fixing the date of the assault, has not yet been issued, and they are tired of waiting and are losing faith in Aguinaldo. The latter, it is alleged, finds it extremely difficult to capture the town fortifications. His previous successes, it is pointed out, were easy, because of the nature of the defenses, which suited his skirmishes. It is further alleged that the principal points captured by the insurgents were obtained possession of through treachery. The insurgents are now bringing artillery around by sea from Malabon, which is tedious and troublesome work. They are also obtaining detailed reports of the condition of affairs from the inside of the city.

Admiral Dewey is establishing a more strict blockade, lest it be invalidated by permitting neutrals to visit Cavite and Malabon and send and receive mails, enclosing surreptitiously Spanish dispatches. He has threatened to station warships opposite the city, which might precipitate hostilities, as the Spanish officers declare they will certainly fire on any American within range, regardless of the consequences.

The second installment of American troops is expected here daily, and the last detachments are booked to arrive here early in August. Probably military operations will be deferred until the September dry season, when it is cooler, and possibly then bloodshed may be unnecessary.

A Spanish steamer, the Filipinas, has just been brought in here in the hands of the insurgents. It appears that she was on the northern coast and escaping to China with a native crew on board when the latter revolted, killed the Spanish officers and brought the vessel to Cavite.

The Spaniards are daily employing convicts to fell trees and burn huts on the outskirts of the town, and fusillades continue; but otherwise the position is unchanged. The stock of flour is practically exhausted, but the supplies of rice and buffalo meat will last for months longer.

The veto of Mayor Sears on the order appropriating $1,000 for repairs on North street must surely meet the approval of business men and others who are interested in economy. As the Mayor in his veto says, the street is one but little used, there are but very few houses upon the street, and as a whole it is in a far better condition than half of the main streets of the city. Near the South street end there is a space for a distance of about one hundred feet that is in a bad condition, and this, it is estimated, can be made safe for a much smaller sum than that carried by the order; and in view of the demands and needs of many streets, that it is much more important should be repaired, not much harm will arise from refraining from spending a large amount of money upon North street at present.

According to the following statement by the Boston Post it would seem as though the war revenue act has achieved an immediate success in getting money into the treasury. It says, it has increased the daily income of the government by nearly three-quarters of a million dollars, or at the rate of more than $200,000,000 a year. This is about 25 per cent. more than the framers of the bill expected, and the full effect of the war taxes has not yet begun to be felt.

Some method should be devised for the better care of the surplus water at the fountain in City Square. As it is now, the surplus water goes into the street and as a result the streets in that vicinity are always muddy.

Adams Academy Notes.

The entering class next year bids fair to be one of the largest in the history of the school, if one may judge by the results of the entrance examinations. Twenty-three were admitted to the new class and one was admitted to the third class. Other boys have signified their intention of trying the next examinations which will be held 9th September. While it is hardly expected that all who passed the examinations will enter the school the increase will undoubtedly be large.

Returns from Harvard college show that the four boys who took the admission examinations are all admitted. Two other members of the graduating class were admitted to Dartmouth college.

Mr. Lawrence William Lyons, who during his course at the academy has ranked as first scholar, maintained his high standard of scholarship in his Harvard examinations. He has passed all of his examinations without condition and has received honors in algebra, latin composition, elementary latin, and advanced latin. He also passed in three hours of advanced work more than the required amount.

Since the prize declamation exercises, much favorable comment has been heard of Mr. Avery's flute-playing. It certainly was of a high order of excellence. It may interest his friends to know that he has received several offers from musical organizations of the first rank to make flute playing his profession; but he plays solely for the entertainment of his friends and for his own amusement, from a love of music for its own sake.

CITY COUNCIL.

Mayor Sears Sends a Veto on the North Street Order.

Many Important Orders Passed

But Little New Business—Getting Ready for a Vacation.

The City Council held a busy meeting Monday evening and considerable important business was transacted. The meeting was also interesting from the fact that Mayor Sears sent to the City Council his first veto. The absent members were Councilmen Badger, Cain, Jameson, Merrick, Owens and Poland.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Mayor in a communication called attention to the order of $5,000 for a new city stables. This amount was insufficient and he recommended an additional appropriation.

Communication laid on the table until later in the evening when Councilman Keith offered an order for $1,500 additional appropriation which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

The Mayor returned without his signature the order appropriating $1,000 for widening and repairing North street. His reasons were that he believed the street could be improved for a less expenditure. All of the street with the exception of about one hundred feet was in good condition. He did not believe a sidewalk should be built on a street so little used as this.

Councilman Newcomb moved to lay on the table. Councilman Sidelinger asked the reason of the motion and was imformed by Councilman Newcomb that as a member of the Council he had that privilege.

Councilman Sidelinger said he asked in good faith and unless there was some good reason he hoped the motion would not prevail.

Councilman Little thought if by laying the matter on the table it would interfere with borrowing money on the loan order the motion should not pass.

Councilman Newcomb said that what he had done was not beccause of any dear friend, or because he was looking for votes, but what his constituents had asked. He knew that there were no millionaires upon that street, but the petition came from common people. The Committee on Streets had investigated and it was not right to throw their report one side. The people there were entitled to some improvement.

The Council refused to pass the order over the Mayor's veto. Ten voting in favor of passing the order over the veto as follows: Clark, Hultman, Keith, Newcomb, Nicol, Packard, Parker, Prout, Swithin, Willard. Six against.

PETITIONS.

Several petitions for licenses were received and referred.

A petition was received asking that Glover avenue between Hancock street and Faxon road be accepted as a public way. To Committee on Streets.

A petition was received remonstrating against a concrete sidewalk on Franklin street between Water and Payne streets. Laid on table.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Rules made a jumbled report and upon its request the Council took a recess of five minutes that the committee might fix the report.

After the Council reassembled the Committee reported a substitute order, which provided that all petitions and orders for streets, bridges, public buildings, etc., received after August 1st shall be referred to the next Council. The order was adopted.

The Committee on State aid reported orders granting William M. Bird $10 per month, military aid, and James Markey $4 per month, State aid. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance reported an order appropriating $3,296.19 the amount awarded E. C. Harris by the courts for damages. Ordered to second reading.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass an order appropriating $550 for finishing a room at the John Hancock school building. Order passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the loan order of 8,650. Laid on the table until later in the evening when the order was ammended so as to make the amount $7,650, and under suspension of the rules the order was passed.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass an order appropriating $1,434 for the widening of Hancock street between Music Hall block and School street.

Councilman Little moved to amend by adding the words "Providing Henry H. Faxon relinquishes all claim for damages to his property by the city."

In support of his amendment he said the reason was that at the public hearing Mr. Faxon was emphatic in his remarks, that his property would not be damaged but increased in value, and the Council should not increase his property and pay him for so doing.

Councilman Packard did not look at it in that way. If one is paid damages all should be paid. What Mr. Faxon said was if others did not claim damage he should not.

The amendment was lost. The order was laid on the table until later in the evening when it was passed to be ordained. Councilman Little voting No.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass an order appropriating $1,200 for widening Hancock and Granite streets at their junction. Rules suspended and order passed.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass, an order appropriating $500 for a drain on Old Colony street. Rules suspended and order passed.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $10,000 for permanent sidewalks; also that the specifications for a part of Ward One and Wards Four and Six, which had been accidentally omitted be added.

These specifications were a tar concrete sidewalk on Granite street between the railroad to Whitwell street; a gravel sidewalk on Willard street between T. F. Mannex stone sheds and the Gridley Bryant school; a gravel sidewalk on Newbury avenue and on Botolph street between New bury avenue and Squantum street.

Upon motion of Councilman McGrath the order with the remonstrants was recommitted.

The Committee on Finance reported an order refunding William Walsh taxes amounting to $57.10.

The joint Committee on Finance and State aid reported ought not to pass on the order granting citizens of Quincy who have or may enlist, during the present war as soldiers and sailors, $7 per month. The committee gave as is reason that the opinion of the City Solicitor was that under the existing laws the money could not be legally appropriated by the city.

Upon motion of Councilman Packard the order was recommitted.

The Committee on Finance reported an order authorizing the Sewer Commissioners to employ clerical assistance and to charge expense of the same to the sewer construction account. Passed, Upon motion of Councilman Packard it was voted that when the Council adjourn it be until next Monday evening.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order granting a number of minor licenses which were passed.

The Committee on Streets reported ought to pass an order granting the Telephone Company a location for poles on Copeland, Squantum and Hancock streets and Quincy avenue. Passed.

The Committee on Streets reported leave to withdraw on petitions for lights at the corner of Squantum and Huckins streets and corner of Warren and Standish avenues. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order appropriating $1,000 for rebuilding the culvert over town brook on Washington street. To committee on Finance.

The Committee on Streets reported ought to pass an order naming the locality at the junction of Quincy avenue and Howard street, Newcomb square. Passed.

The Committee on Ordinances reported correctly engrossed the order appropriating $11,000 for paving a part of Hancock street. Passed.

MOTIONS, ORDERS, ETC.

Councilman Sidelinger offered an order appropriating $3,684 to cover orders passsed earlier in the evening. To Committee on Finance.

Councilman Packard offered an order that the officials of Quincy extend to wives, widows, mothers, and children under sixteen years, of soldiers and sailors, in the service of the United States in the present war who were at the time of their enlistment citizens of Quincy, State Aid not exceeding $7 per month, to commence August 1.

Councilman Packard tried to have the order put through at this meeting but the council was against him and the order was sent to the joint Committee on Finance and State Aid.

CALENDAR.

The order granting the Elecric Light and Power Company a location for poles on Prospect avenue and Clive street took its second reading and was passed.

The order granting the Telephone Company a location for underground conducts on Temple, Hancock, Washington and Granite streets and Quincy avenue took its second reading and was passed.

The order making the temporary location of the flag staff at Wollaston, permanent took its second reading and was passed.

The Ordinance relating to house connection with the sewer system took its second reading and was laid on the table.

Upon motion of Councilman Keith the Ordinance was ordered printed and mailed to the members of the City Council this week.

The auctioneers bond of Charles H. Johnson was approved.

Adjourned at 9.50.

CAMPING OUT.

Mayor Quincy of Boston wants to establish a country week of his own by which the great mass of boys of the city who have no chance for a vacation can know the pleasure of such an outing under the auspices of their city, to which they must be responsible. He has proposed to the board of aldermen the establishment of a free camp on Long Island, in Boston harbor, where there is a stretch of beach for bathing, and ample room for drilling and for sports. The land is owned by the city and city boats make daily trips to and from the island, so that transportation would be practically free. A small sum would equip the place for a camping ground and the cost of maintenance has been estimated at two dollars a week for each boy. So the mayor asks for $2,500 to try the experiment. He would send one hundred boys at a time to the camp for one week's stay, the company changing each week for the remaining six weeks of the school vacation. This would give to six hundred boys an outing such as they would not otherwise have, and it would give such an opportunity to show those boys what proper living and proper restraint are as seldom comes into their lives. The camp will be conducted on military lines, with strict discipline. The boys will be drilled regularly; swimming will be taught by competent instructors, athletic games provided and incentives offered to excel in them. If Mayor Quincy's plan is carried out there will be no charge for the boys during this experimental year, but it would be expected that in the future the parents of boys who could afford to pay for their outing would do so.

Mayor Quincy has other hopes for his scheme than the simple giving of pleasure, although that is no small item in the life of a boy who has rarely seen the country and knows none of the exhilaration or the restfulness of a change of environment. Back of the scheme is a recognition of what subjection of discipline will do for the boys who are subject to no restraint during the summer months; of the influence upon their mental and moral attitude of community life under kind guidance; and of the actual physical benefit that a week of such living would be to them. It is a fine plan, but a week is a very little space of time.

The providing of summer outings for its young people is a somewhat novel undertaking for a city, but in the spirit of reaching-out and of humane interest that characterizes the municipality of today, it would seem to be a suitable matter of experimentation. That the camp-week will do all its enthusiastic champions would claim for it there is a doubt; that it will be a potent influence for good in the lives of the young people there can be no question. —New Bedford Standard.

Another Burglary.

There was another burglary in this city on Monday night, but the parties got but little for their trouble. The place entered was the drug store of Mr. Loring, at cor. Hancock and Beach streets. Entrance was first obtained to the cellar thence to street floor by a scuttle. All that is missed from the store is $1.25 in money. The police have been notified.

The bridal veil of a Japanese young lady is subsequently used as her shroud. Directly after the marriage it is carefully put away and reserved until death makes its use again necessary.

TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "'leventy-'leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. BOYS MADE HAPPY.

Quincy Visitors at Camp Make Life Pleasant for Co. K.

Camp Dalton,
Tuesday, July 19th, 1888.

Yesterday morning was fair in camp but the afternoon started in the same as last Wednesday.

We were started for the mess house for drill. The rain ceased and we were marched into the field for skirmish drill. It was no use as the rain came down again. We marched back to cover again and remained until the recall. The weather cleared and the ground quickly dried.

The pleasing event of the afternoon was the arrival of Fred Tirrell, F. C. Packard, A. G. Durgin, Capt. Doane, G. H. Wilson and C. F. Pettengill.

They brought forty loaves of bread and twenty-five pounds of butter. This is a sensible idea and a luxury.

These gentlemen have the interest of the soldiers at heart and deserve praise for the manner in which they have worked for the Company K fund. We will never want while these gentlemen are able to help us.

Mr. Wilson is aa frequent visitor and never comes without a box or bundle, and always has a few pipes and tobacco for some one.

An act which showed the generosity o Chief Packard occurred yesterday during his visit to camp. He asked one of the boys why he did not come home. The boy replied he had no money. Chief Packard at once gave him five dollars and told him when it was gone to ask for more. He left the boy in a happy frame of mind. Such quiet acts prove the man.

W. M. Packard and wife were in camp yesterday. He presented the company with several boxes of fine cigars. Walter is all right.

William Sampson was also a visitor at camp.

The regiment band, under the direction of Prof. Lynn is fast becoming perfect and from the three airs their list has risen to almost anything. There are several new high priced players. A band concert is held every night.

Lieut. Spear is tickled to death over his new sword and well he might be.

The boys are gaining in knowledge every day and will soon be old soldiers.

Santiago still continues to be on hand for roll call and drill, and absent at all other times.

We have a fresh squad in our midst. For names they take the bun: Santiago, Papas nig, Bill Nye, Mary, Ben Butler, One Lung, Shanky George, and John L. Sullivan.

The visitors remained until dress parade, and were well satisfied with it. They thought the work done was wonderful for such short practice.. They also took in the mess room at supper time. The way the boys lit into the bread and butter was pay enough for their trouble. Some did not know what butter was.

Charles Hearn left a large supply of head-ease the day he was down which comes in handy.

The rough riders are still on deck.

There is little that one gets that the others don't share.

The soft side of the pine floors for beds is all right. "I don't mind."

We make our beds with a broom.

There will be many sore arms among the boys of Co. K tonight, for they all passed through the surgeons hands today and were vaccinated.

C. F. Carlson was in camp yesterday and shouted the boys with 150 cigars, after dress parade.

The daughter of the regiment was also a visitor.

Weymouth has promised to do its share for Company K, and has already made a good start. MACK.

The Medora.

Mr. S. B. Wiley's new boat Medora, with jib and mainsail rig has proven herself to be a good comfortable and staunch rough weather craft. Mr. Wiley with Mr. Geo. Murray and Mr. Clair Baker of Wollaston as guests left the Wollaston Yacht Club float Friday, July 8th, at 5 P. M., and sailed to Hull where they remained over night, leaving there at 5 A. M. Saturday morning for Provincetown arriving in the old fishing town at 2.30 P. M. that day.

On Sunday the party visited Highland Light and Provinceland by carriage.

Monday at 7 A. M. anchor was weighed and a start for Wellfleet was made where they arrived at 2 P. M. with light wind and at times a dead calm.

Tuesday at 4 A. M. Mr. Wiley put out for blue fish but in this effort he was not successful owing to a hard east wind and heavy sea. At 7 A. M. he started from B illingsgate headed for the Gurnet's where he arrived at 11 o'clock making the run of 28 nautical miles in 4 hours, reefed down pretty well.

Mr. Wiley says that this part of the trip was full of excitement and was just the kind of weather he wanted to try his boat in and was perfectly satisfied with her behavior.

On Wednesday the 13th the Medora laid in Plymouth during the southeast gale. Left Plymouth at 9 A. M. Thursday arriving in Wollaston at 6 P. M. after a beautiful sail along the shore with moderate wind. The brown rugged looking men as they appeared at the clubhouse spoke volumes for the healthfulness of such a cruise.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Gove of Weymouth are celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary today.

WAR IN BRAINTREE.

Attempt to Remove Co. K to Quincy.

There was a hot time in Braintree Monday night in the vicinity of Long's hall, all of which was caused by the thoughts of certain citizens of Braintree who received the idea that an attempt was to be made to move the location of Co. K from Braintree to Quincy. Monday the town was covered with posters calling upon all young men to rally Monday night at the office of the Braintree Bee, as an attempt was being made to take the company from Braintree to Quincy. Aside from this a petition was circulated from house to house for applications for membership, and a number were obtained. Monday night there was a large crowd at the Bee office, and when the twenty-five from Quincy who desired to enlist put in an appearance, they found that the posters had done their work and the Quincy men about faced and started for home.

According to the law half of the members of a provisional company must reside in the town where the company is located, and the Braintree Bee is anxious that the whole company should be located in Braintree. If it was impossible for the original company to obtain its compliment of men without coming to Quincy, the chances are that in the end Quincy may be called upon to help them out.

YELLOW JACK IN CUBA

DR. DOTY TELLS HOW TO CARE FOR OUR SICK SOLDIERS.

He Thinks They Ought to Be Brought to New York—Many Reasons Cited to Show Why It Is the Best Place to Deal With the Disease.

Dr. Alvah H. Doty, health officer of the port of New York, said recently in relation to the dispatch announcing that there were a number of cases of yellow fever now in the field hospital near Santiago:

"I have no official information regarding the report that yellow fever has appeared among our troops at Santiago, and I sincerely hope that it is not so. As near as I can remember, during the past ten years there have been two rather formidable outbreaks of yellow fever in Santiago — one in 1890-1, which, it is said, was introduced by Spanish workmen who had contracted the disease in Porto Rico while on their way to Santiago. At that time there were about 800 cases, about 30 per cent of which were fatal. In 1895 another outbreak occurred, not quite as formidable as the one in 1890, but the mortality was greater. Since that time a few cases have from time to time been reported. Therefore it would not be surprising if the disease had broken out again, and, although every precaution has been taken by Surgeon General George M. Sternberg to prevent an outbreak of this disease among our troops, still there are factors over which the general and his assistants would have very little control. I refer to the extreme heat, the frequent wettings which our soldiers are subjected to, the great nervous strain, irregularity in eating, etc., which are conditions extremely favorable to the propagation of this disease if it should appear.

"That prompt action was necessary in taking Santiago before yellow fever appeared among the troops was evidently fully appreciated by the commanders of our army in Cuba by the vigorous and rapid manner in which they have pushed forward to Santiago. It is fortunate that the medical department of the United States army is under the direction of Dr. Sternberg, whose great experience in yellow fever eminently fits him for the direction of the medical officers now with our troops at that place. He has left no stone unturned to instruct his assistants how to protect our troops at the front, and he has endeavored to secure the services of men who have had experience with yellow fever, and there is no doubt that the danger from the disease among our soldiers will be reduced to the minimum.

"If it be true that yellow fever is present, it would seem to me that troops on their return should be brought north instead of being landed at southern ports within the yellow fever belt. The maximum period of the incubation of yellow fever is five days. Therefore troops brought from Santiago to Florida or some other southern ports would reach there within that period (five days), and it would probably be deemed necessary to hold them at some station until the full five days had elapsed before sending them north. If during their detention cases of fever, etc., which might be regarded as suspicious, should occur, it would probably be regarded as only safe to hold them for an additional period. This might be kept up indefinitely, until it would be hard to say when the men would be released. In addition, it must be remembered that we have recently had yellow fever in the south, and it is possible that it might, in some way, reach the detention camp and infect those who were held for observation.

"On the other hand, if the troops are brought directly north, say to New York, the voyage would take about seven days, which more than covers the period of incubation. Therefore, upon the arrival of these troops, if after a close inspection they were found to be free from infectious disease, there is no reason why they should be detained longer perhaps than to perform disinfection. If the disease should break out on board, the case or cases would be carefully isolated by the surgeon in attendance, and there would be little danger of the remaining soldiers becoming infected. On the arrival here the case or cases would be removed to Swinburne island and the remaining troops placed for observation on Hoffman island, where we have accommodations for between 2,000 and 3,000 persons at an hour's notice.

"This work is nothing new to us at this quarantine, as during the past two or three years we have had a great many cases of yellow fever coming from infected ports, and during the outbreak at Panama last year nearly every steamer arriving from Colon during a certain period brought cases of yellow fever to this place, but in no instance did the disease pass quarantine or secondary cases as a result of this infection occur in the city or vicinity. Dealing with merchant ships carrying crews and immigrants, which are subject to comparatively little discipline, is much harder than with vessels bringing trained soldiers under the care of competent and vigilant medical officers. We are constantly dealing with people in large numbers, sometimes 4,000 or 5,000 a day, and my officers and men have had long experience in this work. Therefore it would not be very much more than our ordinary duty, and I have no fear that this arrangement would be followed by any unpleasant results.

"In my mind it is the logical and practical way to deal with the matter. In addition it must be remembered that we are outside of the yellow fever belt, and there is very little danger that the disease would extend if it were brought here. I am fully prepared for any emergency and shall co-operate with General Sternberg in every possible way if it should be decided to bring the troops direct to this port."—New York Sun.

ALTON BOY'S LETTER.

One of the Rough Riders Writes of His Experience In Battle.

Harry Van Treese, son of Rev. F. M. Van Treese of Alton, Ills., wrote the following letter to his parents after the first fight near Santiago, in which the rough riders, of which he was one, were ambushed:

IN CAMP, June 26.

DEAR PAPA AND ALL THE FOLKS—Well, I have been under fire and came out with bullet holes in my clothes, but no wounds. First to organize, first to embark, first to land, and now the first battle of this campaign. We landed without any difficulty and took up our march to Santiago, the rough riders about four miles in advance of the army. We engaged the Spaniards in battle, about 4,000 of them to 800 of us, but we stood like rocks and fired volley after volley into them. They had fortifications built of stones, but we charged them and drove them like sheep. They had some artillery with them and rapid fire guns. We opened the battle, and after an hour's hard fighting we had four troops of dismounted cavalry re-enforcements and one squadron of colored cavalry from the Seventh regulars. But Colonel Wood's regiment made four charges after fighting two hours and a half, and the Spaniards fled, carrying their wounded and part of their dead. We killed as many as 200 of the Spanish and wounded as many more. Our regiment suffered 9 dead and 30 or 40 wounded. Our captain was shot down about ten feet from me, and many more wounded.

The bullets sung and spit around me like a swarm of bees, and God only knows how I got out alive. But, do you know, I like the sound just to get a whack at the Spaniards. We have become the pride of the army, and if I should fall at Santiago remember that your son fought in one of the most difficult and historical battles ever fought, and camped right on the spot where we sent them below, and not above. I have seen nine of our bravest men fall, and have seen Colonel Wood ride to the front of the firing line, dismount under the heaviest fire and lead his horse up and down the line in front of the enemy, his horse cropping grass as he walked, giving orders. Don't you think if such men as that can face the enemy I can afford to fall? My opinion is we shall have a hard time taking Santiago. What the papers said in regard to misery here is all true, and the Spaniards are as cruel as said to be. We gave no quarter to any of them. In three days from this date I will be either in Santiago or in some other place. The regulars and volunteers are determined to take the city. Our fleet has razed the fortifications at the front of the harbor, and, it is said, can go in at any moment. Goodby. Your son, HARRY.

LITERARY ROUGH RIDERS.

Chicago Press Club Will Go to the Front if More Men Are Needed.

A regiment of rough riding literary men will be mustered in if there is a third call for troops. The Chicago Press club has declared that the sword is mightier than the pen by unanimously agreeing at its meeting the other day to adopt the regiment of cavalry formed by John A. Logan early in the war and more recently under the command of Colonel J. Paddock.

The idea of forming a regiment of cavalry among the writers, artists and men of kindred nature originated with Major Elliot Durand. Major Durand was one of the first to join Logan's troops, and when the latter abandoned the regiment the major, being an old newspaper man and a member of the Press club, thought it would be a good idea to give the men of pencils and paste a chance to show their patriotism in a material way and suggested to Colonel Paddock that the regiment be turned over to the Press club and be named the Chicago Press Club Rough Riders. The matter was brought before the club at its recent monthly meeting and a resolution adopting the regiment was passed amid such enthusiasm as the Press club has not seen in many a day. Major Durand was elected lieutenant colonel. The idea is to have the regiment filled, as nearly as possible, with members of the club. Only officers with acknowledged military ability will be chosen, and they will be selected from among the members of the club so far as practicable.

Colonel Paddock, the commanding officer, is an old regular army man with a long experience in the west and Indian fighting. He has been shot a score of times and is now retired on full pay because of physical disability. It is said that no such regiment of soldiers has ever before figured in a war. Several members of the club have already enlisted in the new regiment.—Chicago Post.

Pays to Be Polite.

Long after his other achievements have been forgottten Cervera's treatment of Hobson and its recompense will come in handy to be told small boys as an illustration that it pays to be polite.—Albany Argus.

GOSSIP OF THE WAR.

The prison for war captives on Seavey's island has been named Camp Long.

More than $200,000 "head money" will be distributed among the officers and men who destroyed Cervera's fleet.

The government has given the chief of engineers discretionary power to remove the mines from Atlantic harbors.

The bombardment of Santiago by ships of Admiral Samspon's fleet set fire to the town in four places and caused great destruction.

Robert Mather of Chicago, who offered the Union league's brigade to Mr. McKinley, quoted the president as saying that unless Spain immediately begs for peace he will call for 100,000 more volunteers.

Major De Granpre, military attache of the French embassy, who recently returned from Santiago, says the fighting qualities of the United States forces are not matched by those of any other country in the world.

Lieutenant Usher of the Ericsson, who was alongside Admiral Sampson's flagship when the battle of July 3 began, says that the New York was ten miles from the scene of battle, and that her forward pair of engines were uncoupled, so that she could not go fast, and that she was at no time closer to the combatants than when she started until the batter was over.

Theft at Fort Adams.

Newport, July 19.—The adjutant's box at Fort Adams containing the wages of many of the soldiers, an amount thought to be $800, was stolen either Sunday night or Monday morning. Three regulars of the Seventh heavy artillery were arrested on suspicion, and are being held for court-martial.

The money belonged for the most part to the volunteers, and they had entrusted it to the adjutant for safekeeping until transmission home. After the alarm of the theft had been given guards completely surrounded the fort, and nobody was allowed to leave until his innocence had been reasonably established.

Five Thousand Persons Attracted by It In New York.

Swing In a Breakaway Declared a Foul.

General Riot Imminent Over the Decision of the Referee.

New York, July 19.—Jack Downey of Brooklyn and Danny McBride of New York met last night in the presence of over 5000. Downey was the favorite at 100 to 70. These odds were soon changed to 100 to 50 on Downey. The men were announced to box 25 rounds at catch weights.

The first five rounds were lively and hard fought. In the sixth round McBride began with a left on the face, and Downey sent his right to the wind. They exchanged very hard lefts on the face and Downey swung a hard right to the head. The men clinched, and Downey swung his right to the head in the breakaway, putting McBride to the floor. Referee Dowdell disqualified Downey for fouling, and sent the men to their corners, giving the fight to McBride.

The police jumped into the ring as Downey tried to break away from his handlers. The Downey people were wild with excitement and a general riot was imminent, but the excitement subsided after a few minutes, and Announcer Dunn said that the referee had disqualified Downey for hitting in the breakaway after being told to break clean.

TWO OF THE THREE.

Pittsburgs Lose a Second Time In the City of Culture.

Boston, July 19.—There were many flies and fly hits in the third game of the Boston-Pittsburg series, due to the sultry and heavy air, but more particularly to the bats of the home players early yesterday afternoon in the efforts to solve Rhines' pitching. After the champions sized up the ex-Cincinnati twirler's underhand risers and slow balls, the runs came in well-earned bunches, and Boston won the second game of the series. For the first two innings Willis could not be hit out of the infield by the visitors, and he pitched an admirable game. In the sixth inning, with the bases filled, he struck out Schriver, and only one run was in. He had fine speed and held the Pittsburgs down to seven singles.

The Boston line-up underwent another change or two. Ladd, the lanky youth who made a record with the Fall River champions since 1893, played left field. He hit the ball hard each time, and once safely to right. Score:

The St. Louis players had things pretty much their own way in the opening innings in Brooklyn, but in the fifth inning the Brooklyns got range of Sudhoff's shoots and won, 7 to 6.

The Wilkesbarres won from the Providences by superior work at the bat and in the field. Coughlin, the Wilkesbarres' new third baseman from the New England league, showed up well. Score: 4 to 3.

The Cincinnatis defeated the Philadelphias by better hitting. Both teams put up a ragged game in fielding, but the Phillies were the worst. Score: 5 to 4.

The management of the Louisville Baseball club has given the customary 10 days' notice of release to Second Baseman John Stafford, a Massachusetts player.

The New Yorks jumped back into the first division yesterday, the beating they gave the Louisvilles and the Pittsburgs' loss to the Bostons landing them in sixth place. Score: 5 to 1.

Kilroy pitched winning ball for four innings in Baltimore, but could not stand the pace, so the Chicagos substituted Thornton in the fifth. Score: 9 to 3 in favor of the Hanlons.

There was no game in Springfield yesterday, owing to the failure of the Syracuse team to show up. The Springfields will claim a forfeit.

An interesting tie game between the Washingtons and the Clevelands was called on account of darkness. Both teams played well.

Warner's Heavy Peculations.

Springfield, July 19.—The temporary receivers of the Hampshire Savings bank of Northampton have given out a statement to the effect that the defalcation of Treasurer Lewis Warner amounts to $400,000. With the $240,000 which Bank Examiner Ewer estimates were taken from the Hampshire County National bank, Warner's peculations amount, in the aggregate, to $640,000. To cover his peculations Warner overestimated the amount of deposits and the number of depositors, and overvalued the securities held by the bank.

NEW ENGLAND CROPS.

Rainy Visitation Would Be Welcomed by the Farming Population.

Boston, July 19.—Last week's rains were not very copious, yet they refreshed the earth in Rhode Island, Connecticut and eastern Massachusetts, producing a noticeable effect in the fields. The absence of moisture is felt elsewhere in New England, though the crops have not begun to wilt so as to cause alarm. Frost did considerable damage in the north.

Maine—Observers in the various counties describe different conditions. There is perfect agreement as to hay, of which there is a large crop everywhere. Grain in Androscoggin is rusting badly, while at Washington and Penobscot the condition is most promising at present. Potatoes are good in Washington and Aroostook; in Kennebec, Oxford, Somerset and Waldo, on the other hand, drought and beetles are affecting the plants materially. All crops are growing wonderfully in Knox.

New Hampshire—Belknap potatoes are poor because of the drought, but grain is generally good. Drought is injuring Carroll crops generally. Rain is needed for Cheshire potatoes, corn and pastures, and apples are falling. Showers have improved Merrimac crops, but apples will be short. In Rockingham hoed crops need rain; pastures still good; haying soon finished. Corn, potatoes and small fruit are suffering in Strafford and Sullivan.

Vermont—From all counties come reports of the desire for rain, the want of which is beginning to be felt, though the crops are in fair condition. Potatoes are rusting badly in some sections of Addison, and corn is below the average. Dry weather is rolling corn and damaging potatoes in Bennington. In Grand Isle apples will be less than half a crop. An unusually large crop of hay has been half secured in Rutland. Windsor will have a large crop of fine quality hay.

Connecticut—Corn is doing finely in Fairfield and Tolland and poorly in New Haven Apples will not be abundant, while the reverse condition is true as to the "apples of the earth." Small fruits and vegetables will be abundant in Fairfield. In New London a second crop of clover is starting well.

Massachusetts—Franklin and Middlesex report the only indications of a good yield of apples, and in all counties potatoes are thriving and other crops in a state to furnish little ground of complaint save cranberries in Plymouth, where the dry spell has been injurious. Hay is as plentiful as in the adjoining states. Hampden will have a plenty of berries.

Rhode Island—Rain gave new vigor to the crops, which are looking well throughout the state. In Kent oats are light and apples falling.

Irresponsibility Alleged.

Worcester, July 19.—Senator Hoar has received a reply to his speech in denunciation of utterances imputed to Professor Norton of Harvard, in which the latter says: "You assail me for words which you say you have seen quoted as addressed by me to 'the youth of the university' where you and I were classmates more than 50 years ago. If you saw them thus quoted you were led into error. No such words were addressed by me to the youth of the university. They are garbled sentences from an account, in a western newspaper, of an interview with me dishonorably obtained and incorrectly reported."

The senator makes public a letter in which he remarks to Professor Norton: "Whether they were literally reported or not, they are in general accord, I am sorry to say, with the sentiments I am constantly in the habit of hearing of as coming from you, both in public utterance and private speech, and of the style with which I used to be not unfamiliar when I occasionally met you. All lovers of Harvard and all lovers of the country have felt for a long time that your relations to the university made your influence bad for the college and bad for the youth of the country. It was high time that somebody should say what I have said. I could easily, from my own memory and from the report of persons who have met you on social occasions, point out many utterances quite as deserving of severe reproof as those to which I have adverted. I am afraid that the habit of bitter and sneering speech, about persons and public affairs, has so grown upon you that you do not yourself know always what you say."

Providence People In Trouble.

Providence, July 19.—Three more persons who are alleged to have been concerned in irregularities in the drawing of pensions have been arrested. James H. Nolan, a notary public, is accused of ante-dating pension vouchers. Rebecca Reynolds and her daughter, Hattie Reynolds, are under arrest charged with drawing a pension for Mrs. Reynolds, to which she was not entitled. The woman had been married twice, her first husband being a veteran. After marriage the second time she claims to have found that her new husband was not legally married to her by reason of another marriage, and she then applied for a pension on account of her first husband's service. The government claims that her second marriage was a legal one.

Duel Not Sanguinary.

Paris, July 19.—A duel arising from the Zola trial was fought yesterday noon at St. Cloud by Paul Deroudode, an essayist and poet, and Gustave Hubbard, a member of the chamber of deputies. The latter seized his adversary's sword with his left hand, whereupon the seconds stopped the duel, declaring that Hubbard had disqualified himself. Two duels between well-known journalists growing out of the trial are impending.

World's Record Lowered.

Washington, July 19.—W. Fred Sims of Philadelphia established a new world's record in the one mile handicap professional race. He was the scratch man and finished the mile in 1.59 4-5, clipping two-fifths off the record made a few weeks ago in Baltimore by Johnson.

Accident to His Highness.

London, July 19.—While passing Sunday at Wadedeson Manor, Aylsbury, the Prince of Wales slipped on a stair and sprained his knee. While being conveyed to the railroad station in a chair the latter broke and his highness received a shaking.

A man in the darkness of hopeless disease is of all men most miserable. When doctors and medicines innumerable have been tried and found wanting, and loving friends vainly urge upon him the food he cannot eat and which brings him no nourishment or strength, what is to be done?

Men and women who have sunken so far into weakness and disease that the whole body seems to be permeated and poisoned by it have found health, strength and vigor through the transforming, electrifying power of that wonderful "Golden Medical Discovery" which Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., proffered, thirty years ago, to sick and suffering humanity.

During all the years since then this marvelous "Discovery" has been building up weak and debilitated constitutions by its extraordinary influence upon the human, nutritive system. It gives the digestive organism keen power and capacity to appropriate every life-giving element from the food taken into the stomach and transforms it into rich, highly vitalized blood and healthy flesh, bone, sinew and nerve fiber.

Consumption in all its earlier stages is arrested and counteracted by the tissue-building, flesh-making, life-promoting power of this grand medicine and there is no darkness of bodily ailment so dense but it will shed upon the sufferer the light of renewed hope.

MILES LEFT SANTIAGO

The First Contingent on the Way to Porto Rico.

Serious Resistance to Landing Not Expected.

Vigorous Preparation For the Departure of the Troops.

Washington, July 20.—It is regarded as certain by the officials of the war department that General Miles and the first contingent of the Porto Rico expedition are now en route from Santiago to the point in Porto Rican waters where a landing is to be effected.

The war department exchanged several cable messages with General Miles during the late afternoon and evening regarding the details of the expedition, but in none of his dispatches did the general indicate the precise hour of his departure. The impression conveyed is that he was awaiting the naval vessel which is to act as convoy.

It is stated definitely that General Miles has no intention to await the arrival of the several parts of the expedition from the United States before moving upon Porto Rico. It is in fact his purpose with such troops as he now has to break ground on the island for the forces that will arrive later from this country. It is not anticipated that serious resistance will be encountered, as the Spanish force on the entire island is only slightly larger than the force which accompanies Miles.

Arrangements for the departure of troops from this country which are to comprise the greater part of the expedition are being pressed with the utmost vigor. Difficulty is being experienced in securing proper transports, but that in a measure has been overcome. Within a day or two 10,000 men it is believed will be afloat for Porto Rico, and the remainder of the expedition will be sent forward as rapidly as possible.

The subsistence of the Porto Rican expedition is an enormous task. Practically all the necessary supplies, except fresh beef, have been provided for, and General Egan has sent to various beef-packing concerns of the country a telegram inviting bids for supplying the troops at the various seacoast points which may be occupied by them in Porto Rico with refrigerated or chilled beef in such quantities and in such places as may be required.

Secretary Alger said yesterday that the campaign against San Juan will be conducted with much caution, and the rush of events at Baiquiri will not be repeated. The forward movement will not be begun until a force superior to the Spaniards at every point has been landed and furnished supplies sufficient to meet all possible requirements. Great care and deliberation will characterize all movements with a view to avoiding the hardships that befell the Santiago expedition.

The Auxiliary Craft.

The navy department is rapidly moving the large fleet of auxiliary craft, made up of merchant ships, ocean-going yachts, tugs, etc., from Atlantic coast points to Cuban waters, where they will be placed on blockade duty, thus releasing the larger ships for more active duty at Porto Rico and the coast of Spain. Three of these smaller craft were sent south yesterday and most all of them will be on the way within a week, stopping only long enough at Norfolk to have their batteries strengthened. When the war broke out a large number of these auxiliary craft were purchased. They have been distributed along the coast from Maine to Florida, at some 40 or more points, making an effective patrol. There is felt to be no further need of this patrol, so that with the exception of a few important points the auxiliary craft will be withdrawn for service in Cuba.

Navy's Work at Porto Rico.

Admiral Sampson has received final orders from the navy department as to the part the fleet is to take in the campaign against Porto Rico. They are based on the view that the campaign is essentially an army movement, the duties of the navy being to lend every support and assistance to the land operations. The admiral is instructed to aid the army movements by dispatching convoys when required and by covering the landing of troops. As there is no fleet in San Juan harbor or other Porto Rican ports, the navy has a limited field. The reduction of the harbor fortifications will be the main work, but this and all other operations of the fleet will be supplementary to the main operations conducted by the army. The strategists, military and naval, are agreed in the view that the taking of Porto Rico is primarily a military undertaking, and Admiral Sampson's orders are on these lines

Cubans Making Trouble.

War department officials feel that they are fully justified in their decision to retain practically all of Shafter's army at Santiago by the press reports as to the growth of serious friction between the American forces and the Cuban troops growing out of the latter's exclusion from Santiago by Shafter's orders. It is felt now that the garrison originally proposed, two immune regiments, would have been quite insufficient to meet an outside Spanish force that might come from Holguin or Manzanillo, and also to restrain the rapacity of the Cubans. It is realized that the present situation is full of difficulty, and the future is dark owing to the disposition evinced by the Cubans to ignore or refuse to be bound by the amenities of modern warfare.

This first symptom of friction has suggested to the officials innumerable difficulties that will arise in the future. Of course it would seem to be only politic now to avoid an open rupture with the Cubans, provided they can be kept in leash and not involve the United States in the disgrace that would follow the sacking of helpless communities; but it begins to appear that for some time to come and even after the conquest of Cuba is complete the United States must maintain a military government in order to meet the responsibility which it has assumed to the civilized world.

A MADRID REPORT.

Blanco and Toral Authorized to Negotiate For Peace.

New York, July 20.—Today's Sun contains the following from Madrid: "The council has unanimously agreed to seek peace. The responsibility for capitulation is left to Captain General Blanco and General Toral solely. It is significant that the censorship raised no objection to the dispatch announcing that the cabinet had decided to seek peace."

MISERABLE SANTIAGO.

Yellow Fever Cases Few, but City Ripe For an Epidemic.

Santiago, July 20.—A thorough inspection of the sanitary condition of this captured city has been made by direction of General Shafter. The work was done by Dr. Goodfellow, of the general's staff, and by a civilian physician, Dr. Orlando Dwiker. They find that although there are at present but six cases of yellow fever in the city, in addition to two suspects, the town is ripe for an epidemic. Santiago and Rio Janerio are considered the greatest fever-breeding centers in the world. The town lacks every sanitary feature at its best, and now, after two months' siege, leaving the city dirty and repellent, it is a veritable pest hole. The awful stenches that arise from the streets stagger and choke one. No cordial in Santiago has the power to wash out this odor from one's throat.

The city of Santiago is a typical tropical place, with narrow, crooked streets, 1-story dwellings and stores. Many of the houses are stuccoed and painted with startling colors, sky-blue and vivid shades of green predominating. These, with the red tiles of the roofs and the quaint verandas, show evidence of past picturesqueness. This is now in a state of dilapidation and decay, and the city is but a shadow of its former self. The majority of the houses are absolute ruins, and public squares, once green, with fountains playing in their center, are now utterly neglected. The iron fences are broken and rusted, while the fountains, on account of dearth of the water supply, have long been dry. Here and there, through the open doors of more pretentious dwellings, one meets with the vision of an open court filled with palms, brilliant pouchianos and other flowering plants and trees.

There is no sewage system. The city drainage is all from the surface into the harbor, and the lower part of the city, through which much of the drainage runs, especially from the people's quarter around the bull ring, to the northwest of the city, is the seeding center of malarial, typhoid and other fevers.

The squalor in the streets was frightful. The bones of dead horses and other animals were bleaching in the streets, and buzzards, as tame as sparrows, hopped aside to let us pass. The windows of the hospitals in which there were over 1500 sick men were crowded with invalids who dragged themselves there to witness our in-coming. In one square, a relic of an old merry-go-round told of happier days, but on every side there were evidences of the pitiless siege and of starvation.

There are four hospitals in the city, the civil hospital, presided over by the sisters of charity, and the military, Mercedes and Conchas hospitals. In these four hospitals are 1747 patients, which is a comparatively small number, considering the lack of food and long siege; but it must be remembered that the reconcentrados were never admitted to the hospitals, and when the notification of the proposed bombardment by our batteries was received, every patient who could stagger out was driven into the streets. Twenty lepers who were in the civil hospital were turned into the streets, and they have been roaming through the city ever since. The largest number of patients are in the military hospital, where there are 37 Spanish officers and 431 wounded sodiers and sailors. In addition there are hundreds of cases of malaria and dysentery, and six cases of yellow fever. The sailors were wounded in the battle of July 1 and 2. They were disembarked from the ships of Admiral Cervera's fleet in order to assist in resisting the attack of the American troops by land. These sailors say that when the Spanish fleet sailed out of the harbor half of the sailors and marines on board had been fighting and working in the trenches ashore for 48 hours previously. Almiral Cervera, they also assert, sacrificed his fleet in obedience to the popular clamor, both in Spain and Cuba, including Santiago, that he should give battle to the American fleet.

Prisoners at Portsmouth.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 20.—The Spaniards are becoming accustomed to living on the "American plan," and are making rapid advances in learning our national airs. The officers dress in citizens' clothes, and apparently are enjoying themselves in the freedom they have of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Four deaths as a result of malarial fever marked yesterday's mortality in the Spanish lines. Burial ceremonies occurred in the afternoon, the bodies being placed in pine boxes. The name and complete history of the men are marked on each box so that the graves can be visited by friends at any time.

A dispatch was received at the navy yard from Whitelaw Reid of New York, stating that he had sent six trained nurses and 100 cots for the wounded Spanish.

Some question has arisen as to the acceptance of parole by the Spanish officers, owing to a Spanish law. None of the officers has signed a parole, but are awaiting a decision on the matter from Admiral Cervera, to whom the question has been referred.

Several States Short.

Washington, July 20.—Fairly good progress has been made with the recruitment for the volunteer army under the president's second call for 75,000 volunteers. The plan adopted was to recruit all the volunteer organizations in the army to their maximum enlisted strength before entering upon the recruitment of additional troops. The total number of men required to fill out existing regiments was 37,566, and according to the latest returns the total enlistments under this plan are 27,519.

Indiana, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, Rhode Island, West Virginia and Wisconsin have exceeded their quota, but all the others are behind the supply of troops. The worst delinquent is North Carolina, which has furnished only 55 soldiers to meet its quota of 783. Other delinquents are Colorado, Louisiana, Nebraska, Tennessee and Virginia, each of which has supplied less than one-third the number of men required. Alabama, Massachusetts, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, Oregon and Texas have done very little better, and are all very much behind in meeting the requirements. Complaint has been made also that in several of the states an effort has been made to foist poor material on the government.

The total enlisted strength of the regular army to date is about 44,000 men, being about 18,000 short of its legal complement. The volunteer army consists of 183,000 men and is only 17,000 short of its maximum authorized strength under the two calls issued by the president. The total strength of the army, regular and volunteer, is 227,000 as now organized.

News From Havana.

Havana, July 20.—The Red Cross society has established a free kitchen for the Havana people. Many instances are recorded of fine horses slaughtered here of late, whose flesh has subsequently appeared in the butcher shops.

Maximo Gomez is said to have ordered the hanging of an insurgent chief for acts of savagery.

It is reported from Manzanillo that the situation there is very bad. There is little communication with other places, provisions are very scarce and there is a great quantity of paper money which is so undervalued that the people do not know how to quote it. Advices from Jovellanos, Matanzas, say that a group of over 200 people presented themselves to the military commander of that place recently, urgently begging for something to eat. The commander ordered the distribution of rice and bread among them. Letters from Managuas, Havana province, say the situation there is horrible. The grocery stores are without the first necessary articles, and they cannot import them from Havana. Besides this the little stock of vegetables gathered in the Managua cultivation zone are taken out of the town to sell in other places.

The Eagle's Sharp Work.

Key West, July 20.—The Spanish transatlantic liner San Domingo, of 5500 tons, was totally destroyed by the little auxiliary gunboat Eagle on July 12 off Cape Francis. This intelligence was brought here yesterday by the Nashville, which came up after the attack and found the Spanish ship burned and smashed on the reefs.

The affair offers a striking commentary on the difference between American and Spanish spirit. The Santo Domingo had two five-inch guns mounted and loaded; her magazines were opened, and it only remained to train her guns and fire them to blow the little Eagle out of the sea. The latter, with her comparatively feeble battery of six pounders, steamed to within two miles of the enemy, and pounded shot after shot into her until she turned, and, in a desperate attempt to get into the narrow channel, grounded on the reef without having tried to return the American fire.

Sewer Gas Killed Them.

New York, July 20.—William Coleman and Michael Duffy, employes of the department of water supply, were overcome by sewer gas in a manhole and perished. Coleman went into the manhole first, and Duffy tried to rescue him, but was overcome himself.

BACK FROM DIGGINGS.

Klondikers Report No Finds of Importance Thus Far.

This Season's Gleanings Estimated at $10,000,000.

Miners Seek to Evade Paying Royalty to the Canadians.

Seattle, Wash., July 20.—The Samoa has arrived from St. Michaels with 36 Klondikers, who brought with them nearly $400,000 in gold dust. The Samoa left St. Michaels July 6. Among her passengers was Thomas C. Austin of New Whatcom, Wash. Mr. Austin states that the cleanup on Eldorado, Bonanza and Hunker creeks in the Klondike district this season will not be less than $10,000,000. This, together with about $50,000,000 of last season's output, will all be shipped out this year. He confirms previous reports that important discoveries have not been made.

Several passengers were from Minook creek, where they worked all winter with but little success. When the Samoa left St. Michaels many people there had decided not to go on to Dawson and were waiting an opportunity to come back. One misfortune after another seems to have befallen the craft which have started in toward St. Michaels. Up to the time of the departure of the Samoa not one of the numerous river vessels had arrived except those taken by the steamer New England. The Conemaugh, which left Seattle early in June with a river steamer and a barge in tow, when more than half way on her voyage, encountered a heavy gale and lost both, nearly going to the bottom of the sea herself. She was thrown on her beam ends, and in this condition wallowed in the heavy sea for 48 hours. Her crew and passengers had about given up in despair, when the storm abated and she righted. She succeeded in reaching port in a battered condition.

The steamer National City, with the river steamer Jane Eyre in tow, also experienced heavy weather and, notwithstanding the heroic efforts on the part of her captain and crew to keep the tow afloat, they were compelled to see her break to pieces. The British steamship Carrone, which left Victoria with a barge in tow and cargo in bond, lost the barge and will now have to return without being able to land her cargo, owing to some hitch in customs regulations.

The miners are reticent about the amounts they brought, as they desire to evade the payment of the 10 percent royalty exacted by the Canadian government. Many of them have smuggled larger sums than they will admit. The largest amount brought out by one person is $110,000.

Joaquin Miller, the well-known poet, briefly expresses the general tenor of the stories told by the passengers as follows: "The Klondike mines are certainly the richest ever found on the face of the earth, but this gold is ten fold harder to get than in any camp I have ever seen."

It is said that the shipment of gold would have been much heavier had those in the interior not felt some apprehension of an attack at sea by privateers.

Charlestown Building Down.

Boston, July 20.—The entire four stories of the brick block known as the Samaritan House at 560 to 570 Main street, Charlestown, for the space of 48 feet from the rear of the structure were levelled to the ground last night, the cause generally assigned, as the investigation progresses, being the collapse of the building owing to its weakened state.

There were 25 lodgers on the upper floors, but Patrick Hennigan, 34 years old, is the only one missing. It is thought that he was buried in the ruins. Mary Quinn, employed in a coffee house on the street floor, had her skull fractured. Others were hurt slightly.

Successful Experiment.

Block Island, July 20.—The whaling bark, Swallow, Captain B. D. Cleveland, which sailed from this port last year for Desolation islands on a cruise for sea elephants, was sighted off here yesterday, bound for New Bedford, with a full cargo of sea elephant oil.

The cruise of the Swallow was a most novel one, and the first of its kind attempted for years. The industry had become obsolete, and the undertaking was in the nature of an experiment. The success attending it, however, will lead to other vessels being sent on similar cruises. The oil brought home by the Swallow is valued at about $30,000, the greater portion of which will be exported to France.

Chased to Death.

Philadelphia, July 20.—A man supposed to be Peter Brown of Greenboro, N. C., was instantly killed, and Charles H. Craig of Attleboro, Mass., was seriously injured by being struck by a locomotive on the Pennsylvania railroad in West Philadelphia. The men were beating their way from Baltimore to New York. They alighted from a freight train and were about to board another, when they were chased by a policeman, and in their flight were struck by a locomotive.

Storm In Granite State.

Greenville, N. H., July 20.—One of the worst storms that ever raged here swept over this section yesterday morning. Telegraph poles and trees were felled to the ground; a lightning bolt struck the residence of Mrs. S. Wilson Mansfield, tearing off the doors, clapboards and plastering, and a barn owned by a man named Wilson, which contained a large supply of hay and a quantity of farming tools, was burned to the ground.

Washing wanted to do at home.
E. B Collins—Millinery.

Good Afternoon.

The sad drowning accident at Point Holes Monday brings to mind the long felt need of a public bath house at this or some other suitable spot for the use of women and children. Every year there are numerous narrow escapes from drowning on the part of young children, who delight in a salt water bath and will go in bathing whether or not they have the consent of their parents. The expense of erecting a public bath house would not be large and the need of one is evident. Once established a competent person could be hired for a small sum to take care of it and look out for those who use it. Then parents would be free from anxiety over the absence of their children knowing that if perchance they had gone to the bath house they would be more safe as the chances of being drowned would be lessened.

There would be some little revenue to the city in the way of use of private lockers and towels and this should be nearly enough to pay the running expense.

Quincy as a city does little or nothing in the way of furnishing amusement for its citizens during the summer months not even furnishing a band stand for the Saturday evening concerts, which are furnished by a private corporation and it is not asking too much that the city erect a public bath house in some convenient locality.

Miss Bella McDonnell.

The last rites over the body of Miss Bella McDonnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. McDonnell of Elm street, who was drowned Monday forenoon off Point Holes, were held this morning from St. John's church. The mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Matthew McDonnell an uncle of the dead girl, assisted by the church choir. The interment was at St. Mary,s cemetery, West Quincy.

Miss McDonnell had many friends in life, and the evidence of this friend ship was plainly seen in the many and beautiful tributes that covered her casket.

Mr. and Mrs. McDonnell and the brothers and sisters have the sincere sympathy of the whole community in their great sorrow, which coming so sudden and unexpectedly has nearly prostrated those left behind. Miss Bella graduated in June from the Adams school, and she was looking forward to the time when she should enter upon more serious school work at the High or Woodward.

Too Much Money.

Banks have too much money, and grumblings are heard on every hand about the small demand for funds and the low interest rates obtainable on loans. Capitalists, who have so much money lying idle, do not appear to appreciate their opportunities, nor are they inclined to make an effort to invest their funds in commercial or industrial enterprises. To bring about more satisfactory conditions the capitalists should be taught the possibilities in the vast resources of the country, and the passing opportunities for profitable investment outside of the loan market, where the competition has reduced the interest returns to less than three per cent.—Boston Financial News.

—Here is a recent bill of fare of a Dawson City restaurant: Coffee or tea, 75 cents a cup; pie 75 cents a piece; porridge $1.75 a plate; soup, $1 a plate; sandwiches, 75 cents each; steak, $3; a portion of candied fruit, $1; whisky, 50 cents a glass; complete table d'hote meal, half an ounce of gold.

SEWER CONNECTIONS.

Proposed Rules and Regulations Governing the Same.

As soon as the Ordinance relating to house connections with the sewerage system, now before the City Council, passes which will probably be next Monday evening, work connecting houses on the line of the sewer already built will be commenced.

The Ordinance in substance provides that all applications for entrance must be made upon blanks to be obtained of the Commissioner of Public Works and must deposit the estimated cost of this particular sewer from the centre of the street with the City Treasurer.

The size and material used shall be that prescribed by the Commissioner of Public Works and shall conform with the requirements of the Board of Health. Sewers shall be laid accurately to state lines and grades and if angles are unavoidable, manholes or other means of access shall be provided.

The material and labor required shall be done by the Commissioner of Public Works or his agents, excepting that applicants may make excavation outside of the street lines. The material and labor furnished shall be paid for by the applicant at the actual cost of the city and the difference between the estimated and actual cost shall be paid by the applicant who will not be permitted to use the sewer until paid.

The plumbing of a building must have a certificate of the Inspector of Plumbing before connection is made. No alteration from the original permit shall be made except upon further application to the Commissioner of Public Works.

If necessary the Commissioner of Public Works may require grease traps to be introduced for the proper maintenance of that particular sewer. The discharge of steam, roof and surface water into the sewer is prohibited.

All sewers shall be under the control of, maintained and kept clean by the city the expense of the same to be paid by the party, and pre-payment or security may be demanded. Any labor occasioned by defects or obstructions in the common sewer shall be paid for by the city. The penalty for violation of any of the provisions of the rules and regulations shall not exceed $20 for each violation.

Christian Scientists Won Victory.

The Christian Scientists of Rhode Island won a notable victory on Monday through an opinion of the supreme court that the law regarding the licensing of doctors does not apply to those who practice Christian Science. The cases before the court were those of Walter E. Mylod, Henry S. Taft and David Anthony. All three of them took their cases from the district court on constitutional questions, and they were argued at length. While the court does not find it necessary to decide the constitutional question raised for the reason that it does not consider that the medical practice law applies to the Christian Scientists, it decides all three of the prosecutions on their merits and says that the defendants should be acquitted.

The most lengthy of the three opinions is in the case of Walter E. Mylod. In his case, as well as in the others, there was raised the question of the constitutionality of the law regulating the practice of medicine.

Mr. Mylod had testified that he was president and first reader or pastor of the Providence Church of Christ Scientist; that the church had been organized and held regular religious services for seven years; that they believed disease could be reduced to a minimum through the power of prayer; that he, beyond a greater realization of truth, which his longer study of Christian Science may have given him, professed to have no greater power over illness than that possessed by any member of his church; that all he did was to engage in silent prayer for certain persons who visited him.

The constitutional question raised was that under the clause of the constitution granting religious freedom he had a right to perform the acts shown by the testimony to have been performed, and that, therefore, the medical law was unconstitutional in so far as it provided a penalty for those acts. The court in discussing the case says that this question, properly, cannot be considered, unless the medical law is sufficiently broad to include within its prohibitive provisions the acts of Dr. Mylod.

The court then goes on to show that the medical practice law does not apply to these cases.

CAMP DALTON.

Brief Notes from Our Correspondent with Co. K.

Camp Dalton, July 20.

Eight companies have now been vaccinated and it is expected that the last four companies forming the 3d battalion will all be vaccinated today, thus completing the job. One tall six footer fainted at seeing the scarring and the bloody arms, but he's a good soldier, just the same.

About 1200 cycles were checked on the field on Sunday, and the receipts of the regimental exchange were nearly $500. Chaplain House says he now has a surplus of about $600 in profits from this exchange to divide among the companies, and a dividend will be declared within a day or two. The chaplain says that an average of about 500 letters are received and that many are sent away daily from camp.

Councilman Packard and his son were among the visitors from Quincy today.

Colonel Whitney received a telegram yesterday afternoon from Adjutant-General Corbin, stating that in a few days the regiment would be notified regarding its destination. Just where the intentions of the War department will place the regiment is not known. The presence of transports in New York may have some significance, and within the range of possibilities that the Fifth will see service in Porto Rico.

Should, however the regiment remain at camp for yet another week, the men will probably be given a practice march of twelve miles along the splendid roads that abound here abouts. This is Colonel Whitney's plan at present. He will also see that the regiment indulges in a few tent drills.

The Fifth is now being prepared for fighting. As far as marching goes the regiment has attained a degree of efficiency. Now the officers are putting the men through the maneuvres known as extended order of skirmish drill. They are spending four hours a day teaching the men the use of the rifle for more deadly purposes than "presenting arms." The men worked like Trojans today under a broiling sun.

Lieut Whitney is in town today.

It is terrible hot in camp today.

All of Company K has been vaccinated and there are some sore arms in camp.

Owing to the lack of room for the skirmish drill at the camp the company now drill but half a hour.

Private Gunderson was orderly Tuesday and Private Thurstrom today, making ten of Co. K men who have been selected for this duty.

The indication are that the regiment will move inside of three days.

Rev. R. W. Peach visited camp Tuesday and bought down a lot of books for the Commission.

Councilman Packard and son are among the visitors today.

Parcels Postage.

Several foreign governments have moved in favor of transmitting through the mails parcels weighing more than four pounds, which is the present limit, and have urged the United States to agree to do the same, but so far without succes. This country has found that there is no profit in the transportation of merchandise, but that, where the distance is at all great, the transmission is always at a considerable loss to the postal department. The government makes a uniform charge for a package of given weight, be the distance it is to travel great or small, and allows its transmission as a matter of convenience to its patrons. These will use the mails only when the expense is to be less than it would be through express or freight agents. While for short distances the charge for transmission is frequently less by express than by mail, the express companies increase the charge proportionally with the increased distance, while the government's price remains fixed. It would be manifestly unfair to the great mass of people for the government to go into the general carrying business simply to decrease the shipping expenses of the producers and importers, in whose interest the subject is agitated. European countries, with their limited territory, may find satisfactory regulations which would work to the great disadvantage of the United States, with its three thousand mile routes. GOLDEN WEDDING.

Residence Prettily Decorated for the Occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Gove observed the 50th anniversary of their marriage at their home on Broad street, Weymouth on Monday.

Mr. Gove was born in that town on Sept. 23, 1825, and was for a number of years identified with the business interests here.

From 1839 until 1854 he followed the sea, being a mate on the Gentoo, George Hallett, Santiago and Samoset. He has sailed to nearly every port in the world, and has made several voyages to Manila, Calcutta, Hongkong, Santiago and the Ladrone islands.

Mrs. Gove was born in Braintree in 1829, and is a direct descendant of John Alden, her grandfather, Capt. Ebenezer Adams, who was a cousin of President John Adams of Quincy, marrying a grandaughter of John Alden. Mr. and Mrs. Gove were united in marriage at the United States hotel at Hartford, Conn., 50 years ago Monday, while Mr. Gove was at home from a voyage.

Their residence was very prettily arranged for the memorable event, with cut flowers, palms and potted plants. A reception was held from 7.30 until 9, and was attended by many of the relatives and friends of the couple. Supper was served, and the evening was spent in an informal manner with music, social intercourse, etc.

Yellowstone Park.

Yellowstone Park is more and more impressing itself upon the public as the years go by as being the great park of the land. The strong feature of it is the fact that it is not a man made park. True enough man has built roads and bridges and hotels in order that he may see the Park, but he has not yet tried his hand at constructing new fangled Geysers, or re-adorning or re-sculpturing the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone. These are as God left them. There, too, the elk, bear, deer and other animals are not enclosed in wire fences. They wander free and unfretted whithersoever they will. Man's handiwork is but little seen and the Park is the grander for it. Send Charles S. Fee, General Passenger Agent, Northern Pacific Railway, six cents for Wonderland '98 and read about the Park.

TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "'leventy-'leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. Of the 102,-473 voters on the list in December last, 4,574 appear missing, and have been ropped from the list for this year. The s is attributed to death and enlist- t for the war. TOO BAD!

It is always the ambition of every little boy to grow up and be a something or a somebody. Some boys want to be soldiers, some want to be sailors, some want to be actors, some musicians, some mechanics, some want to practice at the bar, some want to be merchants, some newspaper men, and so on up or down the line.

Little Alphonso (poor little devil, one can't help feeling sorry for one who cannot take off his shoes and socks and wade in the water once in a while) went to his mother last week with his dander up. He'd never done as he wanted to once in his life, and he made up his mind that this king business wasn't so gay after all, and he wanted to be a photographer and develop into something picturesque.

In her fondness for her little boy, his mother told him for once he could do as he pleased, and what did Phonney do but go and get his Camara and start out to take the Philippines. When he got to the canal the gate tender, Ezra, wouldn't let him go through, and he says he'll Suez for damages. That's the only "negative" he got, and unless he succeeds in developing it into something better than it now looks, he'll go home with a broken Camara and not a view of the Philippines. Photographs are not as satisfactory as the real thing. You may have noticed that when you have seen a picture of a "leventy-leven" dollar suit for "umpty um" dollars in some Boston paper.

The Quincy Clothing Co. offers you the real thing in an all-worsted clay frock or sack, in any size for any built man. They are not worth $15.00, but we know of no one who sells them for as little money. 100 percale and white shirts with attached collar and cuff and fancy bosoms, at 45c. 125 fine percale and French madras, at 69c. 100 best quality madras shirts, detatched collars and cuffs, at 98c. Bear this in mind, we sell our shirts for all they are worth. But we know of people who sell them for more money and claim they are worth twice as much.

LEISURELY ADMIRAL.

Miles Irritated by the Slowness of Fleet's Commander.

Stirs the Authorities by His Dispatch.

Discontent of the Soldiers Over Detention on Shipboard.

Washington, July 21.—General Miles sent a long dispatch to Washington yesterday, reporting some of the conditions prevailing at Santiago by the relief of which the Porto Rico expedition would be expedited. He described the men on the transports as exceedingly restless. They are uncomfortably located, and while confined to the ships are in danger of contagion should disease break out. He clearly intimated that he saw no occasion for delay, and the tenor of his dispatch was such as to stir up the Washington officials.

Most of them appeared to be surprised that discontent and restlessness should exist among the confined soldiers, and General Miles' disclosures were a veritable revelation to many of them. He described the horses as dying from the effects of the voyage and the failure to land them. He expressed the intention of placing the command and the animals on shore if there should be much further delay.

He explained that the repeated postponement of the departure of the 12 transports, which will form the contingent from Santiago and Tampa for Porto Rico, was caused by the failure of the navy to furnish convoys, and he insisted in unmistakable terms that the navy department be requested to issue such orders to Admiral Sampson as would provide the naval vessel necessary for the protection of the troopships intended for Porto Rico en route to that point.

General Miles' dispatch conveyed the impression that he did not sympathize with or cordially approve of the attitude of the naval authorities at Santiago. He evidently regarded their policy of delay as inimical to the plans of the army.

The Landing Place.

It is the plan of General Miles to go along the northern coast of Hayti and Porto Rico until he reaches the extreme eastern end of the latter island. His course will then be southward for a few miles to the harbor of Fajardo, 34 miles from San Juan. After mature consideration, this point has been decided upon as an excellent base from which to direct operations. General Miles will not move actively upon the interior of the island for two weeks, but will wait for the 6200 troops now on the way from Tampa, for Ernst's brigade, which sailed from Charleston last night, and for the rest of the troops expected to sail from Newport News during the next 10 days.

A Stitch In Time.

The army will enter Porto Rico under greatly superior conditions than those which attended the movement against Santiago. There will be no unnecessary privations; no starvation; no unseasonable clothing, nor any of the other discomforts experienced at Santiago, which have been blamed directly to the neglect of the war department and to the inexperience of officials newly appointed to responsible positions. The experience gained in the Santiago expedition will lighten the work of the men operating against San Juan.

Not only is the war department better able to care for the army in the field, but the experience of the past has been of value to the manufacturers of the country upon whom the government depended for goods bought in open market. Every regiment ordered on the Porto Rican expedition takes from its own camp the supplies needed during the early days of the invasion. At each camp food and supplies have been concentrated, and as the troops move from the camp to the coast to embark on the transports, they take with them full complements of clothing and food. The troops leaving Santiago are not so well supplied, but shipments have already been prepared for their use. For supplying the troops after the invasion has begun the arrangements are equally complete.

May Be More Fighting.

The news from Madrid that General Parreja, the Spanish commander at Guantanamo, refuses to be included in the "capitulation" of Santiago, causes some concern in administration circles. If the terms made by General Toral and accepted by General Shafter are repudiated by the other military commanders in the ceded territory there will of course be a renewal of the fighting and a continuance of the campaign in eastern Cuba, with the same result which has characterized operations heretofore.

Until this uncertainty is cleared up it would be unwise for General Shafter's force to be weakened, which is an additional reason why the Fifth army corps cannot be heavily drawn upon to furnish troops for the Porto Rican expedition.

Awarded to a Spanish Company.

Arrangements practically were concluded by the government last night for the transportation of the Spanish prisoners at Santiago from Cuba to Spain. The contract was awarded to the Spanish Transatlantic company, represented by J. M. Ceballos & Co. of New York. The company agrees to carry the prisoners from Cuban ports to Spain at the rate of $20 for each enlisted man and $55 for each commissioned officer, subsistence to be furnished by the company on the army ration basis, as provided for in the government's advertisement for bids. The award provides also that the company shall have five ships at Santiago in nine days from today, two more in 17 days, and enough to complete the transportation of the prisoners in 21 days.

On the basis of 24,000 enlisted men and 1000 officers, it will cost the government $535,000 to transport the prisoners. The ships will fly the colors of Spain and will be manned, probably entirely, by Spanish crews. It was remarked as one of the curious developments of the war that the United States government should enter into a friendly contract with a company, many of whose vessels are auxiliaries to the Spanish navy and some of which have been captured or destroyed by the navy of the United States.

Situation In Manila.

Madrid, July 21.—Mr. Sagasta and General Correa, minister of war, declare that the latest news from the Philippines is of the most favorable character. General Correa's advices indicate that the insurgents are now displaying "only a lukewarm hostility towards the Spanish troops."

Captain General Augustin sends an official dispatch asserting, under date of July 14, that while the blockade is becoming very strict, the enemy has lost heavily in several engagements, "by which the morale of the American force has been weakened and the Spaniards have been greatly encouraged." The dispatch alleges also that "the garrison is ready to fight to the death," and that General Monet and several officers who had escaped from Matabele have arrived there.

In case of the bombardment of Manila the area to which the Spanish may retire will be limited to the American and insurgent lines surrounding the city. There may come the struggle, for the Spaniards have burrowed intrenchments, fortified hills and knolls for the final fight. It is known that every energy is bent within the city to prepare it for the final struggle. The people are exhorted by the clergy and military authorities, and their hopes are buoyed by false reports as to relief from Spain, and Spanish triumphs in the West Indies and along the Atlantic coast. Augusti is credited with an assertion that he can muster 150,000 troops. No one seriously believes that he can marshal 20,000. The city seems as nearly ready for the conflict as the material in the hands of the Spanish can make it.

Bands Played; People Cheered.

Charleston, July 21.—With bands playing and 30,000 people cheering the first expedition to follow General Miles to Porto Rico got away from here last evening. The expedition is under command of Major General J. H. Wilson, and when complete will consist of the Second and Third Wisconsin, the Sixteenth Pennsylvania regiments and two companies of the Sixth Illinois. These men, together with those of the Sixth Illinois and Sixth Massachusetts, who sailed from here last week for Santiago, constitute the first brigade of the first division of the First army corps.

BRIGADIER GENERAL JOHN M. WILSON.

The scene which accompanied the departure of the vessels from their docks was one of indescribable enthusiasm. Practically the entire population of the city was in evidence. As the vessels made the stream the bands on shipboard and ashore played national airs, and the thousands of people cheered like mad. The expedition will sail directly for Porto Rico.

Will Not Credit Allegations.

New York, July 21.—Counsel H. S. Rubens of the Cuban junta expresses his disbelief in the reports from Santiago of American dissatisfaction with the Cuban insurgent soldiery. The junta had no report that General Garcia had refused to attend the flag raising at Santiago because the American general had given orders to allow no Cuban soldiers to enter the town. If General Shafter refused Cuban soldiers entry to Santiago it was a mere matter of military policy for the time being.

"As for the insurgents looting the town," continued Mr. Rubens, "the Spanish soldiers had already done that. It would be very poor policy for the insurgents to loot the town because there is hardly a Cuban famly there that has not a member fighting in the insurgent ranks. In Santiago, as probably in no other city, are the people loyal to the Cuban cause, and the Cuban soldiers would not loot that city of all Cuban cities.

"The Cubans took their orders from General Shafter, and during the fighting occupied the position he assigned them. I am confident that they did what they were ordered to do. If any party of pacificos refused to aid in road building or cutting poles for the litters of the wounded their conduct ought not be blamed upon the Cuban soldiery. The pacificos might have been Spaniards. The United States is big enough to do justice to all, Cubans and Spaniards, and until I hear of the comment or affirmation of these reports from Miles or Shafter, or from Washington, I shall refuse to believe them."

Spanish Prisoners Sick.

Portsmouth, July 21.—There are 260 sick in the stockade on Seavey's island, beside those who have been confined in the hospital. There were six deaths in the hospital yesterday.

The navy yard officials received a telegram from Admiral Cervera in regard to the parole of the Spanish officers. The admiral requested them to accept the parole for two weeks.

Two hundred Red Cross ribbons were sent to Camp Long by the wives and families of the navy officers. They are to be worn by the sick.

Screening Home Mismanagement.

London, July 21.—The Times editorially, reproaching the Spanish government this morning with "moral cowardice in endeavoring to screen its own mismanagement by pretending that General Toral has betrayed his country," says: "It is incredible that Spain can hope anything from Cuba, as it is as impossible for Blanco as it was for Toral to fight against hunger; and it is unlikely that the former will have anything else to fight with for some time to come. Neither can anything be hoped from European intervention, even if Commodore Watson's squadron comes, though its arrival would be an unwelcome spectacle to more than one European power. It may be assumed that Commodore Watson's authorization to visit the Philippines will not weaken the disposition at Berlin to cultivate friendly relations with America and to make light of the escapades of German ships at Manila."

Squabble Over Peace.

Madrid, July 21.—Most Spaniards believe they are drifting toward the loss of all the colonies, and a condition made, perhaps, worse by domestic troubles which their present rulers are as incapable of averting as they were of foreseeing them The stolid silence and indifference of the public adds to the perplexity of Sagasta and his ministers. They only meet to squabble over peace or war, Gamazo and Duke Almodovar leading those who argue for peace, and Minister Correa being the chief advocate of war.

General Campos said to an interviewer: "I believe the government acted too hastily in refusing to accept the American ultimatum. I would have waited to have received the ultimatum. Apart from that I am persuaded that the Americans wanted nothing but war. They continued to help the insurrection after Spain had granted autonomy. Punishment, however, has arrived for the Cubans and Yankees. The Cubans will wage against the Yankees the same war they waged against Spain. It will be a costly, bloody, endless war like ours."

Blanco Can't Cable.

Washington, July 21.—Two days ago General Greely, chief signal officer, cabled instructions to his officers in Santiago to seal up and place a guard over the three cable lines connecting Santiago with Cienfuegos, whence by a land line communication is established with Havana. Yesterday he was informed that his orders had been carried out.

The closing of the Cienfuegos cables absolutely isolates Havana and General Blanco from Madrid. Blanco's only means of communicating with the government at Madrid now is by the Key West cable, which is under the strictest censorship. Several cipher dispatches passing between General Blanco and the Spanish government drifted into this country. They did not reach their destination.

Gratuitous Counsel From London.

London, July 21.—The Daily Chronicle says editorially: "As strong supporters and sincere well-wishers of the United States we suggest a reconsideration of the decision to send Commodore Watson to Europe. It could not materially harm Spain, and would only be likely to reunite the Spaniards into an impervious obstinacy of endurance and a determination to suffer to all lengths. That is their national character. It was that which baffled Napoleon, who had land forces to overrun the whole country; while at every point an American fleet would touch there would be danger of European complications."

A MISUNDERSTANDING!

Members of the Cuban Junta on the Santiago Trouble.

Discountenance Any Display of Resentment.

Faith Expressed in the Honesty of American Purposes as to the Island.

Washington, July 21.—Mr. Quesada and other representatives of the Cuban junta were in consultation with officials of the war department yesterday. The United States officials were assured that there was no dissatisfaction with the management of affairs in Cuba so far as the Cuban representatives were concerned, and that if General Garcia and other Cubans operating about Santiago were not in harmony with the United States authorities there it arose from a misunderstanding of the president's proclamation and of the intentions of the United States government in the premises. The Cubans at Santiago, it was stated, probably thought that the action of General Shafter meant the continuation of Spanish rule and Spanish authority. It being well understood here that such was not the case it was the belief of the Cuban representatives that when the matter was made plain to the Cuban officers in the field they would acquiesce in the action of the United States and render the United States army hearty support.

The Cubans assured the war officials that nothing was further from their desires than a rupture with the United States forces and authority. It also became known that the junta had sent dispatches to General Garcia and other Cuban officers stating that their course at Santiago was not approved by the junta and if persisted in would result in serious injury to the Cubans. It is believed that the representations made will bring about a better understanding between the Cuban officers and the Americans. The opinion was expressed at the war department that the better class of Cubans in the island will have no sympathy with those who would bring about trouble, but that it is the lower and vicious classes who desire to loot and plunder the city.

Assignment of a Shoe Company.

Brockton, July 21.—Harry C. Crawford of the Crawford Shoe company has signed an agreement for an assignment of all the company's affairs to William F. Mullen of Boston. The Crawford recently purchased George I. Bouve's interest in the Bouve-Crawford Shoe company, dropping the first name of the old firm at the same time. The company has four stores in Boston, three in New York, two in Brooklyn and one each in New Haven, Philadelphia, Providence and Baltimore. The assignment covers the factory in this city, as well as all the machinery and goods.

High Price For Cotton.

New York, July 21.—The first bale of cotton of the crop of 1898, which was presented to President McKinley by the citizens of New Orleans to be sold for the benefit of the United States hospital fund, was sold yesterday in front of the Cotton Exchange. The first bid was $200, rising by $50 bids to $500, at which price the bale was sold to the exchange. It will be redonated to the hospital fund. The price secured for the bale is the highest since the civil war, when cotton was $2 a pound.

Want a Rule Re-established.

Washington, July 21.—Major John Byrne of New York, president of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families Protective association, is in Washington in the interest of the revival of the law of 1861, under which an allotment of the pay of soldiers and sailors was made to the families of volunteers through the pay department of the army. He had a conference with the president, Secretary Alger, Adjutant General Corbin and Attorney General Griggs, all of whom feel a deep interest in the matter. The president referred the matter to the secretary of war, who had it made special. The attorney general's department is trying to find a way to re-establish the rule which proved so effective in the civil war.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, July 21.—The Post says: "To make General Toral the scapegoat of the military sins of Spain will only increase the respect for his good sense and humanity among intelligent people."

"Whatever seizure the American navy may see fit to make on the coast of Spain," The Advertiser states, will be made simply as a war measure, and will be relinquished in good time, as a matter of course, when satisfactory terms of peace have been concluded."

Good Afternoon.

There is no danger of our people starving this year from a Spanish blockade. The crops are unusually good through the country, and particularly so in Massachusetts. The strawberry has been so abundant as to be a drag in the market. All the small fruits, which are now in season, are plenty. The apple and pear crop will be good, but possibly not quite as large as in some years. The hay crop will be the heaviest ever known.

If the stories written home by some of the soldiers at the front are true, there has been wanton cruelty in several instances on the part of those enlisted under the flag of humanity.

One soldier publishes the statement that a captured Spanish sharpshooter was taken out and shot in cold blood and says that it was customary to riddle such prisoners on the spot.

Doubtless a good deal of allowance will need to be made, for the temptation of certain men to brag and bluster about their exploits, and to make their friends believe they are terrible and blood-thirsty fellows. But there are cruel and inhuman men in the army and if there is any basis of fact in such stories, the perpetrators should be severely punished. We do not want Weyler's method in a cause like ours. A good many people in the country believed that the shooting of the unarmed Spanish troops on the Harvard was unwarranted and feel that that circumstance should be investigated.

Wanted at Springfield.

Daniel Donahy, the young man arraigned in court Wednesday for the larceny of a bicycle from some party unknown, is wanted at Springfield, where it is alleged he stole the wheel. The young man came to Quincy, Tuesday night, and tried to sell the wheel to several parties for $5. Frank Mitchell, one of those parties, notified the police, and Officer Barry went on the war path. He apprehended the young man on Hancock street, near Music hall, and as he told several stories as to how the wheel came into his possession, he was locked up. One story was that he had brought the wheel from New York, and another was that he had won it at a raffle at Springfield.

Wednesday the police at Springfield were communicated with and it was learned that Donahy answered the description of one of a gang of young men who had been stealing wheels. He will be held until Friday and turned over to Springfield officers.

Quincy High School.

Mr. Elijah Swift, class of '99, Quincy High school, has passed in nine hours of preliminary work at Harvard, and has received "honors" in algebra, plane geometry and solid geometry.

Mr. Lemuel Pitts, Jr., and Mr. Ralph S. Foss, both of '99, have also passed in several hours of preliminary work.

Mr. Jacob Warshaw, Q. H. S. '96, and Mr. Charles J. Anderson, Q. H. S., '96, are making excellent records at Harvard.

Public Baths.

A writer says "The Ledger struck the keynote Wednesday in its appeal for a public bath, not only one is needed but three or four could be erected in different sections of the city. At Quincy Neck there are during pleasant days in summer from twenty to thirty men, women and children desiring a bath. Many considering a dip in the salt water very beneficial to their health.

STREET CAR TIME.

Experimental Trip to Houghs Neck and Return.

So much has been said concerning the disregard of the running of cars on time by the Quincy & Boston Street Railway Co. that the Ledger correspondent at Wollaston Park in company with a lady took a trip to Houghs Neck Saturday, having in view the double object of pleasure and ascertaining so far as possible how near to advertised time the cars left the different points en route to that pleasant hamlet.

It must be admitted all people do not look upon the same thing with the same view but a general observance where one is looking for facts, and is not biased, always brings to light the true state of affairs and without material difference as a whole.

In this instance a car was expected to arrive at the corner of Mason street and Elm avenue at about 5.40 P. M. on its way to Quincy. With a knowledge of the many complaints about the indifference shown to running on schedule time it did not appear strange to those waiting on said corner that the car referred to was thirteen minutes late and finally arrived in City square, though not on time.

Expecting to find the same, or a more delayed state of affairs at this busy centre, a happy surprise awaited us for on enquiring of Mr. Waterhouse (who looked handsomer than ever in his blue coat, white trousers and negligee shirt, with tie to match) he stated what time the car would leave for Houghs Neck and it left on the minute. But six stops were made between City square and Houghs Neck the car arriving in just twenty-seven minutes, and a beautiful ride it was too.

Arriving at the beach a fine onion chowder flavored with clams was disposed of and then a visit was made to the Quincy Yacht club where its genial secretary, Mr. James Whiting, made it pleasant for a half hour.

A car was advertised to leave the beach at 8.20 for Quincy. Every seat in the car was filled just seven minutes before the time to leave and during that seven minutes an army of no less than twenty one million seven hundred and ninety-six thousand well-seasoned mosquitoes fell upon the passengers in the most savage manner to be imagined, they were perfect savages, and fed from their victims with such rapacious eagerness that at one time the whole outfit including the car was threatened with total annihilation.

People were franticly thrashing their arms about their heads, and going through all sorts of contortions, trying to reach some injured part. The young ladies in shirt waists suffered the most. One in particular sitting in front of an elderly gentleman, being rather stout found it difficult to reach around to a point between her shoulders where an extra large bird had pierced through a corset spring and was clinching his poisoned instrument of torture into the young lady's tender flesh. The elderly gentleman saw her trying position and forgetting his own troubles for a moment reached forward and slapped the young lady on the back, killing the mosquito, breaking the corset spring and nearly breaking the young lady's back. Everybody in the car took the cue from the elderly gentleman's kind act and began to kill mosquitoes on the backs of those sitting directly in front, the conductor taking care of those on the rear seat, knocking them (the mosquitoes) right and left with the car hook.

The slapping become so general that it sounded like a game of "peas-porridge hot." When the agony had been going on for five minutes the elderly gentleman turned to the conductor and asked, "How much longer do you intend to remain here and feed these mosquitoes" The conductor promptly answered, "Just two minutes!" and true to his word he pulled the bell cord and started the car on time leaving the mosquitoes to roost in the trees and await the next carload of human refreshments. The car arrived in Quincy in twenty-five minutes without any special incident. The passengers found on arrival an assemblege of several thousand people enjoying a band concert and sinigng by the popular Quincy quartette at the expense of the railway companys some one said, "O they are only furnishing this music for their own benefit knowing that a crowd would come on the cars." Well, what of that, did not the crowd" come and see, and listen, and flirt, and enjoy themselves? Would they have come otherwise or at least some of them? It is strange that some people can't enjoy anything if they have a knowledge that some one else is being benefitted financially by producing just what those same people are always crying for and never get at their own expense.

A few minutes of pleasure in the square and it was time to go home. Once more Mr. Waterhouse was sought, and in answer to the question when the next car would leave for Norfolk Downs he promptly answered "in two minutes from that track?" indicating by pointing to the track in question.

There was no mistake, the car was not more than ten seconds late, and as it left the square the starter's whistle could be heard trilling in answer to which some one of the many cars would leave with its big freight of humanity to be replaced by another car to await its signal to follow.

The Quincy & Boston Railway Co. may not run its cars with such exact regularity on all occasions, but certainly on this particular one, it revealed to your correspondent that nothing was left of the programme, and no one had reason to complain, except the inveterate kicker, for that individual always has a reason of his own. A suggestion may be in order here, that the railway company either change its terminus at Houghs Neck or furnish each passenger with a suit of three inch steel armor, provide a safety deposit vault for its patrons to wait in, or supply sufficient rations for those humming birds which conductors and motormen seem to be proof against.

Wedding Reception.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Allen, No. 46 Copeland street, West Quincy, the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Henderson tendered them a hearty reception on the evening of the 20th, on their return from their wedding tour in Rutland, Vt., where they were married on July 5th. A very happy evening was spent in mutual congratulations. The following were present:

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Westly Peach, Mr. and Mrs. George Chalmers, Mr. and Mrs. S. Williams. Mr. and Mrs. George Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen, Mr. John A. Wight, Miss Jennie Howie, Miss Jennie Phillips, Miss May Denneen, Miss Sophia Bateman, Miss Mary B. T. Milne, Miss Bessie McMillan, Miss Jennie McDonald, Miss Maggie Cook, Miss Annie Grant, Mr. Charles Long, Mr. D. A. Ross, Miss John Michael, Mr. William Smith, Mr. John McKay, Master Charles Chalmers.

Grocers' Day.

The Old Colony Grocers' Association are having an elegant day for their annual outing at Crescent Park. Although Quincy grocers are members of this association they are not as a rule participating in the excursion, although some of the grocers and their clerks are with the party. In other towns in the district the day is being observed by the general suspension of business in this line.

Many of those from Hingham and Weymouth came to Quincy and took the special train from this point.

Another Burglary.

The grocery store of G. F. Wilson & Co., was entered by burglars Wednesday night. Entrance to the store was made by forcing the window of the office at the rear of the building.

Once inside the parties drank some milk, ate a few cookies, and took some cigars and a few pennies. The work was evidently not that of professionals as it looked more like the work of boys. This is the third break within a week.

Miss Mary Barry of Sagamore street has gone to Milbury on an extended visit.

Miss Margaret Gerry and Master William Gerry are home on their vacation.

The Misses Clean of Newbury avenue have gone to Wareham for a few weeks.

Miss Elsie Skinner of Hartford, Conn., is a guest of Mrs. Gassett, Faxon Road, Atlantic.

Mr. Edmund Hall and Henry Kolb of Atlantic are spending their vacations on the wheel in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gassett of Atlantic spent a few days in Brockton this week making the trip by wheel.

Frank Coe of Atlantic made the trip to Portland by wheel last Sunday with a small party, coming back by boat.

After the last shower the rails of the electric road were under water for quite a distance on Squantun street.

Mr. Frank Tilton of Billings street is receiving a visit from his father, mother and sister of New Hampshire.

Miss Hattie May Page of West Somerville is spending a week with her aunt, Mrs. C. W. Page of Beach street, Wollaston Park.

Councilman Walter P. Hill is moving this week into his new house on Clive street, and will soon be ready to receive his friends.

Mr. John Wilder had a very pleasant wheel ride to Niagara Falls, and arrived there in fine condition. He is now on his way home.

Mr. George H. Locke, Quincy's veteran tax collector, will be 83 years of age August 18. He says other than his limbs he is as good as ever.

Mrs. Elijah G. Hall, Mrs. Austin Waterhouse, Mrs. James E. Curtin and Mrs. R. H. Wilde, have been spending a few days in New Hampshire.

About 200 people assembled on Hancock street last evening to hear the concert given by M. J. Lynch. His graphophone is one of the best and he merits the thanks of all those who listened to it.

Wednesday night a bicycle rider pulled three tacks from his wheel which he had picked up on Washington street. The tacks were bright and clean, showing that they had been thrown in the street by some evil disposed person.

The body of Donald Macrae who died in Somerville July 18, was brought to Quincy Wednesday and buried in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston cemetery. Mr. Macrae formerly resided in Quincy, being engaged in business with Mr. Owen Trainor under the firm name of Trainor & Macrae.

Rev. Edgar W. Preble leaves today or tomorrow for the New Hampshire hills, where he hopes that the dragon of malaria, coiled away in his system, will soon be slain by the St. George of the mountain air. The church will be open the two remaining Sundays in July, supplies being obtained from Boston and Weymouth. It will be closed through August.

It would do no harm to erect a few neat signs at street corners to show strangers which way to go when they arrive in the centre. There is one partly covered by a limb of a tree which says Houghs Neck and points to the insurance office. A sign near the fonntain showing the direction to Houghs Neck, Braintree, Randolph, Brockton, Weymouth, West Quincy and East Milton would be appreciated.

Mr. Henry Turner of the old firm, now retired, of Turner & Newhall, pattern makers of Haverhill street, Boston, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Herbert Polk of Beach street, Wollaston Park. Mr. Turner made many patterns for Mr. Bray, the head of the T. R. & S. Co. of Wollaston, in the sixties and early seventies before Mr. Bray moved his works to our city. Mr. Turner is a well preserved old gentlemen with a clear recollection of the events of Boston for the past sixty years or more. He was an expert pattern maker and has personally done some of the most intricate pattern work known to the craft. Mr. Turner was also a very successful business man.

—A petition is now in circulation to have that part of Dedham on the north side of Mother Brook become a part of Greater Boston. If they continue to cut the good old shire town to pieces there will soon be nothing left but the court house.

CAMP DALTON.

Brief Notes from a Visitor of Co. K in Camp.

July 21, 1898

The Fifth Regiment is the largest ever recruited in the state.

The tents occupied by Company K are about half way down the line and are noticeable for the extreme neatness caused by the absence of mattresses and litter.

It does not hurt young soldiers to sleep on the floor or even on the ground if protected.

At the cook house we found Sergeant Crane who seems to be the right man in the right place and to be ably assisted. It will be a good thing for the boys if they can be prevailed upon to stay there.

Contrary to my expectations the food was of excellent quality and plenty of it. The men fell into line at the supper call crowding up in a friendly way to the head while some more leisurely brought up the rear.

When all were ready they were about faced and last became first, which is an old trick, quite common and is about all the fun the orderly ever gets. Each man received coffee, bread, fresh meat, and stewed tomatoes, which together with fruit brought by friends made a substantial meal.

The boys just seem to idolize the offices and why should they not for they are all fine fellows. As for Colbert he was born for the office, he is my ideal of an Orderly Sergeant.

At sick call it was almost impossible to find anyone who considered himself unable for duty.

While not a user of tobacco myself I think it is a good thing for the soldier to smoke for he can take a great deal of comfort that way, but if one or two of Company K who are ailing would break their pipes for a few weeks and get over that homesick feeling they will be all right.

Again about dusk a neighboring company were singing such pieces as "Just before the Battle Mother" which does not tend to make those who overhear them very jolly.

The average soldier chap longs to be on the move. If the regiment is sent to Chicamaugua they want to be there three days before they start for Porto Rico or Spain.

E. J. Sandberg, Julius Johnson and Andrew Olsen visited camp Wednesday. They brought a box of oranges and a large bunch of bananas which made the boys cheer.

At the dress parade on the field which is half a mile square the regiment appeared in the regulation blue and presented a fine appeaarnce.

The officers must have worked hard to have obtained the results shown yesterday.

The manual was nearly perfect while the marching was better than one could expect considering that sixty per cent. were green men.

Not much doubt but such a body of men will be wanted at the front.

One does not have to go out of the Massachusetts regiment to find material for any work; they have an excellent band already.

This war will be worth all it costs as it will reunite the whole country and settle for all time the Americanism of its defenders.

This country has been caught napping twice but never will again. We shall always be prepared in the future and all foreign powers are extemely anxious to have alliance or at least to avoid a quarrel with us. Our country has just begun to grow.

TODAY'S COURT.

Milton hill was well represented in court this morning when thirteen well known Milton young men were arraigned upon two complaints sworn out by Chief of Police Pierce, charging them with the malicious breaking of glass of John W. Smith and the setting of a bonfire near the dwelling house of Hugh Keenan the nights of the third and fourth of July.

The thirteen defendants were Harry E. Damon, Fletcher Carpenter, Paul Carpenter, Ralph Baxter, Clarence J. Edwards, William E. Edwards, Russell Swift, Percy Edwards, Malcolm Le Fevre, Edward Hobbs, Orrin Oliver, John Lobban, and Arthur Boylston.

Both the complainant and defendants were represented by counsel, and at the opening of the case counsel for the defendants moved to quash, the principal grounds for the motions being that some of the complaints did not sufficiently set forth the offense or that the building was not the property of the defendant. In other cases some of the names were omitted from the second part of the complaint.

The points raised to quash were discussed at length by the counsel. In the breaking glass cases the complaints against the young men whose names were omitted from the complaints were thrown out by the court and new complaints issued.

The court then commenced to hear the testimony and at the present rate it will take some days to complete it for at 1 o'clock but one witness had been examined. At that hour the court took a recess for dinner.

Francis J. O'Neil was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

—The big electrics on the South Shore road between Braintree and Nantasket have commenced running.

A Story of Cuba.

We have just received from the Werner Company, at Akron, Ohio, a very interesting and attractive book of 650 pages, entitled "The Story of Cuba: her struggles for liberty; the cause, crisis and destiny of the pearl of the Antilles." By Murat Halstead. It is graphically illustrated with numerous typical photographic reproductions and original drawings, including those of the of the United State Battleship Maine. It is a valuable work and particularly interesting at this time. Canvassers would do well to become agents for this attractive book.

THE RAVENS.

A Knotty Question Cleverly Answered by a Blacksmith Preacher.

Many years ago there lived in one of the mountain counties of this state a blacksmith who to his reputation for honest work during the week added that of being a powerful exhorter on Sundays. Held in high esteem by his neighbors, possessed of a sufficiency of this world's goods for that primitive community, he seemed to have solved the question of terrestrial happiness, but the "thorn in the flesh" is indigenous to all climes and conditions, and for the blacksmith it grew in the person of one Tom Bradley, a tall, lank mountaineer, who was the wit and wag of the neighborhood, and who also occupied the unenviable position of skeptic in that orthodox community.

Tom delighted to prod the smith with certain inexplicable Biblical statements, and these encounters sometimes resulted disastrously for the exhorter, causing him much humiliation and making him, as he said, "wrassle in prayer and cry to the Lord and spare not."

Once at the yearly camp meeting the old man was giving his "experience" in the tone and manner that were considered devotional in those parts. "My brethren, ah," he said, "as I was a-standin in my shop an gittin ready to shoe Billy Hite's old gray mare, ah, 'long come that son of a gun Tom Bradley, ah. He ast me ef I believed everything in the Bible, ah. I said everything, from kiver ter kiver, ah. 'Believe that yarn about Noah bein shet up in the ark with all them different sort of critters, ah?' sezze. 'Si, I done swallered Jonah an the whale, ah, an I wa'nt a-goin to gag at Noah, ah.' 'Well,' sezze, ah, 'ef that raven Noah sent out got lost, ah, where did all these here ravens come frum, ah?' Brethren, I thought fer a minute, ah, that old satan had got the underholt on me, ah, an was about ter thoe me, ah, but, thank the Lord, ah, I jest thoed back my head, ah, an the sperrit of knowledge plum filled me, ah, an I sez, sezzl, 'It was the old he raven, ah, that got lost, an the old she raven was a settin on five eggs in the nest, ah, an that's where these here ravens come from, ah.'"

FIRST SOUTHERN TORPEDO.

Used In the James River After the Fight at Seven Pines.

The story of the first torpedo which was invented and used by General Gabriel Rains during the war with the Seminole Indians, April, 1840, ended in the fighting of 16 soldiers, who had gone with Captain Rains to investigate the cause of the explosion, with some 100 or more Indians, and among the casualties the wounding of the captain and his being carried to Fort King in the arms of his men. Another and second torpedo had been previously placed at the post by him, and soon after the fight 1,000 or more troops were collected there, and it became such a dread to the whole army that a soldier guard was put over it until Captain Rains was able to go and take it up.

"Suppose," said one officer to another high in rank, "that the captain had died of his wound. What would you have done?" "I thought," said the second officer, "of firing at it with a 9 pounder at a safe distance and thus knocking it to pieces."

The occasion of his first submarine torpedo was as follows: Soon after the battle of Seven Pines General Lee, commanding, sent for General Rains and said to him: "The enemy have upward of 100 vessels in the James river, and we think that they are about making an advance that way upon Richmond, and if there is a man in the whole Southern Confederacy that can stop them you are that man. Will you undertake it?"

"I will try," was the answer, and, observing that ironclads were invulnerable to cannon of all caliber used and were really masters of rivers and harbors, it required submarine inventions to checkmate and conquer them, so an order was issued forthwith putting General Gabriel Rains in charge of submarine defenses, and on James river bank, opposite to Drury's Bluff, his first submarine torpedo was made, the primogenitor and precursor of all such inventions, now world renowned, as civilized nations have each a torpedo corps.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Half Ton Sturgeons.

I saw a sturgeon here on the cannery floor measuring 12 feet by the tape and weighing more than 600 pounds. Any one wishing to deceive the public by aid of a prevaricating camera should pose beside this 12 foot fish. The man who skillfully and laboriously reduced it to sections with an ax said it was not an uncommon fish, though the biggest on the floor; that they often found them far larger and weighing as much as 1,200 pounds.

Two men lifting a half ton fish into their boat is the exciting feature of sturgeon fishing. The sturgeon is not a lively fish, but when lifting hooks are fastened in his thick hide he is apt to resent it. He shakes his head in emphatic dissent, and a head 3 feet long and as big as a log, when vigorously shaken by a half ton body, is a thing to be avoided. The tail, too, is a source of danger, for it not only slaps with energy, but can cover a large surface with one application. The man new at the business is apt to get hurt the first time he helps to coax a wriggling sturgeon of standard size over a gunwale. —Victoria Letter in Toronto Globe.

Great Events From Little Causes.

While staying at the court of Frederick II of Prussia Voltaire presented Mme. de Pompadour's compliments to the king, who scornfully replied, "Je ne la connais pas." Out of vengeance for so much insult, as she deemed it, madame induced the weakminded Louis XV to convert his country's long standing hostility against Austria into friendship. A Franco-Austrian army then took the field against Prussia, and as it was an easy matter for madame to enlist the practical sympathy of Elizabeth of Russia, who had been the subject of Frederick's indiscreet remarks also, half a million lives were lost.—Notes and Queries.

A Remarkable Circumstance.

Washington, July 21.—Surgeon General Van Reypen of the navy is back from a visit to the wounded brought up from Santiago by the hospital ship Solace. These embrace all of our men wounded at the battle with Admiral Cervera's squadron, 22 in number, as well as 25 sick sailors from Sampson's fleet. The fact that only 22 men were wounded in this notable engagement is regarded as one of the most remarkable circumstances connected with that event. Dr. Van Reypen found that all but two of the men were moving about, and these two are on the way to recovery. The wounds are from bursting shells, and in a few cases from bullets. The 22 include some marines, so that the actual number of those wounded in the sea fight is even less. There is not a case of fever of any kind among the sick or wounded brought up from the fleet. Dr. Van Reypen says this satisfactory health condition exists at all naval points.

BIG CROWD IN ATLANTA

Annual Reunion of Confederate Veterans the Attraction.

Gen. Gordon and Gen. Hooker Deliver Addresses.

Enthusiasm Over the Work of Southerners in the Cuban War.

Atlanta, July 21.—A conservative estimate of the people now in Atlanta to attend the eighth annual reunion of the Confederate veterans is 50,000. Much disappointment is expressed at the unavoidable absence of Mrs. Jefferson Davis.

The interest of yesterday centered in the first meeting of the veterans in the auditorium of Piedmont park. There welcoming addresses were delivered by Major Collier, Governor Atkinson and others. The governor in part said: "A great many people have misconceived our relations to the national government. When we surrendered to the opposing forces, we granted two things—the negro as a free man and the adjustment of the doctrine of secession; but the state never did surrender the strict construction of the constitution of the United States. Whenever this great question, which divides northern and southern statesmen, is submitted to the supreme court, it has always decided in favor of the southern position."

GENERAL JOHN B. GORDON.

Surrounded by 10,000 of his devoted followers, General John B. Gordan, commander-in-chief of the veterans, delivered an address which thrilled his auditors: "What is the meaning of these confederate pageants?" he asked. "Are they due to any covert or sinister aims, or in the remotest degree self-seeking? Do these reunions and popular demonstrations which attend them draw their inspiration from any suggestion of disloyalty to either of the tremendous results of the war, the freedom of the slave and the eternal unity of the republic? The protection of the negro by southern courts, his reliance for security upon southern sentiment and his education through white taxation in southern schools, furnish the south's answer as to the first. To the second, loyalty to a perpetual union of the states and to the honor and glory of the republic, the south has been continually answering since the close of our civil war, and she is answering today by the presence and prowess of her heroic sons at the front in the war with Spain. Her Wheeler, her Lee, her Bagley, her Blue, her Hobson and her thousands of volunteers, who sprang to arms at their country's call, are answering from their camps, from the Philippines and from the jungles of Cuba. You, my confederate comrades, would be there if the country needed you. Many of you assembled here would have been there but for impaired health and failing strength. But our sons and grandsons are there. With our prayers and blessings they are enlisted in this war for high and holy purposes.

"Among the great ends to be attained in this conflict with Spain, the freedom of oppressed islands in both oceans, the wider influence of America in the councils of nations, the increased respect for her power on both land and sea, there is still another achievement to be attained, no less glorious and far reaching, namely, the obliteration of all traces of distrust among ourselves and the complete and too long delayed unification of the American people, which shall be called in question no more forever."

The oration of the day was delivered by General Charles E. Hooker of Mississippi, who said that when the surrender was made, the confederate soldiers separated with their arms in their hands. He said it was a capitulation, the confederates being allowed to depart in peace, unmolested so long as they observed their parole. There is not one confederate but has kept the terms of his capitulation. He spoke feelingly of the way in which the president of the confederacy, with supreme abnegation, took upon himself the sins of all his people. Only one reason, said the general, could be assigned for the failure to try President Davis. His prosecutors knew he was not guilty. They knew his allegiance was first due to his state, and, as a loyal citizen of Mississippi when she seceded, it was his duty to espouse her cause. In commenting on the fact that the south's representatives were taking a prominent part in the war with Spain, the speaker attested to the bravery and gallantry of General Wheeler. "They may beat him for congress in Alabama," said the speaker, ["They'll never do it," shouted a score of voices.] "but we will erect a magnificent monument to him."

Senator Swam to Safety.

Asheville, N. C., July 21.—United States Senator J. C. Pritchard left his home to attend court at Burnsville, and when crossing a swollen mountain stream his buggy was overturned and the senator had an exhausting struggle with the flood. His horse and buggy were swept away. The senator was bruised and received several ugly cuts.

BOSTONS WINNERS.

Team From St. Louis Troubled by the Pitching of Nichols.

Boston, July 21.—Tom Tucker, who makes the second of Holyoke's citizens on the team, Tom Dowd being the other, and Joe Quinn, two of Boston's old guard, received a warm welcome in yesterday's game with the Hursts of St. Louis. Tucker played a fine game at first base, hitting for a triple in the last inning to left center.

THOMAS J. DOWD.

The Boston men hit Hughey for 11 singles, sacrificed in good shape, earned most of their seven runs and fielded perfectly. Captain Duffy's bunting and sprinting were as pretty as anything done this year, and he led Boston at the bat with three hits, besides scoring two runs. The batting of Stahl, Collins, Lowe and Bergen was a feature, and Collins made a new record with timely sacrifice hitting. The infielding of Long, Lowe and Collins was magnificent, and the "big three" seemed able alone to shut "der browns" off from winning. Score:

Loose pitching by Doheny and crazy throwing by Hartman lost the game for the New Yorks to the Pittsburgs in the first inning. Score: 7 to 5.

Cleveland outbatted the Baltimores but the latter hit the ball more opportunely and won, 7 to 4. Both teams fielded brilliantly.

One hit was all the Brooklyns secured off Magee, and the Louisvilles made it 11 off Yeager and won easily, 4 to 1.

The Syracuse team batted Dolan out of the game in Springfield, and Friel did only a little better. Score: 10 to 4.

The Chicagos defeated the Phillies by hard hitting. The Quakers gave a miserable exhibition of baseball. Score: 15 to 5.

The senators broke a string of defeats by winning from the Cincinnatis in a good game. Score: 3 to 2.

What Italy Seeks.

Washington, July 21.—There is considerable misapprehension concerning the exact point of difference between Italy and Colombia growing out of President Cleveland's award on the claims of Mr. Cerruti for losses to his property in the department of Cauca in 1885. It is not true as generally believed that the Italian war vessels are at Carthagena for the purpose of requiring the payment by Colombia of the $300,000 awarded Italy for the use of Cerruti. Colombia has never protested against this portion of the award and has paid the installments, the money now being in the Italian treasury.

Cerruti was a member of the partnership of E. Cerruti & Co., and as Mr. Cleveland found that Colombia had destroyed his means for liquidating the debts of that firm and as he might be held personally liable for them, and as the chief purpose of the award was to place him in the enjoyment of the "net sum" referred to, his decision adjudged to Colombia all of Cerruti's rights in all of his property in the department of Cauca which had been called in question in the proceedings, and required that Colombia should protect Cerruti against all liability on account of partnership debts and reimburse him so far as he might be compelled to pay any of these debts. It is this provision which Italy seeks to enforce.

The counsel for the Colombian government in a recent interview insisted that this article concerning the partnership debts was invalid. Coudert Bros., who represented Cerruti in the arbitral proceedings, have made a statement showing that it was competent for Mr. Cleveland under the protocol to make just the kind of award that he did make. The partnership creditors, they say, have tried to seize upon the net sum now in the possession of Italy; Colombia has taken no steps to protect Cerruti against their claims, and the former government has been harrassed by their importunities.

Thoroughly healthy girlhood means happy wifehood and capable motherhood. A new fangled prudery prevents many girls from learning things that they ought to know before they assume the duties of matrimony and maternity. Athletics alone will not make a young woman thoroughly healthy. The wise counsels of a good mother or some older woman are indispensable.

The best and noblest mission of a woman is to bear and rear healthy, intelligent children. In order to do this, she must be healthy and strong in a womanly way. Both the intellectual and physical future of her children depend largely upon the mother. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all medicines for maids, wives and mothers. It is intended to do but one thing and does that one thing thoroughly. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood and makes them strong, healthy, virile, vigorous and elastic. Taken during the time of preparation, it banishes the trials and dangers of maternity. It insures the well being of the mother and the robust health of the child. It is the greatest of nerve tonics and nerve builders. Thousands of women have told the story of its marvelous accomplishments. Good medicine dealers sell it and will not advise a substitute in place of it.

In a letter to Dr. Pierce, Mr. C. A. McDonald, of No. 123 N. Chestnut Street, Los Angeles, Cal., says: "At Junction City I became acquainted with W. C. Lee, M. D., an old practitioner. He said he was a college chum of yours, but that you went to Europe to the best hospitals, while he commenced practice; that for thirty years you were considered one of the leading physicians in New York State, and he considered your remedies better than all others, and prescribed them daily in his practice. On the strength of this commendation I tried your 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Pellets.' The 'Favorite Prescription' has acted like magic in cases of irregular and painful monthly periods, a few doses only being necessary to restore the natural function. The 'Pellets' have proven an infallible cure for sick and bilious headache."

BEAR IN MIND

That we do not claim the goods we sell to be in any respect different from what other people sell, except in price. All our goods are new goods (1898 goods) and amongst them is nothing that we are selling for 25 cts. on the dollar. Our expenses are small and we sell our goods for all they are worth, but do not sometimes have to sell them for more than they are worth, like some merchants do to help pay the enormous expense they are under.

We have about 200 Negligee Shirts, which we will sell this week and next week, too, if we do not sell them all for 69c. We have them in all styles, with attached and detached collars. We would not have you believe they are the $1.00 kind. Although some are woolen madras goods, which are usually sold for that price. Some others sell some of them for 75c. and claim they are worth $1.00. We guarantee everything we sell, and will always pay your money back if goods purchased are not satisfactory.

MILES HAS HIS WAY.

Porto Rico Transports Provided With an Escort.

President Thundered; Sampson's Disavowal.

Admiral Ready With the Ships Whenever the Start Was Made.

Belief That the Navy Will Be Active In Reducing San Juan.

Washington, July 22.—Admiral Sampson having at last furnished vessels to convoy General Miles' expedition to Porto Rico, the commanding general of the army notified the war department that he had sailed for the next Spanish possession which is to come under the protection of the United States.

At the same time both the navy and war departments were informed of the fleet of warships accompanying the expedition. These vessels are the Massachusetts, the Cincinnati and Columbia, the Annapolis, the Yale and Dixie, and the Gloucester, Leyden and Wasp.

There has evidently been some friction between Sampson and Miles; just what it is no one in either department knows, or if any one knows no one will explain it. It transpired that for some reason or other Admiral Sampson was opposed to sending fighting ships as the convoy, and considered that the smaller vessels of his fleet were amply sufficient. Miles insisted that he should be given more important vessels, and it was only after the matter had been referred to the president, who directed the navy department to send a peremptory order to Sampson, that he complied with Miles' request.

A suggestion which may throw some light on the differences between the two commanders has been made. Inasmuch as Spain's navy has practically ceased to exist, and there are no Spanish vessels in West Indian waters except small gunboats, which a handful of our infantry, armed with their rifles, could blow out of the water, Admiral Sampson considered a convoy of armored vessels unnecessary, and that the vessels could better be employed in blockading duty on the northern coast of Cuba than in being sent to Porto Rico to accompany troopships.

Admiral Sampson was willing to let General Miles have a gunboat or two, or one of the auxiliary cruisers, but he was opposed to letting his fighting ships go away. General Miles, it is said, while admitting that there was no danger from Spanish ships, wanted vessels of war to accompany his expedition, so that in case it was necessary to shell the Spaniards out of a fortified position before a landing could be effected the warships would be there to do that part of the work.

This is what, according to the person who makes the suggestion, Admiral Sampson objected to. Practically it would place the naval part of the expedition under the command of General Miles, and if General Miles should take it into his head to make his landing very close to San Juan the army would get as much credit from the fall of San Juan as it did from the capitulation of Santiago.

Telegram From Sampson.

Admiral Sampson telegraphs to the secretary of the navy that there has been no delay in furnishing ample convoy to General Miles. A day or two ago the Cincinnati and New Orleans were placed at his disposal. The Columbia and Yale, carrying troops, are both powerfully armed, says the admiral's telegram, and this is an ample convoy for his expedition and to effect his landing. The Annapolis, Wasp and Leyden have been ordered from Nipe, the Gloucester also added, and the three monitors ordered from Key West. Under these circumstances there has been no lack of assistance. General Miles preferred to wait; the delay was his own. However, in further answer to his request, the Massachusetts and Dixie were also added, and he has probably started.

This statement shows that General Miles will be backed in effecting his landing by a strong squadron of the navy. In addition to the vessels named in the statement, it is officially admitted for the first time that the powerful monitors, Terror, Amphitrite and Puritan, which have been at Key West, are under orders to proceed to Porto Rico to assist in the reduction of the Spanish forts there. It is known also to be not unlikely—indeed it is probable—that still other vessels of Sampson's squadron will participate in the reduction of the fortifications of San Juan.

Secretary Alger believes that General Miles on the Yale will arrive at his destination Sunday morning with 3000 men under his immediate command. A day later 4000 men on the transports will arrive, and the day following that 3500 more. Whether the landing will be deferred until the arrival of this entire force, or whether General Miles will take the initiative and hoist the flag himself on Porto Rican soil is left to the discretion of that officer. It is the department's determination that he shall not lack for troops or equipment, and this first expedition may be followed by others as fast as the troops can be gotten ready until word comes from the general that he needs no more. General Schwan's brigade comprising the Fifth, the Eleventh and Nineteenth United States infantry, a splendid body of trained soldiers, sailed from Tampa yesterday to join Miles, and if the Porto Rican expedition is not an immediate success it will not be for lack of disposition in the war department to supply every requisite.

Commodore Watson's Squadron.

Preparation for the dispatch of the Watson squadron to European waters is going on uninterruptedly, but the departure necessarily will await the movement of the warships at Porto Rico, the Massachusetts and other ships being required for convoying the troops to that island. This disposes of a report that the expedition had been abandoned. The report was the more mischievous at this time, as it indicated a purpose to yield to the implied threats of European sources that a European coalition would result if the American warships attacked the coast of Spain. Neither the state nor the navy department looks for any embarrassment from European quarters without Spain as a result of the naval movement against the peninsula.

Had the army troopships been able to go to Porto Rico without a naval convoy the Watson squadron could have got away within the next few days, as the war board had wished to close all preliminaries by next Saturday; but as the Massachusetts, Columbia, Cincinnati, Dixie and Yale, together with several lesser craft, were considered necessary for a patrol for the Miles expedition, this changed plans slightly. The Dixie is almost certain to be in the Watson squadron, and the Massachusetts is likely to be. Secretary Long expressly says, however, that the delay of the Watson squadron is incident to convoying the troops to Porto Rico, and does not mean that the start will be postponed until the Porto Rico operations are concluded.

A Cuban Achilles.

Port Antonio, July 22.—General Calixto Garcia, in charge of the Cuban forces in the operations about Santiago, notified General Shafter that he had tendered his resignation as commander of the insurgents of the eastern department. This action on the part of General Garcia is regarded as a ruse, and is believed to have as its object the drawing a vote of confidence from the leaders of the Cuban junta instead of an honest declaration of hostility to the American plans regarding Santiago.

That General Garcia has not seriously retired from the Cuban army is disclosed by the fact that he has just agreed with General Castillo to march their Cuban forces against Holguin, and that both Garcia and Castillo have joined in a request to General Gomez to unite with them in driving the Spanish out of all the other provinces prior to the American attack on Havana. General Garcia's troops have been withdrawn to the mountains.

In his letter Garcia says: "A rumor too absurd to be believed, general, ascribes the reason of your measure and of the orders of forbidding my army to enter Santiago, to fear of massacres and revenges against the Spaniards. Allow me, sir, to protest against even the shadow of such an idea. We are not savages, ignoring the rules of civilized warfare. We are a poor, ragged army, as ragged and as poor as was the army of your forefathers in their noble war for independence, but as the heroes of Saratoga and Yorktown we respect too deeply our cause to disgrace it with barbarism and cowardice."

Spanish Vessels Scurry.

London, July 22.—A special dispatch from Madrid says: "Everything is done to keep the whereabouts of Admiral Camara's squadron a secret; but there is no doubt he is at Cartagena, which is the safest and strongest port of Spain in the Mediterranean. The inhabitants, however, have a strong republican tendency. All the Spanish vessels are hurrying away from Cadiz owing to the knowledge that most of the guns on the forts are useless, in consequence of the corruption of the government departments. It is believed that a similar state of things exists at many other ports. The south and east sides of Barcelona are well protected, but the north side is practically undefended, as are several of the northern ports of Spain.

"General Campos, interviewed at San Sebastian, is represented as saying that Santiago's fate was awaited at Havana and San Juan from the same cause—shortness of provisions. He advocated peace, the struggle being unequal, and expressed the opinion that the suspension of the constitutional guarantees was fully justified by the Carlist agitation. He said: 'The government which made the war must make way for new men.'

"The latest dispatches from Captain General Blanco represented that the insurrection in Cuba had dwindled to insignificant proportions throughout the whole island, except in the provinces of Santiago de Cuba and Puerto Principe. He said that for these reasons it seemed to him inadvisable to assume the offensive against either the invaders or the rebels during the rainy season, and much wiser to husband the Spanish resources and to oblige the enemy to take the risks of the climate and disease."

Desertions In Chickamauga.

Chickamauga, July 22.—There have been very few desertions from the army here. A number of men have remained away without leave until their money was all gone, but there have not been 20 genuine desertions from the entire army. Four men from the Eighth Massachusetts have been away overtime, but only two of these, it is believed, are deserters. The First Pennsylvania has four deserters and the Third Tennessee two. A hurried investigation discovered that there had been no desertions at all in the First Maine and not more than one, if that, in the First Vermont.

It is stated at General Brooke's headquarters that in so large a body of raw soldiers, unused to the hardships of camp life, it is remarkable that so few have deserted. The story that there have been numerous desertions from regiments from any one section or from the army at large is untrue.

Rebels Have Swelled Heads.

London, July 22.—The correspondent of The Times at Cavite, telegraphing under date of July 17 by way of Hong Kong, says: "I visited the rebel entrenchments, which are less than a mile outside the Spanish lines at Malate. I found the rebels well armed. They are provided with mauser rifles, and have two field pieces, and they are gradually forcing the Spaniards back. The Spanish prisoners are well treated by the rebels, but they are all terribly exhausted and emaciated. Some of them are suffering terribly from fever. The position of the Spanish prisoners taken by the Americans is peculiar. Admiral Dewey, being unable to keep them, turned them over to the rebels under a proviso that America should bear the expenses of their maintenance, General Aguinaldo being responsible for their feeding. The prisoners at Cavite complain that they receive insufficient food, but the rebels are unable to obtain better.

"I have visited all the prisons and hospitals. I found their condition extremely filthy. The surgical and medical treatment was primitive. Since the arrival of General Anderson's brigade, however, the prisoners have been employed in cleaning and other sanitary work, and there has been a marked improvement all around.

"The development of the political position confirms the belief that the natives are suffering from 'swelled heads' and are likely to cause trouble to the Americans, whose preparations keep this contingency steadily in view. It is reported that in an attack upon Malate the rebels lost 50 killed during a charge. A party was surrounded by Spaniards and slaughtered to the last man."

Victory at Manzanillo.

Playa Del Este, July 22.—The following is the official account of the latest victory—that at Manzanillo—modestly told by Commander Todd of the Wilmington in his report to Admiral Sampson: "At 7 o'clock on the morning of July 18 the vessels on blockade duty in this vicinity, the Wilmington, Helena, Scorpion, Hist, Hornet, Wampatuck and Osceloa, approached the harbor of Manzanillo from the westward. After a deliberate fire, lasting about two and a half hours, three Spanish transports, El Gloria, Jose Garcia and La Purisima Concepcion, were burned and destroyed. The Pontoon, which was the harbor guard and storeship probably for ammunition, was burned and blown up. Three gunboats were destroyed. One other was driven ashore and sunk, and a third was driven ashore and is believed to have been disabled.

"No casualties on board any of our vessels. Great care was taken in directing the fire that as little damage as possible should be done to the city itself, and, so far as could be observed, little if any was done."

All of our vessels were handled with sound discretion and excellent judgment by the several commanding officers, which was to have been expected from the men commanding the vessels of this force. Commander Todd led one of the most successful expeditions undertaken so far by the navy.

A Reported Escape.

Atlanta, July 22.—It was reported at midnight that four of the Spanish prisoners confined at Fort McPherson since the beginning of hostilities with Spain had escaped. The officer in charge of the barracks refused either to deny or confirm the report.

May Live In Boston.

Annapolis, July 22.—A rumor, which cannot be traced to an authoritative source, says that Admiral Cervera had expressed a determination not to return to his native country at the close of hostilities between the United States and Spain; that the admiral has decided to take up his residence in Boston, whither he will repair with his son, Lieutenant Cervera, who is also a prisoner here.

Halifax Vessel Seized.

Halifax, July 22.—The Newfoundland, which was seized by the Americans while attempting to run the blockade at Cienfuegos, cleared here for Jamaica and Vera Cruz, and sailed with the following cargo, valued at $30,360, for the Spanish government: Forty-three hundred sacks, 1640 bags, 1050 barrels flour, 200 barrels pork, 150 bags wheat, 200 bags corn, 552 cases meats, 39 packages of sundries. The news of the Newfoundland's arrest created much excitement in Halifax shipping circles. She is owned by a local company.

The Regulus sailed on the same day as the Newfoundland, clearing for the same ports, and carrying a similar cargo. No news has been received from her, and her owners await advices with much anxiety.

PALMA'S SKEPTICISM.

Head of the Cuban Junta on the Stories of Friction.

Garcia Expressed Willingness to Help Americans.

General Shafter Said to Think Very Ill of the Cubans.

Washington, July 22.—General Palma, president of the Cuban junta, is in the city. He does not credit the stories about the reported friction between Cuban soldiers and the Americans. "I think," he said, "all Cubans recognize the nice work of the United States in helping the Cubans to attain their independence. I cannot think any regular soldiers of the Cuban army have refused to help build roads, or dig trenches. I do not know what scattered soldiers may have done, but it is not reasonable to suppose that any of the regulars under Garcia have declined to perform such service. General Garcia from the beginning said he was ready to do all that was necessary to aid the Americans, and his soldiers have for years been doing just such work as you refer to. They have grown accustomed to just such work."

ESTRADA PALMA.

'What do you estimate as the number of Cuban soldiers under arms in Cuba at this time?" he was asked.

"I think we have about 55,000 Cuban soldiers under arms in Cuba now," said General Palma. "There are probably about 4000 to 5000 soldiers with Garcia, and the balance of them are scattered all over Cuba. It must be remembered that we have possession of a good many towns, and there must be a guard maintained over them by our Cuban army. All through the provinces there are needs for the protection which is afforded by these soldiers. Most of our cavalry is in Puerto Principe."

General Palma does not credit the reports regarding the death of General Garcia. He said he had a letter from Garcia a few days ago and believed he was still alive.

Senator Foraker thinks the Cuban side should be heard before American sentiment condemns General Garcia and his intrepid men. Garcia claims that the natives who refused to work in the campaign are not soldiers, but pacificos, who have become camp followers.

On General Shafter's recommendation, all orders heretofore issued by General Miles for distribution of arms among Cubans have been countermanded. No attention will hereafter be paid to Cubans as military allies. Shafter says they are sulkers, looters and utterly worthless.

Charged With Fraud.

London, July 22.—Fred J. Monson of Ardlamont, of murder mystery notoriety, who was arrested July 1, was committed for trial yesterday charged with insurance frauds. Monson is also suing his wife for divorce, alleging as corespondent Cecil Hambrough, for whose murder Monson was tried in 1893, the proceedings ending in a verdict of "not proven."

The Ardlamont murder was the chief court sensation in England and had remarkable features. Alfred Monson is about 38 years of age, and was at one time a favorite in London society. He is the fifth son of the second Lord Monson. He graduated at Oxford and eventually became a tutor to Cecil Hambrough, a wealthy man, whose life was insured for $100,000 in Mrs. Monson's favor, as security to a debt due her husband. Monson and Hambrough leased a shooting box at Ardlamont, Scotland, and shortly after they arrived at Ardlamont in August, 1893, Hambrough went out in a boat with Monson. From some inexplicable cause the boat sank, but its occupants got safely ashore. The next morning Hambrough went out rabbit shooting and lost his life by receiving a charge of shot in his head. Monson was arrested, and the trial, one of the most sensational on record, lasted 10 days in Edinburg, and resulted in the Scotch verdict.

COMMENTS.

America can afford to be generous and magnanimous towards Spain just now, especially as regards the treatment of prisoners. While the gain may not be as tangible as most people of broad and generous impulses might expect and look for, yet a lesson will be taught to the world at large that will likely bear wholesome fruit.—Brooklyn Times.

When a person risks his life to save that of another it is deserving of more than passing notice. This was the case when the brave little fourteen year old hero, Peter Curney, saved the life of Marguerite Gavin on Monday morning last. After trying in vain to save Isabella McDonnell he bent all his efforts to the task of rescuing her companion. Three times he was dragged under the water by the weight of his burden, but he struggled bravely until he brought her safely to the shore. It requires no stretch of imagination to phrophesy for this boy a future full of manly and courageous deeds, a future of honor to his family and to his country.

The American business man is already waiting in the waters of Cuba for the warrior to give him a chance to establish trade. The American financier is studying island maps as carefully as the soldier is and is measuring the need of fiscal institutions and means of transportation. Commerce is all ready with its balm to heal the wounds of war. And the money that Americans will make will not be made out of the people emancipated from subjection to Spanish captains general; it will be made by supplying these people with the things they need and assisting them to develop the resources of their own countries for centuries blighted by Spanish land pirates. The world will be astonished at the recuperation and expansion of industry in these islands east and west when the Spaniard is removed and the influences of the nineteenth century are permitted to operate.—New York Journal of Commerce.

"Millions of his countrymen would like to see him in the presidential chair," says an exchange of Admiral Dewey. Then the millions have very little thought for his comfort or his honor. Within the memory of many of these millions, one military hero has been put into the presidential chair. And, though he was a faithful and honnorable president, most thoughtful people agree that it would have been better for him and no worse for the country had he remained a military officer to the end of his life. Grant was a marvelous success as a general no amount of reverence for his memory can hide the truth that he made some woful mistakes as a civil administrator. He suffered intensely from the machinations of the time-serving and self-seeking politicians who surrounded him, and his later life was embittered by the ingratitude of men who should have made every sacrifice for his sake. And yet there are "millions" who want to expose George Dewey to this experience.—New Bedford Standard.

SHAM BATTLE.

Company K has one Today—Comfort Bags Received.

Camp Dalton, July 22.

Co. K will have a sham battle this afternoon. The company will be divided into two squads; one will wear the blue uniform and the other the brown. The place selected for the battle is covered with underbrush and high grass.

Capt. Kincaide received $5 from the Unity Circle of King's Daughters this morning.

The regiment starts today on its allotment of five days' rations.

Yesterday had variety enough of weather to suit the most fastidious. Old Sol beamed out hot enough in the morning to boil water. Drill went on as usual.

In the afte noon Co. K had just got on the drill ground when a cool northwest wind and several black clouds announced the arrival of rain. It soon came down in plenty. The recall was sounded and a double quick march was made for camp. The storm soon ceased and a return was made to the drill grounds.

After a short period the storm returned with more fury. The men once more marched to camp. The wind increased in five minutes to 40 or 50 miles an hour. A great rush was made to fasten the tents down secure, and little damage was done to Co. K's street, with the exception of tent No. 5 which was some what damaged; so much so that after the storm abated a new one was raised in its place. It rained so hard that in twenty minutes the tented city looked like a huge lake covered with sails.

Several tents belonging to other companies were flooded; especially the 1st sergeant's in Co. M, which was flooded to a depth of four inches. The storm lasted for half an hour and raged with a vengeance. It quickly cleared however and a large fatigue party was at once put to work, and inside an hour the camp began to take on its old appearnce.

The chaplain's serivc ent was damaged slightly during the storm.

Dress parade was held as usual the ground having dried sufficiently. The parade was very good considering all things and showed a marked gain on last week's parades.

The uneasiness of the first few reviews is not noticed now, as the men are becoming accustomed to being stared at and every individual does his utmost to produce the best line.

Capt. Kincaide was acting major yesterday during Major Morrison's absence.

Private Olsen was chosen Orderly today. The number increases almost every day. There must be something in Co. K's appearance to warrant this frequent choice.

Lieut. Whitney is Officer of the Guard today.

1st Sergt. Colbert was at his home in Bra intree yesterday.

Mrs. G. A. Phillips of Wollaston, wife of Sergt. Phillips, is stopping in Framingham this week.

Among the visitors yesterday were Mrs. John G. Thomas, Mrs. J. F. McLeod, Mrs. J. W. Newcomb and Mrs. D. Brown of Wollaston; Mr. G. F. Spooner, Miss Spooner and Miss Addie Holton of Quincy. They came well loaded with generous supplies of fruit and dainties.

The Endeavor society of the Congregational church of Wollaston sent thirty comfort bags to Co. K, yesterday. They were works of art and the company wishes to thank the donors for the interest they prove to have in them. There are 109 members in the company so the thirty bags were given to the ones who were lucky enough to draw a number from a hat containing thirty numbered tickets and the rest blanks. The society have done their share in this but there is plenty of room for some other society or individuals to help Co. K by making comfort bags in their leisure moments. About seventy are needed. Almost any one can learn how to make them. Here is a chance for some one as they are very useful and cost little to make.

Weather permitting the Daughters of the Revolution of Weymouth and Braintree are coming to camp today in a body with many friends. An inspection of quarters with a tour of the grounds, visiting among the boys and the evening parade will about put in the afternoon. A good time is expected.

There was deposited in the bank at Quincy on Wednesday, $107 to the credit of Co. K, by the employes of the Tubular Rivet Company of Wollaston, as their share in the fund. Several members of the company were employes of the firm, and this deposit shows that they are not forgotten.

Evidences of the several funds are in sight at every turn. A pair of shoes here, a shirt there, underclothing, belts and other necessities worn by the boys, purchased with this money show what is being done with it.

As has been explained before in these columns, few people understand the red tape which it is necessary to go through to obtain the plainest necessities for a man's comfort in the U. S. service. Outer clothing is furnished at once; but shirts, shoes, socks, underclothing and many other little things essential for health and comfort are the last to come.

This fund which has been raised by the people of Quincy and surrounding towns buys these things at once. Thus their representatives in arms are not obliged to go south bare-footed, sockless and shirtless as other troops have gone. No one could refuse to aid in this if they would take the trouble to look into the matter thoroughly. Co. K certainly leaves many a willing heart at home. The gentlemen who have had charge of the several subscription papers have worked hard and deserve credit for it. They get it in Co. K.

Elisha Packard was received with open arms at the camp on Wednesday; as it is well known what he has done and is still doing for the interest of the Quincy men through the City Council. Why shouldn't his bill for seven dollars a month go through? Other cities are doing it. Why be behind? These men have left your city as volunteers, not as "drafted" men and did not wait for a bounty. How can you show your patriotism better than by passing this bill which will help support the families of those who have left them voluntarily to protect the honor of yours and their country. You can not do too much for them Quincy can do anything that any other town can and will not regret it.

The Weymouth boys with Co. K, numbering sixteen have all received shoes, underclothing, and socks; and those who need shirts have been supplied with them. Lighter shirts than the men are now wearing will be supplied them when they go south.

Citizens of Weymouth have promised to look after the men and will do it.

George F. Spooner was in camp yesterday and brought a large quantity of lemons and sugar for the boys. His heart is in the right place.

Yachting.

It is evident that the now famous schooner question as regards to its elegibility to compete for the "Quincy Yacht Club Challenge Cup" has attracted national attention. Now comes Mr. W. P. Stephens, the New York Yachting authority, and the yachting editor of the Forest and Stream, with a letter to the Secretary of the Quincy club in which he says among other things:

"It seemed to me in the schooner-yawl matter that a certain principle was involved, of general interest to yachtsmen, and that it was my business to discuss it; I am very glad if my work has been of any use.

"I note what Mr. Robinson says this week in the Globe under Y. R. A. rules, whatever they may be. I have always admired the energy and good judgment that has made the Y. R. A. what it is, in so short a time, but I have been unwilling to accept the views of different Y. R. A. men on measurement and similar subjects, for the reason that your Boston clubs are called on to consider nothing but the smaller classes, not over 30 or 35 feet.

In all discussing of the measurement and other important questions in New York, or in a general way in my paper, it is necessary to consider at least the nominal existence of very much larger and more important yachts; in fact to make the rules for them rather than for the 30 and 20 footers.

Under the rules of the Sound Y. R. A I should say without hesitation that a schooner could not of right enter a cutter-sloop class; but I quite agree with Mr. Robinson, that some official statement is necessary as to just what the Y. R. A. of Massachusetts rules may be.

"There is really no reason why they, as far as they go, should not be in perfect accord with the rules of other yachting bodies on the main points relating to matters of principle, however they may need to differ in details. I am looking forward eagerly to the time when we can have one set of good rules throughout the whole country.

Bathing Suits Needed.

Young men who go in bathing in public places should remember that bathing suits are needed. Thursday afternoon three young men went in bathing at Brackett's wharf and forgot to provide necessary clothing. As a result the police were notified and Officer Murray went down and captured the three. They were taken into court this morning and fined. The court also warned them that care should be taken not to repeat the offence.

How to Make Omelet Souffle.

An omelet soufflee is made by whisking the whites and yolks of the eggs apart, allowing one for each person, adding powdered sugar in the proportion of a teaspoonful to each egg and a little lemon juice to the beaten yolks. Then beat in the well whipped whites. Pour into a shallow baking tin, generously buttered, then heated. Bake in a quick oven. It will rise very much, and when lightly browned on the top is sufficiently done, and must be served at once with a little sifted sugar.

CARE OF JEWELRY.

How to Preserve and Keep Brilliant Precious Stones.

Diamonds, the hardest of all minerals, are less trouble and more easily cleaned than any of the other jewel favorites. A thorough scrubbing of tepid water and soap with a good bristle brush, and then completely covering the jewel in every part, while wet, with jewelers' sawdust, which is allowed to dry.

There is a deeply rooted fear of spoiling pearls by getting them wet. This is an unfounded apprehension, for whole pearls are practically impervious.

The pearl, slowly secreted by shellfish at the bottom of the sea, deteriorates when brought into contact with acids. It can be dissolved in vinegar, and rings containing pearls should always be removed before even the ordinary lotions for softening and whitening the hands are applied.

Turquoises, as they are mined and sold today, are impervious to external effects and retain the beauty of their luster and coloring for years. If, after long and incessant wear, they become scratched, they can be polished at small expense and with perfect satisfaction.

Sapphires, emeralds and rubies require little caution. They neither fade nor turn color and are not easily scratched and respond quickly and pleasingly to an occasional cleansing with water and the immersion in jewelers' sawdust.

The shimmering, fascinating opal is the most sensitive of all minerals, equally fearing excessive heat and cold. An undue and long continued exposure to the warmth of the sun, by dilating the minute particles of air inclosed in the opal, causes it to lose its color, and intense cold produces cracks on the surface of the gem which sometimes nearly extinguishes its charming rainbow tints.

A little alcohol or ammonia used in solution with water improves the brightness of any jewelry.

The care of enamels depends much upon the delicacy of their construction, and beyond a tepid soapy bath, rinsing and sawdust drying will require no other cleaning, unless the gold work needs a thorough polishing in the hands of a jeweler.

How to Make Pecan Tarts.

Beat the yolks of three eggs to a cream. Add half a cupful of sugar and beat for five minutes. Pound half a pound of shelled pecans slightly. Add them to the eggs and sugar. Place the mixture in patty pans lined with paste and bake from eight to ten minutes. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff. Add two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Distribute the eggs among the tarts, spreading on top, and brown nicely in the oven.

How to Make Oxford Sausage.

Oxford sausages are made with a pound each of finely chopped veal, pork and beef suet. Mix through this a quart of bread crumbs, grated peel of half a lemon, a grated nutmeg, a sprig each of savory, thyme and sweet marjoram and a tablespoonful of powdered sage leaves. Make in cakes and fry in a little very hot butter.

Milton Youths in Court.

Judge Pratt spent the entire day Thursday in hearing the evidence in the case of the thirteen Milton youths who were charged with building a bonfire near a dwelling house on the nights of the Third and Fourth of July.

There were two complaints against the youths, one for building a bonfire and the other for breaking glass; the former however, was the only complaint heard on Thursday. J. W. McAnarney represented the government, and Messrs. Gilpatrick and Hall the defendants.

The case was commenced at 9.30 and continued until 5.20 before the evidence was all in. At that hour the case was continued until next Thursday afternoon at 2.45 o'clock when the court will give its finding in the bonfire case and hear the evidence in the breaking glass case.

The youths against whom the complaints were issued were: Harry C. Damon, Fletcher Carpenter, Paul Carpenter, Ralph Baxter, Clarence J. Edwards, William E. Edwards, Percy Edwards, Russell Swift, Malcolm LeFevre, Edward Hobbs, Orrin Oliver, John Labbon and Arthur Boylston.

No Fish Stories Please.

Chief of Police Litchfield, Officers Bradley and Newcomb, and City Messenger Tirrell went to North Easton on a fishing excursion Thursday.

Old friends who have always placed faith in their upright character and truthfuness now look sorrowfu, and worried when they begin to tell what luck they had, and how many fish they hooked.

If they would only take the advice of their friends they would let the fish alone and save their reputation and worry. But they won't and still stick to their story.

Who Knows Him.

Postmaster Hammond received a telegram from Hotel Genessee, Avon, N. Y., inquiring for friends of William P. Smith. The telegram said that Smith was sick and had no money, but claimed to have friends in Quincy.

At Merry Mount Park, Saturday.

The T. R. & S. team will play a strong team from Hyde Park on Merry Mount Park, Saturday and it is expected that they will have a hard job on their hands.

Let us hope they will receive better support than they have had, if not I am afraid the team will not continue much longer, for they have lost eight to ten dollars every game this season. They have been to the expense of putting more seats on the Park and have had less support than ever before. One very noticeable fact is that a number of young men take their ladies to the park instead of taking them to the beach, and when you ask them to help the team along they haven't got a cent that day; and the next day is the same, and so on every day is the same. I would be ashamed to take a lady to any game that was not worth the small sum of ten cents. Let us hope that some of the young ladies will come to our aid and request their gentlemen friends to pay in their little mite and if the game is not worth it, to take them to the beach. One more thing that I would like to mention, which causes the managers a great deal of trouble and annoyance: the boys are continually stealing the balls and are upheld and encouraged by some of the men; and if some of them find themselves in the Quincy police station they must not be surprised for it will surely come to that.

Some games we have put to six balls in play, and at the end of game think ourselves lucky if we have one left, where two balls ought to be enough. They do not only take the balls, but gloves or anything else that they can hide away. Some one will have to be made an example of and then may stop.

Entertained at Wolfboro.

Mrs. James Curtin, Mrs. Elijah Hall, Mrs. Ida Waterhouse and Mrs. Roger Wilde have just returned from a trip to Wolfboro, being there as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reed of Atlantic, who with their family are spending the season at their delightful camp on the shore of the Winnipiseogee Lake.

Mr. Reed chartered a little steamer one day and took them over the lake, stopping at the "Green Basin," where a sumptuous repast was served. They rowed, fished, went berrying, bathed in the lake, drove about and enjoyed to the fullest the charming camp life in the fragrant pines and by the side of the waters of the romantic and picturesque Winnipiseogee.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong of Wollaston learning that the quartette were at Wolfboro, extended an invitation for them to visit their camp, which is named "Camp Wollaston," and is located a few miles distant from the Reed camp. The party accepted and were right royally entertained at this camp, also, that the name Wolfboro already suggests to them such an abundance of pleasant recollections that they feel it will ever remain in their minds a reminder of one of the pleasantest outings it is possible to take, and of the most cordial hospitable and genial entertainers in Mr. and Mrs. Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong.

How to Polish Bronze.

The treatment of bronze is a problem which many a well meaning housekeeper has failed to solve. Washing bronze is a bad plan, as the polish is delicate and easily spoiled, but careful dusting every day with a soft cloth and a feather brush and a little sweet oil rubbed on occasionally and well rubbed off with a soft silk rag are said by a good housekeeper to have the best results. The various polishes, pastes and powders sold for cleaning bronze are about as efficacious as the lily white and rose red blooms sold for the complexion—some of them do no harm. The good housekeeper gives the following recipe for bronze that has been stained: Make the article very hot by putting it in boiling water, then rub it with a piece of flannel, dipped in suds made from yellow soap, polishing it afterward with a soft linen rag.

Stores in East Milton will close next Thursday and the proprietors and clerks will celebrate Grocer's day with the Quincy Association.

The Ladies' Sewing circle of the Congregational church held an outing at Nantasket on Wednesday.

Miss Sadie Graham is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Extensive repairs are being made on Adams street.

Killed by Lightning.

Mr. John N. Our, a well known resident of Weymouth, was struck by lightning at Arlington, during the heavy shower on Thursday afternoon and instantly killed.

Mr. Our was a carpenter and was building a house at Arlington. When the shower came on he took refuge in a tool house which was later struck by lightning; the bolt besides demolishing the building, killed Mr. Our. Strange to say, however, the lightning left no mark of any kind upon him.

Mr. Our was about 45 years of age and was the present Commander of Delphi lodge, K. of P., and had intended to return home that evening to work a degree for his lodge. He leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters.

Generous Contribution.

More than a passing notice should be given the employes of the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co. for their generous contributions to the popular fund for the members of Co. K. As soon as the movement was started to raise funds for the company a paper was put in circulation in the several rooms at the factory and the several hundred employes promptly subscribed and paid their mite, and $107 was soon collected, which sum was placed in the bank of the credit of the Co. K fund.

When it is considered that a large, part of the employes at the factory are girls, the contribution becomes more magnanimous. The employes of this factory can always be depended upon to do their share toward any popular object where money is needed; as this is not the first occasion in which they have shown their generosity.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Trutell was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Joseph Ginley was fined $3 and James Dunn and John Savage $1 each for indecent exposure at Quincy.

OILED CLOTHING.

The Waterproof Garments and the Traditional Sou'wester of the Sailor.

A suit of oiled clothing such as is commonly worn by sailors, consisting of a coat and a pair of trousers, costs from $1.50 to $2.50, according to the quality. An oilskin sou'wester costs 25 to 50 cents. There are many makes of oiled clothing, including some whose trademarks have been familiar for many years. The oilskin coat hanging outside the outfitting and supply stores in streets along the water front has long been a familiar sign.

The life of an oilskin suit depends, of course, primarily upon the wear to which it is subjected, but largely also upon the care taken of it. An oilskin suit will last longer and keep much better if hung up when not in use than it will if rolled up, but it may be that the user has no place to hang it or that he keeps it rolled up to be ready to carry with him at any time, as a pilot would do. In dry latitudes, where a sailor has less occasion to wear them, his oilskins, if cared for, would of course wear longer than where they were often worn. Usually the average life of an oilskin suit worn by a sailor would be about a year.

When a sailor's oilskins crack or get worn so that they are not waterproof, he oils them. They may need oiling two or three times a year. There are prepared oil dressings made for this use and put up in little tin cans. Some sailors use oils of one sort and another, and some sailors make a mixture of their own for a dressing. The sailor is likely to have a preference for some one brand of clothing and to stick to it, and he has his own idea as to the best dressing for it, but he carries always with him a dressing of some sort. It is put on with a brush, the garments being hung up and painted with it.

Oilskin coats worn aboard ship by men before the mast are cut short, so as not to interfere in any way with their movements. The coats worn by the officers of a ship are cut longer. The officers in some cases wear rubber coats, but the oilskin is the coat they commonly wear.

While oiled clothing and the traditional sou'wester are most familiarly associated in the mind with ideas of sailors and of the sea, they are also, as matter of fact, very largely and extensively worn upon the land by truckmen and car drivers and many other outdoor workers and by sportsmen.—New York Sun.

Extracting the Young Idea.

Two events of one day convinced a young lady of Piety Hill that the infant mind is one of the most profound mysteries of nature. It was her first effort with a class of little Sunday school children, and after talking with them in her most impressive way for half an hour she asked her precious charges what they thought of their lessons. One little girl, with golden hair and great blue eyes such as artists love to reproduce in themes divine, indicated a desire to speak.

"What is it, my dear?"

"Miss Earnest, if you lived to be a hun'red years old you'll never have a prettier hat than the one what you got on now."

The second developed later in the day. She told the little ones that they must not let the weeds grow up in their hearts, for they were the weeds of sin and worse than death. One fat cherub who had never known what it was to be sick set up a nowl as soon as he reached home. Being short on a knowledge of anatomy he sat holding his digestive apparatus and declaring that the weeds growing in his heart were "a'mos killin" him. Ignorant of the cause of alarm, the terrified parents kept the telephone wires hot till they secured the presence of three doctors, who were quickly followed by others who had not been in when called. While the others were gravely consulting, one shrewd practitioner extracted the story of the Sunday school lesson and administered a dose of sugar and water. Ten minutes later the little fellow was telling how near he came to dying while he was eating enough for a harvest hand.—Detroit Free Press.

How to Make Cold Cream.

To make cold cream take of oil of almonds two ounces, spermaceti half an ounce, white wax a dram. Melt together and while cooling add two ounces of rosewater, stirring until cold. Cold cream may also be made by this formula: Take four ounces of unsalted butter, four ounces of white wax and an ounce of vaseline. Melt together and perfume with oil of bergamot. The more cold creams are stirred and beaten while cooling the whiter they become.

Pauperism.

Deacon Jones—You really think this is a deserving case, Mrs. Brown? You think there is no doubt about the family being poor?

Mrs. Brown—Oh, there can be no doubt about it, deacon. Why, every one of the family rides a last year's wheel.—Boston Transcript.

THE HAUNTED CITY.

Some heart's remembrance and regret
Fill every street with life profound.
This corner, where of old we met,
To me has since been hallowed ground.
I never pass in sun or rain
Now but I meet you here again.

We cannot go from where we dwell
And leave behind no lingering trace.
Where in the past our shadow fell
A shadow of us haunts the place.
Returning now, ourselves may there
Disturb some ghost of what we were.

The stones are thrilled by many a tread
That leaves no footprint where it strays
Shades of the living and the dead
In silence throng the noisy ways.
Here where I meet in shower or shine
Your ghost, you haply meet with mine.

The air has sounds we cannot hear,
Is dim with shapes that none can see.
Though dear the living voice and dear
The sight of living faces be,
With kindlier yearnings yet we greet
The friends we see not when we meet.

—A. St. John Adcock in Spectator.

HIS BOAT FOR A LIFE.

An Instance of Real Benevolence by a Poor Kanaka.

A very curious and beautiful letter was once written to President Lincoln that would certainly have given him peculiar pleasure if he had read it, but he never did. This is how it was: In 1863 some pirates from Peru captured and carried off some natives from the Marquesas Islands in the south seas. One of them was a son of a powerful chief, and the father made a vow that he would, for revenge, eat the first white man who fell into his hands.

A man named Whalan, the first mate of a New Bedford whaling ship, was before many months captured by the Marquesans. He it was who must furnish a feast for the cannibal chief, but all the people he ruled over were not cannibals. Among them was a native missionary from Hawaii named Kakela. Kakela had just received a present of a boat from religious people in Boston, a valuable six oared boat that he needed much in his missionary work. He set about trying to save Mr. Whalan's life, but the chief would give him up only on one condition—that he should have the new boat in exchange for the captive. Kakela bought him at that price and helped him to leave the islands.

The story came to President Lincoln's knowledge, and he characteristically found time to send a message and a present to the poor south sea missionary. Kakela wrote a letter of thanks in return, which closed with these sentences: "As to this friendly deed of mine, its seed was brought from your great land by certain of your countrymen who had received the love of God. It was planted in Hawaii, and I brought it here that these dark regions might receive the root of all that is good and true, which is love. How shall I repay your great kindness to me? Thus David asked of Jonathan and thus I ask of you, the president of the United States. This is my only payment, that which I received from the Lord—'love.' May the love of Jesus Christ abound toward you till the end of this terrible war in your land."

Before the letter reached the White House President Lincoln had died.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Humane Engineer.

One never knows the value of an amiable deed till he knows all its consequences, and the merit of it is in not knowing them all beforehand.

An engineer of a passenger train on a Mississippi railroad was driving through a snowstorm, eagerly scanning the track as far as he could see, when, half way through a deep cut, something appeared lying on the rails. It was a sheep with her two little lambs.

His first thought was that he could rush on regardless of them, probably without damage to his train; but the sight of the innocent family cowering in the storm touched him, and as they paid no heed to his warning whistle he pulled the airbrake and sent his fireman ahead.

In a few minutes the fireman came back with a terrified face. There had been a landslide, and just beyond the cut the track was covered with rocks. It seemed certain that if the train had gone on at full speed in the blinding snow it would have been impossible to stop in time to escape disaster.

In the absolute sense the incident was providential—as everything is—but circumstantially the passengers on that railway train owed their safety, if not their lives, to an engineer who was too tender hearted to kill a sheep and her lambs.—Youth's Companion.

Dutch Rule In Java.

The natives of Java resemble very much in character the natives of the Philippines. It is therefore interesting to know how the Dutch have succeeded so well in governing them. A Dutch official thus explains the method:

"We pay the native priests, we support a large native police force, and we rule by the hands and mouths of the natives; but all the time we have our own people on guard, and no important move is made without our consent. Thus the people and their chiefs are contented and happy, and we keep them so by maintaining a condition more favorable than they could hope to maintain themselves."

Company J.

"Doesn't it strike you as peculiar," said the cheerful idiot, who knows everything, "that in the designation of the 12 companies composing a regiment the letter 'J' should be omitted. The companies are lettered through 'M' in each regiment, but nowhere can Company J be found."

"It does seem strange," replied the boarding house philosopher. "How do you account for it?"

"I expect it's because 'J' stands for 'Jonah,'" said the C. I. "Uncle Sam wants no 'Jonahs' in his regiments."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Usual Result.

"Well," asked the motorman, "did you manage to collect your little bill from that conductor?"

"No," answered the disgusted passenger. "I got tired trying to collect it at his house and the other day I caught him on his car."

"What did he do?"

"The same thing as usual. Put me off."—Philadelphia Call.

The Hindoos consider their dead as sacred and do not allow them to be handled by alien hands, the nearest male relative—son, father or brother—preparing the body for burial, and if there be none of these relatives a son is adopted by the family for the purpose.

Vast quantities of tin foil are used for the packing of domestic limburger cheese, the material being sent to the northwestern states for that purpose by the carload.

Train Robbers In Texas.

Fort Worth, July 22.—A Santa Fe passenger train due here at 12:20 last night was held up near Saginaw by six masked men. Two boarded the engine at Saginaw and covered the engineer, making him stop in a deep cut one and a half miles north of the stock yards. Superintendent Pendell, who was on the train, and the crew went forward to see what was the matter, and were greeted with a fusilade from the west bank. The bullets went over their heads, but perforated the engine and express car.

Engineer Williams is probably fatally wounded. The fireman cannot be found, but is thought to be also wounded. While the companions on the bank were firing, the two robbers on the engine jumped off. The whole party escaped. The robbers secured no booty.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, July 22.—The Journal affirms: "This temporary American control of conquered territory, exercised as it is sure to be with both strength and tactfulness, will in the long run be of immense service to the Cuban patriots. Such an American interregnum will permit a cooling of the fiery passions engendered by civil strife."

In the opinion of The Advertiser, "if the war is still further prolonged, if the depression in Spanish industries and the distrust in Spanish finances continue for a few weeks or a few months more, it is possible that the Spanish people will welcome almost any political movement that promises relief from the existing evils."

Work of Scoundrels.

Washington, July 22.—A report to the state department from Vancouver, B. C., by Consul Durley says that care should be taken by those who contemplate going to the gold fields in entering into transportations contracts. Certain companies have obtained a considerable sum of money (generally $500 for each person) upon very ingeniously worded contracts that the persons paying should be transported to the gold fields in the north, with all necessary outfit furnished and expenses paid. In three cases in which men have paid their money they have been brought at slight expense to Vancouver and other ports and then abandoned.

The men who had contracted with one of these companies became suspicious while at Vancouver, but after an explanation by the agent they agreed to go forward. The consul says he has received a letter from one of the party now at Fort Wrangell, Alaska, saying that the company induced his party to go to Wrangell, and after pulling the provisions up the Stikine for 14 miles sent them into camp, where they have remained ever since. When asked to be put ahead they were put off with promises, and now feel that the company does not intend to do anything. The party is far from home and without money. It consists of 30 men from the bay state.

NOT GOING TO CURTAIL

Fall River Mill Men Must Paddle Their Own Canoes.

No Assistance to Be Obtained In Rhode Island.

Manufacturers There Have a Plenty of Orders For the Summer.

Boston, July 22.—A special to The Globe from Providence says that the Knights, Goddards, Lippitts and Chaces, cotton cloth magnates and millionaires, are not going to curtail production in August. An effort on the part of the Fall River manufacturers to get the Rhode Island millowners into an agreement to shut down for four weeks has failed. The manufacturers there have orders ahead in plenty, and are just now looking for even more improvement. It is their present intention to run on full time throughout the summer. The Goddards are particularly desirous of keeping on full time during the war, so that all the aid possible can be given to the families of men who went to the front.

There is a division of opinion among Fall River manufacturers concerning the amount of stock reported to be on hand there. It is stated on the authority of a broker who is well posted that stock on hand in Fall River is not in excess of 1,300,000 pieces, of which only 500,000 are regulars. There are several mills that have no stock at all. It is doubtful, according to one authority, if there has been a time in the history of things when the stock was so well concentrated, and if a pool was to be formed it could be organized by taking just five men into close confidence.

Clubs' Billiard Rooms.

Washington, July 22.—The commissioner of internal revenue holds that although a social club selling wines and liquors to its members and their guests is required to pay a special tax as a retail liquor dealers, it is not required to pay the special tax as a proprietor of a billiard room, as the new law specifically states that it only relates to bowling alleys and billiard rooms open to the public. A social club admitting to its privileges only its members and their invited guests, the commissioner holds, cannot properly be regarded as open to the public.

Suicide of a Soldier.

New York, July 22.—Sergeant Neal Molloy of battery 1, Seventh United States artillery, killed himself at Fort Slocum yesterday. No reason is known for his act. He first bade all the noncommissioned officers goodbye, saying he had received a furlough, and strolled down to the beach and shot himself. He had been in the army 17 years. He originally enlisted from Bridgeport, Conn., where it is said he has relatives and at all subsequent enlistments he entered himself as coming from that city.

Died After a Fall.

Providence, July 22. — Lawrence Keegan, an employe of the bridge department, fell into the water beneath the Crawford bridge yesterday and appeared to have suffered some sort of a shock in addition to the effect of the water. How he came to slip between the joists is not known, though it is probable that he was either overcome by heat or suffered a stroke. He was soon rescued from the water and carried to the hospital, but was dead before he reached the operating room. He was about 40 years old.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Bermuda, a filibuster seized by the British government in Kingston 15 months ago, has been freed on the payment of all the libels filed against her.

A fire which started in Cleland's general store wiped out the business portion of Coopersville, Mich. Fifteen buildings were destroyed. The loss is over $50,000.

A dispatch from Havana says that the American warships before Manzanillo separated Wednesday, five proceeding to a point off Cabo Cruz, where they bombarded a signal tower, causing damage.

E. H. Lander, alias Edward Hoffman, was killed near Rumford Junction, Me., while asleep on the track. He had just been discharged from the county jail, and is said to have belonged to Clinton, Mass.

A construction train on the Canadian Pacific railway ran into a handcar at Mackamp, Me., and the conductor and brakeman, fearing a derailment, jumped off. The conductor, whose name was Fitzgerald, was killed.

The state committee of the national Democratic party of Maine has decided to nominate a candidate for governor. The selection of the candidate and the formulation of appropriate resolutions were left to C. V. Holman of Rockland, H. F. Thompson of Brunswick and W. F. S. Blanchard of Bath.

A tank steamer, Oilfields, which arrived in Chester, Pa., from Shields, Eng., reports having passed a large number of bodies of persons while off the Newfoundland banks a few days ago. Captain Sawyer stated that there were fully 200, and he supposed them to be some of the victims of the Bourgogne disaster.

Dispatches filed at Lisbon, Portugal, on July 18, which were suppressed by the censor, say that owing to the suspension of the constitution in Spain the Portuguese government has ordered reinforcements of troops to be dispatched to the frontier, fearing Spanish uprisings and the entry of revolutionists into Portuguese territory.

The navy surgeons, with their families, are located in the hospitals, which proves to the satisfaction of the residents of Portsmouth that there is no epidemic among the prisoners on Seavey's island. The surgeons have no fear that yellow fever will cause them any trouble. There are now about 60 patients in the hospitals, the majority of whom were wounded during the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet.

BEAT THE BROWNS.

Rain Came After Five Innings, and Boston Was Ahead.

Boston, July 22.—Willis pitched well and let the visitors out with only two hits, Stenzel's double being a scratch hit. The hit went straight towards Tenney, but struck some uneven place in the inner grass plot and jumped high over his head to right field, scoring Crooks, the browns' only run.

Sudhoff was wild and gave a weird exhibition of bases on balls, hit by pitched ball and wild pitching, so that Boston had few chances to hit him. Yeager led the batting with a double and single and caught in good shape. Collins' capture of Cross' foul fly clear over to the left bleachers running backwards, Stahl's catch of Clements' high fly to the ticket office window in deep right field, Cross' left-hand stop of Long's ground shot, beating Long out of a hit in the second, and Joe Quinn's running stop of Lowe's hit over second were the feature plays. Tucker, Cross and Quinn played fine ball for the St. Louises. Score:

The Phillies defeated the Chicagoes in an uninteresting game, 3 to 1. Fifield pitched finely.

The Louisvilles surprised everybody by winning two games from the Brooklyns. The members of the losing team played like schoolboys in both games.

The Cincinnatis won two games in Washington by hitting and fielding.

The New Yorks and the Pittsburgs split even in a bargain counter attraction. In the first game Seymour pitched well until the ninth, when he sailed upwards. In the second game Tannehill was easy, and in the four innings he pitched managed to lose the game.

The Wilkesbarres won two games from the Providences. The first game was a hard, uphill fight, the Providences scoring seven in the first inning on clean hitting. The batting of Shortstop Sullivan, who joins the St. Louis team, won the second game.

Bad errors by Reilly and Gilbert enabled the Syracuses to pull the Springfield game out in the ninth inning, but the home team tied it in the last half. Syracuse finally batted out in the 12th. Part of the game was played in the rain.

The Clevelands defeated the Baltimores in two games. Both McJames and Nops were wild and ineffective, and caused the loss of both games. After the second game Tebeau was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct for throwing a bat at a spectator who called him a vile name. He gave bail for his appearance.

Hiram Ladd, who played one game for the Bostons as a fielder, tells the people of Fall River, where he belongs, that the manager refused to pay him for his work, nor even gave him the price of his supper before leaving for his home.

ELEMENTS IN A FURY.

Wind, Lightning and a Downpour Made Things Lively.

Boston, July 22.—Boston and northern New England experienced all kinds of weather yesterday. During the morning and early afternoon the heat was almost unbearable and the humidity was very great. An electrical storm passed over the city about 3 o'clock. The wind blew in fierce gusts, hurling up clouds of dust, slamming shutters and creating havoc with straw hats and women's headgear. Then the rain descended in torents for a few minutes, drenching the thirsty earth thoroughly. In the harbor the shipping escaped damage, as the storm was a long time brewing. Dispatches from Maine and New Hampshire report that the storm was severe in those sections.

Man Hurt Fatally.

Farmington, N. H., July 22.—A thunder storm, almost a tornado, swept over this town, the terrific wind wrecking a number of small houses and causing other damage, fortunately without loss of life, although one man was badly injured. The storm struck the town early in the afternoon, and within a few minutes the roofs of several houses, including a business block and two shoe shops, had been blown off. Many houses which escaped the wind had their cellars flooded, while a number of streets were rendered impassable for sometime by the wreckage from trees and buildings. A coal shed near the depot was blown down, and Frank Haynes, a truckman, who had sought shelter there was buried beneath the ruins, and it is feared he is fatally hurt. The damage will amount to thousands of dollars.

Killed a Carpenter.

Arlington, Mass., July 22.—Lightning caused the death of one man and injured five other men. When the storm was at its height, an electric bolt struck the cupola of the Locke school building at Arlington Heights, causing considerable damage to the building. Several carpenters had secured shelter in the basement of a new building during the storm, and received a terrific shock. John H. Our of Weymouth, who was standing in the door, received the most direct effect of the lightning, and died within six minutes after he was struck

Quincy is becoming noted as a place full of historical interest and every day people come from far and near. At the nicest summer resorts it is a point of honor among the boarders and residents of the place to walk, drive and cycle hatless. It distinguishes them from excursionists who cannot escape from their headgear.

GRAND FLAG RAISING.

At West Quincy With Music, Speeches and Fireworks.

A large crowd assembled at the corner of Willard and Robertson streets, Friday evening, to participate in a grand flag raising at that place. The flag which is a handsome one was won by the West Quincy ball team at New Downer Landing, last Monday, and was suspended across Robertson street.

The square was illuminated with Japanese lanterns and there was a display of fireworks. The city band was present to enliven the occasion with partriotic music; several well known citizens made patriotic speeches, and the crowd was there ready and willing to cheer and add to the enthusiasm.

Shortly after 8 o'clock little Miss May Keenan stepped forward and pulled the string which unfurled the flag, and as it was unfurled cheer after cheer filled the air.

Ex-Postmaster Burke presided at the literary exercises and in opening said: Friends and Fellow Citizens:

We are assembled here this evening in order that we may show our devotion, loyality, and patriotism to our flag. The stars and stripes, upon which the eyes of all nations are fixed at the present time, watching and waiting to hear of the next new piece of territory Old Glory will be erected upon; the emblem representing seventy million of united people. The north and south are one, bound together with that unity which was sealed by each others blood on the altar of liberty and justice.

Thirty-three years have passed since then and again Old Glory has taken her stand in the name of suffering humanity, and the stars and stripes, are again found amid the smoke of battle adding fresh laurels in the name of liberty.

Three months has lapsed to this very day since the present war was declared, and hardly had the people of the country realized the serious step taken, before the wires had presented to our eyes a new scene namely: Dewey had gained the first American victory. Then came Hobson's gallant deed of bravery, second great victory by Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, and third General Shafter compelling the surrender of Santiago.

Our navy had been underrated by every foreign power, but now the skill of the American mechanic, combined with American capital and enterprise, has demonstrated that our navy commanded by a son of the grand old Commonwealth, a man who has held the highest position within the gift of his people, and whose name will go down in prosterity as commanding the finest navy in the world. I refer to the Hon. John D. Long, Secretary of our Navy; and while Massachusetts is proud of her Secretary of the Navy, the people of Quincy feel proud of the young men who have gone to the front. We wish them a safe return bedecked with honor and glory.

"To the West Quincy base ball nine, who has made this affair possible this evening, we wish them continued victories, and may their future life shine as bright as their first prize, Old Glory."

Other speakers were: Ex-Councilman Geary, Mr. Robert W. O'Toole, Rev. C. W. Wilder and ex-Councilman Donaher.

Burglars at Braintree.

Some time last night burglars entered the store of J. M. Arnold and helped themselves to everything there was to eat, drank some moxie "for the nerves" and departed.

Entrance was made through a rea window where they broke a large pane of glass, making room for a boy to enter, then going to another window they took off cleats that were nailed on and opened it wide, as a means of exit.

Every door in the ice chest was left open and the show cases show evidence of being tampered with but at time of writing no article of great value has been missed. It is thought to have been the work of juveniles.

Braintree at Santiago.

The only man from Braintree who was in the battle at Santiago was Mr. Walter Gage, who has been employed in the office of D. B. Glosson & Co.

Mr. Gage was a member of the Worcester Company in the Second Massachusetts regiment. He was hit by a spent bullet in the forehead and was taken to the hosiptal, where the latest reports say he is comfortable. His many friends in the south part of the town hope for his safe return.

The attention of those who imagine that the majority of our soldiers are foreigners is called to a recent number of the Army and Navy Journal, which shows that at least 80 per cent. of our army is American born.

LETTER A FORGERY.

Gen. Garcia Did Not Write Letter to Gen. Shafter.

Santiago, July 23.—The published letter said to have been written by Gen. Garcia to Gen. Shafter, complaining of the treatment of the Cubans, is said to have been written by a correspondent named Arms, and it is doubtful if Gen. Garcia ever saw the letter.

Another Town Captured.

Santiago, July 23—The town of Nipe, in Cuba was captured yesterday, and a Spanish gunboat that was in the harbor was destroyed.

NOTE—Nipe is a town in the north of Cuba, and was at first thought to have been selected by the United States as a base of operations.

A War Scare in Spain.

The condition of mind in which the people of the coast cities of Spain find themselves today is rather more distressing than that which prevailed here two months ago under somewhat similar circumstances. The preparation of Commodore Watson's squadron for a descent upon the Spanish coast has produced a veritable war scare, if we may credit the stories which come from various points along the seaboard. —Boston Post.

—The selection of prominent Porto Ricans from this country to accompany the American army of invasion as aides and guides was made at the War Department yesterday, and on Saturday the eight men, under the direction of Gen. Antonio Mattei Bluveras, will embark on a United States transport at Newport News.

—The Berlin correspondent says: "The Powers, with the exception of Great Britian, have agreed not to allow an American annexation of the Philippines or an Anglo-American protectorate over the islands."

What has beeome of the Cuban army we heard so much of? It is rather harsh to say it, perhaps, but they appear to be pretty strong eaters of Uncle Sam's rations and mighty poor defenders of his starry banner. However, we must not judge the whole Cuban force by the action of those in and about Santiago. There are Cubans and Cubans.—Brocton Times.

Not Many Moons Ago.

Mr. Nate Hardy, Mr. Frank and Herbert Proctor, Miss Bessie Maxim and Miss Nettie Maxim took a day's outing on the yacht Magnolia of Wollaston, along the South shore. They say that they had "just a lovely time." It it reported though, that just off Nantasket beach it was proposed to go ashore and see the sights and refresh themselves with a shore dinner. The yacht was anchored and preparations were speedily made to land; Mr. Frank Proctor got into the tender, Miss Bessie followed, and she found the small boat was just what its name implied, "Tender," it took a sudden turn and showed its keel; those on board threw up their hands and nearly fainted, but not so with those in the water—they had other business to do with their hands.

Mr. Proctor arose to the surface first, but Miss Bessie was a good second. There being but two competitors, there was only one prize and Mr. Proctor took it gracefully. The young lady instead of opening her mouth and swallowing a barrell of salt water, remained quiet and kept her mouth shut; a pretty severe task on some women, but she did it.

Mr. Proctor swam to the side of the yacht, bearing his companion on one arm and was promptly pulled on board. The young lady had not spoken up to this, but when she gained the deck of the yacht and was being released from the strong arms of her rescuer, she looked into the his eyes and said: "O, that was so sudden, Frank."

Their appetites had been dampened. The gentlemen went ashore, and just as soon as the yacht changed its appearence from being a laundry, the gentlemen went on board and sailed for home.

No one at the club house suspected anything had happened to the jolly party, and would not know it now if it had not leaked out.

A SNOWDROP.

O wonderful, immaculate,
White herald of the spring,
No winter can be desolate
That bears so sweet a thing!
Soft, snowy petals strip'd with green,
Deep hidden heart of gold,
The world that hath such beauty seen
Can never more be old.

No shades of ruddy light suffuse
Thy petals cool and pure.
The roseless, chill auroral dews
Alone thy lips allure.
Thou art not freak'd with purple stains,
Nor fire of scarlet bright,
But silver'd by the silvery rains
And touched with vernal light.

And I, who once the roses lov'd,
Allegiance bring to thee,
Well knowing thou wilt ne'er be prov'd
So wanton or so free;
But, cloister'd from the wild wind's breath,
Nor flaunting in the sun,
Wilt lend a beauty e'en to death
When thy pure life is done.

—New York Times.

HER GUARDSMAN.

In a small house in Clarges street a girl of 18 stood in her presentation dress, while her long three yards and a half of white satin train trailed behind her. A maid knelt on the ground, picking out here and there a leaf from the sprays of lilies of the valley.

Marjorie looked in the mirror and patted a rebellious curl. "I feel excited. I can't help it. Oh, mother, I wish it were like a story, the country mouse being taken to court and a real live duke or earl falls in love with little mouse. I shall be in the midst of this great world soon. I wish something really romantic could happen."

"You'll have to take the taskmaster, Love, into your bargain with Fate, dear," said Mrs. Beauchamp. And Marjorie hid her face in her lovely bouquet of lilies of the valley, white orchids and white violets, and her heart gave a quick throb.

There was a "somebody" then. Perhaps no belted earl nor strawberry leaved duke, but a handsome, sunburned face looked into hers, the mellow voice had whispered.

* * * * * * *

It was later on the same day, the carriages in endless strings down the mall, an eager crowd pressing close to all the windows, making their remarks freely.

"This waiting is very tiring," said Marjorie, "and I am so hungry."

"The gates are opened. We shall soon be in, my dear," said Lady Hamilton, taking a sip of sherry from a convenient flask. They had come now to the line of sentries, the guardsmen standing like statues.

The sunshine coming out in a great sheaf of splendor almost dazzled Marjorie, as looking through the glass windows she was conscious of one of the guardsmen on duty watching her intently. His bearskin almost hid his eyes and brow.

Was she dreaming or was there distinct recognition in that soldier's glance? The sweeping brown mustache concealed his mouth. She looked at him again, the carriage moved forward, he smiled. She bent forward, and her face dimpled into a smiling response; impulsively she waved her hand.

"To whom, may I ask, were you bowing?" said Lady Hamilton severely.

"I recognized some one, auntie, in the crowd," faltered Marjorie.

And her aunt, noting the sudden rush of color and shining eyes, grew suspicious. "A man was the only cause for that kind of emotion," she thought sagely.

Marjorie almost forgot that fleeting look while making her bow to her majesty. But the guardsman did not intend she should forget. A brilliant scheme had entered his mind.

* * * * * * *

Truly, only a guardsman scribbling away for dear life, in all the barrenness of barrack surroundings, but he knew he had finished forever with the long, tedious marches. The pipeclaying, the "brass rags" could be chucked away, the parade ground need hear no longer the tread of Corporal Ferguson's feet, no more lonely watches in the tower, when the thought of Anne Boleyn's ghost to keep him company was not cheering.

Goodby to the arduous life of "roughing," goodby to the jarring influences which had surrounded him for two years—years of stern discipline and hard training. He had come out of it well.

And what was he writing, scheming lover, full of ardent fervor? His last test! A sweet little letter, scented delicately, lay next to his heart. This is what she said:

"Do not lead me to do wrong or to deceive. You must let me tell my mother, and I am ready to face the future with you. I will meet you once again, but I can no longer keep it secret."

"Bad young man!" he chuckled, and Marjorie Beauchamp that same day received this epistle:

"Dear, sweet Marjorie, companion of my thoughts and highest aspirations, when I saw you a fortnight ago, I was determined fate should never sever us again. Darling, how good you have been to me, and I shall not try that loving heart another day. You are ever in my mind, my best thoughts are of you, and my one great longing is to win you for my very own."

She looked very sweet in her picture hat covered with violets as she walked into her mother's room, dressed for a walk.

"Mother," she said, going over to her and turning very pale; "mother, I cannot keep my secret from you any longer."

"A secret, dear child? Why, no, of course not," said Mrs. Beauchamp tenderly, and put out her hand.

"Mother, do you remember two years ago I went on a visit to our old cousin James. When I was there, I met a lovely girl, Constance Ferguson. Do you remember my telling you how I helped nurse her? And—and a brother of hers, Charlie Ferguson, had just arrived from Australia."

"Well, my child, what of it?"

[illegible] was so young, and he had a hard life in front of him. He had quarreled with his uncle and was practically cast off. Mother, can't you guess? I have seen him again—I love him!"

The bright head was bowed and hot tears splashing down.

"Read this, mother. He wishes me to meet him today in the park, and he says he has some great news to tell me. He is better off."

"But what is he now, Marjorie?"

"He is in the guards, mother."

"In the guards!" said the poor lady, bewildered. "Then he must be very well off indeed."

"No, mother, no. He enlisted. He is only a corporal."

"Only a corporal!" cried Mrs. Beauchamp, clasping her hands. "In a dreadful red coat! You have been seen out with him! Good heavens, Marjorie!"

"Oh, mother, don't be so horrified! I call him my pillar box, and he says I was the bravest girl he knew to meet him, and after I did he said he would come and see you and explain. And I am to marry him. And, after all"—winding up her incoherent speech dramatically—"it isn't the coat that makes the man! And, mother, may I go and meet him and bring him back?"

"Oh, Marjorie!" cried her poor mother, "what would your aunt say? I suppose I must consent to seeing him. He certainly writes a charming letter."

"In the face of everybody, not ashamed?" said Ferguson a little quizzically, as he and his sweetheart got up from their chairs in Rotten row. She looked up half shyly at the tall, handsome guardsman.

"And now that you know everything, Marjorie, will you forgive my putting you to such a test?"

"I love you," she whispered, blushing hotly. "But, oh, how glad mother will be!"

They were walking along gayly, she the perfection of dainty prettiness, tripping along at his side, many curious and even inquisitive glances following the pair.

"Look, Charlie," cried Marjorie, her face dimpling into mischievous laughter; "there's auntie just passed us, driving. Look; she's turning back to look at us. Oh, her face! Isn't it a picture?"

Lady Hamilton alighted from her carriage simply trembling with indignation. She swept into her sister's room, her silk dress knocking down a table, a vase and some books, the plumes in her bonnet nodding formidably.

"Helena," she cried, "something too terrible has occurred. Your daughter—my niece—is out walking with a common soldier."

"My dear Eliza, I can explain," faltered Mrs. Beauchamp. "Don't—don't be angry. The young man is on his way here now"—

"On his way now!" almost shrieked Lady Hamilton. "You are going to let a man in a red coat and white belt enter this house! Helena, you should enter a lunatic asylum. This—this is appalling."

They heard a joyous little laugh. And Lady Hamilton rose to face them. Mrs. Beauchamp felt faint from emotion. What could be wrong when Marjorie wore such a lovely look? And a gleam of mirth in her eyes too. And the mother saw one of the finest looking fellows she had seen in her life fill up the doorway with his tall figure.

"Mother—auntie—let me introduce you to my lover, the guardsman, and soon to be my husband—the Earl of Desart."

"Please forgive me, Mrs. Beauchamp," he said in a winning way. "I claimed my discharge today, only to take orders, though, in another service." And here Marjorie's hand was clasped in his.

Lady Hamilton a year later presented the son and heir with a silver mug and a box of tin soldiers.—Forget-Me-Not.

General Gordon's Seal.

The seal which General Gordon used on all the documents he signed while shut up in Khartum had a history, which is narrated in the "Life of Chauncy Maples," missionary bishop of Likoma, east central Africa. While at Cairo the bishop stopped at the house of a friend named Floyer, of whom he writes:

Floyer had seen a great deal of General Gordon and showed me one very interesting letter—the last he received from him. The occasion of it was interesting. Floyer had volunteered to prepare Gordon a seal with his name in Arabic characters upon it. For this purpose he chose an old coin, which he partially melted and refashioned.

When the seal was completed, it was found that two words that had been on the coin were still legible. The words were in Arabic and signified "The Messenger of God." Gordon noticed them and was much pleased, and in the letter in question commented on them, saying he prayed he might always remember to be as the messenger of God to the Sudan people.

A Pony's Intelligence.

A correspondent writes from Abbotsbury to Nature Notes: "The other day when we were having lunch we heard a strange scratching sound, and then as if some one were trying to turn the handle of the door. Our housemaid went and opened the door to see what it was, and there stood the baker's pony and cart. His master had left him in the road while he went to the next house, and the pony had turned round and himself tried to open the door. Of course we were much amused to hear what it was, and the door was shut again. The next minute came one loud, decided knock, evidently from the door knocker. 'That can't be the pony,' we all cried at the same time, rushing to the door, but it was. He was standing with his front feet on the pavement, quietly waiting, and very pleased at his success. Of course we gave him some bread, biscuits and sugar as a reward for his cleverness. He must have taken the knocker in his teeth."

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

FRENCH GOWN OF BLACK PEAU DE SOIE FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

The latest styles show very markedly the difference between this and last years fashions, and the gowns now sent out may be relied upon as being hints for what will be worn during the winter. The blouse effects are very rapidly giving place to tight-fitting waists, sleeves are shrinking, and over-skirts are threatened. Our illustration, taken from Harper's Bazar, shows a charmingly effective gown of black peau de soie. This gown has the front made in princess style, two narrow pieces extending up from the skirt and forming a bodice on the waist, which opens on a vest of pleated black mousseline de soie. The rest of the waist and sleeves are composed of bands of cream lace insertion and narrow silk stripes, with mousseline pleatings at the top of the sleeves. The skirt is bordered with insertion and opens on a slender lace panel. The belt of the material is narrow at the back and widens to a rosette at either side of the front.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 24. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—How to have a happy home.—Job xxix, 1-20; Deut. vi, 6-9.

Many blessings of life are not appreciated until they are lost. Then we realize how much they meant to us. This seems to be particularly true of a happy home. The prodigal son did not realize the joys and comforts of his father's house of peace and plenty until in a strange land he was compelled to do undesirable work for a strange man. From this seventy-ninth chapter of Job we learn that the patriarch Job did not fully realize the blessings of home until they were lost. Then, in the midst of his afflictions and adversities, he bemoaned his lost estate.

"Oh," he says, "that I were as in the months of old,
As in the days when God watched over me,
When His lamp shined upon my head,
And by His light I walked through darkness;
As I was in the ripeness of my days,
When the secret of God was upon my tent,
When the Almighty was yet with me,
And my children were about me;
When my steps were washed with butter,
And the rock poured me out rivers of oil!"

What a keen sense of the appreciation of blessings lost is expressed in these words! Nothing is more desirable in this world than a happy home. Let there be pleasantness, peace, harmony and happiness in the home and the heaviest outside burdens may be borne and trials endured, but all manner of worldly and business prosperity will not compensate for a disagreeable, unpleasant home when strife and contention form the principal part of the daily bill of fare.

The reference in Deuteronomy emphasizes the importance of the word of God in the home and suggests some necessary characteristics of a happy home.

1. A happy home must have God in it. Moses commands that the words of the law must be kept in the hearts of the people. It was God's word, and if we have God's word in our hearts we will have God in our homes. Nothing is sadder in this life than a godless home—a home in which God is not loved, honored and obeyed.

2. In a happy home God's word must be taught to the children. "And thou shalt teach them diligently to thy children." "Thou shalt sharpen them unto thy children" is nearer the exact meaning of the Hebrew; "thou shalt sharpen them"—teach them so they will stick in them. God's word is to be taught in such a way that it shall not be forgotten. And how do this better than by committing it to memory? It is a deplorable fact that children do not commit the word as they used to or should do. Let it be drilled into the childish mind and it is never forgotten, and such a child should do its part to make the home happy, and God's word learned in childhood often keeps children from doing that which will make a home sad.

3. In a happy home God's word should be talked about. "Thou shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thy house." Oh, if there was only more conversation in our homes about God and God's word! It would make many a desert home to blossom as the rose. We should not only talk more of God, but more to God in them. All our homes would be happier if in them we talked more of God and more to God.

4. In a happy home God's word should be obeyed. It should be bound upon our hands to direct them and between our eyes to direct our minds or wills. God's word should thus direct our thoughts, words and actions, and if it does our homes must be happy.

Bible Readings.—Gen. vii, 1; Ex. xx, 17; Ruth i, 16-22; Prov. vi, 20, 21; xv, 1-5; xxix, 17; Luke x, 38-42; xxiv, 28-32; Eph. vi, 1-9; Phil. ii, 5; Col. iii, 16-25; I Tim. v, 4; II Tim. i, 3-5; iii, 14-17; Jas. i, 22.

The Lord's Covenant.

The Lord's covenant, however, has an element in it that lifts it above the plane of a mere human bargain. Though it also involves two parties and contains conditions pledging benefits, yet what is divinely contributed is the only consideration of value here, and what is received is all in favor of man, who has nothing to offer as an equivalent return or pay for the good it brings.—Reformed Church Messenger.

The Dead Line.

In the ministry there is a great deal of talk of men reaching the "dead line." No man ever came to that point unless he chose to come to it. A "dead line" is not necessary in the ministry any more than in any other profession and will never be approached if the minister devotes himself as thoroughly to his work as the lawyer, the physician and the merchant do to theirs.—Presbyterian Banner.

The Soul of Religion.

Reverence is the soul of religion. When that is gone, there is little left with which God can be pleased. Where nothing is sacred everything becomes common, even God himself.—Lutheran.

Religious Items.

Bishop Bompas of the Episcopal church has appointed a young clergyman to undertake mission work in the Klondike and has instructed him to endeavor to build a church and schools there.

A Mormon mission composed of 20 members is reported to exist under the shadow of Harvard at Cambridge, Mass.

There are 99 Methodist Episcopal churches within the limits of Chicago.

There are 25 women on the board of directors of the London Missionary society.

During the past year 187,715 Bibles and Testaments and 192,444 prayer books have been circulated by the Society For the Promotion of Christian Knowledge of the Episcopal church of England.

The Methodist Episcopal missionary societies will not employ new Bible women in north China who will not unbind their feet.

WORCESTER PAIR WON

Ten Eyck and Lewis Victorious In a Philadelphia Regatta.

Bostons Add Another Game to Their Successes.

Chicago Boxer Lost Because His Blows Lacked Stamina.

Philadelphia, July 23.—The 26th annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen was opened yesterday under the most favorable auspices. The water was smooth, and the contests were good. The races were all a mile and a half with a turn, with the exception of the eight-oared race, which was a mile and a half straight away.

The opening events consisted of six races—two trial heats in intermediate singles, and finals in the senior pair-oared, senior double, senior four and intermediate eight-oared shell. One championship prize went to Toronto, another to Worcester, and the other two to Philadelphia crews.

In the pair-oared shell event Wright and Thompson of Toronto were pitted against Exley and Scott of Philadelphia. They had rowed but a short distance when it was seen that the Argonaut pair from Canada had met their masters. The Quakers took the lead at the start, and by the time they reached the turning stake three-quarters of a mile away they were three lengths in front. On the home stretch they fairly ran away from the Canadians, winning by about 15 lengths.

The second trial heat in the intermediate event was a pretty race between West of Chelsea, Mass., and Kubik of Springfield, Mass. The other contestant, Wolf of New York, was out of it almost from the start. Kubik turned in the lead and won by two lengths.

Ten Eyck, of Henley fame, and his club mate, Lewis, won the senior double sculls in fine style. The other crews entered were Marsh and Moneghan and Margorum and Halsted of Philadelphia. Ten Eyck and Lewis started out in the lead, but Marsh and Moneghan quickly caught them. The Worcester pair then began to row as pretty a race as has been seen in a long time. Their blade work was perfect, and they soon had the lead again. At the three-quarters stake Ten Eyck and Lewis were a length in front of Marsh and Moneghan. They kept up their pretty sculling and won by two lengths. Margorum and Halsted were about six lengths behind Marsh and Moneghan.

WINNING GAIT.

Bostons Made It Three Straight From the St. Louis Club.

Boston, July 23.—The Bostons concluded the home series prior to the western trip with a victory, and at the same time made it three straight from St. Louis. Gilpatrick, a Texas league pitcher who was in the box for the browns, gave an exhibition of how not to pitch, and is charged with eight bases on balls, two wild pitches, one batter hit and eight hits. The Boston team was practically assured of the game after the first inning. Lewis pitched great ball except in the sixth and ninth innings, when five of the browns' eight hits were made, giving them their only runs.

Kloby played first, as Tenney was not well. Two phenomenal catches at the finish take the premium for wonderful plays at the grounds this season, and they were of the almost impossible description. Score:

Almost perfect fielding and a continuous performance in hitting enabled the Phillies to take a double header from the Chicagoes yesterday.

The Brooklyns lost their fourth straight game to the Louisvilles, 7 to 3. Cunningham pitched well, and Yeager was hit hard.

In a pitchers' battle lasting 13 innings, the New Yorks took sixth place from the Pittsburgs. Score: 1 to 0.

The senators could not hit Dwyer of the Cincinnatis, while the latter found Weyhing in the ninth, and won, 5 to 1.

The Baltimores and Clevelands played an even fielding and batting game, but the former were more fortunate in getting long ones when the bases were occupied, and won, 7 to to 5.

The managers of the Laconia, Franklin and Concord baseball clubs have formed the Central New Hampshire league. A schedule of games was arranged extending into September. In the first game the Laconias defeated the Concords, 11 to 4.

The Favorite Won.

New York, July 23.—The principals in the main bout before the Lenox club last night were Joe Bernstein of this city and Eddie Santry of Chicago. Bernstein was the favorite at 100 to 70, and quite a large amount of money was put up at these odds by the New York sports. The men were announced to go 20 rounds at 125 pounds, and both made the weight.

In the fourth Bernstein was knocked down. In the fifth Santry's left eye was bleeding. In the eighth round Santry was driven to the ropes. Bernstein started the blood flowing again from Santry's left eye in the 14th. In nearly all of the other rounds the fighting was lively.

Santry showed to better advantage than when he met George Dixon a few weeks ago. He fought more openly, but he had not the strength of which his rival was possessed. Two of the hardest blows of the fight were delivered by the westerner. These were right swings on the head, and if they had had enough steam behind them, either of them would have put Bernstein out of business. Bernstein's cleverness at infighting was apparent, and at every stage of the fight he always had the better of his opponent when they came to close quarters. At the end of the 20th round the decision was given to Bernstein.

Cold For Fast Going.

Detroit, July 23.—The feature of yesterday's racing at Grosse Point track was Star Pointer's attempt to lower the world's record of 1:59 1-4, made by himself. Although the big horse failed to accomplish this, his time, 2:01 1-2, is considered remarkably good for so early in the season. The track was in prime condition for speeding, but the weather was rather cold for fast going.

STATE OF BUSINESS.

Bank Clearings Show Very Little Decrease In the Volume.

New York, July 23.—Midsummer conditions still govern most lines of trade and manufacture, but the volume of business as indicated by bank clearing reports to Bradstreet's shows little decrease, and is evidently considerably in advance of previous years at this time. A feature in the trade this week is the better demand reported for wool east and west, largely confined, it is true, to a few grades of wool. This appearance of activity has given a decidedly more hopeful tone to this business which, however, is not yet reflected in the manufacturing branch. Eastern wool markets are relatively the lowest in the world, and stocks held now, it is claimed, cannot be replaced at lower prices or abroad.

Business is still of a warm weather volume at the east, but there is a better tone in wool as a result of enlarged demand. Eastern woolen mills are changing machinery from heavy to light goods. The feeling is more hopeful for a good business the coming season. Drygoods are in fair demand in Philadelphia, and there is a little more doing in New York. There is more doing, and there is a better feeling in iron and steel at Pittsburg.

Cotton is at the lowest price ever paid at this season of the year, partly on good crop reports and also as the result of the announced intention of a shutdown by Fall River mills. For the latter reason print cloths are firmly held at previous quotations.

Bank clearings for the week in the United States aggregate $1,152,889,000, 5 percent smaller than last week, but 5 percent larger than last year, 16 percent larger than in 1896, 24 percent larger than in 1895, 50 percent larger than in 1894, and 9 percent larger than in 1892.

Following the usual semi-annual crop of small business embarrassments, failures have again dropped to normal summer proportions, the total number for the week just closed being 188—50 fewer than last week, 32 fewer than in this week a year ago, 92 smaller than in this week of 1896, 51 less than in 1895, and 49 less than in 1894.

Arbitrary on Its Face.

Washington, July 23. — Postmaster General Smith has annulled the award to the Purcell Envelope company of Holyoke, Mass., of the contract for furnishing the government with stamped envelopes. When the agents of the company learned that this action was contemplated, they entered suit in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, seeking to have the postmaster general enjoined from taking this action. He was served with a notice to show cause why an injunction should not be granted, and the case will come up for hearing Aug. 2.

This action of the Purcell company could not restrain the postmaster general at this time, and he announced that the contract had been annulled and that new bids would be asked for. When asked his reasons for this, he declined to go into details, but said he considered his course best for the interests of the public.

When bids were opened last March it was found that the Purcell company's bid was $20,000 lower than any others on the government standard paper, and Postmaster General Gary, after an investigation of the company's responsibility, awarded it the contract. The Morgan-Plymton Envelope company of Hartford began a strong fight to have the contract set aside, and the present postmaster general, who came into office immediately after the award, was besieged daily by parties interested. After a thorough investigation and full consideration he determined to act as announced.

For Robbing Letters.

New Haven, July 23.—James H. Donnelly, chief night clerk in the New Haven postoffice, was arrested Friday charged with the embezzlement of money from letters, and in default of $1500 bonds was taken to jail to await a hearing. The arrest was made by Postal Inspector Bulman of Boston, and was brought about by means of a test letter, a marked bill and two marked coins being found on the person of the prisoner. Donnelly is about 30 years of age and had been employed in the office for 10 years. It is alleged that the thefts have been going on for a period of two years.

Depositors Will Lose.

Milwaukee, July 23.—A shortage of at least $30,000 in the accounts of John H. Myers, secretary of the Home Building and Loan association, has been discovered by State Bank Examiner Kidd. There are about 250 stockholders in the association, all of whom will lose heavily. A director said that the association would probably go into voluntary liquidation, or a receiver would be appointed. The liabilities amount to $160,000 and assets about $40,000. No action has yet been taken against Myers.

the courts of Europe, and that there are smokers among the crowned heads of Europe and the princesses of royal blood, including the dowager czarina, the empress of Austria, the queen of Roumania, the queen regent of Spain and the queen of Portugal, while they allege that the greatest devotee of all is Princess Henry of Prussia, the sister of the czarina.

Wholesale Sacrifice of Innocents

Boston, July 23.—The dead bodies of five young infants and the skeletons of two more were found in a lot in Roxbury Friday. At first it was thought that the children had been stillborn and had been simply placed in the field, as is often done in such cases, but it is now thought that the children were robbed of life after a successful entrance into the world.

The police are diligently at work searching for someone who may give them information leading to the detection of the persons responsible for the children's deaths, or for those who brought the children to the place where they were found.

Each of the five bodies was neatly dressed. While the outside dresses were different the inside pinning blankets were in all cases alike. All looked as if some pains had been taken in their dressing. The papers they were wrapped in were Boston newspapers, one dated Jan. 4, 1898, and the other two July 7. The infants were all more than ordinarily developed, and it is thought they were allowed to live about two weeks, then killed.

ELEGANT AND SPACIOUS.

Plan For a Handsome Residence Suited to Any Locality.

[Copyright, 1898, by George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.]

In planning a home the first points to be considered are the number and the sizes of the various rooms. These should be arranged and located to suit the requirements of its proposed occupants. The situation of all doors should be carefully studied out, so that free and easy communication may be had between the different rooms and other parts of the house. Great care should also be taken to prevent odors from one part of the house prevailing in another, and with proper forethought this can always be done. All rooms should be as square as possible, or partly so, as any room that is cramped or distorted makes difficult the placing of furniture. By observing this rule all space possible may be utilized.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

The relative positions of the different rooms would depend greatly upon the conditions of the site and adjoining buildings, so that windows, etc., may be placed where they insure the greatest privacy. The points of the compass should also be carefully observed, especially in the placing of radiators or registers for the warming of the building. They should always be placed well to the north of a building. Having the north end of the building warmed, the south will take care of itself. It is desirable to place the dining room so that it will have a southern exposure. The library or den should, if possible, be so designed as to be isolated wholly, or par tially so, that the occupant may have greater privacy. The parlor should be the choicest room, command the best view and be planned to have direct communication with the reception hall. The kitchen should be placed in the rear, have good ventilation, be easily accessible to the dining room and contain a kitchen or a butler's pantry between. This makes the two rooms private and at the same time reduces the odor of cooking which more or less permeates the rest of the house. By having two doors between these rooms this disagreeable feature is entirely avoided.

In the arrangement of rooms on the second floor each chamber should contain an ample closet and all rooms have easy access to the bathroom. It is desirable to finish as many rooms on the first floor in hard wood as the limit of cost will allow. The finish and decoration of other parts of the house will of necessity be controlled likewise.

The plan shown here is one which includes all of these comforts and modern improvements and which would suit the most fastidious of tastes. The first floor consists of parlor, dining room, reception hall, den and kitchen. This floor has been very carefully studied out, and, as can readily be seen, embodies comfort and convenience and utilizes all space possible. A spacious veranda covers the entire front of the building, and it matters not which way the sun shines you will have shade on one or more portions. The second floor contains four large chambers, with bathroom containing water closet, bathtub and washbowl. Every room is semidetached except the servants' chamber. A sewing room, with balcony covered, over the front veranda is a very fine feature. It is also intended for use as a children's playroom or nursery. Rear stairs are provided for servants' use. On the third floor are five chambers, two for servants and three for family use, spare rooms or guest chambers. This is a design that will suit almost any neighborhood.

A Library Notion.

In a library whose wall tapestries were rows of bookshelves broken by rare old prints a delightful sense of use of the volumes was conveyed by the low, narrow divans that stood against the shelves at intervals. They invited a sinking down into a comfortable pose close to the treasures at hand. Although many of the books were rare and all of them valuable, none was behind glass, a leather strip of two inches being fastened at the end of each shelf with leather covered nails. This offered a good protection against dust. Unquestionably such a way of caring for books is the most attractive, conveying as it does the idea of easy access and much use. The furnishing quality of books is largely lost when they are packed in regular rows behind glass doors, even though the frames of the doors may be costly and carved.—New York Post.

Potted Plants.

The Chinese primrose is one of our best winter bloomers if properly cared for, but without proper care it often fails to give satisfaction. One of the commonest mistakes made with it is to give it too much root room. It does not require a large pot, and in a large one it gets more soil than it can take care of. A small plant in a large pot seldom does well. There are not roots enough to use the moisture.—"How to Grow Flowers."

COMMENTS.

When the Vizcaya was in New York everybody wished for her safety and hoped that she might get away without a scratch and she did, but how things have changed.

Is it possible that Uncle Sam will be compelled to take the Cubans across his knee, after liberating them from the grasp of a cruel nation? If the Cubans are wise, they will behave themselves.

Sending thousands of Spanish prisoners to Spain in Spanish vessels, feeding them better than they have lived at home, at an expense of more than a half million dollars is a bit of war history such as was never before written, but it is in keeping with our humanitarian method of warfare. If however, we send our fleet to hazard the coast of Spain it seems to us that we shall be inconsistant.

Stole the Chinaman's Money.

On Thursday afternoon two young boys entered the Chinese laundry at the corner of Washington and Canal street and during the temporary absence of the proprietor they stole his pocketbook and started up Washington street on the run, with the Chinaman after them. Seeing that they were being chased they threw the pocketbook away and escaped. There was four or five dollars in the pocketbook which was found later by Harry Crane and returned. One dollar of the money was missing and this probably fell out when the boys threw it away.

The police were notified and Officer O'Brien after some trouble apprehended the boys but as they promised to make the loss good the Chinaman will not prosecute them.

Threw it Away.

Little Dana and Willie Cahill of Hancock street, Norfolk Downs, five and three years old respectively, were sent to the store with a small order for groceries, among other things was a yeast cake. They returned promptly and proudly laid the articles upon a table. Their mother looked for the yeast cake, but could find none. She exclaimed: "Why, there is no yeast cake, did you get one?"

"O yes," said the little ones in chorus.

"But where is it?" asked the mother.

"O," said they, "we opened it and smelt of it, and it was rotten, so we threw it away."

Wollaston Fountain.

It is probable that the fountain at Wollaston which was recently demolished by a heavy team, will not be put back in its former position; which was, to say the last, decidedly inconvenient. It will probably be located within a hundred feet of its former site and out of the way of the car tracks, and where the overflow will not inconvenience pedestrians.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Dr. Ash Seriously Injured in a Runaway at West Quincy

Dr. John H. Ash met with a serious accident Friday afternoon at West Quincy, and is now in a precarious condition. He had been out exercising a colt in a gig and at the time of the accident was driving along Copeland street.

When opposite the stone sheds of Moynihan & Breen the animal became frightened and jumped to one side. The gig struck a telephone pole, the force of the collision being such as to throw the doctor forward so that he fell between the colt and the whiffletree where he hung head down, his feet having become tangled in the gig.

The animal then started toward the depot. Mr. James McDonnell saw the team coming and rushing into the street threw a handful of dirt into the animals eyes, which had the effect of stopping him somewhat. As Mr. McDonnell attempted to seize him by the head he ran upon the sidewalk and cleared himself from the gig but was captured near the West Quincy depot.

At this moment an electric car bound for East Milton came along and Dr. Ash was placed on this and carried back to his home. Drs. Gordon, Hunting and Sheahan were called and it was found that several of Dr. Ash ribs had been fractured and that possibly he was injured internally. Several of his front teeth were knocked out, and he was cut in the side; but it is not known whether his injuires were caused by the horse kicking him or not.

BILLINGS QUEERED HIMSELF

Wouldn't Call His Colonial House a Bungalow and Wouldn't Have a Den.

"It is all right for a man to be a snob in the city if he chooses, but it makes him very unpopular in the country," said Mr. Suburbanite as he settled back in his chair. "Now, there is Billings," he added pointedly.

"Billings is no snob," said Brown. "He is an old friend of mine, and I'll bank on Billings every time."

"That was what I said before he built a house in my town. I told every one that Billings was all right, and now that Billings has queered himself I am in hot water."

"Billings was not a man who was in the habit of queering himself. What did he do? Shoot a neighbor's dog?"

"Oh, no!" replied Suburbanite wearily. "Billings' offense was more serious than that. He declined to call his house the Bungalow, and every one of his neighbors resented it. In fact, he wouldn't name the house at all."

"That is to his credit," said Brown.

"No, it isn't—where Billings lives," said Suburbanite. "If you have any local pride at all, you are bound to call your house the Bungalow.' It is absolutely necessary."

"Billings told me that he had built a colonial house, and if he did that would let him out. Of course it would be absurd to call a colonial house a bungalow."

"That was just what Billings was foolish enough to say," said Suburbanite, "and unfortunately four colonial houses in his part of town were each called the Bungalow. You see, the local dealer in note paper agreed several years ago to get up a special brand headed the Bungalow, with the number and street added to suit the purchaser, if he were sure of having at least a dozen customers who would order it. Owing to death and fire the number of bungalows had been reduced to 11 when Billings began to build, and the paper dealer was complaining. When the rumor went the rounds of the bowling clubs and whist clubs that Billings had rejected the name bungalow, there was a commotion, I can tell you. As I had vouched for Billings a delegation of indignant house owners called on me at once and asked me if Billings wanted to hurt the town or if he was merely a snob. I defended him as best I could, but it was no use."

"Poor Billings!" said Brown.

"That was not his only offense," ontinued Suburbanite. "When he gave his house warming, he thought that he could make his neighbors forget the Bungalow incident by his hospitality. He had a Hungarian band and a caterer from New York, and his house was well decorated. Poor Billings! Some one should have coached him. One of the first guests to arrive was a woman who has three daughters who are popular. Consequently she is something of a social power. She admired Billings' parlors, his dining room and his billiard room and then said:

"'Now, Mr. Billings, as a near neighbor and a friend I am going to ask you a favor. I think the keynote of every man's house is his den. It indicates his tastes and fads, you know, and I am going to ask you to show me your den.'

"'But I haven't got any den,' said Billings.

"'Now, Mr. Billings,' she persisted, 'that is hardly fair. I am so anxious to see it!'

"'Really there is no such place in my house,' he said. 'I suspect that you mean one of those stuffy little cubby holes usually filled up with a lot of trash until you can't move and cherished as the exclusive retiring place of the master of the house. I called to see my plumber while the house was building, and he took me up to see his den, as he called it. The place was well named. You certainly didn't think that I would have a den in my house?'

"'Every house in the neighborhood has a den,' she answered sharply, 'and some of them are quite as nice houses as yours, Mr. Billings.'

"Before the evening was ended several other women asked Mr. Billings where his den was, and when it became known that to add to his offensive rejection of the Bungalow he had neglected to fit up a den his doom was sealed. Billings says that he paid for the house and he can do as he chooses with it, but surely he has made two mistakes."

"Poor Billings!" said Brown again.—New York Sun.

Castle Square Theatre.

The management of the Castle Square theatre will make a notable departure from its usual policy next week and produce, for the first time in this city, the new four act drama, "by James Schonberg, "The Red, White and Blue." The original production of this play, at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, a few weeks ago proved that its story is well calculated to appeal successfully to the martial spirit of the times and its scenes and incidents were shown to be such as the times demand to hold the attention of an audience. The plot of the play deals with Spanish intrigues on the Island of Cuba very largely, but the vein of comedy is sufficiently prominent to enliven the action and give opportunities for good comedy work. The elaborate stage settings, built and painted for the Philadelphia production, will be used in the Castle Square performances. At the Tuesday matinee patrons will be presented with a souvenir consisting of a portrait of Mr. N. H. Fowler as Jacques in "An Enemy to the King." The farcial comedy "The New Boy," by Arthur Law, will follow on Monday, August 1st.

Keith's Theatre.

Of all the legitimate players who have so far appeared in the vaudeville theatres, none have succeeded in attracting the attention of the theatre going public to such an extent as Robert Mantell, who has been playing at Keith's popular Boston theatre during the current week. The critics of the daily newspapers have been a unite in declaring Mr. Mantell's acting the very best that has so far been seen in the varieties, and it is pleasing to know that the appreciation bestowed was equal to any which the famous actor has received during his long and brilliant career. Mr. Mantell first became famous in this country through the creation of the celebrated character of Loris, in Fanny Davenport's Fedora company, a wonderful piece of character work that will be remembered by those who witnessed it as long as they live. At Keith's Mr. Mantell is supported by the best company that has appeared with any legitimate player in the variety houses, a fact which cannot be to strongly emphasized, as it is so unusual. The coming week offers the only opportunities of witnessing this talented star and his associates at Keith's. The other portion of the programme will be made up of the customary varied list of attractions, including the Symphony Orchestra, in an entire chang of selections, and the noted Frenca tenor, Albert L. Guille, who will appear for the last time as soloist. It is worthy of note that Keith's is pronounced, by those competent to judge, the purest and coolest indoor resort in America.

—Hobson is the first great lion of the war to return to his native country, and he comes on duty bent. He wishes to have the government make immediate contracts for the floating of the Maria Teresa and the Colon, and he believes that it can be done. CAMP DALTON.

Rumors that Regiment Will Move Next Week.

Camp Dalton
July 23d, 1898.

Yesterday was as fine a day as one could wish for; considerable work was done by fatigue parties on the grounds. Several small drains were put in and one large one was started. These drains will help considerable during such rainy weather as we had Thursday.

In the afternoon a very practible drill was held in the rear of the camp grounds. This part of the ground is covered with low bushes with a scattering of pines. Several sand and stone pits and small marshes make it quite a place for sham battles. Eight men in blue shirts were given a good start and the rest of the company clothed in brown uniforms were deployed as scouts, signal men and skirmishers. Their work was to capture the first eight. These men were disarmed by the blue, but after an hour's chase the blue were forced to surrender.

This is good work for the boys as it is as near the mode of fighting followed in Cuba as they can get in practice. The tact used by both men and officers was noticeable. They were compelled to crawl on their hands and knees, and some used the Cuban disguise of carrying brush in front of them. It is almost impossible to distinguish a man at a short distance away. Special interest is taken in this kind of work as it is a change from the every day routine.

A change has been made in the cook house. Before this a permanent crew were used but under the new order a new detail is put in every day so as to instruct every one in the art of cooking army rations, and give every one the same amount of drill. The cooks have been unable to receive this most necessary instruction.

The method used for punishment for insurbordination in K street, of which there is little, is to compel the offenders to march the company street for a number of hours with rifle and belt. It behoves a man to look out.

There was a large number of visitors in camp yesterday, Walter Fagan, Eddie Fagan, Master Francis and Dennis Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Loud.

There are a thousand and one rumors afloat as to the destination and time of leaving of the 5th. The indications point to an early departure, as the last five days' rations were issued yesterday with no signs of more. There is a mysterious silence maintained by the officers, which means something.

The regiment is ready to move at any moment, and quite anxious to go. Perhaps the sooner the better, as the home ties are hard to break here, where so many visitors from home are able to come and go. If they are to be broken they might as well be cut short at once.

Vaccination is taking on most of the men, and the result is sore arms and some sick men. Some take it harder than others, but it will soon be over.

There is one case of measles in the hospital.

A thorough inspection of all equipments at camp was made this morning. Those who had old uniforms, or misfits, were changed, and by tomorrow the equipment will be perfect.

There is a persistent rumor that the regiment will move next Thursday.

Corporal Matthews is home on a leave of absence today.

Mrs. L. B. Birse of East Milton is visiting camp today.

Won the Race.

After winning the one mile amateur handicap bicycle race at Rockland on Saturday, after one of the prettiest spurts of the year, Harry C. Thayer, lost the race on the decision of the referee, S. A. Davidson of Brockton. There was a mix up and spill after Mr. Thayer and Goers of Randolph had crossed the tape. The other riders came together, so that the referee could not decide the winners of the third, fourth and fifth prizes. The referee either did not know the rules or wanted the Brockton riders to win; for he ordered the race to be run over again. He should have awarded the first and second prizes to Mr. Thayer and Mr. Goers and have those that were mixed up ride the race over again.

Harry was rather "baked" for the second race and lost. He has sent a protest to the chairman of the racing board. And the latter says that if the case is as Mr. Thayer represents it, he has a good claim on the prize.

It is the second race that Mr. Thayer ever rode and he kept the best riders in the race following his pace and won out in fine shape.

On Thursday Mr. Thayer received the prize a handsome gold watch. The racing board having sustained his protest. Chairman Robinson said that the referee had no right to make such a decision as he made.

Unselfishness Rewarded.

The following article was written by a little Braintree girl of nine summers, who finds great pleasure in writing short stories. We hope the talent, which she seems to possess in no small degree, will have that encouragement that will enable her to make a good use of it:

Alice was sitting under the shade of a tree reading, when her mother called her, but she did not want to leave her book, when she was in the middle of a story, so she pretended not to hear; but in a little while her mother called her again, and still she read on, not heeding her mother's call. Now her little cousin May was visiting her, and when Alice's mother found her daughter would not go down to the store, she thought she would ask May, and if May refused, she would go herself; but kind-hearted May would not refuse, although she was very tired, for she had been at work all the afternoon doing the work that Alice had left undone; and she did not like to go to the store, but she went, while Alice was reading. She got her reward, as all good children do. Perhaps you would like to know what it was. Well her aunt was so pleased with May that she told her uncle, and he said she should have a new dress right away.

You can imagine how ashamed and unhappy Alice felt, but I think it taught her a lesson, for she had been wishing for a new dress. If she perseveres in trying to conquer selfishness she will soon get one; but it never pays to be selfish, for it makes yourself and others unhappy.

The one thing that May felt unhappy about that night was that she could not have instead of a dress something that they could both enjoy, and before she went to sleep, determined to ask her uncle for something else in the morning; and what do you suppose it was? Why! two darling little rabbits. What good times they did have playing with the dear little things; and even the cross old Sarah, the cook, joined in the fun.

PANSY EDNA ALLEN.

For the Fifth Regiment.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Wollaston Congregational church held a sewing-bee and sale at the residence of Mr. J. A. Barbour on Monday for the benefit of the Fifth Regiment. There were about eighty present during the afternoon and evening, many who could not attend contributed to the work.

The young ladies made thirty comfort bags," and filled them with such essentials as buttons, needles, thread, court plaster, scissors and pencils.

Thirteen books were contributed for the Christian Commission reading room, among them were, "In His Steps," "The Man Without a Country," "Hiram Goff's Religion" and, "The Wrestler of Philippi."

Some money was raised which will be expended in making mosquito net-protectors for the use of the sick and wounded at the front.

Mr. N. G. Nickerson gave a very instructive talk about Santiago; Miss Lincoln told of what women are doing in this present war; a recitation by Miss Olive Shuman; and a synopsis of "The Man Without a Country," by the Rev. Mr Tobey, formed the evening's entertainment.

—Cycling is a dangerous exercise for many persons. The physician should make sure of the perfect health of the individual before sanctioning it. It is usually injurious for the aged.—Mennella.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SURVEYING.

One of the Important Uses to Which the Camera Has Been Put.

Something like 50,000 square miles of the mountainous country of western Canada has been surveyed with the camera. Nothing comparable to this in the way of photographic surveying has been accomplished on any such scale anywhere else in the world.

The causes of failure on the part of many who have tried the method and discarded it in disgust are chiefly two. One of these is a defective knowledge in descriptive geometry and perspective, which are essentials of the plotting photographic surveying. The other difficulty lies in the manipulation of the photographic apparatus itself and the making of a proper negative. This is by no means the easy thing it seems, since photographs that would be highly acceptable to the average photographer, professional or amateur, might be quite useless for the purpose of the surveyor. For example, the surveyor's picture, in order to be of use, must be taken with the camera in precisely the horizontal position, tilting never a hair-breadth in one direction or another; the lens he uses must be an anastigmat and absolutely rectilinear, that the image may not be in the least distorted, and the plate must be of a special kind and adjusted in the camera with a degree of nicety of which the ordinary photographer has no conception.

Mr. Deville, who had in charge the Canadian work, points out in a practical way how many of the worst difficulties may be easily overcome. Thus the simple device of having a net suspended between the legs of the tripod, in which stones are placed to steady the camera, would save many a negative in windy weather that now is lost through the vibration of the instrument. And the care which is counseled in determining the exact period of proper exposure for a given plate, lens and light, even if carried out with far less scientific precision than is here suggested, would enable many an amateur who now wastes several plates for every good negative to reverse the proportions of failures and successes.

One curious feature of the photographic surveying, which the amateur would not care to follow ordinarily, but a knowledge of which might prove of service on occasion, is that the aerial perspective, making the distance hazy, is practically eliminated by the use of orthochromatic plates, which are little affected by the blue rays, combined with the use of an orange colored screen in front of the lens. The result, of course, is a picture devoid of atmosphere, and hence defective from the artistic standpoint, but probably more valuable for the purposes of the surveyor, who very likely has taken the picture solely to show the exact location, altitude and contour of a distant mountain.

The use of these methods of restricting the light necessitates very long exposure, and this in turn makes requisite the use of plates coated on the back with a light absorbing material (so called nonhalation plates), else the light reflected from the back surface of the plate would fog the film. Mr. Deville is careful to point out that this coating must be in optical contact with the surface of the glass—in other words, actually painted upon it, the mere placing of a black cloth or paper against the back of the plate being of no serivce whatever.

When all these technical difficulties of photographic surveying are made clear, it no longer seems so strange that the method has been but slowly adopted by surveyors, even in those districts where its advantages would be most marked. The surveyors who tried it usually failed to get any available results, and they did not realize that the fault lay with themselves and not with the method.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Sound Wine For Poets.

Once Charles I sent Ben Jonson, as poet laureate, £100 a year and a tierce of Spanish canary. No such generous drink comes now from Queen Victoria to lend sparkle and vivacity to Mr. Austin's verses. Once Dr. Johnson, "the real primate and soul's teacher of England," says Carlyle, declared roundly and without shocking anybody, "Brandy, sir, is the drink for heroes." It is not thus that primates and teachers of any land now hearten their wavering disciples.

Once the generous publishers of "Marmion" sent Scott a hogshead of fine claret to mark their appreciation of his verse. It is not in this graceful fashion that authors now receive their tokens of good will.—"Varia," by Agnes Repplier.

SPRAINED JOINTS.

How to Treat Them So as to Relieve Pain and Prevent Inflammation.

A sprain of a joint varies greatly in severity. It may consist of a simple wrench, without the tearing of any of the ligaments, or it may be a more extensive injury, stopping just short of a dislocation.

In more severe cases the tendons passing over the joint and attaching the muscles which move it to the bones may suffer considerable damage, or one of them may be broken or torn from its attachment, bringing with it a sliver of bone. Where so much harm has been done to all the parts—bones, ligaments, tendons and muscles—it is easy to understand that much pain will result and that the cure will be tedious.

In the treatment of a sprain the first thing to be aimed at is to relieve pain and prevent inflammation, then to favor healing of the torn structures, and after that to restore the use of the limb.

The first of these objects is accomplished by absolute rest of the injured part, the limb being raised, and by lead and opium wash, a spirit lotion or such other local applications as the physician may prescribe. Swelling is prevented in a measure and pain is sometimes relieved by firm bandaging with a flannel bandage.

When the swelling, heat and pain are gone, the limb should not be used too soon, but should be brought gradually back to health by cold douching, dry rubbing—in a direction toward the body—and passive motion. It is sometimes necessary in very severe cases to treat the sprain by means of splints, exactly as if it were a fracture or dislocation.—Youth's Companion.

How to Make Hop Beer.

Boil five ounces of hops slowly in nine gallons of water for about three-quarters of an hour. Strain over three pounds of brown sugar in a large pan, add a little bruised ginger, and when lukewarm add yeast and let it ferment. If this is to be kept, add a little brandy, for it is not easy to keep any fluid containing sugar without it. After 24 hours strain off and bottle, tie down the corks tightly or draw from a stone or wooden cask as required for use.

How to Treat Red Hair Becomingly.

Instead of being dissatisfied with their lot, women with red hair should study how to use it becomingly and be proud of the distinction of having it. There appears to be an impression among women with red hair, says an exchange, that almost any shade of blue can be worn by them, because as a usual thing they have fair and delicate complexions, but, as a matter of fact, blue is the one color above all others that they ought to avoid. The contrast is too violent and the combination is not harmonious. The shades most suitable to be worn with red hair are bright, sunny brown and all autumn leaf tints. After these may be selected pale or very dark green, but never a bright green, pale yellow, and black unmixed with any other color. Mixed colors are not becoming to red haired people, as they nearly always give them a more or less dowdy appearance. In fact, red hair is usually so brilliant and decided that it must be met on its own ground and no vague, undecided sort of things should be worn with it.

How to Cook Tenderloin of Beef.

Lard the beef and place in a bake pan with cold water about a quarter of an inch deep. Spread salt, pepper and a little butter on the meat. Cover it with a piece of buttered paper. Baste over the paper lest it should burn. Keep the bottom of the pan covered with juice. Turn two or three times, but keep the paper on the top. Serve it, decorated with sweetbreads and slices of truffles, with a madeira sauce.

How to Make Gloves Last.

A plan which adds greatly to the life of kid gloves has just been brought out in New York. A manufacturer of fashionable gloves who occupies a little shop on Fifth avenue has hit upon something that makes a glove perspiration proof. So many of his customers complained about ruining their gloves that he set to work to find something to eliminate this trouble. It occurred to him to line a pair of gloves with very thin oil silk, of which fine dress shields are made. He tried lining the inside of the palm and fingers and found that he had a glove which perspiration could not penetrate. His customers are enthusiastic over his discovery. They say he is a true philanthropist, or, what is better, a genuine humanitarian, or else he would never have given them the benefit of a discovery which is bound to be detrimental to his sales.

How to Make Rye Pancakes.

One cup of Indian meal, two cups of rye flour, one-half tablespoonful of molasses, two eggs, beaten light, and enough hot milk to make an ordinary batter. Scald the meal with the milk, stir in the rye flour and the molasses, add the eggs, beat hard and fry.

How to Make Pepper Mangoes.

Take 24 large green peppers. With a knife extract all seeds and cut off tops. Then place the peppers in a jar. Pour over them water salted to taste. Let them stand overnight. In the morning drop them in fresh cold water and allow them to stand about ten minutes. Fill each one with very finely chopped cabbage. Salt to taste and a very little white mustard mixed in the cabbage. Sew the tops on and place in a stone jar as close as possible. Pour cold vinegar on them. They will be ready for use in about two weeks.

How to Make Caramel Pie.

One cup of butter, one cup of sugar, one cup of damson preserves, five eggs, one tablespoonful of vanilla. Beat yolks of eggs and sugar together till light, then add preserves and melted butter. Beat the whites stiff and add last. Bake without top crust.

ROUT FOR INSURGENTS

Tackled a Surrendering Force of Spanish Troops.

Number of Attackers Somewhat Diminished.

Movement a Surprise, but the Enemy Fought Successfully.

Port Antonio, July 23.—Nothing happening in this vicinity recently has taken the American officers and troops so completely by surprise as the account of a battle between Cubans and a Spanish force on its way to surrender to General Shafter. The Spaniards were not looking for a fight, and were caught off their guard. General Garcia ordered his men to form so that they would be concealed in the chapparel, hoping to annihilate the first section of Spanish troops. His plans were promptly put into execution, but the Spaniards, quickly recovering from the demoralization caused by the opening shots, fought fiercely, and General Garcia's ambuscade was a failure.

Although unsuccessful in his plan to trap the Spaniards, General Garcia sent word to them demanding that they surrender forthwith. To this demand the Spanish commander returned an emphatic refusal. "General Toral," he notified Garcia, "has surrendered to the American army, not to the Cubans."

Despite the information that these Spanish troops were a part of those included in Toral's surrender, Garcia ordered his troops to prepare to fight. The Cubans quickly took the position to which they had been assigned and the order to fire was passed along the line. Garcia had decided to attempt to carry the Spanish position by assault, and his troops pressed forward when the word was given. Their progress was firmly resisted at every point by the Spaniards, who, after several hours' fighting, put the Cubans to rout, with a loss of 41 killed and many wounded. The Spanish suffered a smaller loss.

This disastrous defeat of the insurgents is the first result of General Garcia's petulant disagreement with General Shafter, and of his decision to no longer co-operate with the American forces. When the Cuban general withdrew his troops to the mountains, he resolved to move on to Holguin, about 60 miles to the northwest of this city. If the Americans would not allow them to wreak vengeance on the Spaniards in Santiago, the Cubans proposed to storm some other important place and take possession of it on their own account.

It was with this object in view that General Garcia withdrew his troops from the American lines and refused longer to act as an ally of General Shafter. He decided to capture Holguin, if possible, and to there set up an insurgent government, making that place the Cuban headquarters for the eastern department.

It is not yet known how far to the northwest of Santiago General Garcia's army had proceeded upon this mission when the Spanish troops were encountered. They had been marching for many hours, however, and must have been well started on their journey. I am told it is a question as to which were the more surprised, the Cubans or the Spaniards, when the two bodies of troops met on the road between Santiago and Holguin. The Spaniards had been gathered from the fortified towns in the vicinity, and were proceeding to Santiago under the terms of surrender agreed to by General Toral. They were seeking to carry out in good faith the agreement made with Shafter.

TALK OF PEACE.

Warlike Preparations Going on as Vigorously as Ever.

Washington, July 23.—The continued talk of peace negotiations finds no encouragement in Washington. The administration is not paying the least attention to them, and by its action in sending troops to Porto Rico, considering the advisability in still further reinforcing the army in the Philippines and making ready for the sailing of Watson's fleet, shows in the strongest manner possible that it does not believe peace to be in sight.

Massachusetts may take pride in the fact that her troops in the Porto Rican campaign are again in the vanguard, as they were in the Santiago campaign. The Second Massachusetts regiment and the Seventy-first New York were the first of our volunteer troops to land on Cuban soil, and the reports from Sampson show that the Sixth Massachusetts regiment is with General Miles, and will be, in all probability, the first volunteer regiment to land at Porto Rico. As the Eighth Massachusetts regiment, now at Chickamauga, is under orders to proceed with General Brooke to Porto Rico, Massachusetts will have two of her regiments in that campaign, while the Second will remain for a while with Shafter at Santiago.

The orders issued show that the forces bound for Porto Rico will be large enough to overwhelm the Spanish garrison at San Juan. General Miles has insisted, and has carried his point, that a competent naval force shall proceed with him to Porto Rico and aid in the operations before San Juan. Apparently, none of the flag officers, Sampson, Schley or Watson, is to go with the convoy, and so the command of the marine force, unless additional orders are made, will devolve upon Captain Higginson of the battleship Massachusetts.

The proclamation issued by Aguinaldo, declaring a dictatorship and martial law over the Philippine islands, also received the attention of the cabinet. This information was not entirely unexpected. The administration has never had much confidence in the sincerity of Aguinaldo, who more than once has been suspected of intriguing with the Spanish officials, while professing to be in entire sympathy with us. The administration, however, has no intention of recognizing Aguinaldo at this juncture, or of permitting him to set up a dictatorship or form of government of his own.

"A Friendly Visit."

The visit of the German ambassador to the president and to the secretary of state was a basis for a belief that he had called to make some representation on that subject, and as well on the question of peace as affected by the program laid down by Watson's projected voyage to European waters. If so, official confirmation was not obtainable, and "a friendly visit" was the only explanation offered by Secretary Day for the appearance of the ambassador in the dog days in Washington. The embassy people were no more communicative, so that if anything of importance passed during the meeting of the president and Dr. Von Holleben it probably will be revealed only in the shape of action later on. It would not be surprising if it should develop that European influences are being brought to bear to dissuade the navy department from dispatching Watson's fleet to Europe, but so far they appear to have been ineffectual, for it is officially stated that the departure of the squadron is only delayed, not abandoned.

Hobson In Washington.

The last and most agreeable event of the day was the arrival at the navy department of Lieutenant Hobson. The officials were not informed of his approaching visit except through the newspapers. Consequently when he reached the railway station there was no official there to meet him, and his reception was truly democratic. He succeeded in escaping observation as he passed through the train shed, coat and umbrella in hand, followed by a porter proudly carrying his bag, but before he emerged from the station some one spied him, a hurrah went up from one throat close by, and in a moment the station resounded with vociferous shouting. The cry of "Hobson, Hobson," rang out, and the crowd closed about him, shaking his hand and pushing him about until he was rescued by the police and escorted to a carriage.

Concerning the efforts that are being made to save some of the Spanish ships he informed Secretary Long that the Reina Mercedes and the Infanta Maria Teresa would be saved certainly, and he expressed the utmost confidence that the Cristobal Colon could be saved also. Lieutenant Hobson differs with the wrecking experts sent from the United States, who are of opinion that the Colon cannot be saved. He is particularly anxious that every possible effort be made with the Colon, as he regards her as the finest of her class that was ever constructed. He is enthusiastic in his efforts to save the ships and, declining to remain in Washington for even a day, hurried back to New York to take up the subject of his mission with the wrecking company.

Although General Miles reported by cable from Nicholas, Hayti, that he was "moving along well" with the first detachment of the military expedition against Porto Rico, the body of his dispatch preceding this statement gave rise at first to the apprehension that, like Shafter at Santiago, Miles was threatened with a costly delay in landing his expedition on Porto Rican soil owing to the absence of lighters and tugs. It was said at the war department later on that some of these lighters were on their way from New Orleans and New York, and that no delay would arise on that score. It appears from Miles' first statement relative to Colonel Hecker that he was not acquainted with the necessity that had arisen for that officer's presence in Washington in order to provide for the speedy transportation to Spain of the troops surrendered at Santiago. The following troops are with him: Four light batteries of the Third and Fourth artillery; battery B, Fifth artillery; Sixth Illinois, Sixth Massachusetts, 275 recruits for the Fifth corps, 60 men of the signal corps, and the Seventh hospital corps, 3415 men all told.

Peace to Satisfy the Army.

Madrid, July 23.—In an interview printed in the organ of the army, Mr. Gamazo is quoted as saying: "The suspension of constitutional liberty cannot be agreeable to the press because it abrogates freedom and prevents the publication of news which costs much; but at this moment, what can the government do but check the hostile campaign waged against it? I was the first to beg the cabinet to treat the question as urgent, and I do not regret my action. I will say from my seat in parliament that I am convinced I did a real service to my country. At the same time, I can give you news which will please the press. The suspension of the constitution will not last long for several reasons. One of them is the calmness displayed by the people and the army. It is not for me to conceal the intentions of the government, which are to conclude an honorable peace which will in the first place satisfy the aspirations of the army. After that, if Mr. Sagasta thinks fit, he will ask the queen regent if she still has confidence in her present advisers."

Blanco Thankful For Anything.

Havana, July 23.—On the morning of July 18 seven American warships appeared before Manzanillo. Among them were two monitors. The Spanish flotilla, consisting of three transports, was there, but had very little ammunition and was much inferior in force to the Americans. The Spanish transports were fired upon by the Americans and were stranded on the beach. The Spanish sailors went ashore and occupied the land trenches, where they opened a very lively fire upon the American ships, and the latter withdrew. They had fired 350 shots of various caliber. The Spanish forces lost three soldiers killed and three officers and 12 soldiers wounded. Captain General Blanco publicly congratulated everyone who took part in the defense, and notified the commander of the garrison, Sanchez Parron, that he must defend the place to the very last.

The recent amnesty resolution adopted by the colonial authorities has been extended to the province of Pinar Del Rio and the city of Cardenas, and several political prisoners have been pardoned and released from imprisonment.

To Be Greater Than Russia.

London, July 23.—The first lord of the admiralty, George J. Goschen, reported yesterday on the supplementary naval program in the house of commons. He reviewed the original program, which was considered sufficient when it was framed, being based upon the two-power system, that the navy of Great Britain must be equal to the combined fleets of any two powers. In consequence of the action of Russia on the same system, the government was compelled to present a supplementary program, paralleling the Russian increase of six battleships which Russia proposed to begin in 1898. Only two battleships were taken into account in the original British program and the lord now asked the house to grant four more battleships.

Continuing, Mr. Goschen remarked: "The Russian program provides for four cruisers. We propose to build four, and also 12 destroyers. It is estimated that the cost of the new program will be £8,000,000, making the entire expenditure for the new ships £15,000,000. The battleships will be especially adapted for the passage of the Suez canal." Mr. Goschen pointed out, during the course of his remarks, that her majesty's government desired Europe to note that the proposal was not aggressive, but essential to maintaining a principle laid down; nor was Russia's action a menace to Great Britain. She had the right to build such a fleet as she thought her position required.

Dispatches From Shafter.

Washington, July 23.—The Madrid government has officially recognized the proposed return by the United States of the Santiago prisoners to Spain. This fact was communicated to the war department in the following dispatch from General Shafter: "I am just in receipt of a letter from General Toral, saying the Spanish secretary of war desires the troops landed at Vigo, Corunna, on the Atlantic, and at Santander on the bay of Biscay." The request of the Spanish government will be complied with unless something unforeseen should prevent.

In another dispatch Shafter says: "Sent two troops of cavalry with Spanish officers and Lieutenant Miley to receive the surrender of Spanish troops at San Luis and Palmas. They had not heard of the loss of Cervera's fleet or of Toral's surrender, and declined to surrender unless they could come in and see for themselves. A detachment of officers and men came in and returned apparently satisfied."

A Necessity Recognized.

New York, July 23.—Vice President Capote of the Cuban republic has made a public statement respecting the trouble with General Garcia, in which he says: "According to the spirit pervading the president's proclamation, the only authority will be the military governor and his aids, and the municipal authorities of the locality. We ourselves recognize the necessity of continuing ad interim in operation all laws other than political. I have, with other lawyers, been engaged in formulating these laws, with certain slight changes necessary to the new regime."

The Cheek of It.

London, July 23.—The Berlin correspondent of The Daily News says: "The powers, with the exception of Great Britain, have agreed not to allow an American annexation of the Philippines or an Anglo-American protectorate over the islands."

Blockade Runner Taken.

Charleston, July 23.—The French steamer, Olinde Rodriguez, has been brought into port in charge of a prize crew from the New Orleans, having been captured off San Juan, Porto Rico, July 17, while making for the harbor. The New Orleans sent two shots across her bow and brought her to. She had 23 cabin and 14 steerage passengers, and a cargo of coffee and tobacco.

From Santiago.

Santiago, July 23.—The city is quiet and ordinary business is being resumed. From various points in the province Spanish troops continue to arrive daily and are sent to camp, to await embarkation, the date of which has not yet been decided.

General Wood, the military governor, has ordered all the shops to open, and hereafter there will be music every Sunday and Thursday.

The Chinese Rebellion.

Hong Kong, July 23.—Advices received here from Canton say that the rebellion in that part of China had not been subdued. The viceroy is sending more troops to the disturbed districts. Five hundred braves have been ordered to be enlisted for the protection of Canton. One thousand braves will proceed to Kwang-Si, and the fleet under Admiral Kokwanmun has been ordered to prepare to proceed to Kwang-Si.

Murder and Suicide.

Wilmington, July 23.—Curtis Jackson, colored, accused Robert Hinson, colored, of being intimate with Mrs. Jackson, which Hinson denied. Jackson then shot Hinson in the arm. Jackson chased his wife into the street and shot her through the head. After dispersing a crowd with his revolver, he placed his head upon the bosom of his dying wife and sent a bullet into his own head.

ALMANAC, SUNDAY, JULY 24.
Sun rises—4:29; sets, 7:12.
Moon sets—9:37 p. m.
High tide—2:30 a. m.; 3 p. m.

The cool weather seems likely to continue through Sunday, as the conditions are favorable for easterly winds another 24 or 36 hours. It also promises to be fair, with clear to partly cloudy skies, and may continue so through Monday.

BEAR IN MIND

That we do not claim the goods we sell to be in any respect different from what other people sell, except in price. All our goods are new goods (1898 goods) and amongst them is nothing that we are selling for 25 cts. on the dollar. Our expenses are small and we sell our goods for all they are worth, but do not sometimes have to sell them for more than they are worth, like some merchants do to help pay the enormous expense they are under.

We have about 200 Negligee Shirts, which we will sell this week and next week, too, if we do not sell them all for 69c. We have them in all styles, with attached and detached collars. We would not have you believe they are the $1.00 kind. Although some are woolen madras goods, which are usually sold for that price. WOMAN'S WORLD.

A WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN APPOINTED DISTRICT PHYSICIAN IN NEWARK.

The Best of Training—Sensible Short Skirts—A Novel Needlework Exhibit. The Wives of Naval Officers—Remedy For Ivy Poisoning.

The appointment of Dr. Marie L. Lefort as district physician by the Newark (N. J.) board of health has occasioned considerable surprise in that city. The attractive young physician is the first woman to receive any marked consideration from the board, and it was generally supposed that the men who so persistently refuse to frame an antiexpectoration ordinance at the request of women and for women would never appoint a woman to such an important post as district physician.

Nor is this the only surprise. The territory assigned Dr. Lefort is that known as "The Hill," where the population is so mixed and so thick that it is by far the most pronounced of "slum districts" of the city. To work in such a district would naturally require experience and ability, but as Dr. Lefort speaks French, English and German and has had experience in New York city she is particularly pleased to work on "The Hill."

Few young women have been so honored so early in a professional career as the doctor. She is the first woman to have been appointed resident physician at Randall's island, and this appointment she resigned to accept that conferred by the Newark board of health. Marie Lefort was graduated from the Newark High school in 1893 and immediately after began her studies in the Woman's college of the New York Infirmary For Women and Children. She remained in the metropolis after taking her degree and had considerable experience in tenement districts.

"Oh, no, I am not a bit afraid to go out nights," she said. "A doctor's satchel is the only weapon I need carry. Emergency calls must be attended to at all hours, and I am quite accustomed to going out at any time."

The honor conferred on Dr. Lefort will probably be followed by others from local educational and philanthropic societies anxious to count among their honorary members the most successful and progressive woman at present in the public eye in Newark.—New York Herald.

The Best of Training.

Every child cannot have the best of training in the kindergarten and be schooled in the latest fads in society, but every mother can give training without which all other accomplishments will be useless. This priceless gift is a love for the good and beautiful and a good feeling toward our fellow men, which can only be attained by overcoming envy and jealousy.

Teach the child to observe the perfect and beautiful, though, like the rose, it be among thorns which are to be avoided. Teach him to commend the good and look away from the evil, both in persons and objects. This will do much toward gaining for him the love and respect of others, while the habit of so doing will keep him pure at heart and free from envy and jealousy—the two great enemies of happiness and success.

Some months ago I met a little boy whose mother had spent her best efforts in training him in the way she thought he ought to live. She would not have suffered him to come into the house without taking off his hat or omit any other polite conventionalties. But she had neglected what the boy most needed. Instead of being careless and happy, enjoying the world as if it was made for everybody, his very soul seemed almost poisoned with envy and jealousy, which kept him from appreciating anything, even the sunshine.

He seemed to have no love for anything, and could not observe or admire anything, which did not belong to him. This made him cross, selfish and almost to be despised, for every one that met him was sure to feel the worse for having met him, and this will be his lot through life. This kindly feeling toward one another and to the world is more often the result of childhood training than anything else.

Let a child have an envious, covetous mother, and the chances are she will impart it to him through his early training. When this is inculcated into the child's character, it destroys that youthful hope which is the rainbow of childhood, drawing one on through enchanted years.

Notice a child with a kindly feeling for everybody and everything, and you will see that, however poor he may be, he observes and admires the world and is as happy as if he owned it. Everybody is ready to receive him, be he dressed in velvet or tow linen, for it is not his clothes but his soul they love to greet. This will keep him from many a temptation and will impart an energy, ambition and hope which, like the star in the mariner's heaven, will guide him through the voyage of life.—Cora Wright in Housekeeper.

Sensible Short Skirts.

A marked feature at Lakewood, N. J., during the fashionable season was the short skirt used by women for walking and all general out of door wear. The short skirt was not confined to bicycle riders or tennis and golf players. In the streets of the town, along its promenades or in the parks and woods one met everywhere smartly dressed women wearing this convenient and comfortable walking skirt. Its vogue was so great as to show something more than a particular preference for neatness and convenience in walking.

The skirt most worn was somewhat longer than the bicycle skirt. It comes just below the shoe tops, clearing the ground by about four inches. It hangs in even folds and is of about medium width. Many such skirts are not bound on the bottom, but faced with a wide piece of the dress material and finished with many rows of machine stitching. The skirts are of cloth or mixed cheviots of dark shades. A very smart costume included such a skirt of gray cheviot, with a scarlet jacket of smooth faced cloth, plain linen collar, with tie, and a gray felt hat of round soft shape.

For seaside or mountain wear by summer visitors or for traveling or for general wear in the country by those who are much out of doors and on foot these short skirts are valuable. They have always been comfortable and convenient, but to preach common sense on the subject to those who follow style more than their own ideas of what is proper is usually time and breath wasted.

But if the use of the short skirts has been stamped with the approval of fashionable society people their use is likely to increase this number, and it would be a wise plan for every woman who wishes to do what is correct in such matters to see to it that a well made short walking skirt is among the necessary articles provided for her summer outfit.—Harper's Bazar.

A Novel Needlework Exhibit.

By invitation of the State Memorial museum of Norwich, Conn., the Society of Blue and White Needlework of Deerfield, Mass., has been making a special exhibit of its colonial embroideries by the State Memorial museum of Norwich, Conn. The show was held in conjunction with Miss Eyelyn Nordhoff's bookbindings. The Blue and White society sent 54 specimens of its peculiar and interesting craft, including a large portiere, a bedspread and a bed curtain. The portiere is wrought on heavy hand spun linen, being a portion of an old double sheet that was bought in Holland many years ago, but still preserving its integrity and in itself an excellent example of the weaver's skill. The design chosen for this door hanging is derived from a bedspread done by Mrs. Sarah Snell of East Bridgewater, Mass., who was not only a descendant of John Alden, but also had the honor of being the grandmother of William Cullen Bryant. This design is dated 1770, and the society has adapted some of its most important features to the more modern purpose for which it is now to be used. The bedspread and curtain are part of a set now being made for a California country house to be used on an old four poster of more than ordinary size. The design for the spread covers the entire top of the bed with a continuous pattern of particular originality of conception, dated 1798 or thereabouts. The spread is large enough to hang between the posts nearly to the floor, thus dispensing with the valance of the old times, and when completed will have a border near the narrow hemstitched edge.

The Deerfield society has found so much difficulty with the commercial dyes that it is now coloring linen thread in the old fashioned indigo dye pot, both for its own use and for sale to other dissatisfied craftswomen.—Boston Woman's Journal.

The Wives of Naval Officers.

The woman who has just come from Key West, the woman who knows admirals, and, more than all, who knows Hobson, was talking. "They tell me here that I am not patriotic," she was saying, "but they do not understand what war means. They see the war only from a distance. Sending men off to fight does not seem to mean much to them. It sounds well, they revel in patriotism and enjoy it. I have seen the wives of naval officers say goodby to their husbands, thinking they may never see them again. There is some excitement here, but it is nothing to the tense strain there was to be seen at Key West while the warships were there. An officer would be at dinner when a man from his vessel would make his appearance. The officer would be on his feet in a minute, 'Do you want me?' An officer does not go half way to meet a messenger in ordinary times. He takes things easily. The wife of one of the lieutenants of the Ericsson was dining on board ship with her husband one day when just in the middle of the meal three whistles were heard. No one knew exactly what they were for, but they might have meant something important, and poor little Mrs. Lieutenant was hurried into a boat and was half way ashore before she had time to think. War is a serious matter. You do not begin to know what it means here yet."—New York Times.

Remedy For Ivy Poisoning.

The ivy leaves are so pretty in autumn that they often beguile children into picking them. The poison ivy and the innocuous variety differ in one particular, so they can be readily distinguished. The leaves of the poison ivy grow in clusters of three, while the harmless kind grow in clusters of five, the leaves are narrow and long, and the vines run in the ground.

When poisoned by ivy, it first appears in the form of watery pimples, which smart and burn and soon run together in a solid blotch, followed by a swelling of the poisoned parts. An excellent remedy for the same is sweet spirits of niter. Bathe the affected parts two or three times through the day, and the following morning scarcely any trace of the poisoning will remain.

Another infallible remedy for poisoning by ivy and other poisonous vines and plants is rich buttermilk, in which has been beaten some green tansy leaves until the milk is thoroughly tinctured. Bathe the parts often until relieved. At night wet a cloth with the mixture and apply, wetting as often as it dries. Perhaps these remedies are old, but what matter as long as they are good?—Housekeeping.

My Lady's Gorgeous Slipper.

My lady's slipper sees a very radical change this summer. It is no more plain and unadorned; no longer does a simple little bow or unobtrusive rosette ornament it. Instead the slipper is now a very gorgeous affair. It glistens, both by sunlight and the gleam of gas or electricity, for it is a jeweled slipper and oftener than otherwise elaborately jeweled.

The style is to have these slipper jewels match the pin or necklace you are wearing, both in the gems themselves and in the setting. When fantastic and curious designs are worn in oddly finished gold, the effect is exceedingly picturesque and attractive. Rhinestones are the favorite slipper ornaments of the summer, diamonds being of course too valuable to be allowed to twinkle carelessly on one's feet.

The ornament most admired is a gold or jeweled buckle, either large or small. This will rest upon a bow or rosette of satin and will be of many quaint and odd designs.

Summer Fabrics.

Let your waist be small and the hips full and smoothly fitted. One of the prettiest and most stylish novelties in summer dress material is a silk gingham in plaided design of beautiful bright coloring. This extravagance sells for $1 a yard and is so beautifully woven that even when in the hands it looks and feels like fine, smooth silk. Duck and pique skirts are as popular as ever with shirt waists, and these, too, are fitted as closely as possible. The seams are overlapped and stitched, and a deep hem finishes the bottom. Corded pique is worn, but the figured and striped ones are newer and much more desirable, as they come in delicate colors as well as white. Crash skirts in linen, cotton or wool for country use are natty, neat and much used.—Mary Katherine Howard in Woman's Home Companion.

Tailor Made Skirts.

Some women are complaining about the new separate skirts. Their chief cause of discomfiture seems to be that they are too long and narrow. It may be noted just en passant that the majority of the fault finders, who are tall, slender women, found the bell skirt more suitable for their style of figure. Meantime the plump dames are intensely pleased with the revived mode. Some excellent models in separate skirts are being shown in the leading studios. A black and autumn leaf red striped foulard skirt fits closely over the hips and is rather full in the back.—New York Mail and Express.

A Clever Answer.

Rev. Anna Shaw, at a recent meeting, gave a clever answer to the question asked apropos of the present war, "Why should a woman have a vote if she doesn't carry a musket?" Miss Shaw replied: "The women of the United States will agree to fight all the women of Spain that may come against our country. If the men of America will take care of the men of Spain, the women of the United States will take care of the Spanish women." The Minneapolis Daily Journal says: "There is nothing the matter with that proposition. Let Anna have a chance to vote if she wants to."

Stained Fingers.

Now the time has come when the housewife who does much of her own cooking or preserving must often have her fingers stained with the juice of berries, peaches, etc., and it may be well to remind her that the fumes of sulphur will remove most fruit stains from the fingers. Put a tiny lump of sulphur in a tin plate, pour on a little alcohol and set it on fire. Hold the finger tips above the flame, and the discoloration will disappear.—Harper's Bazar.

A Woman Law Lecturer.

The Berlin Vorwarts (Forward), the leading German Socialist journal, which always gladly chronicles women's advancement, announces that the rector of the University of Upsal, Sweden, has appointed a woman instructor, Miss Elva Eschelssohn, to give lectures on lawsuits twice a week.

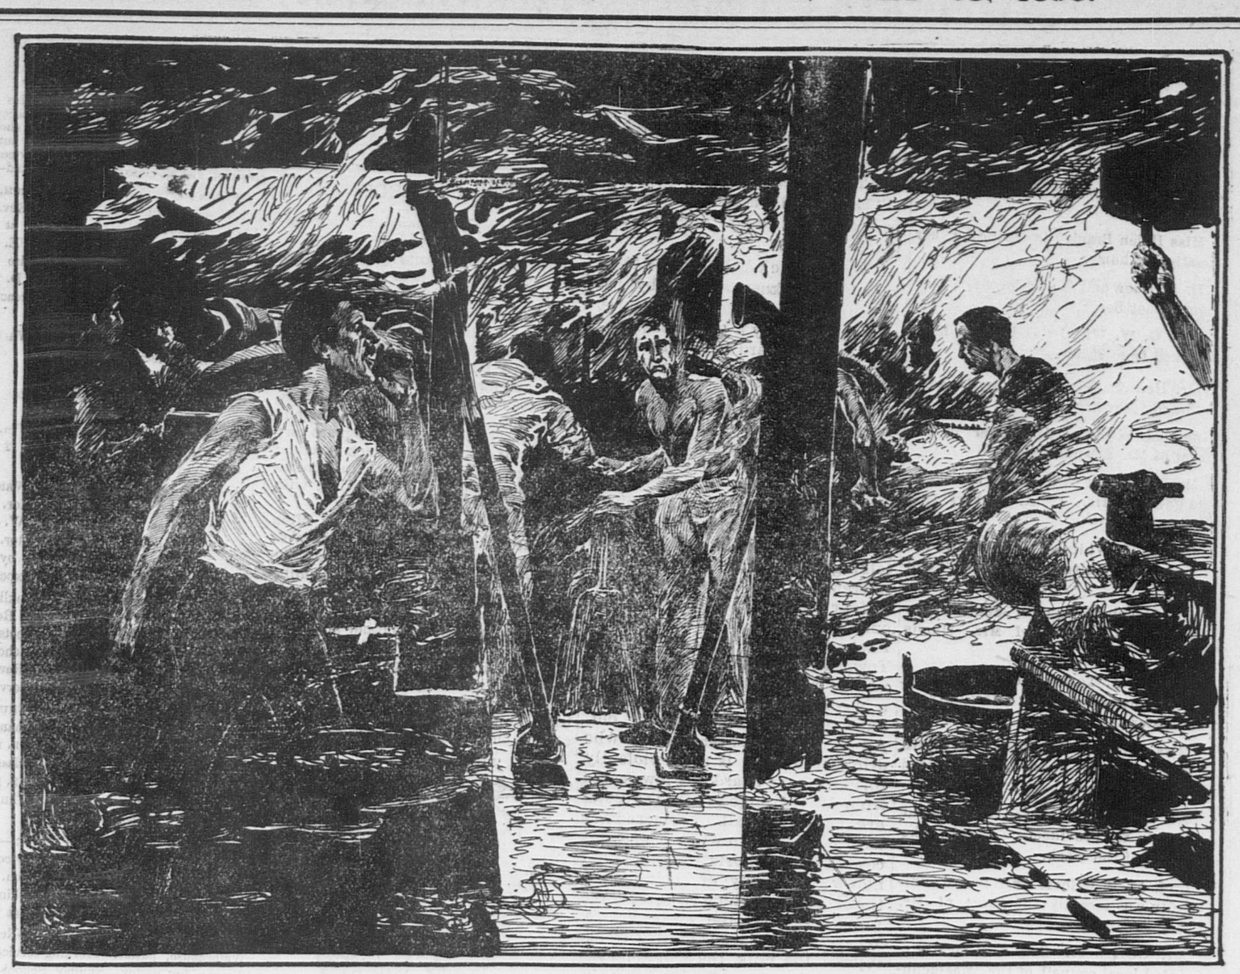
When the women of New York city recently held a patriotic meeting for the purpose of boycotting French goods several of the leading modistes signed a contract not to import any more Paris gowns for two years. This will be a loss of just $3,000,000 to Parisians.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore recently gave a lecture at West Dennis, Mass. People came from 10 and 15 miles and crowded the church to the doors. A correspondent of Zion's Herald writes, "The lecture was a great inspiration to this section."

A liberal use of salt in the food will destroy the odor of perspiration. In Australia, where the "black fellows" are employed as house servants, they are required to eat a certain amount of salt in their food every day.

Miss Hannah Kindbom, a bright young woman of Swedish birth, has just been installed as professor of nursing in the University of Texas.

—It is a large contract to furnish vessels enough to carry Toral's soldiers back to Spain, but they have got to be taken somewhere, and this form of "assisted emigration," as it has been called, is probably the cheapest as well as the most magnanimous way of dealing with them.—Boston Journal.



DURING THE DESTRUCTION OF CERVERA'S FLEET. FORWARD TURRET OF THE "IOWA" IN ACTION. From HARPER'S WEEKLY.

Drawn by H. Reuterdahl. Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

On the morning of July 3, about 9.30, the Spanish fleet tried to escape from the harbor of Santiago, where it had been bottled up by our war-ships.

In a remarkably short space of time after the Spanish ships were sighted, every gun on the American battle-ships was manned and loaded and the gunners ready for the word "Fire," which would mark the beginning of the battle. They had not long to wait, for it took but a few minutes for the Spanish cruisers to pass in single file the wreck of the Merrimac, clear the harbor, and dash for the open sea to the westward. Pouring a hail of shot and shell the American ships closed in upon them.

The well-trained American gunners sent shot after shot surely and unsparingly into the fleeing foe. In half an hour the Spanish fleet was half destroyed, and in a little over an hour the battle was finished, and Cevera's fleet a thing of the past.

We reproduce, with permission, a picture from the issue of Harper's Weekly for July 23, showing the turret of the battleship Iowa in action during the destruction of Cevera's fleet.

A 12-inch projectile, sent with unerring aim from the Iowa's forward turret struck and set fire to the flagship Maria Theresa, the first of the Spanish ships destroyed. Another 12-incher from the Iowa crashed into the bow of the leading much-talked-of torpedo boat destroyers, and caused her to turn towards the shore a wreck.

The Iowa then steamed to assist the Oregon, Texas, and Brooklyn in their chase after the remaining Spanish ships, but by the time she caught up with them the battle was over. With the same energy displayed in destroying Spain's vessels, the Americans manned their small boats and rescued the Spanish sailors from their burning vessels.

Samuel Willis of Worcester is the guest of Mr. Elisha Thayer.

Mrs. R. Porter of Newton has been the guest of Mrs. F. A. Hobart this week.

George H. Whitman and family are visiting Mr. Whitman's father on Pond street.

Miss Josephine Dunn of South Framingham is the guest of Mrs. Morris Colbert.

Mrs. W. A. Torrey and Mrs. George W. Stevens are spending a few days in Worcester.

Miss Annie Singleton of North Abington is the guest of her friend Miss Anna Tracey.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Slavin went on a trip to Providence, R. I., the middle of the week.

Prof. M. B. Gilbert of Harvard university was recently the guest of Mr. Hewes on Hollis avenue.

Mr. George A. Call has been appointed local council of the Massachusetts Division of the L. A. W. for South Braintree.

The board of instruction of the Braintree Literary club met Tuesday evening with Mrs. W. E. Morrison to lay out the work for the coming year.

The big electrics commenced running from Braintree through to Nantasket Thursday morning. Tickets will be sold at five cents each and two tickets or 10 cents to take you to the beach.

The big electrics now leave Braintree every thirty minutes commencing at 7.20 A. M. for Nantasket.

A spur track has been put in on Elm street so that cars for Holbrook and Quincy may both go down to the station at the same time thus avoiding a disagreeable delay.

Mr. William Morrill of Elm street was nearly strangled by a piece of meat Monday night. He was eating his supper when the meat became lodged in his throat so firmly that it was with great difficulty that he was able to move it. Dr. H. L. Dearing was called but before he could arrive the meat became dislodged and Mr. Morrill was able to breath.

Geo. J. Wright, a driver for Joel F. Sheppard & Sons, on one of their ice wagons, met with a very severe accident, Monday morning, while delivering ice on Crescent avenue. The horse became frightened at a passing train and started to run. Mr. Wright made a jump for the step to get hold of the reins but missed it and as he fell he caught hold of the back strap of the harness and clung on. The horse ran a short distance dragging Mr. Wright and the step cut a deep hole in his leg. He was conveyed to the home of D. H. B. Thayer and Dr. Holmes was called, who dressed the wound. Mr. Wright was carried to his home in East Braintree, and at the time of writing is getting along quite comfortably.

Which Rides?

When a man is sick his work rides him instead of he riding his work. His daily task instead of being the means which supports and carries him on to comfort and prosperity becomes an overwhelming burden weighing him down. He has no strength, no ambition. He feels that there is nothing left but for him to stagger along until the awful pressure of disease and trouble at last crushes him to earth.

The prosperous man is the one who keeps the upper hand of his work, because he is strong, capable and energetic. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has brought the best kind of prosperity to thousands of weighed-down, over-burdened men and women by giving them the physical strength and stamina to carry on their work forcefully and easily.

"For the last three years," says Mr. J. C. Morgan, of Monongah, Marion Co., W. Va., in a letter to Dr. Pierce, "I have been a constant sufferer from indigestion complicated with complaints that generally accompany such cases. Always after eating there would be a formation of gas and a heavy load in my stomach. I would belch up my food after eating; bowels were very irregular; I would imagine I saw objects floating before my eyes. I had pain across my back. About December, 1896, I began feeling much worse than usual and was beginning to think I would have to suffer the remainder of my life. I was greatly discouraged. I described my case to Dr. Pierce's staff of physicians and they directed me to begin at once taking the 'Golden Medical Discovery' according to directions. I did so, and am happy to state I experienced most gratifying results, as all the unpleasant feelings have entirely left me. I have now a very good appetite, relish my food, and am pleased to say I feel once more like my former self. I recently walked a distance of one hundred and ten miles in about four days."

No remedy relieves constipation so quickly and effectively as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

THE "MILK SICK" IN GEORGIA

A Malady Peculiar to the State That Has Baffled Investigation.

"The milk sick up in north Georgia is a terrible thing," said Turnkey Terry at the police barracks.

"The what?" asked the new supernumerary, who used to sell patent hair oil.

"The milk sick," replied the turnkey, "the sickness caused by the milk from cows becoming impure, and it is not only a bad disease, but I have never heard of a man being able to tell what made the milk impure."

"You ain't talking about a weed which the cows eat and which sometimes gets mixed with the clover?" asked a call officer who used to run a farm.

"Oh, no!" the turnkey replied, with a motion of impatience. "Don't you think I know the weed you are talking about? The milk sick I have reference to is only known in three or four counties in Georgia and on only a few spots in those counties. I have heard of it in Union, Fannin, Towns and Rabun counties. If the milk is made impure by any sort of a weed or vegetable, the people have never been able to find it out. All of a sudden every person who drinks the milk is made violently ill, and I have heard of a few deaths from it. Strange to say, the cows are not sick at all. Farmers have tried to ascertain what it was the cows eat that hurts the milk, and now a great many of them believe that it is a gas which rises from the ground, which the cows inhale. Whenever a place is located which injures the milk, the spot is fenced off, and it stays off all the while. The fences are strong and high, and it is worth a man's life to touch the rails."

"Can you see anything wrong about the milk?" asked the supernumerary.

"No, and what's more you can't taste anything wrong with the milk. It looks all right and it tastes all right, but just as soon as you swallow it you become awfully nauseated, and you will stay ill for days at a time. I have seen whole families keel over at the same time just as if somebody had shot them. The reason people think it is a gas that the cows breathe is because on a number of occasions the milk has been contaminated with the poison when the cows were kept all day where there wasn't a speck of anything green or growing for them to eat. Milk sick is looked upon in the counties I have mentioned as yellow fever is in New Orleans and other seaport towns. Just let it get out that a place has been discovered where the cows get their milk poisoned, and you will see the whole settlement rush out and go to building a fence around it."

"Ever had the milk sick yourself?" asked the station sergeant.

"Only once. I went to visit a neighbor, and I drank two cups of fresh sweet milk, and five minutes afterward I thought my time had come to bid the world goodby. You may talk about seasickness, but I would rather roll in a ship in a storm for a year than go through a spell of milk sick again. I don't believe I drank any milk for two years after my experience."—Atlanta Constitution.

The Alchemy of Nature.

"Your trouble," said the lively widow to the young heiress, "is that you don't understand even slightly this animal we call man. You wanted to marry Cokely, and as your friend I left the field open until you admitted that your chance was hopeless. Now he and I are engaged."

"He's a horrid wretch."

"Thanks! But a month ago you thought him the dearest man on earth. He is, and he belongs to the 'strong oak' type. You didn't know enough to be the clinging vine. You failed to lean on him and flatter his distinguishing quality. You were always trying to do something for him. I reversed the order and delighted him by having him do things for me. I made him realize how much he could be to me and delighted him with my gratitude for the advice I was constantly getting about my affairs. To use the atrocious slang of the day, I swelled his head, and if you know how to use it the recipe will win the affections of nine men out of ten. It is the true love potion prepared by the cunning alchemy of nature. Positively, my dear, you young girls weary me."—Detroit Free Press.

Stoneless Acres.

In Manitoba you can turn a furrow many miles long and not encounter a stone as large as your fist. The earth for a distance down from three to five feet is a rich, black loam, made by centuries and centuries of decaying vegetation.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

PEARS IN GARDENS.

Summer Pruning to Induce Fruiting—Influence of Soil and Location.

"Among large fruits the pear finds more room accorded it in the gardens of amateurs than any other. It has much to recommend it. In city gardens where space is circumscribed the pear just fits the situation. It is not a spreading tree, its growth tending more to an upright form, and for this reason alone it can be given a place which could not be accorded the apple. Its early bearing and the certainty of an annual crop are very much in its favor," says such excellent authority as Joseph Meehan, in Gardening, from which the following, with the illustration, is reproduced:

The soil in many gardens is often very rich, causing the pear to grow so vigorously that fruiting does not take place for years. A little root pruning will generally throw the tree into bearing, and this may be practiced by those who are impatient. Another plan, and one to be preferred, I think, is to summer prune it. This consists of cutting back some of the young shoots of the season to within a few eyes of their base. This causes the formation of flower buds on the small spurs in the vicinity of the cut branches and very often on the branches themselves. It often happens that the mere topping of a growing shoot will cause it to make a flower bud at its apex for the following season. Besides the benefit in this way, summer pruning is the best of all for shaping the tree. When the object of the pruning is to induce the formation of fruit buds, do it when growth is about half accomplished, toward the close of June, say.

Soil and situation play an important part in the selection of many fruits, but not so much with pears. There are certain kinds esteemed as of the best from the Atlantic to the Pacific, varying but little in quality no matter where planted. The most marked difference is in the season of maturity. What is a summer pear in the far northern states becomes an autumn one a little farther south. Thus the indispensable Anjou, an early winter pear in New York, is an autumn one in Delaware.

Were I asked for a list of a dozen excellent standard pears for an amateur's garden I would present the following list, named in the order I have found them to ripen: Clapp's Favorite, Bartlett, Howell, Seckel, Lucrative, Superfin, Sheldon, Kieffer, Clairgeau, Anjou, Lawrence and Josephine de Malines. I would say in regard to Kieffer that I place it on the list because of its value for cooking and preserving. Standard pears thrive well in deep, heavy, good soil.

The Banksian Rose.

The Banksian rose, a lovely, dainty thing when well grown, is far too seldom seen under those circumstances. In its time of blossoming it should look like a mass of creamy, flowery foam. Sometimes it happens that a late frost is responsible for failure in the case of this flower, but more often it is want of thought for it that brings about this sad condition. Now this rose should not be touched with a knife till June, when its rank growths should be entirely removed and the tips of the remainder shortened. This is how it should be pruned. But here is another thing, a secret which an English woman feels she must tell. This is it: As long as the shoots are allowed to grow straight up flowers will be few and far between. As soon as they are all trained down, espalier way, flowers spring from every shoot. The branches cannot be trained too horizontally. This treatment holds good with a great many roses, but especially so in the case of their most quaint and beautiful variety.

The Remontant Roses.

Undoubtedly the most satisfactory class of roses for general planting, as The National Stockman remarks, is the Hybrid Remontant, sometimes, though incorrectly, termed Hybrid Perpetual. They are not perpetual bloomers, although a number of them come pretty near it. Under favorable conditions of soil, weather, etc., they will send up new shoots after flowering in June and produce a moderate crop of roses later in the season. This will be assisted materially by taking off the flowers before they fade. Seed production, much more exhausting than flowering, will then be prevented, and the vitality of the plant will be directed to the formation of an increased number of blossom buds for a later bloom.

A Cause of Trouble In Dahlias, Etc.

Many people fail with dahlia, aster and cosmos on account of a worm that eats through the stem just below the surface of the ground. One first notices the injury done the plants by the leaves wilting during the heat of the day. A correspondent of Vick's Magazine has found a remedy for this trouble in paris green: I use a level teaspoonful of paris green to three gallons of water and apply it freely around the collar of the plant. Pour enough on to well soak the earth for three or four inches deep around the stem and repeat once a week.

Who will add to the list? The Ledger hopes to hear often from the Quincy soldiers and sailors, and will gladly pay postage on receipt of letters.

—The fact that pa Leiter has borrowed between three and four million dollars, giving satisfactory security, and has given notice that he would want as much more later, shows that "Joe's" wheat losses didn't pauperize the family, large as they were. A man who can borrow seven millions isn't in need of sympathy.—Pawtucket Gazette.

CUBANS WANT SPOILS

Memorial to McKinley to Recognize Their Sovereignty.

Shafter's Frank Explanation to Garcia.

Says the Policy In Force Was Formulated by the President.

Santiago, July 25.—A document is being circulated for signatures among the Cuban residents in Santiago, addressed to the president of the United States, thanking him for the co-operation of the army of the United States and expressing the hope that the American government will recognize Cuban sovereignty in the surrendered portion of the province of Santiago. It was drafted by a newspaper correspondent on the staff of the Cuban general, Castillo, who prepared the alleged letter of protest from Garcia to Shafter.

General Shafter has sent in reply to the communication a letter in which he says: "This war, as you know, is between the United States and Spain, and it is out of the question for me to take any action in regard to your forces in connection with the surrender, which was made solely to the American army. The policy of my government in continuing in power temporarily the persons occupying the offices is one which I am, of course, unable to discuss. To show you the views held by my government, I inclose a copy of the instructions received by me from the president, which appear to cover everything that can possibly arise in the government of this territory while it is held by the United States. Full credit has been given to you and you valiant men in my report to my government, and I wish to acknowledge to you the great and valuable assistance you rendered during the campaign."

In Dread of the Cubans.

Moderate Cubans dread the accession to power of the Cubans as much as the Spaniards do. President McKinley's proclamation announcing that property rights would be respected and the law enforced has produced a feeling of relief among the Spaniards, who feared the confiscation of their property. A great many Spaniards will remain in Santiago instead of returning to Spain.

The judges of the Spanish court of justice held a conference upon the question of recognizing the sovereignty of the United States or resigning and desired to consult the government at Madrid in the matter. General Shafter informed them that the Madrid government was powerless in Santiago affairs, and the justices will consequently resign.

Garcia's action in withdrawing his troops into the interior, his letter to Shafter and his resignation of his command, forwarded to Gomez, are approved and applauded by all classes of natives. General Garcia refused to accept a subordinate place, insisting that he was an ally. General Shafter's answer is interpreted as a tacit avowal of American intentions to annex the island and not to grant independence. This is opposed by the Cubans. Joaquin Castillo, a brother of General Castillo, urges an official protest to President McKinley without delay, saying: "Silence now would indicate our consent to the American attitude, which is a plain breach of faith that the Cubans cannot possibly tolerate."

A meeting was held Saturday afternoon at the San Carlos club to discuss the matter, and a protest was drawn up. Many who were present at the meeting favored the scheme of a protectorate by the United States, with eventual annexation after five or six years, but the protest is on a matter of principle, the main objection being the continuation in office of Spanish officials appointed by Madrid, the ground that Spaniards, as conquered, should not be vested with authority over Cubans, the allies and coadjutors of the United States and the representatives of a free and independent people.

General Shafter says in an order to the army congratulating both officers and men jointly on the splendid achievement: "The death of 230 gallant soldiers and the wounding of 1284 others show but too plainly the fierce contest in which you were engaged. The few reported missing are undoubtedly among the dead, as no prisoners were lost. For those who have fallen in battle with you, the commander general sorrows, and with you will ever cherish their memory. Their devotion to duty sets a high example of courage and patriotism to our fellow countrymen. All who have participate in the campaign, battle and siege of Santiago de Cuba will recall with pride the grand deeds accomplished, and will hold one another dear for having shared great sufferings, hardships and triumphs together. All may well feel proud to inscribe on their banners the name of Santiago de Cuba."

SPAIN'S COAST CITIES.

No Intention to Subject Them to Naval Assault.

Washington, July 25.—The semi-official announcement that Watson's fleet is not to bombard Spanish cities and is not to act offensively against the Spanish coast is believed to have been drawn out in a measure by foreign intimations, and to have been intended as an indirect response to them. So long as the object of the visit to European waters is to meet and destroy or capture the ships under Camara's command, there can be no possible objection on the part of any neutral European power; and, this assurance having been given, the United States will be in a position later, if need be, to intimate that the European powers might advantageously use their influence with Spain to bring her to ask that a devastating war be brought to an end.

The purpose of the administration is to accomplish everything on this side of the Atlantic which it had hoped to effect before fall—to complete the occupation of Porto Rico, to clean up the work in eastern Cuba; and then, if Spain fails to ask for terms, send Watson over to strike from her hands her only remaining weapon, the fleet under Admiral Camara.

When the time comes for this decisive stroke it is thought that the European powers may step in and convince Spain that her honor does not require a further continuation of the fight. This may not be the outcome, and it is possible, of course, that Watson will have to go, but the fact remains that the menace of his fleet is regarded as the most potent of agencies in compelling peace.

Should Watson cross the Atlantic and drive Camara into a Spanish port, it might be found that we should have to repeat on Spanish soil the tactics of the Santiago campaign, and that in destroying the enemy's ships we should be forced to bombard fortifications, land troops, and take possession of a city. Any possibility of this kind would be sure to alarm the European powers, which are interested in preserving the integrity of the Spanish peninsula, and they might be depended on to use all their influence with the government at Madrid to render such a demonstration superfluous.

To Overrun Porto Rico.

It is the hope of the administration that the occupation of Porto Rico may be accomplished without compelling the island to suffer in a great measure the horrors of war. It is with this object in view that the army of occupation has been made so large as to reduce to a minimum the possibility of a long resistance by the Spanish garrison. General Miles will have an opportunity to show to the people of Porto Rico that the American invasion does not mean an increase in their burdens, and that it is something far better for them than a mere change in masters.

The Spaniards will be evicted, but it will be the aim of our ships and troops to evict them with as little damage as possible to the island for which they have proved such bad tenants. Porto Rico will be overrun with American troops, but they will take with them their own commissaries and will not depend in any way upon the invested country for support. It will be an object lesson to the native population of the difference between the despotic military rule of Spain and the civilizing control of the great American republic. Every effort will be made to secure the friendship of the people of the island while ridding them of the masters they now know.

Third Month of the War.

With the week just closed the United States saw the end of the third month of the war with Spain, and the responsible officials, from the president down to the lowest employe who has had to do with shaping the course of events, feel nothing but satisfaction at the progress made. An army of a quarter of a million of men has been mobilized, armed and equipped, and much of it has seen service. The battles preceding the capture of Santiago have been remarkable in many respects, and in the opinion of military experts have covered the United States army engaged with imperishable glory. Modern warfare of a type developed in these engagements was absolutely new and untried, not only to the United States army, but to the world. No such charge is recorded in history as that made upon the stone fort and the blockhouses crowning the hills of El Caney. There have been engagements between trained troops and savage races in the jungles of India and on the hills of South Africa of late years that conveyed in a slight manner the possibilities of modern weapons, but the battles fought by the Fifth army corps have been the first in which large bodies of troops of civilized nations on both sides have been engaged with all the implements of modern warfare. They are bound to be highly instructive to the military students and to evoke admiration for the splendid fighting qualities of the United States soldiers from the most unwilling critics.

Few officers in any army have had more experience in hard fighting in rough country than that other Indian fighter, General Henry, so that some weight must be attached to the opinion of our officers and troops expressed by him in the following letter addressed to Adjutant General Corbin, dated in front of Santiago, July 12: "We had a pleasant sail down, but, having to row the men ashore, took some time to get off. We left Siboney at 2 p. m. yesterday with the Eighth Ohio, and came into camp here about three miles from the front. In company with General Breckenridge, I rode to the front to General Wheeler's headquarters and, a flag of truce being up, had an opportunity to see the lines. The country all the way is the roughest I ever saw. You have to follow roads or trails and come under heavy fire, their position commanding every approach. The work done by these troops since landing, their heroism and patience under discomforts of heat and rain call for the highest praise, and the work accomplished by Shafter, his pertinacity and 'go aheaditiveness' under adverse circumstances and discomforts is a revelation to me. I doubt if there is another officer who would have gotten through as he did. Our loss was most unfortunate, but from the character of the country it could not have been avoided 'if we had to get there.' Last night the Eighth Ohio were almost drowned out, and it pours today. That's the climate; and to get out of it it would be cheaper to lose more by fighting and success than by sickness, which is sure to come by staying."

Will Try Hobson's Plan.

Lieutenant Hobson had a long conference Sunday with Assistant Secretary Allen, Captain Bradford and other officers of the navy department regarding the raising of the Cristobal Colon. The lieutenant succeeded while in New York in arranging with the Merritt & Chapman Wrecking company for the execution of the plans he had prepared for saving the vessels. The wreckers have promised to get together the pontoons, air bags and compressed air apparatus which will be required to lift and right the vessel, and expect to ship this material for Santiago this week. Lieutenant Hobson is confident that if the work can be undertaken before a cyclone sets in it will result successfully.

Secretary Long said that the lieutenant's plan for raising the Colon seemed entirely feasible. It involves methods and appliances outside of those usually employed in wrecking. They necessitate the use of air appliances of various kinds in righting and raising the ship that rarely, if ever before, have been used on vessels of the size and weight of the Colon. Although there is some doubt of its success the navy department officials think the prize well worth the experiment.

Wade Succeeds Brooke.

Chickamauga, July 25.—Although General Wade assumed command at Camp Thomas Saturday as the successor of General Brooke, he has not yet selected a location for his headquarters. The general expects to carry forward the work at the park without making material changes in the plans as they now exist.

MAJ. GEN. JAMES F. WADE.

The only movement Sunday in connection with the Porto Rican expedition was the departure for Newport News of four batteries of light artillery. Each had six guns, 100 horses and mules and from 140 to 175 officers and men.

One hundred and sixty-two patients belonging to the volunteer army were removed from the Leiter hospital to a special train and taken to the McPherson barracks hospital in Atlanta. Owing to the limited supply of surgeons and medical assistants at this point, it has been deemed best to send those of the sick who have so far recovered as to be able to be safely moved to other points where they can be cared for, and at the same time make room in the Leiter hospital for the sick in the division and regimental field hospitals.

Will Do as McKinley Directs.

Jacksonville, July 25. — Lieutenant Charles Fritol of the Cuban army, who was a member of the Cuban expedition on the Florida, and who recently returned from Cuba, stated that the expedition was met by General Gomez, with whom he had a talk. When asked what message he had for the American people, Gomez said: "I have only to say that the only man that has anything to say in the direction of matters is Mr. McKinley, and we shall do whatever he says. I have given orders to all my forces to co-operate with the Americans, to whom we are much indebted."

To Attack Manila.

London, July 25.—A special dispatch from Madrid says that General Augustin, captain general of the Philippines, has telegraphed to the government as follows: "The Americans are about to attack Manila. Grave events are impending."

Spaniards Gave Cheers.

New York, July 25.—Prisoners of war cheering the flag of their captors was the unusual sight witnessed in Brooklyn Sunday. The 254 prisoners captured on the four prize steamers now in port were about to sail for home under the British flag. They were on board the Hesperia of the Anchor line, and just as she backed out of the dock one of the patrol gunboats came by. With one accord the prisoners raised three cheers, which startled the people on the Brooklyn shore, and could be heard to Governor's island.

COMMENTS.

The Milford Journal says some of the officers are practicing on the word "dipsomaniac." As applied to the institution at Foxboro, which has cost the state hard on to $200,000 to build and $25,000 yearly to run, it means a retreat for gilt-edged, aristocratic drunks with high social position on the part of themselves or their friends, with a gymnasium, croquet grounds, etc., etc., with which to amuse themselves, while the common, "poor devil" must go to the country jail or the Bridgewater workhouse. The state ought never to have had this noose slipped over its neck. Last winter there was an effort made in the Legislature to free the treasury from the leech; but it was of no use, although prominent legislators who voted against its abolishing, admitted in private that it was a gross imposition on the state taxpayers.

Birthday Party.

The eighth birthday of Miss Esther Sidelinger, daughter of Councilman George A. Sidelinger, was fittingly observed by a gathering of her young schoolmates and friends at the home of her parents No. 3 South street, Saturday afternoon, July 23d, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Games were indulged in by the bright and merry children until about 5 o'clock when the call to supper was given. The children marched to the table to the stirring strains of the drum beat by Master Roy, aged five.

Miss Esther received a large number of gifts from her little friends which she will doubtless greatly prize. A list of those present follows:

Velma Collier and Wallace Drake of North Weymouth; Ethel Humphrey, Rita Lothrop, Emma Hayden, Ethel Hersey; Dorothy Federhen, Viola Hayden, Eleanor Crane, Helen Sherburne, Clarence Federhen, Joseph Lincoln, Irving Hayden, of Quincy.

The group at the table was a picture. Ice cream and light refreshments were partaken of by a happy crowd.

Stole a Gold Watch.

Albert DeBlue was arrested at Wollaston Saturday by Inspector Ferguson for the larceny of a gold watch from Florence Pierce. DeBlue lives at the Wollaston hotel and boarders have from time to time missed articles from their rooms, and it is alleged that later they were either returned or paid for by DeBlue's mother, and nothing was ever done about the matter.

In the case of the watch it is alleged that Mrs. DeBlue offered to pay for the watch but the parties got tired of waiting and the young man's arrest followed. He appeared in court this morning.

Fires in Brockton.

Six incendiary fires were started in Brockton on Saturday night, between 9 and 2 o'clock.

All but two were extinguished by the fire department with little damage. Two barns and contents were destroyed.

Walter S. Southworth of 19 Bride street has been arrested on suspicion of being connected in some way with the fires. He answers the description of the man seen running away from two of them, and was one of the earliest arrivals at three others. He cannot, it is claimed, satisfactorily explain how he happened to be on the ground so quickly, and will be held for examination.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS

Joseph Dodge 16 Years and Stanley Brodshaw 18 Years.

Under Arrest in Stoughton. Wanted in Quincy.

Dodge Confesses That They Did a Job in Quincy Last Week.

There was another burglary last Thursday night which for good reasons was not made public. The place entered was Nathaniel Nightengale's cobbling shop from which an attempt was made to enter Fostello's fruit store. The two young men who did the breaking are now under arrest at Stoughton upon a warrant charging them with entering a building at Avon. The young men whose homes are in Campello, answer to the names of Joseph Dodge aged 16 years, and Stanley Brodshaw aged 18 years, were arrested in Boston.

Brodshaw, who is evidently the leader, came from England ten months ago on a cattle steamer, and is believed to have had a bad reputation before he came to this country.

Chief Litchfield and Inspector Ferguson went to Stoughton Saturday night to have a look at the prisoners, and Dodge when questioned admitted making the break in Quincy. He said they were in Quincy and felt hungry. They spotted Fostello's place and determined to break in and get some fruit. They waited until he had closed up and then went to the rear of the building. When all was ready they waited for a train to pass before smashing in the window, as the train would prevent any one hearing the glass break.

After smashing the window they jumped in but fell over a lot of shoe lasts and cans and landed in a heap upon the floor. Once inside they tried to force the door leading into the fruit store, but although both threw themselves against it they were unable to open it.

Unable to get in they left the building and went to the depot and got into a freight car, which was taken to Boston by the night freight, and while wandering around Boston were arrested.

There have been several breaks in Quincy of late and the police believe that Dodge and Brodshaw are the two parties who have committed them all.

A warrant will be issued against them today and when the Stoughton officials are through with them they will be brought to Quincy and tried for the breaks here.

It Seems Strange to Me.

MR. EDITOR: I should like to say a few words through your columns in regard to encouraging home industry and home institutions of the various kinds. Being a western man, possibly, I may see things differently here than they really are.

What I wish to speak of, is this: It seems strange to me, that having as good a band as you have in your city, known as the City Band I believe, that all of our concerts given on Saturday evenings, are by neighboring bands. Is this right? It costs money to keep a band up, same as any other kind of business. A change of bands occasionally, might be all right. I have had the pleasure of hearing some very fine selections rendered by this band, and should like the whole city to appreciate them, as I did.

A Western Band Leader.

Tonight's Council Business.

There is but little business to come before the meeting of the City Council tonight and the chances are that an adjournment will be made until the first meeting in September. The Committee on Licenses will report upon a number of petitions for minor licenses.

In the calendar are the orders to refund William Walsh's tax of $57.10 and the order appropriating $3,296.19 to pay the claim of Phoebe Harris. The joint Committees on Finance and State Aid will meet at 7 o'clock to consider the order paying soldiers and sailors $7 per month State Aid, and their report will probably be made at the meeting.

A Fine Race.

The open race of the Quincy Yacht club, which was sailed, off Houghs Neck on Saturday afternoon, was one of the most successful given this year, it being the ninth in that series.

The day was an ideal one for a race, —a strong easterly wind and a clear sky.

All classes were represented with the exception of the knockabout which were all at Marblehead, attending the Eastern clubs open regatta.

For the 30 and 25 foot classes only one course had been arranged, and as the wind was blowing from the eastward it gave them but little windward work.

In the 30 foot class the Meemer, with "Bennie" Nickerson at the stick, and the Emma C. fought it out. But the Meemer which is one of Hanley's new boats, had literally a walk over. They started about even, but after bounding Channel Rock buoy the Meemer walked away fom the Emma C. as though she were at anchor. Both boats rounded the wrong buoy in the river, rounding Channel Rock instead of Jacknife, as required by the regulations.

In the 25 foot class it was naturally expected that "Nell" Woods, who was handling the Eleanor would defeat the Hermes. But the Hermes, which was sailed by John T. Cavanagh and had a new jib as well, got over the line in 15 seconds ahead of the Eleanor and kept the lead to the finish.

Of course, it was conceded that the cup defender the Recruit would easily down anything that might appear against her in the open 21 foot class.

Henry M. Faxon had the stick and walked her around the course in good shape. On the second time around he held her back so that her time of 107 might have been cut down more. As it was she made the fastest time ever made over the triangle.

In the 21 foot cabin class Warren Nightingale's new Embree, the Autocrat, gave the boys a surprise party. At the club's scrub race sailed a fortnight ago the Autocrat came in over seven minutes behind the first boat. At that time the writer predicted that when she was put in proper trim she would make it interesting for the other boats. Embree hauled her out and put a flag on her and otherwise trimmed her. On Saturday he sailed her and had the satisfaction of seeing her come near doing the champion Privateer and also come withi n 14 seconds of defeating the Savin Hill Yacht Club's cup challenger, Arab IV. It was expected that "Charlie" Mower would be around and sail the Duchess in the 18 foot class. It would have been an excellent chance to have tried her out with the Recruit. Unfortunately he could not get around. The Circe was an easy winner in this class.

In the 15 foot the Vitesse, Mower's old boat, had a walkover.

The prizes won were: Meemer $15. Emma C. $10, Hermes $12, Eleanor $8, Recruit $10, Tacoma $5, Privateer $10, Arab IV $5, Circe $10, Vamoose $5, Vitesse $8, Chewink $4.

The judges were: Com. Fred B. Rice chairman, Vice Com. Edwin E. Davis, ex-Com. John W. Sanborn, ex-Com. Charles F. Pettengill, Dr. Frederick E. Jones, Fleet Capt. George G. Saville, Walter B. Burrell, James S. Whiting, William H. Shaw and Amos L. Merritt.

BEAR IN MIND

That we do not claim the goods we sell to be in any respect different from what other people sell, except in price. All our goods are new goods (1898 goods) and amongst them is nothing that we are selling for 25 cts. on the dollar. Our expenses are small and we sell our goods for all they are worth, but do not sometimes have to sell them for more than they are worth, like some merchants do to help pay the enormous expense they are under.

We have about 200 Negligee Shirts, which we will sell this week and next week, too, if we do not sell them all for 69c. We have them in all styles, with attached and detached collars. We would not have you believe they are the $1.00 kind. Although some are woolen madras goods, which are usually sold for that price. Some others sell some of them for 75c. and claim they are worth $1.00. We guarantee everything we sell, and will always pay your money back if goods purchased are not satisfactory.

CAMP DALTON.

Camp Dalton,
July 25th.

Saturday in camp was all devoted to inspection, with the exception of a few hours in the afternoon which the boys took for their athletic spots. Everything in camp in the way of uniforms has been looked over, and all old clothing and misfits exchanged. Everything with the exception of a few working suits, which were in good order, are new, and the 5th Regiment will probably leave this week as the largest, cleanest and best equipped regiment that ever left this or any other state.

The old guns which most of the recruits carry have been condemned, and will be exchanged here or at Washington.

It is a settled fact that the 5th will depart for Duns Loring on Thursday and nothing can stop it but countermanding of present orders. It has been known at headquarters for several days that the regiment was to move, but for some unknown reason it was kept quite. The idea probably was that the men were apt to get nervous and excited.

On the strength of the rumors and newspaper talk there are several times the number of passes applied for than are allowed to be issued. The men are all anxious to get home once more before leaving.

Plans are already formed for the 5th to march through Washinngton. The regiments that have passed through there before have been, as a rule, about half clothed, and short of men. The sight of thirteen hundred men in new blues, all young and full of energy, headed by a full band of their own, will create a sensation in the capitol city, and the future of the regiment depends a great deal upon the appearance they make there.

Five days' more rations will be applied for this week, but as the goods is not perishable with the exception of the beef, which comes every day, it can easily be seen that they would not interfere with the moving. Travelling rations could be issued in a few hours. Nothing will stop the "dandy 5th" now but a command from Washington.

The 5th will be brigaded with the 1st Connecticut and 3d Virginia. The commander is not yet named. The Richmond Blues, the crack company of Richmond, is a part of the 3d Virginia.

Duns Loring is the station from which Camp Alger is reached, but Crittendon Field, reached from the same station, is the destination of the 5th. It is situated a mile and a half from Camp Alger, and it is understood that the water supply is better, and that the camp in general is more desirable. Every one is anxious to go and there will be great disappointment if they do not go.

The rumors concerning the cars turned out to be false, but a reliable authority stated last evening that the cars were in the yards at Albany.

Sunday was a quiet day in camp. It rained slightly in the morning but the weather soon cleared. There were not as many visitors as usual. Those who did come were mostly mothers, wives and sweethearts; come to bid adieu. The time was spent in talking. Church service was held in the morning as usual. Through an order from the President forbidding that any unnecessary work on Sunday, the usual evening parade was not given. A sacred concert by the band in the staff officers street, and a short open air service completed the day.

Lieuts. Whitney and Spear of Company K were in for their share of the honors in the ball game played on Saturday by the officers. The colonel took a part himself. The chaplain was formerly captain in his college team, and his work was highly praised until he was found out.

The health of the camp is very good and the boys are growing tough and hardy.

Everything is quiet at camp today and the weather is rather dull.

Private Newcomb of Co. K was selected as orderly today making twelve from this company.

Lieut. Spear is officer of the guard today. MACK.

TODAY'S COURT.

Cornelius Mullin, Thomas S. Higgins, Kate Childs and Andrew Black were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Michael Milan was sentenced to the House of Correction for three months for drunkenness at Quincy. Appealed.

John Sullivan was arraigned for drunkenness and for disturbing the peace at Quincy. He was fined $5 for drunkenness and $5 for disturbing the peace.

Frank Lane was arraigned for non-support of Annie M. Lane at Weymouth. He was ordered to pay his wife $12 August 6, and the case was continued until Sept. 1.

Harry B. Tower was arraigned for being a stubborn child at Weymouth. Case continued until Thursday.

Albert De Bleu was arraigned for the larceny of a gold watch from Florence Fierce at Quincy. Case continued one week.

There was a Californian in Los Gatos 25 years ago who died and left the income of $900 to buy sweets for the school children. The fund is still faithfully administered, and in Los Gatos that settutor is bigger than Washington.

Brave Acts.

On Jubilee day, which commemorated the discovery of gold in California in 1849, a squad of Battery I of the regular army was firing a salute at Lime Point fort, near San Francisco. One load—the charge was 50 pounds of powder inclosed in a woolen bag—did not go off, and the officer in command ordered it to be pulled out of the cannon.

The charge was withdrawn, and as it dropped to the ground it was seen that one corner of the woolen bag was on fire. In an instant the powder would have caught and the seven men with their officer would have been killed. Private John M. Jones jumped toward the smoldering bag, rolled it in the mud and with his bare hands plastered the singed edges with damp earth.

It was a quick, brave deed, and had the hero been a British soldier it would have brought him a Victoria cross to wear on his breast.

During the sepoy war a young captain of artillery saw an ignited shell fall near his battery. Instantly he lifted it up, carried it to a distance and flung it away. Just then it burst, shattering his left forearm.

In the Crimean war Captain Peel of the royal navy, son of the former prime minister, Sir Robert Peel, commanded a naval battery in front of Sevastopol. One day a large shell, its fuse burning, fell into the battery near where Peel was standing. Picking it up, he carried it to the rampart and tossed it over. It exploded before it reached the ground.—Exchange.

Efficacy of Olive Oil.

Medical authorities are generally agreed as to the value of olive oil medicinally, finding it also a potent agent for any defects of the excretory ducts, especially the skin. Eczema has rapidly disappeared upon a discontinuance of starch foods and the substitution of a diet of fresh and dried fruits, milk, eggs and olive oil. The beneficial effects of the latter, when thus taken in conjunction with a fruit diet, have frequently been remarked in respect to the hair, nails and scalp, supplying to the sebaceous glands the oily substance which they secrete when in a healthy condition, and the absence of which is the cause of debility of the hair, frequently ending in baldness, says The Scientific American. It has long been observed that those who treat olive oil as a common article of food and use it as such are generally healthier and in better condition than those who do not, and its therapeutic and prophylactic properties are very favorably regarded by medical men. It is known to be destructive to certain forms of micro organic life, and for the eradication of such from the system its internal use has been successfully resorted to.

Thunderstorms.

Do not imagine that because a heavy thunderstorm is far away to leeward it is not likely to arise and wet you. Even if the wind is blowing right against the cloud it will come your way all the more surely, for thunderstorms always travel against the wind.

The reason for this is that there is invariably a countercurrent of air above the breeze that you feel close to the earth, and this sky high wind blows in the opposite direction to the one which alone you can detect. Thus the tempest seems to work its way right through the wind's eyes in a very contrary sort of way.

Fog never does this; neither does ordinary rain—at least very seldom—but snow or sleet some time works its way up wind just as the tempest does. Sheet lightning, by the way, is not a distinctive sort of light, but merely the reflection in the sky of a forked flash many miles away. You can tell how far away a tempest is by counting the number of seconds that pass between the flash and the peal. Each second stands for about a mile.—New York Herald.

Where They Are Mated by Lottery.

It was a cynic who said that marriage is a lottery, but in the province of Smolensk, in Russia, this aphorism has been reduced to a quarterly fact, for four times a year there is held the most remarkable lottery ever devised.

A charge of a ruble is made for a ticket, only one prize is to be drawn, and it consists of the entire sum yielded by the sale of the tickets, amounting to 5,000 rubles. The lucky winner of the prize is bound to marry a certain damsel if he takes the 5,000 rubles. Should he be married he is at liberty to turn over the money and the lady to any friend whom he may wish to put in for such a good thing. Should the lady, however, refuse to marry the winner they are allowed to divide the rubles between them.

Strong Soup.

In the life of William Stokes, written by his son, which has appeared in London, it is told how Soyer was sent over to Dublin during the great famine to show the people how make soup. Stokes asked a starving beggar why she did not go and get some of the soup that was being freely distributed.

"Soup, is it, your honor? Sure, it isn't soup at all." "And what is it, then?" inquired Stokes. "It is nothin, your honor, but a quart of water boiled down to a pint, to make it sthrong!"

This is the soup maigre which Hogarth caricatured in his picture of the French troops at Calais.

Mixed Party.

"I understand that was rather a mixed crowd that attended your benefit ball, Rastus."

"Yassir, dey mixed once or twice, but we got 'em scatterated befo' any one had time to call fer de wagon."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Grateful Gush.

Sandy McQuirk (to porter, who has been about ten minutes looking after his luggage)—Mon, I con-see-der ye've been verra obleegin. Wull ye tak' a peench o' snuff?"—London Tit-Bits.

Living on the Limits.

"Nine-tenths of our surroundings are superfluous," said the observant man. "The government feeds its soldiers and sailors on 30 cents a day. Just think of that! As for household goods, let me tell you. There is a man who does odd jobs around our house, and the other day he informed my wife that he was going to move and gave her his new address.

"About 8 o'clock I was strolling along the street when I met my man and his wife and their 14-year-old boy. The man had a clock under his right arm, a picture in his left hand and a roll of bedclothing strapped on his back. His wife carried a large basket filled with crockery and a small roll of carpet. The boy brought up the rear with two chairs and a dishpan. I loitered on the corner, and presently they came along with more chairs, a collection of pots and pans, and the man carried a table on his head. The third load comprised another basket, probably containing kitchen utensils, more chairs, broom, oil can, baby's chair and a bag of flour. The man told my wife that he had to borrow a pushcart to move his stove and bedstead.

"Now, just think of that! One hundred dollars would certainly cover the cost of that outfit, and three people lived on it. Doesn't it make you realize the hollowness of life?"—Philadelphia Press.

A Long One.

A man well known in State street circles found himself in front of what he supposed was his Back Bay residence late one evening recently. He had a great many dollars' worth of wine under his waistcoat and could not gain entrance through the medium of his latchkey. Becoming enraged, in a drunken fashion, he kicked the door, broke the glass and used language that is unfit for publication. Finally the door was opened, and the owner of the house, who is athletic and irascible, proceeded to kick the State street financier into the middle of the street.

"Wazzer you—hic—mean—hic?" inquired the assaulted party indignantly as he sat upon the curbstone and held his throbbing brow with both hands.

"And what do you mean by trying to break into my house?" inquired the other man.

"Your—hic—house!" exclaimed the State street man in bewilderment. "How—hic—long—hash you lived—hic—here?"

"For four years," was the answer.

"Holy smoke—hic!" exclaimed the financier. "Have I—hic—been drunk—hic—as long as that?"—Boston Traveler.

Fascinating Mary Stuart.

It would seem indeed as if years only added to the charm of certain remarkable women. Mary Stuart was 47 at the time she was beheaded, yet she used her irresistible powers of fascination through all her imprisonments and up to the very last act of the tragedy. Froude, it is true, insists on certain unromantic details, such as the wearing of a wig by the queen on the day of execution, but what are wigs when weighed in the balance with immortal fascination? It was true that Mary was no special favorite with her own sex, nor does she nowadays inspire any disinterested enthusiasm among women. No; Mary Stuart was "a man's woman" both during her life and ever since her death. The army of her masculine admirers is legion, and the books that they have written in her cause form a literature in themselves. The queen of Scots died young and fascinating at 47, and she will always remain the type of eternally irresistible womanhood.—Exchange.

He Found the Firebug.

An Australian farmer who was recently burned out on a large scale, being certain that his grass had been feloniously ignited, offered £25 reward for the discovery of the perpetrator and employed trackers at great expense. After a cursory examination they decided that a woman had made the tracks, and when they had unearthed the shoe that made them it was found to belong to the farmer's 17-year-old daughter, who, when questioned, admitted that she had started the fire "because she loved to see the people excited and the water carts hurrying about." The farmer is now called upon to pay the £25 reward and another £25 expenses in connection with the trackers.

A Dancing Feat.

A wonderful feat in dancing is recorded from Berlin. At a recent ball a prize of a gold ring was offered to the lady who waltzed the longest without stopping. Twelve couples competed. They began waltzing at 12:30 a. m. and it was 5:45 a. m. before the winner and her partner stopped waltzing. By 2:30 five couples dropped out, and at 5:15 another lady fainted. Two more couples dropped out at 4:45, and at 4:50 only two couples remained on the floor.

A Compromise.

A missionary in British Guiana who has recorded some of his experiences in a book relates some curious instances of the choice of names by negro parents. He was once asked to baptize a child "Seriatim ad Valorem," which would certainly have been distinctive. "Whisky Emmanuel" may be quoted as a triumph of compromise. — Westminster Gazette.

Tragedy.

The horror stricken spectators were rooted to the spot, with the exception of one small boy, and his clothes indicated that he was growing fast.—Indianapolis Journal.

A medical authority on the virtues of various kinds of foods declares that the herring gives the muscles elasticity, the body strength and the brain vigor and is not flesh forming.

There were 17,000 umbrellas left in London cabs in one year, according to a recent report.

His Misfortune.

Landlady—Why, here are all your paintings back again. I thought you had sold them at the art lottery.

Painter—I won them all back.—Lustige Blatter.

More Soldiers Give In.

Washington, July 25.—The war department has posted the following from Shafter: "General Miles has returned from San Luis and Palma Soel, where he went four days ago to receive the surrender of Spanish troops. The number surrendered was larger than General Toral reported, for 3005 Spanish troops and 350 volunteer guerillas gave up their arms and gave parole and have gone to work. Three thousand stands of arms were turned in loaded on ox-carts and started to the railroad. The Spanish troops accompanied him to San Luis and all apparently were greatly delighted at the prospects of returning home. They were on the verge of starvation, and I have sent them rations. If the numbers keep up as they have there will be about 24,000 to ship away—nearly 12,000 here, 3000 from San Luis, 6000 from Guantanamo, and over 2000 at Sagua and Baracoa."

Food Kitchens In Havana.

Havana, July 25.—The free kitchens for the poor, the number of which is being steadily increased, feed thousands of destitute persons, and more than ever are shown the charitable sentiments of a city whose generosity has always been proverbial. The commercial establishments are continually making donations for this work, and the government has sanctioned the expenditure of large sums to relieve the prevailing distress.

The insurgents are reduced to the utmost in the provinces of Santa Clara, Matanzas, Havana and Pinar del Rio, where the railroad trains are moving as in normal times, and give very little proof of their existence.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, July 25.—The Journal declares: "In its purely military aspect this Porto Rico campaign is far more important than the attack on Santiago. It will be a much more interesting effort, and its success will produce greater results than the capture of Santiago—always excepting, of course, the marvelous feat of the destruction of Cervera's squadron."

In the opinion of The Post: "The patriot army may not be as large as its leaders have boasted, and when seen at close quarters its troops may not present as fine an example of discipline as we would like to see; but the Cubans are brave men, as they have shown in three years of fighting single-handed against Spain."

The Globe says: "President McKinley doesn't seem to be in the least afraid of 'dot leedle Sherman band' of warships in Manila waters. He knows he can put implicit trust in Dewey."

EMBEZZLER WARNER

Hates to Face the People From Whom He Stole.

No Information Given as to Disposition of Spoils.

Said to Have Offered $10,000 to a Detective to Be Liberated.

Louisville, July 25.—Louis Warner, the Massachusetts bank wrecker who was captured here Saturday, talked freely regarding his case. He spent a restless night, rising several times and walking to and fro across the floor, running his hands nervously through his hair. In the morning he asked the turnkey if they could not allow him to sit in the parlor awhile before breakfast. The privilege was granted him, and he seated himself comfortably in an easy chair. He bought all the morning papers, and read carefully every line that had been written about him. "I guess I'm the worst man in the United States," said he laughingly.

Detective Tom Maher, to whom Warner first confessed his identity, says the embezzler offered him $10,000 in cash to release him. He and Warner were sitting in Captain Sullivan's private office. Warner drew his chair close to Maher and, placing his hand on the officer's shoulder, said: "If you will let me go I'll give you $10,000 in cash. I have not the money now, but will get it in short order." Maher says Warner had a fixed expression on his face, which told him that he meant exactly what he said.

When seen at the jail, the prisoner was in good spirits. "I suppose you want me to tell you all I know," he said, laughingly. "I will not do that, for then you would know as much as I; but I will talk to you. I do not intend to touch upon my relations with the two Northampton banks except to say that I am Louis Warner and am wanted for embezzling a large amount of money. I do not know the exact amount. From all accounts, however, the shortage must be over $600,000. Furthermore, I do not intend to say how I lost my money and became entangled. It is sufficient to say that I am charged with embezzling the funds of the two banks. I see by the papers that the banks are in the hands of receivers and all my property has been sold to pay shortages. My residence was one of the finest in Northampton. I hate to think that my old home is gone, but that is only one of the things which trouble me. My manufactories cannot bring more than one-fifth of the total indebtedness of the banks."

"Have you any money now?" was asked.

"I have not a dollar," replied Warner. "I am penniless, and it hurts me very much to deny myself the many luxuries which I formerly enjoyed." Warner strongly denied that he had offered any officer $10,000 to be released.

"Do you want to be taken to Northampton?" asked the reporter.

"Well, I can't say that I do. I hate to face those who were depositors in the banks. It will be difficult for me to go among the people who so often honored me and elected me to positions of trust. I should much rather be taken to Boston. I am in a serious position. No one recognizes that fact more than I. Prison stares me in the face. I regret my downfall all the more on account of my two children. My wife died three years ago. I do not expect to find any friends in Massachusetts. Those who once courted my favor and sought my endorsement will turn their backs on me.

"Yes, I was once one of the most prominent men in Massachusetts, and now I am a prisoner in the hands of the detectives. I told no one of my intentions when I left Northampton. I did not even tell my son where I was going. I went from Northampton to Albany, and took a train for Cleveland. I went from Cleveland to Cincinnati, and from the latter place came to Louisville. I thought that this place was as good as I could find in which to hide myself. I spent most of my time in walking in the parks. I also spent a great deal of my time at the Galt House and at other hotels. I could have been found almost any day at one of the hotels. I usually visited some saloon in the afternoon where I could see the results of the ball games."

Warner, in vigorous terms, denounced Charles Porter, the Northampton man who recognized him on the street here and notified the police. He said that in years gone by he had befriended Porter and his relatives. "I would not," he said, "do what Porter did for $100,000."

Guarding Against Fires.

Brockton, Mass., July 25.—A special meeting of the board of aldermen was held yesterday to take action on the fires, but the result of the deliberations was not made public. Great excitement prevailed throughout the city all Sunday, and last night all the large factories, as well as many of the stores and dwelling houses, were surrounded by guards.

Struck by a Burglar.

Lynn, July 25.—Ann O'Connor was brutally assaulted by a burglar whom she discovered in her room Sunday morning. The man struck her in the face a number of times and then jumped out of the window, the room being on the first floor.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

By the capsizing of a canoe, Lyman Scripture of Glenburne, Me., was drowned.

The Spanish pretender, according to a dispatch from Brussels, has hurriedly started for Switzerland.

Edward I. Boyle of Lowell, aged 20, was drowned yesterday afternoon in Westford while swimming from a boat to the shore.

Cornelius Cosgrove of Hudson, 22 years old, was brutally assaulted in Marlboro, Mass., by an unknown man. His condition is critical.

BASEBALL TALK.

Damman of the Cincinnatis Benched For Allowing Two Runs.

Cincinnati, July 25.—Rain prevented the playing of a double header Sunday with the Pittsburgs. Damman was sent to the bench in the second inning by a series of bunts which, together with his own errors, netted two runs. Breitenstein, who succeeded him, allowed but one scratch hit in the seven innings, and the home team won, 6 to 5. In the seventh inning Steinfeldt hit Corcoran in the head with a thrown ball, seriously injuring him.

It is difficult to imagine what will become of the Cleveland team next season. The club was practically dead last year, and this year has had hard sledding

The National league standing is as follows: Cincinnatis, 671; Bostons, 646; Clevelands, 622; Baltimores, 595; New Yorks, 543; Chicagoes, 535; Pittsburgs, 518; Philadelphias, 474; Brooklyns, 405; Washingtons, 370; Louisvilles, 345; St. Louises, 279.

The Cincinnatis defeated the Pittsburgs at home Sunday, 6 to 5.

The Montreals knocked Korwan of the Springfields out in the fifth, making nine hits and scoring nine runs in that and the preceding innings. Souders was hit frequently, but had he been given clean support he would probably have shut Springfield out. Score: 9 to 6.

The Clevelands played championship ball in Chicago Sunday, fielding perfectly and batting Callahan very hard. Powell was a puzzle. Score: 9 to 3.

The tail-enders had a battle royal in Louisville. The colonels won in the ninth by Tucker's muff, Hoy's stolen base, Sugden's wild throw and an outfield fly.

The New Yorks have taken a decided brace since Joyce was reinstated in command, but they are completely out of the race. They, like the Phillies, are a streaky team, playing by fits and starts.

Sharkey In Roston.

Boston, July 25.—"Tom" Sharkey, the heavyweight boxer, accompanied by "Spike" Kelly of San Francisco and Joe McGrath, arrived in town Sunday. The sailor will give a few sparring exhibitions here, this being his first visit to this city. It was learned that Peter Maher had agreed to fight Sharkey in September. This news pleased the sailor greatly.

Charles McDonald, aged 40 years, was drowned yesterday afternoon while attempting to swim across the Charles river at North Brighton. He had almost reached his destination when he was seized with cramps and cried for help, but those who were on shore were unable to render him any assistance.

The Post reports that the living body of a beautiful woman was found floating in the Charles river yesterday afternoon. She was clad in garments of fashionable cut and expensive material, and had features that bespoke intelligence and tender nature. Her name was not ascertained by her rescuers, who called a hackman and had him convey her wherever she belonged.

The body of Thomas Clancy of Lawrence was found in the river Sunday. It is a probable case of suicide. Clancy was a laborer, aged 55, and leaves a family.

Father Happily Surprised.

Clinton, Mass., July 25.—A remarkable case of mistaken identity is at present occupying the minds of the residents of this town, more especially those who have a direct interest in the affair. Last Thursday a man was killed by the cars in Lewiston, and parties there positively identified the body as that of Edward Hoffman of this town, although he was known in Lewiston by another name. The authorities notified Charles E. Hoffman of Clinton that his son had been killed, and as the young man had been away from home for several years, his whereabouts being unknown, Mr. Hoffman ordered the body to be sent here for burial. It was met at the station by relatives and friends and conveyed to the cemetery, where a short funeral service took place.

Just before the remains were to be deposited in the grave, Mr. Hoffman insisted that the casket be opened to enable him to take a final look at the deceased. When his request had been granted, he was happily surprised in discovering that the body was not that of his son, and did not in any way resemble him. The casket was immediately placed in a tomb, and today was returned to the authorities in Lewiston.

Heavy Loss at a Small Fire.

Hyde Park, July 25.—The fire department was called out yesterday afternoon to a fire in the 1-story building of the Brainard milling machine shop. The rear of the main building was practically destroyed, causing a loss of about $30,000, there being an insurance of 80 percent of the loss. One hundred men are temporarily thrown out of employment, yet it is thought business will be fully resumed within a few days in another building. The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is thought to have been the result of spontaneous combustion.

Overtaxed His System.

New York, July 25.—Peter Maher was in town yesterday on a brief visit. He complained that his stomach is troubling him. "I thought that I would be all right by going out of the city," said the Irish boxer, "but it seems the trip hasn't done me good. I saw my physician yesterday and he advised a complete rest, or else I wouldn't be able to fight again. I have had about seven fights so far this year, and this has taxed my system. I hope that I will be myself again by September, so that I can meet Jeffries, Sharkey, or anyone else."

Two Men Killed.

Middletown, N. Y., July 25.—Two men who arrived with an excursion party at Shohola glen, while walking along the track of the Erie railroad, were run over and killed by an engine attached to the second section of the excursion train. There was nothing found on the bodies by which they could be identified.

PROSPECT IS BRIGHTER

Spanish Government's Efforts Have a New Phase.

Direct Negotiations For Peace a Probability.

General Who May Serve as the Savior of the Dynasty.

London, July 25.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: "Peace prospects have greatly improved during the last 48 hours. The diplomatic exploration of Duke Almedovar, the foreign minister, has been more practical than was supposed, and it is now tolerably certain that the government's efforts are entering a new phase, which may gradually lead to tangible results. The precise nature of the change is a secret, but there is little doubt that it tends to direct negotiations between Spain and the United States, there being no inclination to seek the mediation of any neutral power. The moment has arrived when America, having reached the parting of the ways, must choose between war with a specific object and an indefinable war of conquest. The present pause in hostilities is held to prove that the United States is reluctant to plunge into a wide sphere of action, and it may be confidently predicted that, if direct negotiations are opened without delay, both countries will find their views on the main point—the future of Cuba—far from irreconcilable.

"The growing dissensions between the Cuban insurgents and the American authorities are noted here with great satisfaction, and on all sides I hear it said: 'If we must lose Cuba, it is better that the island should be annexed by America, because the traitors would thereby be punished and the enormous Spanish interests in the island would be protected.' The French embassy at Washington seems the most likely channel for opening negotiations, and the semi-official statement that America intends to retain Porto Rico is regarded here as a hint to Spain to hurry up.

"It is still an open question whether the present cabinet in Madrid dares to conclude peace upon even the most moderate terms that President McKinley is bound to require; but within the past week evidence has accumulated that Sagasta's intention is to go as far as possible and then hand over the negotiations to a military or combination ministry, preparations for which are now well advanced. General Polavieja is the man whom the friends of the present regime turn to as its possible savior. He is deeply attached to the queen regent, is almost the only public man in Spain with clean hands, and for years has denounced the iniquity of Spanish rule in Cuba; but the task is one which would appal the strongest of great leaders.

"Prophecy in regard to the form the inevitable denouement at Madrid will take remains difficult. No man has yet appeared on the political horizon who is sufficiently strong to handle matters firmly, and whose policy would be consistent enough to allow a logical forecast. Under the present circumstances Robledo seems likely to be the strongest influence when the settlement comes. If General Weyler joins him Robledo will be the predominant partner. Both have given indications of republican leanings, but Robledo refused to make the definite statement which the leaders of his party tried to extract from him at the meeting on July 17, on the ground that it is not yet time to make an alliance with any party. As a matter of fact he is waiting and watching for the pronouncement of public opinion and the action of the pretender. There is much talk about Carlist intrigues and preparations, but the government, though vigilant and ready to act energetically if necessary, seems to think that at present there is no serious danger.

"Emilio Castelar has just rendered a service to the cause of order by publishing a long letter in which he impresses upon good Spaniards the necessity of sinking party differences and remaining firmly united at the present critical moment. 'Patriotism, like the church,' says Castelar, 'imposes unity on us, and if unity does not exist let us be silent upon the subject.' The project of presenting him with an address of confidence, signed by 100,000 of his admiring fellow-citizens, has been indefinitely postponed."

To Try For Congress.

Birmingham, Ala., July 25.—In a letter written from Santiago, addressed to the Democrats of the Eighth congressional district, General Joseph Wheeler announces his candidacy for renomination to congress. In his letter he says: "It is now very evident that the war with Spain will be of short duration." He adds that he will not be home this summer to make a personal canvass for the nomination.

Despite the fact that General Wheeler is opposed by two very strong men, Judge Richardson and Colonel Blackwell, it is conceded generally that he will be renominated and re-elected.

IS PLAYING FOR TIME.

That Supposed to Be Spain's Tactics Just Now.

How Talk of an Armistice Is Received.

Report About Americans Landing In Porto Rico Discredited.

Washington, July 26.—The report from Madrid that the Spanish government was preparing a message asking for an armistice with a view to discussing the terms of peace makes no impression here. A member of the cabinet who has been always for peace said last night that this was not the way for Spain to begin negotiations. "We have seen so much of Spanish efforts to put off the settlement of the Cuban question," he said, "that we cannot look on such a proposition as anything else than a play for time. Just before the war began Spain sought delay by declaring an armistice in Cuba. It was not sincere, and it amounted to nothing. The Cubans saw that Spain simply sought to induce them to suspend their fight for independence during the rainy season, so as to enable Spain to recruit her armies and be in better condition for military operations in the fall. They made the point that Blanco had done no fighting for several months, and that his campaign had been carried on solely against non-combatants.

"To grant an armistice now would be to play into Spain's hands, just as she hoped to get us to play into her hands before. It would mean the cessation of hostilities on the part of the United States alone and would be a one-sided affair. Spain has done no fighting. She has made no offensive movement since the war began. She has simply resisted the demand. We objected to her inhuman misgovernment in Cuba and were forced to demand that she should withdraw from the island and let the people there establish their own government. We declared war and sent our army and navy to Cuba. We have been successful at Santiago, but there is not the slightest indication of surrender at Havana. We want to end the war, but there would be no hope of such a result in granting an armistice unless definite propositions were made before the suspension of hostilities. Our previous experience with Spain has been a warning."

"How, then, are we to secure peace?"

"Spain must admit that she has been whipped and ask for terms."

There is plenty of talk about peace proposals, but there is no authenticated movement looking toward its accomplishment. All the talk in Spain is in the nature of feelers to see how the Spanish people will accept such a suggestion. They receive it, the information to our state department shows, with hoots and jeers. No public man has yet arisen in Spain with political courage and strength of character sufficient to propose an honorable peace and prevent the Spanish nation from plunging further into a debt from which this generation, and perhaps the next, will be unable to extricate it.

Porto Rico Campaign.

The campaign against Porto Rico can be proceeded with without fear of interference from any outside source. Spain has no ships except the battered squadron of Admiral Camara (of which only the Pelayo is effective) to assert any power on the sea. She cannot send any re-enforcements to her armies in any of her colonial possessions, and the dread of the visitation of Admiral Watson's squadron is so great that the ordinary harbor beacons are extinguished at night on the coast of Spain. Yet for all this there is no definite movement on the part of Spain toward proposing a treaty of peace, which all the world sees now she must sooner or later make.

Departmental officials expressed doubt as to the accuracy of a report that General Miles was landing at Ponce, because, they stated, he was to land at Fajardo, on the eastern coast. It was suggested that the conditions at Fajardo may have been such that a landing could not be effected, but this was not believed, as the authorities are confident that the naval vessels will be able to shelter the shore at the point selected for debarkation, and that the men can land in safety and throw up fortifications to protect themselves. Advices are expected here announcing the arrival and debarkation of the troops at Fajardo.

As heretofore indicated by General Shafter and the medical officers of his corps, the cases of fever in Santiago are of a mild type. The patients are ill from three days to a week, and then return to duty quite as well as ever. The medical officers concur in the opinion that this fever renders the men immune, for the time at least, to yellow fever. The question of returning a large part of the command to this country for rest and recuperation was under consideration by the war officials yesterday, but the idea practically has been abandoned, at least for the present. Those who are ill now or have been exposed to the infection are isolated in detention camps and are not permitted to return to the main body of the troops until all danger has been averted. Through the adoption of sanitary precautions and careful attention to those who fall ill, it is expected that the fever will run its course in a comparatively brief time.

Disposition of Shafter's Army.

Rumors of various kinds have been in circulation as to the disposition of General Shafter's army, but the war department has not come to any conclusion as yet in the matter. A sufficient force is to be kept at Santiago to maintain the position the United States has taken and preserve order. While there is yellow fever in the army, no attempt will be made to bring the troops to the United States. The department, it may be stated, is now bending every effort to secure an ample supply of nutritious food, and also will see that the soldiers have a rest and careful attention so that they may get into the very best condition. The medical corps is making a careful examination of the army with a view of advising the department as to the best methods of restoring the sick to health and preventing further spread of the disease. It is not believed that a large number of troops will be necessary at Santiago after the Spanish prisoners have been deported, but the department awaits further developments before deciding upon a course.

Finest Soldiers In the World.

In the 90 days which have elapsed since the president issued the first call for volunteers, an army of 261,400 men has been recruited, mustered, equipped and placed in the field, an achievement that has elicited surprise and admiration from the best informed military authorities of Europe. The personnel military purposes by the United States. Every man recruited, whether for the regular or volunteer army, has undergone a careful examination by disinterested and competent officers. As a general proposition therefore the army is physically without a flaw. Quite naturally the requirements for the regular service are more rigid than those for the volunteers, because recruits for the regular army, being considered more as individuals, are obliged to undergo a more severe examination than the volunteers, many of whom are taken into the service as organizations. The statement indicates that only one in four applicants for admission to the regular army was accepted by the mustering officers and medical examiners. In this way a notably high class of men has been secured for the army.

Of the 216,500 volunteers authorized, 212,000 have been placed in the field, nearly all of them fully equipped. In a few days the entire volunteer army will be thoroughly organized into regiments, brigades, divisions and army corps. The aptitude for military discipline and instruction which the volunteers has evinced has created surprise among the representatives of foreign governments with the United States army. They agree that the Americans are the finest soldiers in the world.

An English Oracle.

London, July 26.—The Daily Chronicle this morning claims to know positively that no peace negotiations of any sort have occurred between the American and Spanish governments. It says: "Spain has made no approaches and apparently does not mean to yet. It is understood that the Spanish government is still hopeful of being able to organize a European concert against the United States."

Situation Is Terrible.

Guantanamo Bay, July 26.—The following pitiful appeal has been addressed by the starving people of Cienfuegos to Rear Admiral Sampson: "Honorable sir—The Cubans, old men, women and children, resident in the town of Cienfuegos and this neighborhood, are all dying of hunger. The young men are all in the field with the Cuban troops and have not shoes, neither food. All the provisions in this town are in the hands of the Spaniards. Cubans cannot obtain a piece of bread, as it is necessary to send everything to the field. The Weyler system is in the way. The situation is terrible. If you, honorable sir, do not come quick with your squadron in our help and take possession of this town we shall be lost. We beg you to precipitate your operations. About 5000 old men, women and children will die of hunger in this poor town. Some of these old men have four or five sons fighting for its freedom. This is our situation, horrible situation. If the great people of the United States do not come quick in our help we are lost. For God's sake come quick."

Nothing can be done for the people of Cienfuegos until that place is captured. This will not be for some time.

Pope's Peace Proposals.

London, July 26.—A special dispatch from Rome says the pope has communicated to the powers peace proposals that he considers acceptable to both Spain and the United States, namely, American annexation of Cuba and Porto Rico, the restitution of the Philippines to Spain and a commercial treaty giving Spain exceptional advantages in the colonies surrendered.

The vatican has instructed the papal nuncio in Madrid to threaten with severe punishment any priests favoring Carlist or anti-dynastic intrigues.

To Be Taken With Salt.

Madrid, July 26.—A private dispatch from San Juan says a strong American squadron has appeared before Bahia Hondo, but that the American attempt to disembark was repulsed with considerable losses.

Peace Is Impossible.

Madrid, July 26.—There is still an endeavor to keep alive the impression that something is going on behind the scenes in the direction of peace, but the prevalent idea is that the war will continue until the fall of Manila and the invasion of Porto Rico. Peace is impossible until there is more unanimity in Spain with regard to the necessary sacrifices of territory.

The ministers, having arrived at an understanding, will await the march of events. A cabinet crisis has been averted for the time being. Those who succeed the present cabinet will certainly be obliged to ask the country to submit to terms profoundly repugnant to the national pride. The prospect of intermediary cabinets is marred by the loyal and correct attitude of General Polavieja, who declines to become the instrument of politicians eager to create a third party.

Exodus of Carlists.

Madrid, July 26.—The government professes to have full information as to all the Carlist doings and is acting accordingly. The Carlist leaders, it is believed, left Madrid because they feared arrest agitation has been effectively checked. Vasco, the Carlist chief at Bilbao, has been arrested. The exodus of Carlists from the northern provinces of Spain into France is extremely active.

Conflagration In Pugwash.

Halifax, July 26.—The town of Pugwash, 1200 inhabitants, a deal shipping port of considerable importance on the straits of Northumberland, was wiped out by fire Monday, 200 dwellings, five churches, 20 stores, three hotels and several mills being destroyed. The fire started in a business block through a lamp exploding, and a high wind and the complete absence of water supply or fire fighting apparatus soon carried the flames beyond control.

With few exceptions the buildings were wooden, and a large section of the town was closely built. At this part the fire swept through whole blocks with lightning rapidity, and people fled for their lives, losing everything. The foreign shipping in port was slightly damaged. The town was very little insured owing to the absence of fire protection. The inhabitants are now encamped in the fields and woods. Several people are reported missing, but it is impossible yet to tell who, if any, lost their lives. Relief is being organized in every direction.

Forty Tons of Supplies.

Boston, Juy 26.—Dr. E. G. Brackett of the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid association's headquarters shipped 40 tons of medical supplies to Santiago on a fruit steamer yesterday afternoon.

Lieutenant Chase had to place a guard at the head of the stairway leading to his recruiting office yesterday to keep in order the young men who were anxious to become recruits for the heavy and light batteries at Santiago.

Lieutenant Hobson arrived here today for the purpose of inspecting pontoons to be used in raising the wrecks of the Cristobal Colon and the Maria Teresa.

Ellen A. Munster, 26 years old, was taken to a hospital last evening, suffering from internal injuries, received, the police say, by a fall from the third story of her home while trying to escape a threatened assault by her husband. The woman was impaled on a picket fence, and her injuries, the surgeons say, will result fatally.

Valuable Cargo of Dust.

Seattle, Wash., July 26.—The Charles Nelson arrived yesterday from St. Michaels with 173 passengers from Dawson and bringing golddust estimated all the way from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. The purser, M. A. Tucker, said: "I believe that $1,500,000 is a fair estimate. I can vouch for $600,000 which is placed in the steamer's safe. One man had $175,000 and another $124,000. Professor T. S. Lippy, his father and two brothers carried off the steamer nine canvass sacks which weighed about 100 pounds each. This was the cleanup from Lippy's claim."

About one-third of the passengers brought no gold. Some of them had gone in this spring and, not liking the prospects, had sold their outfits and returned.

Good Afternoon.

The order introduced at Monday night's Council meeting by Councilman Keith increasing the salary of Mayor to $2,000 per year came as a surprise to Mayor Sears as well as to the members of the City Council, and inasmuch as the name of the Councilman's brother has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the office of Mayor this fall it has a political flavor easily recognized and it is doubtful that even should the order pass the Council if the Mayor would sign the order for it will be remembered that he has placed himself on record as being against any increase in salaries.

The city charter provides that for the first ten years of the city government the salary of the Mayor shall not exceed $1,000 per year. The ten years expires with the end of the present year, and in order to have the salary of next year increased it must be done this year, for the charter also provides that any increase in salaries of [illegible] the preceding year.

With the many demands for street and other improvements, and the universal cry of the citizens for low taxes it seems unwise to increase any of the salaries of city officials at present, and it is very doubtful if the order ever gets much beyond the committee to whom it was referred.

Our New Possession.

Let us take a look at the commercial aspect of Hawaii before annexation has upset the statistics.

The population at the latest census was in round numbers 109,000, of whom 31,000 were Hawaiians, 24,000 Japanese, 21,000 Chinese, 15,000 Portuguese, 5,200 Americans, 2,250 British and 1,430 Germans. Here is a mongrel colony indeed.

The receipts of the government are about $2,000,000 annually, of which about one-third is gathered by tariff taxes, one-third by internal taxation and one-third from miscellaneous sources. The expenditures consume nearly all of the income.

The United States have been trading with Hawaii for over half a century. From 1826 to 1850 the trading was occasional. In 1873 our exports amounted to $672,191. After a reciprocity treaty in 1876 they quicky passed the $1,000,000 line, and in 1896 we sold Hawaii $4,000,000 of the $6,063,000 worth she imported. Our trade has usually, been about two-thirds of her total commerce.

When reciprocity began between us, Hawaii was exporting sugar, rice, wool, tallow molasses peanuts, hides, goatskins, sheepskins, whale oil, whale bone, ivory, salt, sperm oil and many other articles, but now rice, sugar, coffee, bananas and pineapples are the chief exports. Of the $15,500,000 worth of exports in 1896, almost $15,000,000 worth was in sugar, the tendency during the last twenty years being apparently to a reduction in the number of articles produced.

Quincy Army Committee.

At a meeting of the Quincy Army Committee at the residence of Mrs. W. F. Hoehn last evening the treasurer, Miss C. S. Hubbard, reortep th e sum of $127 in the treasury for the Christian Commission. This amount was voted to be forwarded at once to the proper authorities. $50 to be given to the International work. Any further subscription which might be received will be forwarded at once. They may be sent to Miss Hubbard or to General Secretary Hoehn of the Y. M. C. A.

CITY COUNCIL.

Order Introduced Increasing Salary of the Mayor.

Ordinance Governing Sewer Connections Passed.

Table Cleared of Business—Vacation Taken Until September.

The City Council spent Monday evening in cleaning up what business it had before them so as to take a vacation for the month of August. The absent members were Councilman Cain, Jameson and Merrick.

PETITONS.

Petitions were received from A. E. Nash for a common victualer's license; from Maud J. Walsh, Julia C. Bryant and Catherine S. Talbot for State Aid; from John Q. Bent for soldier's relief.

That of Catherine S. Talbot was laid on the table and later she was granted $4 per month.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Licenses reported favorably on a number of petitions for minor licenses which were adopted.

The joint Committee on Finance and State Aid on the order providing that soldiers and sailors of the present war and their dependant families be allowed $7 per month State Aid, reported a substitute order authorizing the City Treasurer to pay State aid in accordance with section 3, Chapter 561, of the Acts of 1898. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance offered an amendment to the order appropriating $10,000 for permanent sidewalks providing that the sidewalk on Hancock street between Music hall and School street be of brick in place of concrete; that the sidewalk on Newport avenue be of brick in place of concrete and that the sidewalks in Ward Three be omitted.

The order was passed to be ordained.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on order appropriating $1,500 in addition to the $5,000 for the new city stables. The rules were suspended and the order passed.

The Committee on Finance reported an amendment to he order appropriating $2,684 for sundry improvements making the amount $5,184 so as to include the appropriation for $1500 for the city stables. The rules suspended and the order passed.

INCREASE OF SALARY.

Councilman Keith offered an order [illegible] salaries by increasing that of the Mayor to $2,000 per year.

CALENDAR.

The order authorizing the refunding of $57.10 tax to Willard Walsh was passed under suspension of the rules.

The order appropriating $3,296.19 to pay the claim of Phoebe C. Harris was amended by increasing the amount to $3,336.25 so as to include interest. The order was then passed.

Councilman Little offered a resolution requesting the Mayor to petition the Metropolitan Park Commission to lay out and construct a suitable entrance to the Blue Hills reservation near the residence of Edward Trask.

In support of the order Councilman Little said that the Commission had taken much of the city property but had done little to improve the entrance.

Councilman Swithin said that he understood the Commission intended to build an entrance near the centre of West Quincy and that plans for the same had been made.

Upon motion of Councilman Swithin the resolution was referred to the Committee on Streets.

Upon motion of Councilman Parker the ordinance governing house connections with the sewer was taken from the table.

Councilman Poland hoped the ordinance would not pass. It was an injustice to the citizens to be obliged to pay the amount it would cost if city did the work for it could be done much cheaper by contract. The Commissioner has all he can do now without this additional work. It would be better to have licensed drain layers do the work. He did not wish to take work from the citizens but it was well known that old men were employed by the city, and it would cost from thirty to fifty per cent. more.

Councilman Parker said that the joint committee had fully considered these points. It had also communicated with cities and towns and found what methods they used and it seemed for the best interest of the city that the Commissioners should have charge as it would be more permanent and saisfactory.

Councilman Swithin thought the sewer connections should be handled the same as in the water department by the sewer commissioners.

Councilman Keith did not think it right to give the commissioner a right to go into a man's yard and dig it up at any time.

Councilman Poland hoped the matter would be carefully considered and moved to lay on the table.

Councilman Little hoped the order would pass. If the member from Ward Six lives until 1900 you will see him standing up for American labor, while now he is crying for cheap labor.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

In reply to questions Commissioner Knowlton said: His opinion was that the city should put in the house connections. There was more reason for care in house connections that in the main sewer, for the danger would come from faulty house connections, and if placed in the hands of licensed drain layers it might cost the city more. A drain layer would figure to make a profit and they could make a combination and keep the cost up, while in the case of the city it would be done at cost. Then again the drain layer would have to be watched sharply or he would use inferior materials. All new cities were now having the connections made by the city.

Councilman Poland did not think Boston drain layers were coming here, and that the work would be done by Quincy citizens.

Councilman Keith said there was no reference in the Ordinance to whom application should be made.

The Ordinance was then passed to be ordained, Councilman Poland and Keith voting no.

The rules were then suspended and it was voted that when the Council adjourn it be until Monday, September 12.

Adourned at 9.12.

Another Mail Route.

Hereafter the mail leaving Quincy for the Weymouths by street cars at 10.50 A. M. will leave at 11.50. The superintendent of the railway mail service has been in town recently looking over the ground with the idea of including Weymouth Landing in the list of post-offices to receive their mail via electric cars from the Quincy office. Many letters for this office now come to Quincy by mistake and if the change is made it would facilitate mail delivery.

Thieving Junk Men.

Monday Officer Ferugson overhauled two junk dealers on Washington street for overdriving their horse. When the team was searched at the police station among other things in the team was a bag which upon being opened was found to contain a lot of leather belting and an almost new block and fall. The two men on the team, who answered to the names of Nathan Gobberg and Isaac Lick, when questioned said the fall and belting had been given to them. Investigation however showed that it had been stolen from the Old Colony Shoe Company, on men were given a lot of old rubbish at this factory and seeing the fall and belting handy had helped themselves to it.

T. R. & S. A. A. Won.

It was inadvertantly stated in Monday's Ledger that the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co. nine was defeated Saturday by the Hyde Parks, when the fact was that they won by a score of 15 to 1. The features of the game were the heavy batting of the home team the good work of Murphy on third base and the catching of Mitchell for the visitors. The umpiring of McLean was as usual very good.

For some time past the water pipe, on Washington street opposite, Elm street has given the department much trouble on account of leaks, and it has been necessary to dig up the street a number of times to repair the lead. Permanent repairs are now being made by putting in a new pipe.

—The death of Harvey Blunt, the veteran caterer of Boston, occurred at his summer house in Hingham, last week. His death was very sudden and unexpected. He was apparently in good health and had been out in his garden at work. He complained of not feeling well and laid down upon the sofa and in a few moments expired. He was a prominent member of St. John's Lodge Masons, Commonwealth lodge of Odd Fellows, the Royal Arcanum, and Knights of Honor. His age was 64 years, 5 months. He leaves a widow and one son.

—The bitterest critics of the Old World have nothing but unstinted praise for the courage and valor of Americans when the latter are under fire. The work of our soldiers and sailors has astonished the world, just as the achievements of our marines surprised and astonished the British in 1812. It is the cool daring of the well trained and disciplined gunner that has won for us all our battles, and to him we look for much of the future triumph that is sure to come to the American arms wherever duty calls.

—The work on the new dry dock at the Charlestown Navy Yard will be commenced this week. It is to be of concrete and masonry, will cost more than $1,000,000, and should be in service years after ships now afloat have been condemned and sold. A masonry dock is said to be proof against weather, marine storms and wear, and, when once well built, is almost indestructible.

THE DAILY EVENTS.

The Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

The Adams school house is receiving a coat of paint.

Councilman Walter P. Hill of Atlantic has been appointed a Justice of the Peace.

Commissioner Knowlton advertises today for bids for paving of Hancock street.

William Bassett, clerk at E. H. Doble & Co.s, leaves Saturday for a two weeks' vacation.

The Schooner Enigma sailed to Bass Point on Sunday with a party from Wollaston. One of the party caught two mackerel coming into our bay.

Deputy Fire Marshal Adams of this city has been to Brockton and had a conference with the local authorities in regard to the numerous incendiary fires in that city on Saturday evening.

Mr. Edward Hayden took a party of friends to Bass Point, Nahant, Saturday afternoon last, remaining over night. An early start was made for Marblehead on Sunday morning. A pleasant visit to the old town and a good sail back to Wollaston ended an enjoyable trip.

COMMENTS.

Hobson has a plan for raising the Cristobal Colon that impressed Secretary Long as feasible and he has been authorized to make the experiment. Hobson is right at home on an engineering plan and he is evidently determined to supplement his feat with the Merrimac by other feats that will add to his fame and to the glory of his country. The ordinary wrecking appliances are not considered adequate to the work of raising the great Spanish wreck, but with Hobson's devices it will probably come to the surface and be added to the navy of the United States. It is a great prize he is fishing for.—Lynn Item —Poor Leiter, senior! After paying for his son's Napoleonic wheat campaign, says the Boston Herald, he will have only $20,000,000 left to live upon

Won By Jones.

The one mile [illegible] between R. E. Jones and H. McCabe at Quincy Point on Saturday resulted in an easy win for Jones, who started at a great speed and won by nearly thirty yards. Jones is willing to race anyone for the championship of Quincy.

WEYMOUTH.

The Trinity church Episcopal Sunday School had a very enoyable time at the Avonia Spring grove, Weymouth Heights, Tuesday. The occasion was their annual picnic. Ice cream, cake and clam bake was served. A large flag was raised on the tower of the Crag Cliff House.

—The new 3 per cent. government bonds, says the Boston Herald, are already at 104 3-8, showing a profit already of $21.87 on every accepted subscription for $500! Don't you wish you had some.

Has the Pen.

When Councilman Newcomb left the City Council meeting Monday night he was as happy as they make them for he carried away in his inside pocket the pen with which Mayor Sears signed the order changing the name of the locality at the junction of Quincy avenue and Howard a street to Newcomb square.

The pen was fastened by white ribbon to a sheet of paper upon which was a letter to Councilman Newcomb from the Mayor certifying that the pen was the one with which the order was signed.

Councilman Newcomb will keep the pen and accompanying letter as a souvenir, and it will be handed down through future Newcomb generations.

Short Lobsters.

Charles N. Hunt and Otis Thayer the fish and game officers are making it hot for the dealers in short lobsters.

Saturday they overhauled the sloop Agawan in the bay and seized 162 mutilated short lobsters. The three men on the sloop were Peter Dixon, Andrew Swanson and Hans Polnest, who claim their residence as Gloucester.

On Sunday the two officers visited Nantasket and seized six short lobsters from the Bayside fish market.

—The boys who were arrested in Stoughton yesterday have admitted that they committed some of the breaks in Braintree recently; and also that they were in the vicinity of J. M. Arnold's store when Officer Qualey passed with his search light.

BEAR IN MIND

That we do not claim the goods we sell to be in any respect different from what other people sell, except in price. All our goods are new goods (1898 goods) and amongst them is nothing that we are selling for 25 cts. on the dollar. Our expenses are small and we sell our goods for all they are worth, but do not sometimes have to sell them for more than they are worth, like some merchants do to help pay the enormous expense they are under.

We have about 200 Negligee Shirts, which we will sell this week and next week, too, if we do not sell them all for 69c. We have them in all styles, with attached and detached collars. We would not have you believe they are the $1.00 kind. Although some are woolen madras goods, which are usually sold for that price. Some others sell some of them for 75c. and claim they are worth $1.00. We guarantee everything we sell, and will always pay your money back if goods purchased are not satisfactory.

HOBSON IN BOSTON

Hero of Merrimac Here on Government Business.

Boston July 26.—Lieut. Hobson of Merrimac fame arrived in Boston this morning. He was met at the station by a large crowd and given an oration. He made his way through the crowd with difficulty and went to the Thorndike where he had breakfast after which the crowd compelled him to hold an informal reception. He then visited the Boston Tow Co.'s works and the Atlantic works. He stated that his mission in Boston was to obtain some large pontoons to raise the Cristobal Colon and Maria Teresa. He further said he should complete his business as soon as possible and would return to Santiago in two days.

Casualties at Santiago.

Washington, July 26—Gen. Shafter has filed his official report of the casualties at the battle of Santiago, as follows: Killed, 23 officers and 208 men; wounded, 80 officers and 1203 men; missing, 81.

At Guantanamo.

Santiago, July 26—The First Infantry went to Guantanamo yesterday to occupy that place. Gen. Shafter has gone to the hill camp.

TODAY'S COURT.

Nathan Gobberg and Isaac Lick were arraigned for overdriving a horse at Quincy and were fined $5 each.

They were also arraigned for the larceny of a block and fall and a lot of belting from the Old Colony Shoe Co., and were fined $20 each.

Frank E. Wilder was arraigned for embezzling of $10.80 from Frank W. Harris at Randolph. Case continued until next Tuesday.

Isaiah Lincoln was fined $2 for assault at Cohasset.

Wollaston Post Office.

Letters remaining uncalled for July 23;

Mr. Michael Moran, Mr. Jeffein Daley, Mrs. Robina A. Mitchell, Mrs. J. S. Sowle, Mrs. Jennie B. Russell, Miss Almatiz Crowell, Miss R. Wesson, Miss Theo. I. Park.

—The week which closed July 23 was a productive one for the treasury department, both in respect to the millions which were received for the new 3 per cent. bonds and the receipts from ordinary sources of taxation. The cash balance increased during the week from $245,173,954 to $263,079,090, and the ordinary receipts for July advanced from $23,843,957 up to July 16, to $33,526,571 up to 24. The proceeds of the bond issue have now been about $100,000,000, actually paid into the treasury. This is obvious from the existence of a cash balance of $263,079,090, which is $68,000,000 more than June 1, and the wiping out of a deficit during June of $14,342,968, and during July of $21,937,428.

—No business or professional man is absolutely obliged to advertise in every small circus programme or trade circular that comes along. When such publications say mean things about those who decline to advertise they may not be guilty of blackmail but their conduct seems to partake somewhat of blackmailing methods. And yet legitimate newspapers are often shunned by the very advertisers who will patronize every catch-penney trade folder or show bill which comes in their way. Of course every one must live, including the trade circular and the circus programme, but the amateur journalist's plaything is like the common house fly, a little annoying when it becomes too numerous.—Norwood Advertiser.

—The war has furnished innumerable instances of very wealthy men leaving the comforts of a luxurious life, simply from a desire to follow and protect the country's flag. The latest instance that has come under our notice is that of Gardner Sims, of Providence, R. I. Mr. Sims is a well-known civil engineer. He is worth more than three millions of dollars. He has recently taken an examination before the United States naval board and will serve in the engine room of one of the battle ships without pay.—Barre Times.

—Thirty tons of gold went into the Sub-Treasury in New York last week. This is an announcement, says the Journal, which is calculated to awaken the envy of the Spanish Minister of Finance.

—Battleships can be built by the United States cheaper than anywhere else. We shall not only build a large navy ourselves, says the Beverly Times, but we shall soon be building ships for the world.

CAMP DALTON.

Camp Dalton
July 26th.

Monday was the usual second day of the week. The sky looked threatening all day long but held its showers. The morning was mostly devoted to more exchanges of clothing. Nothing is being left undone that can be remedied. An extended order drill was held from 9.30 to 10.30. Drill was held as usual in the afternoon. The boys were most all a little nervous over the rumors of leaving. Several wagers have been made on the time. Col. Whitney is doing all in his power to keep the regiment here for some time, yet as in his judgment more can be done here in one month than can be done south in two.

Camp Dalton is one of the best camp grounds in the country, and if the troops are to remain in camp for the summer, Camp Dalton is the place in the Colonel's estimation.

Another pleasant surprise was sprung on Co. K, in the afternoon by the arrival of the only George, or G. A. Wilson and wife, Miss Cannon, Fred Tirrell and wife, Chief Packard, wife and daughters and A. Taber. The party brought with them another bountiful supply of bread and butter. Oh! I guess it wasn't good! The ladies of the party were shown the ins and outs of camp life and were entertained by Capt. Kincaide. Co. K boys thank them for their thoughtfulness and generosity. The gentlemen of the party had considerable to do with the company's fund and will always find a welcome. The ladies part in the work is done in a more quiet way, but it is felt just the same and they are none the less welcome than the lesser half. Mr. Wilson reported several additions to the fund today. It is gradually creeping up.

There are a few cases of stomach trouble in camp.

Mr. James White of the reservation police was in camp calling on old friends and making new ones. Among the visitors were Mrs. C. F. Spear, Weymouth; Mrs. G. A. Phillips, Wollaston.

TRAMP OF THE WOUNDED

All Who Could Walk Had to Drag Themselves to the Sea.

OUR MEN BORE IT LIKE HEROES.

Scenes Along the Path Where the Stricken Soldiers Plodded In the Moonlight Toward Siboney—Pure Grit and No Complaints — The Weakened Men Were Marks For Spanish Sharpshooters In the Trees.

The New York Sun's correspondent, writing under the date of July 6 from Siboney, Cuba, describes the scenes along the path where our wounded soldiers plodded toward the hospital at Siboney as follows:

Darkness had covered the first great battlefield of the Spanish-American war. The dead lay all about, unminded in the press to alleviate the wants of the wounded. Sorrow was everywhere, not because of defeat or disaster, for American valor had driven the enemy from their intrenchments in the face of a fire that might well have shattered the ranks of veteran soldiers, but because to these farmer boys, these mechanics, clerks, lawyers, dudes and millionaires, bred to the ways of peace, the shedding of so much blood seemed a terrible thing, in palliation of which a righteous war for a righteous cause was all but unjust. They were not used to war, with its bloody trail of shattered flesh and broken bones. It was all too horrible when robbed of its glamour by stern reality, and so, despite the victory of the day and the glory they had won, our soldiers were crushed and broken hearted by the loss that had been entailed.

And it was a terrible, pitiful sight that night. Wounded were everywhere, silently suffering. The shrieks and groans of which writers of other battlefields have been wont to make so much were missing. Men pierced through and through with Mauser bullets lay in the long grass of the fields where they had fallen or under the knife of the surgeon in the improvised hospitals without a murmur or a moan. They bore it like heroes, but the agony was all there. And those who saw it knew it. The pallid faces, contorted with suffering, told the story as plainly as though the pain were shrieked from a thousand throats and made it all the nobler.

What a journey it was that night from the firing line along the hill of San Juan, where our soldiers lay on their rifles, down the long, winding, muddy road to Siboney, where is the army's base! Here is the hospital to which all the wounded must come eventually if they be spared, and toward it, from the crack of the first rifle on this morning of the opening struggle until the night merged into another day, those not too badly crippled dragged their maimed and shattered selves in hope of aid. The field hospitals were overrun. The ambulances were crammed with men who could not walk. Supply and ammunition wagons had been called into service, but still they were not sufficient, and so poor luckless devils with broken arms, with bullets through their chests, their thighs, their legs, crept slowly in with a patience that was marvelous.

From San Juan hill to Siboney the circuitous road made necessary by the mud and the mountains covers a distance of about eight miles. Formerly it was scarcely more than a mountain trail, sound enough under foot, but the traffic of the great army wagons has cut it all to pieces, and made it in the lower places all but impassable, especially in the rainy season, now on. It is not a pleasant course to travel at best, but suppose circumstances had brought you to take it this battle night. The moon is up, and in the open its silvery light clearly marks out your way. You start just at the base of that hill up which the Seventy-first New York charged so gallantly in the afternoon. Never mind the dead. Siboney must be reached before midnight, and the way is long. The road is level here and mainly in the open, so you push along quite rapidly. Before and behind and around you are the wounded plodding onward. Some of them speak to you.

"How far is it to Siboney?" asks one young fellow, with his left arm in a sling.

"Eight miles," you tell him.

"Thank God I have two good legs," he answers and keeps on.

But he has lost blood, and is weak. You pass him. Others are around. One big soldier is doubled over, making his way painfully.

"How far is it to Siboney?" he asks, and you answer.

"I'll never get there tonight, but I'll try," he says, and on he limps.

Still you are in the open. The trees along the roadside are short. The sun has had a chance at the roadbed, and it is fairly dry. The walking is easy. By and by you reach a ford over a little stream. Here is the "bloody angle." The dead are all about. The wounded are clustered by the water. They are feverish. They lap it up gratefully, talking meanwhile of the day.

"We gave them h—l, didn't we?" said a wounded volunteer to a passing regular.

"That's what we did, but they can fight some, too," was the reply.

Past the first ford the road darkens and grows muddy. The trees are higher. They stretch back in forest grandeur a half a mile, and they are deathtraps. They hide the bitterest, the cruelest, the most uncivilized fighters in all Chirstendom, the Spanish guerrillas. They are up in the tree tops sharpshooting. Soldier or civilian, well or wounded, it matters not to them. A rifle cracks and a bullet whines by your head. You seek the cover by the roadside and make your way along as silently as possible. The wounded plod wearily on, some of them too weak to hide. Every now and then you hear that one of them has been hit. Occasionally a soldier on watch fires back at the distant flash and for a moment you have peace. Past another ford you keep on your way, leaving behind you the hill of El Pozo, where Captain Grimes' field guns opened the action in the morning. As you go on the road grows worse and more weird. Up hill and down again it runs, with mud a foot deep in places. The feet of the wounded wayfarers sink into the mire until some of them are helpless. They are grateful when you help them, and you push on.

It is more lonely now. There is no one within sight or sound either ahead or behind, and the road is once more open. You look across the nearby stubble at the woods beyond, and you wonder if here, too, there are Spanish sharpshooters waiting and watching. You hurry, and on either side through the palms there comes a crackling as of branches being trodden underfoot. Your blood grows cold, and then you smile to yourself in a sickly sort of way as you realize that the land crabs are running from you. They are plainly to be seen in the road now, big fellows, blue and black and red and yellow. They hurl themselves hurriedly from danger in their peculiar awkward way, and you hate them, for you know that were you dead on that spot within an hour these vermin would have picked your skull as clean as vultures.

The never ending road still winds on through the wood with the wounded once more dotting it. Three of them are sitting on a bowlder. Two of them have been shot in the arm, the other both in the shoulder and the thigh. He is weakening fast and the others are trying to cheer him up.

"It ain't the pain," he says, "it's the loss of blood that's killing me. How far is it now? Have we come to the hill where the rough riders fought?"

"Not yet," answers one of the soldiers, "but it is very near."

"Well, I'll get that far, anyway," is the man's response, and he struggles to his tired feet.

In the distance there can be heard the jingle of a bell. It comes closer and closer, and soon around a bend appears the head of a mule train carrying ammunition to the front. They will need it on the morrow. Behind come lumbering a half dozen wagons, carrying supplies, each with eight powerful mules hauling it through the miry road. The drivers curse and crack their whips. The mules struggle into a gallop and plunge down a hill. Soon the tinkle of the pack train's bell and then the thunder of the wagon wheels are lost. It is as peaceful as though war did not exist. The land crabs flee in their fiendish way from before your feet and with half an hour of steady marching you stand on the rough riders' hill. To the right, just on the crown overlooking the valley to the south, are seven wooden slabs stuck into the earth side by side to mark where fell the first heroes in the campaign against Santiago. A wounded man is lying near the graves. He lifts his head at the approaching sounds.

"Played out," he says laconically. "Shot in the shoulder. Finish the trip tomorrow."

No complaint, no regret, just grit.

From this hill the road leads down into a thicket through which the sun never shines. The moon is drowned. It is as black as a cavern. Rocks, loose and jagged, fill the roadway and render the footing unsafe. Branches reach out from the brush and whip your face. It is uncanny. Strange insects are singing here and there, and far off you hear the call of the cuckoo which so often betokens the presence of Spaniards lying in wait for the invaders. Then there comes the answering cry still farther on, and you wonder what is going to happen to you. Your imagination grows vivid. Dark figures appear down the road. They look like men crouching. A dash of moonlight through a rift in the overhanging clouds of tropical foliage falls on the dewy blade of a palm and changes it into the gleaming bayonet of a Spanish soldier. The scenes of the bloody day just done have been such as unstring nerves, and while you chide yourself for your foolish fancies you hurry along, hurry along, hoping for the end.

And by and by it comes. You have reached the level sandy stretch behind the ridge on which sits Siboney, and rounding the end through the ravine which cuts down to the sea you have before you the tents and campfires of the soldiers at the base and the cottages of the Cubans. It has not been a pleasant journey, but you have seen one of the phases of warfare, and that is much.

A Resolution of the American People.

The American people have resolved that henceforth Spanish oppression shall be confined to Spaniards, and nothing in the wide world will swerve them one hairbreadth from that most just and necessary conclusion. — New Orleans Times-Democrat.

No Call For Music.

Possibly there may be a concert of European powers after the Spanish-American war is over, but hardly before. There is no call for music as yet. —New York Mail and Express.

Cuban Hammock Song.

See us softly swaying
'Neath the shady trees,
Leaves above us playing
In the gentle breeze.
Cuba, Cuba libre!
That's the song we sing
While the shadows come and go
And the breezes softly blow.
Cuba, Cuba libre!
Singing as we swing.

Bless us, this is pleasant,
Neither thought nor care!
Let's enjoy the present
In the drowsy air.
Yanks can do the scrapping
(Hear 'em bang away!)
We prefer our napping
Through the drowsy day.
Cuba, Cuba libre!
That's the song we sing.
Eating while we swing in line
Yankee rations—they are fine!
Cuba, Cuba libre!
Singing as we swing.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Those terrible dizzy spells to which women are subject are due nine times in ten to some weakness or unhealthy condition of the distinctly feminine organism. The average doctor in general practice does not half realize this. He prescribes some superficial treatment for headache or dyspepsia or liver trouble without suspecting the real cause of the difficulty.

A woman usually understands what is the trouble but is loath to undergo the mortifying and generally useless "examinations" and "local applications" on which the local practitioner is almost sure to insist. But there is a far more sensible alternative: Any woman afflicted with a delicate weakness of this nature should seek the aid of that marvelous "Favorite Prescription" invented by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y.

In any case so obstinate as not to be promptly cured by this great "Prescription" special advice for inexpensive home-treatment adapted to the individual case, will be sent by Dr. Pierce to any one who will address him by mail. All letters are treated with the strictest privacy and never printed except by the writer's special request. Cases intrusted to his care are in the hands of one who has a lifetime's experience and who stands among the most eminent of living specialists in this particular field of practice.

Every woman should possess a copy of Dr. Pierce's famous thousand-page illustrated volume, the Common Sense Medical Adviser which has had a larger sale than any medical book in any language. A paper-bound copy will be sent absolutely free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., or send 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. A whole medical library in one 1000-page volume.

Jealous Man's Crime.

Bridgeport, July 26.—Paul Belot, one of the most prominent farmers of Monroe, a small suburb, shot and perhaps fatally wounded Fred Dressen last evening, while in a jealous rage. Belot is 40, and his wife is a remarkably pretty woman, several years his junior. For the past few months Belot has grown almost insanely jealous of his better half. The latter would tell her husband stories in a joking way of the nice young men there were in Bridgeport. The humorous side of the narratives told by Mrs. Belot never appealed to her husband, who watched every move she made.

Canada's Governor General.

London, July 26.—The Earl of Minto has been appointed governor general of Canada in succession to the Earl of Aberdeen.

Gilbert John Elliot, fourth Earl of Minto, was born in 1845, has been in the Scots fusileer guards, was a volunteer in the Egyptian campaign and commands the south of Scotland volunteers with the rank of colonel. He is a Liberal, and retired from the army in 1870. He was secretary and military secretary to the governor general of Canada in 1883-86, and served as chief of staff in the northwest rebellion in Canada in 1885.

Clipped a Record.

Cleveland, July 26.—The breaking of two world's records and one season's record marked the opening of the races at the Grenville track. The first event, the 2:16 trot, was the fastest race this season, and in the second race, the 2:10 pace, the world's record for pacing mares was clipped from 2:05¾ to 2:05¼ in the first heat. In the next race Searchlight, another member of the California outfit, reduced the mark for 4-year-olds to 2:04¾, going under the record two seconds.

Returned In His Old District.

London, July 26.—The parliamentary bye-election held in Reading to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the Conservative member resulted in a victory for the Liberal candidate, G. W. Palmer, who formerly represented Reading, but was an unsuccessful contestant for the seat against Mr. Murdoch at the general election. The voting was as follows: Palmer, Liberal and Radical, 4600; Keyser, Conservative, 3906; Quelch, Socialist, 270. Liberal plurality, 424.

Their Boat Went Over.

Providence, July 26.—Walter J. Lord, a reporter on The Journal, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the Pawtucket river. He was boating with Florence Wiseman of Philadelphia, and the boat was overturned when they attempted to change seats. The young woman's life was saved. The young man came to this city from Worcester, where his parents live.

A MAN'S FURY

Drink and Dissension Turned His Brain.

Murderously Attacked His Wife and Her Mother.

Killed the Latter With a Single Shot.

Expiated His Crime by Shooting Himself Through the Head.

Woonsocket, July 26.—One of the most deplorable tragedies happening in this vicinity transpired in Blackstone Monday evening, stirring that town to its depths and causing intense excitement in this city. Bernard F. Boylan, his wife and his mother-in-law, Kate Maroney, were the people concerned. Boylan murdered the latter, shot his wife seriously and ended his mental misery by suicide.

Nobody heard the sound of the shots, but three men who were in the front of the house saw the women come out, and heard one scream, "Barney shot us." The men helped them into David H. Gilbert's store, where Mrs. Maroney fell to the floor in an unconscious state. Her condition was at once seen to be very serious and she was taken to the home of James Carney, where at 8:09 she died. Mrs. Boylan was removed to the home of Joseph Largess, where an attempt was made to operate on her. The bullet was removed from the abdomen, but the one that lodged in the liver could not be reached, and as the patient was in a critical state, a second attempt to extricate it was delayed.

Immediately after the shooting had been reported to the town officers, Sheriff Nugent went to the Maroney tenement to find Boylan. The man was found lying on his left side, near the kitchen stove, with the right hand slightly raised and clenched as if he had the revolver in his hand, although the weapon was lying under his face, with one unused cartridge in it. The pool of blood in which Boylan lay was his own lifeblood, for as the sheriff leaned over him, it was seen that a wound behind the ear had been inflicted. Boylan had shot himself, and death relieved his sufferings in less that an hour after the time he shot the women. He was unconscious when found, and died without showing any sign of intelligence.

Boylan and his wife had not been happy in their married life, and for some months they had lived apart, Mrs. Boylan returning to her mother's roof shortly before achild was born, three months ago. Soon after they were married, about 13 years ago, and before the birth of the first child, Boylan left his home and got employment with a bridge builder in Chicago. Afterwards he was in the saloon business in that city, and some years later returned to the east, working at bridge building in New York. About 14 months ago he succeeded to the grocery and drygoods business here of his brother, Lawrence W. Boylan, now deceased.

At different times he had returned to his wife, but from all accounts they were not reconciled. The last separation is believed to have much to do with the desperate acts of the husband. He had sold out his business to one Alexander Cummings of Chicago, he had claimed, before the separation. It is believed that his habits at that time made his business venture a failure and drove Mrs. Boylan from his presence. The murder and suicide furthermore are thought to have been the act of a man wrought to frenzy by dissipation.

Warner Ready to Start.

Louisville, July 26.—Sheriff Clark of Hampshire county, Mass., and Chief of Police Maynard of Northampton have identified L. S. Williams as Lewis Warner, the man wanted at Northampton for the embezzlement of $640,000. They were very much moved when led into the fugitive banker's presence, as the man before them was now their prisoner and in disgrace, and the penitentiary staring him in the face, whereas the last time they had seen him he was one of the most popular men in the state and one whose name was syonymous with honesty and stability. After asking about many of his former friends in Northampton, Warner announced that he was ready to go at any time, and would not require requisition papers.

After a Lingering Illness.

Harrisburg, July 26.—Right Rev. Thomas McGovern, bishop of the Harrisburg diocese, died last evening at the episcopal residence in this city after a lingering illness from a complication of diseases. He was one of the best known and most beloved Catholic prelates in the United States. The bishop was born in Ireland, but emigrated to this country with his parents when a year old. He was graduated from St. Mary's college, Emmittsburg, Md., in 1859, and was ordained a priest Dec. 12, 1861. He was appointed bishop of the Harrisburg diocese Jan. 15, 1888.

Brother Under Arrest.

Lawrence, July 26.—Shedwed Lottof is held by the police as being implicated in the death of his brother, John. John fell down stairs at his home Saturday and the police were informed that Shodwed was about to leave town to avoid detention. The physician in charge of the case said death was due to a shock brought on by injuries. The parties are Syrians, and what can be learned tends to show that trouble had occurred in the family. Occupants of the house also say that John fell downstairs when he was carrying a bundle.

SHOWERS REFRESHING.

New England Crops Affected by the Rains of Last Week.

Boston, July 26.—Rain is still needed in New Hampshire and Vermont and parts of western Massachusetts. Early potatoes are already injured in many sections of these states. Unless rain comes soon corn and late potatoes will be a short crop. In the remaining states potatoes and corn are very promising. Apples will be light, and the cranberry crop is in doubt. The bloom, which was full, in many bogs abundant, has been greatly injured by fire worms.

Maine—Rain is needed in Lincoln, Waldo and Washington counties. In the latter county there will be a fine crop of apples, while the reverse will be true of Oxford. There are reports of injury to potatoes, but the crops are satisfactory on the whole.

New Hampshire—Drought is felt in Belknap, Cheshire and Sullivan counties. There will be a short crop of apples throughout the state.

Vermont—Early potatoes are rusting in Grand Isle and Lamoill, and corn is backward in Rutland and Washington. No county is favored by good conditions as to apples. In some sections of Chittendon pears will be plentiful. Oats are good in Grand Isle and poor in Rutland.

Massachusetts—In all the counties crops are doing well. Hampshire needs rain. Tobacco is uneven, but in good condition. Cranberries are promising, but the worm is destroying in Plymouth.

Rhode Island—There is no complaint as to crop conditions, although oats will be light. Newport will have an average yield of corn and potatoes, and in Providence apples are promising.

Connecticut—Corn is backward in New London; apples, early potatoes and oats are light in Fairfield. Tobacco and apples are doing well in Hartford. Littlefield's rye crop is fair.

Fought a Draw.

New York, July 26.—The third meeting of "Kid" McPartland of New York and Jack Everhardt of New Orleans in the ring for a 25-round bout attracted 5000 spectators to the Greater New York club last night. The betting was lively, with McPartland slightly the favorite at odds of 100 to 90. Just before the men entered the ring one bet of $1000 to $700 was registered by a prominent bookmaker with a well-known clubman. While many blows were landed by each man, the contest presented but few stirring features.

In the fifth round, Everhardt jabbed his left on McPartland's nose, causing it to bleed. In the 11th round McPartland damaged Everhardt's right eye, and the latter forced McPartland to the ropes. Each man at different stages in the fight was rushed into his corner, and the men clinched quite frequently. In the 21st round Everhardt uppercut McPartland on the face with his left and tripped over McPartland's feet, falling to the floor. In the 23rd round Everhardt forced McPartland to the ropes, and took a desperate chance to land a swinging blow, but failed to get one past McPartland's guard.

In the 25th round, McPartland opened with a left chopping blow on the face. McPartland again sent his left to the face, and Jack landed a hard left on the ear. Jack rushed him wildly and McPartland uppercut him with the left on the breast. McPartland kept jabbing his left on the neck and face, and Jack in wild rushes tried left and right swings which did not land. Jack uppercut McPartland with his right on the chest and slipped to his knees. When Jack got to his feet time was up and the fight was ended. Referee Sam Austin declared the bout a draw.

FREEDMAN'S DIGNITY.

President of the New York Club Stopped a Game.

He Resented Being Called a Sheeny by an Oriole.

Both Manager and Umpire Refused to Expel the Offender.

New York, July 26.—The New Yorks forfeited the ball game to the Baltimores after half of the fourth inning had been played. The score at that time was 1 to 1. Holmes, when at bat in the Baltimores' inning, struck out. A "fan" in the grandstand yelled: "Oh, Ducky, you're a lobster."

"Well I'm glad I'm not working for a Sheeny any more," replied Holmes.

Umpire Lynch turned around and said something to Holmes, who went to the bench.

ANDREW FREEDMAN.

President Freedman, who was sitting in the grandstand, sent a representative down with a request that Manager Hanlon take Holmes out of the game. Hanlon referred Freedman's representative to the umpire, who said he had not heard the remark, and refused to take Holmes out of the left field.

Mr. Freedman then appeared on the ground and asked for the expulsion of the player. On being refused he told Joyce not to play ball. Lynch then gave the game to the Baltimores, 9 to 0 The spectators, about 3000, received their money back.

President Freedman stated afterwards that he would protest the game, and that he would report Holmes to the board of discipline. He also said that people had been crying for gentlemanly ball playing, and they should get it on the New York grounds at any cost.

BEATEN IN BROOKLYN.

The Champions "Dunn" For In the Opening Game Monday.

Brooklyn, July 26.—Manager Selee and his outfit of ball tossers from the hub made another invasion of these grounds yesterday afternoon with the determination of capturing the second game from the trolley dodgers, but they were disappointed, the grooms winning by 4 to 2.

There were two recruits in Selee's forces. As the troops marched into the battle, the features of Jimmy Stafford were revealed in Bostonian garments. When approached concerning the signing of this conspicuous, handy "stiff," Selee announced that Stafford's name was signed to a contract for the remainder of the season yesterday morning, and that he is to relieve young Kiester in right field, at least until Hamilton or Stahl is able to get back in harness. The other recruit was one Higgins, an amateur aspirant for Bostonian colors, who played in the infield for the Orange Athletic club until recently. He will be given a trial, and if he comes up to league requirements will also be asked to put his name to a contract. Score:

That we do not claim the goods we sell to be in any respect different from what other people sell, except in price. All our goods are new goods (1898 goods) and amongst them is nothing that we are selling for 25 cts. on the dollar. Our expenses are small and we sell our goods for all they are worth, but do not sometimes have to sell them for more than they are worth, like some merchants do to help pay the enormous expense they are under.

We have about 200 Negligee Shirts, which we will sell this week and next week, too, if we do not sell them all for 69c. We have them in all styles, with attached and detached collars. We would not have you believe they are the $1.00 kind. Although some are woolen madras goods, which are usually sold for that price. Some others sell some of them for 75c. and claim they are worth $1.00. We guarantee everything we sell, and will always pay your money back if goods purchased are not satisfactory.

INITIAL MOVE.

Spain Wants a Termination of War.

Desire Communicated to the President.

Wide Field of Conjecture as to the Probable Terms.

Surrender of Cuba and Porto Rico Certain.

Washington, July 27.—Spain has at last consented to sue for peace. Today perhaps marks the commencement of the last stage of the war. Whether these hopes are realized depends upon the sincerity of Spain, and how far her efforts to have peace are made in good faith.

Spain's offer of peace was made directly and without the intervention of any other power. The French ambassador, who since the severance of diplomatic relations between this country and Spain, and who, therefore, is virtually the Spanish ambassador at the present time, was the mediary employed.

The Spanish government knew that it would have been useless to have sought the intervention of any other power. Such interference would have been rejected. It was well understood in diplomatic circles that if Spain wanted peace she must deal directly with the United States, and that no other course would be tolerated.

Although peace rumors have been current almost daily since the war began, none of them had the shadow of foundation, and until the French ambassador received instructions from Paris no overtures of any kind had been received. Shortly before midnight Monday night a dispatch to the French embassy made it known that the ambassador would be charged with the mission of opening negotiations in behalf of Spain. The complete instructions, including an official letter from Duke Almadovar, Spanish minister of foreign affairs, was received yesterday morning. Thereupon Mr. Thiebeaut, first secretary of the embassy, called at the state department and asked that an hour be appointed for a call by Ambassador Cambon on the president. The purpose of the call was not stated. It was arranged that the call should be made at 3 o'clock. Mr. Cambon first went to the state department, where he was joined by Secretary Day, and the two then proceeded to the White House.

The call lasted about half an hour, and after the first formalities had been executed by Mr. Cambon the talk became general and quite informal, the president, the ambassador and the secretary of state discussing the outlook for a conclusion of hostilities. The proposition submitted by the ambassador was quite general in terms, and was confined to the essential point of an earnest plea that negotiations be opened for the purpose of terminating the war and arriving at terms of peace. The communication of the Spanish government did not suggest specific terms, nor was there any reference to Cuba, the Philippines, Porto Rico, or other Spanish possessions. The evident purpose of the Malrid authorities was first to learn whether the United States would treat on the subject of peace, and after that to take up such terms as the two parties might suggest. There was no suggestion from the Spanish that an armistice be established pending the peace negotiations. It seemed natural, however, from the proposition that when formal negotiations are entered upon and pending their conclusion a cessation of hostilities would occur.

Owing to the importance of the communication the ambassador adopted the usual procedure of reading the communication from the original in French, the translation being submitted by Mr. Thiebeaut. In the conversation which followed neither the president nor the ambassador entered upon the question of the terms of peace. It was evident that the president desired to consider the proposition to open negotiations before giving a definite reply. It was finally determined that the president would consult the members of his cabinet concerning the proposition, and after a decision had been arrived at Mr. Cambon would be invited for further conference and for a final answer from the United States. Before the call closed a brief of the memorandum was agreed upon in order to set at rest misleading conjecture and to give to the public information on a subject which had advanced beyond the point where diplomatic reserve was essential.

Secretary Long arrived at the White House shortly after the ambassador had departed and had a talk with the president, during which the proposal was gone over briefly. Mr. Long said afterwards that it was an initial move, but, in reply to inquiries as to whether it was likely to bring a speedy cessation of hostilities, he expressed some doubt, saying that no decision on the points involved had been reached thus far.

During the afternoon and evening the president conferred with most of the members of the cabinet, and the proposition to open peace negotiations was thoroughly canvassed. No intimation came from any official source as to the probable character of the answer. There were strong intimations, however, that there would be no acceptance which would imply the stopping of the war when the American arms were adding victories on victories, and the embarking on vague negotiation. It was felt that this government had everything to lose in a subtle game of diplomacy in which the only certain element would be the inaction of our army and navy. For this reason there was a disposition in official quarters to know what terms were in sight before entering upon general negotiations.

From what was told by members of the cabinet who have consulted with the president, it seems practically determined to accept the offer for negotiations. It was stated that in effecting a settlement some beginning had to be made. The offer was to be such a beginning. Nothing could be known about the terms upon which the negotiations will be conducted or proposals to be made until there had been a further conference by those having the matter in charge. Secretary Alger again stated when he left the White House that there would be no change in the plan of the campaign, and the war would go forward with vigor.

A prominent official said, after talking with cabinet officers, that in his opinion the situation was not materially changed by the Spanish proposition and that the war would be pressed with unabated vigor until something more tangible in the way of terms was at hand. In case the negotiations were opened, the means by which they will be carried on are not determined, nor have they been officially considered. It is understood, however, that one means likely to be proposed is to authorize direct negotiation between Spain and this country, Spain being represented by Leon Castillo, the Spanish ambassador in Paris, and the United States by General Horace Porter, our ambassador to France.

Mr. Castillo is one of the foremost diplomats of Europe, and since the war began his chief mission has been to go from capital to capital and endeavor to awaken foreign intervention in behalf of Spain. Failing in this, he has turned his attention to the peace movement as the last chance for saving his country. Castillo is a linguist and speaks English.

While not a veteran in diplomacy, General Porter is regarded as able and tactful, and moreover he would be guided by very explicit instructions from Washington. This plan is quite tentative, however, and it is rather doubtful whether the United States government would consent to have such negotiations removed so far from Washington and conducted in a European capital, where the atmosphere might not be conducive of forwarding the desires of this country.

Naturally the plea of Spain to open peace negotiations opens up a wide field of conjecture as to what the terms will be. Thus far there is not official warrant for saying what terms Spain will propose, or what terms the United States will offer or accept. So far as this country is concerned, it is the general impression that the complete Spanish evacuation of Cuba and Porto Rico will be insisted upon as a prerequisite. There is not the same certainty as to the Philippines, Ladrones and Carolines, although the belief is growing that the terms of the United States will include coaling stations in these groups. It is believed that Spain now has reached such a realization of her misfortune that she will readily consent to the evacuation of Cuba and probably Porto Rico. The Spanish desire is apparently very strong for the retention of the Philippines, although there is little doubt that coaling stations there and at other points would be conceded. The matter of war indemnity is for future consideration. There does not appear to be a disposition among the officials here to pile up a heavy indemnity against Spain in her present helpless condition.

Serious, If True.

Havana, July 27.—The following is the official report of an engagement between the Spanish forces and the American marines Saturday, July 23, near Bahia Honda, 65 miles west of Havana, on the north coast of the province of Pinar del Rio: "On July 23 Mr. Manzanal, mayor of Bahia Honda, left the town about sunrise, with forces of all arms, proceeding in a northerly direction toward Manimani creek and Gobernadora beach, to the west of the entrance of the bay on which the town of Bahia Honda is situated. It had been reported that American ships had been seen there on Friday. On arriving the Spanish forces opened with artillery and musketry fire, compelling the American ships in the offing to withdraw with several losses on board. Of the landing party four were killed, among them a lieutenant, as ascertained from documents on his person. Our troops also sank the boat used in the landing, with eight men, and captured one new remington, a berdan and 100 cartridges. The Spanish loss was three slightly wounded."

Gomez Is Sulking.

Santiago, July 27.—General Garcia and his army have withdrawn in disgust to Baire, Garcia's favorite haunt. Two Americans arriving from the interior say the Cubans are very resentful, and even talk of fighting the Americans later on. The Gomez and Garcia forces are at sword's points because of jealousy over the provisional government near Minas.

Gomez is sulking at Las Villas, refusing to comply with any order from the government. It is the same old story of last year—the Americans and the Cubans do not fraternize. The Cubans persist in bragging of their heroic deeds and remain inactive.

When General Shafter requested of Garcia that he put his men to work on the roads, the Cuban general said: "My men are soldiers, not laborers." The sympathy of the American troops for the Cuban cause is gradually lessening, and now Americans and Spaniards fraternize in the cafes here, drinking together.

Would Yield Nothing.

Washington, July 27.—Senator Foraker of Ohio, the only Republican member of the committee on foreign relations in the city, speaking of a treaty of peace, said: "It is my opinion that whatever terms are made the reason for them will be such as to commend them to the judgment of the senate and they would be agreed to, especially as hostilities will have been ended." He further said: "I do not think we should give up any territory of which we have taken possession. We should retain Porto

JOSEPH B. FORAKER.

Rico and the Philippines and give Cuba independent government and maintain such relations with the people as will ultimately bring about the annexation of the island to the United States by the desire of the people thmselvs."

Snator Morgan of Alabama said he regarded the peace proposals as a sign of submission by Spain. Concerning the terms of peace, he said: "My first proposition would be the complete and unconditional surrender by Spain of all territory over which the flag floats. This would include Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, the Carolines and the Ladrones. I would make this surrender the subject of a separate and exclusive treaty. I would also demand as one of the first conditions of peace the opening of jail doors to all prisoners confined for political offences. This proposition should free all who have been imprisoned because of participation in the insurrection."

A Yarn or What?

London, July 27.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "The result of the protracted negotiations initiated by Germany is that the powers have arrived at a formal agreement to oppose an American annexation of the Philippines, which must remain Spanish."

Suicide, Probably.

Gardiner, Me., July 27.—Mrs. S. J. Crossman of Ellsworth, who visited relatives in Gardiner, left Friday by steamer for Boston. She did not make her appearance in Boston, and on the return of the Sagadahec to Gardiner an investigation of the stateroom revealed her baggage intact. The saloon watchman saw her go on deck and return, then go out again, but did not see her return the second time. Mrs. Crossman had been in ill health, and it is feared that during temporary insanity she may have committed suicide.

Good Afternoon.

Now you can clean up your bicycle while the mud is drying up.

The sewer construction at Wollaston is being pushed at a rapid rate, and in such a manner that it causes but comparatively little inconvenience to teams and pedestrians. After the trenches have been filled the streets are put in such good condition that it is impossible to discern where they have been opened. It is perhaps needless to add that this is a pleasant surprise to the residents.

We do not believe there are many in Quincy, even among those who travel almost daily on Hancock street that are aware of the beautiful beds of plants and flowers there are on Col. Packard's grounds. They are free to the public, as they can be easily seen and admired from the sidewalk, and for this reason, probably many hurry by and cannot find time to stop a few moments and enjoy their beauty. If they were in from the street and ten cents were charged for the privilege of visiting the grounds, what a lot would want to see them; but, because they are free, few of our citizens can find time to take in their beauty. Handsomer beds are nowhere in Quincy to be found, and many hours have been spent to make them attractive, and we all should feel thankful for such a rich treat.

Since the Wollaston Auxiliary to the Mass. Volunteer Aid Association was formed on May 25, 60 surgical shirts, 245 abdominal bands, 12 hospital shirts and about three dozen comfort bags have been made by the ladies. Of the bands, 220 have been sent to Co. K.

Two barrels and two boxes of canned soups, jellies, etc., have been forwarded to the Hospital ship.

Old linen, bandages and rolls of plaster have also been contributed.

About $150 in money have been raised; $78 of which have been sent to the Mass. Volunteer Aid Association for the Hospital ship, and the rest used for purchasing materials.

The religious and secret societies as well as individuals have all kindly responded to the appeal for money, but, if the work is to continue, more will be needed, and all interested are asked to contribute.

The White Sewing Machine Company have kindly furnished two sewing-machines for the use of the ladies in their work, and they have been kept constantly humming during the afternoon for the past two months. The expressmen, too, have very willingly given their services in carrying bundles to Boston.

The Auxiliary wishes to continue the good work, if funds can be procured, and hopes that some of the good ladies who have not been present at the meetings up to this time, will come forward and assist. Sewing meetings are held in the Unitarian vestry every afternoon except Saturday, from two to five o'clock.

Large Catch of Herring.

The schooner Charles H. Dyer, hailing from Gloucester has been doing a thriving business lately catching herring in our bay off Wollaston. Early Tuesday morning the crew caught twelve barrel of mackerel within half a mile off shore. Small boys are out daily trolling, and it is seldom they fail to catch a good mess for their mothers.

Grocers' Day.

Tomorrow is Grocers' day and business, as far as stores are concerned, will be suspended, except in the dry goods line.

The grocers this year have secured a new place for an outing and will go to Sharon, where they will make their headquarters at the Massapoag Lake house. The party will make the trip in two, six horse drags; and the plan is to leave city square at 8 o'clock, and as it is some eighteen miles to Sharon the party will not arrive much before dinner. The ride however will sharpen their already good appetites, and it is safe to say that the hotel proprietor will not make much on their dinners. It is doubtful if there are any sports, for if the weather is pleasant the party will have enough to occupy their attention without indulging in any unneccessary exercise. Mr. John W. Nash, who is chairman of the committee on arrangements, reports that twenty-five have purchased tickets and several others have signified their intention of participating.

Hotter than a Furnace

You say of the weather sometimes, but it is never hotter than you can make your home (if you want to) when you buy a Furnace from that popular dealer, BATES. He has just bought two-carloads. Do you want one?

Incidentally, you might want one of those fine Ranges or a Parlor Stove when you return from the mountains.

My store is as full of bargains as an egg is of meat, and the war with Spain is nothing compared with the havoc in prices. It will cost you nothing to examine and but little if you carry away anything you want. "Remember the Main(e)" thing this week is to see

PRESIDENT McKINLEY

Will Send Answer to Proposal for Peace Tomorrow.

Washington, July 27 -- President McKinley will communicate tomorrow the answer to Spain's proposal for peace. If Spain will give assurance that an armitice will be followed by a treaty of peace and on certain general lines, not made public, the President will accept.

Failed to Land.

Key West, July 27—A report has reached here of the failure to make a landing in Cuba of the steamer Wanderer. The steamer, which was not under convoy, had a load of arms and supplies for the Cubans. Part of the supplies had been unloaded by landing parties when the Spaniards appeared and drove them off. Several Cubans were wounded.

Satisfaction Expressed.

London, July 27—The statement is made here that the denial from Madrid that peace negotiations were in progress was issued to keep the people quiet. Much satisfaction is expressed that Spain has at last taken steps to secure peace.

Report Made Public.

Washington, July 7—The report of the captain of the New York on the battle of Santiago has been made public. It is practically a repetition of the other reports.

Report Confirmed.

Paris, July 27—An official bulletin has been issued confirming the statement that the French Ambassador had undertaken to secure peace between the United States and Spain.

—Boston's subway we are told, will be wholly ready for use by October 1, and possibly by September 15. It was a big undertaking.

When pins were first invented they were considered so great a luxury as not to be fit for common use, and the maker was not allowed to sell them in an open shop except on two days of the year at the beginning of January.

Women have worn corsets from the earliest times. The mummy of the Egyptian princess who lived 2000 years before Christ, was discovered in 1872 and around the waist was a contrivance closely resembling the modern corset.

Many readers of war dispatches may have the impression that the yellow fever situation at Santiago is worse than it is. Most of the fever reported is of the malarial or dengue type, and there are comparatively few cases thus far of yellow fever, and those apparently mostly of a mild type.

DIED.

MATTSON—In Quincy, July 27, Mr. Peter O. Mattson, aged 57 years, 7 months and 12 days.

Odd Fellows' Parade.

Next month Boston will witness one of the largest, if not the largest, gatherings of men ever seen in that or any other city, not only in this state, but in the whole United States, at any one time, by a secret organization; and this great meeting of men will be the occasion of the reception of the Sovereign grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows by the grand lodge of the state of Massachusetts. It is entirely out of the question to dwell upon the exact number who will be there during the week, but upon the day of the grand parade, Sept. 21, some have estimated the number in line to exceed 200,000 men, and perhaps that will be setting the number small when you take into consideration that there are over 900,000 members of the order who will all come under this order.

Some Better.

Miss Carrie F. Spear, who has been quite dangerously sick the past month, was removed yesterday to the McLean hospital. There is now hopes of her recovery, although it will take many months. Mr. Frank F. Crane informs us that last night was the first good night's rest he has had for twenty-seven days, owing to the great care and attention he has given Miss Spear, who has been stopping at his residence.

Nantasket Chute.

There are many attractions at Nantasket beach, but none that gives so much pleasure as the chute. Hundreds enjoy a ride daily down the chute and a skip and bounce over the water, others laugh to see the leap that the boats take. Next Monday the new dance hall, which is being erected inside the enclosure will be dedicated, and all will be invited to a free hop. Many from Quincy will undoubtedly be present to enjoy the festive occasion. It is a beautiful ride from Quincy to Nantasket, and the fare is so low that one can afford to take the cars often.

In order to stop the practice of flirting with commercial travelers an Ohio village council has decreed that no girl shall be allowed to loiter in the vicinity of the railroad station unless she can produce a railroad ticket.

A board on the side of a house at Forbes, Mo, was removed the other day by the owners, as it appeared warped. He found a hive in the wall and 125 pounds of honey. The bees had entered through a knot hole.

CUBANS AS SOLDIERS

KENNETT F. HARRIS DESCRIBES THE INSURGENT RANK AND FILE.

General Shafter's Men Regard Them With Good Natured Contempt, but They Have Their Good Points — Cubans Admire Americans—Shoes Are a Sign of Rank.

For the Cuban insurgent the American private soldier has, generally speaking, a sort of good natured contempt. He considers him a loafer and has not a high opinion of his fighting ability, although he concedes that he might make a pretty good "bushwhacker." In this, of course, he has been judging the Cuban by a somewhat superficial observation. He has seen the tattered patriots swinging in their hammocks by the roadside, regarding the marching regiments and trains of artillery as they passed with indifferent, lackluster eyes, and he has concluded that green cocoanuts and coffee comprise their highest ideal and sole ambition.

On the other hand, the Cuban has a profound admiration for the Americanos. He shows this by emulating their drill and by the air of pride with which he wears a discarded soldier's blouse. He has learned to say "good morning" and "hard tack" and is beginning to understand that a 50 cent piece is worth more than three nickels. He is willing at any time to whip out his machete and knock off the top of a cocoanut for one of his deliverers from Spanish misrule, and he will climb a palm and throw the nuts down for a consideration.

It would be unfair and untrue, however, to say that the Cubans are ungrateful for the intervention of the Americans. Some striking instances to the contrary have come under my notice within the last few days. A Cuban muleteer recently brought up a load of provisions for our party from Siboney, nine miles distant from El Paso, and absolutely—almost indignantly—refused to accept payment for the service. Another sent word to a man who had, as he supposed, hired his mule that he would like to have the animal back, for his family were suffering hunger and he had to work for them. He was offered money, but refused to take it, saying, "I would not be a good Cuban if I should sell my help to you, but let me have my mule if you can spare him."

Again, a ragged young negro came into camp the other morning with a basket of ripe mangoes, which he offered to a group of soldiers. One of them took a mango and held out a nickel. It was a beautiful thing to see the courteous smile with which the young gentleman waved aside the proffered coin. "It is my gift, senor," he said. "It is very little, but it is my gift, and I hope you will take some." And the soldier did.

On the whole the Cuban is not a bad fellow. He is amiable if a trifle bloodthirsty, and obliging, although afflicted to a great extent with the "manana" habit. The number of wounded insurgents that have been brought in is of itself proof that they will fight, and it seems impossible that they would choose the life of constant privation and danger they now do for the mere pleasure of hacking an occasional Spaniard to pieces. They must necessarily be actuated by motives of patriotism.

When we were on board the Yucatan, a visiting naval officer from Sampson's fleet was asked what the Cubans looked like and how they were armed. His reply was, "They look like the devil, and they are armed with anything they can get." It was a sufficiently accurate description. Nearly all of the insurgents of Santiago de Cuba are negroes, with perhaps a slight infusion of Spanish blood. The more Spanish blood a man has the higher as a general thing is his rank, though this is indicated to a great extent by the dress of the officer and his degree of cleanliness. Castello's uniforms are washed quite frequently, and as he shaves daily he presents a very strong contrast to most of his command.

No one under the rank of lieutenant wears shoes. A sort of canvas moccasin with a rope sole is worn by the inferor officers and some of the men, but they are getting scarce. Sixty per cent of the men are barefooted, and the rest fasten rawhide sandals on their feet with a thong around the great toe in the antique fashion. Their trousers are of some cotton material, originally white, and open to ventilation by every breeze that blows. Usually a fringed remnant of undershirt and a roughly plaited hat of straw complete the costume, but many of them march naked to the waist.

As for arms, every man has his machete, which ranks next in general utility to the hairpin, and anything in the way of a gun that will explode powder and carry a ball. It has been a perpetual wonder to every one who has seen these troops or bands how and by what system they obtain ammunition for their pieces. They have old Springfields, muzzle loading rifles, fired with percussion caps; Winchesters, Remingtons, Martinis—almost everything but Indian matchlocks—and their ammunition belts are always full.

In addition to arms and ammunition every man carries a basket of plaited rushes, holding about 100 pounds weight of provisions and camp utensils, a brown, well polished gourd or goatskin bottle filled with water and two or or three cocoanuts. Obviously their marches cannot be rapid. One thing they do not inipede themselves with is bedding. On arriving in camp each man proceeds to cut a bundle of sticks of various lengths, which in about ten minutes are framed into neat shelters, ridges, poles, roofs and all. A few handy palm leaves are then laid on for a thatch; two more form a protection from the dampness of the ground, and with a dozen dexterous sweeps in the tall grass with his machete your insurgent has a luxurious couch and a rainproof roof. Then he pillows his head on his pack and sleeps sweetly until his broken winded bugle blows reveille.—Kennett F. Harris in Chicago Record.

SPANISH CRUELTY.

What G. E. Monte Underwent at the Hands of Spanish Guerrillas and Officers.

Perhaps no better proof could be found of Spanish brutality than that furnished by the person of Mr. G. E. Monte, who has recently arrived in Boston from Santiago. Mr. Monte's body is marked in several places. A deep gash running from the crown of his head to his eyebrows shows where a machete of Lieutenant Sienz of the Spanish guerrilla forces reminded Monte of the tyranny of Spain. A deep furrow across his cheek shows the marks of a Mauser bullet which miraculously passed his eye. He was also shot in the back, the bullet being still in his body.

Mr. Monte was a wealthy tobacco planter four miles outside of Santiago. He was born in Rio Janeiro. The enmity of the Spanish soldiers was directed against him because of his house being a meeting place of the Cubans. He disobeyed the order that a white flag should be flown from every house friendly to the government. He constantly slept with his revolver in his hand. Marauders, under the guise of soldiers, committed all sorts of outrages.

Mr. Monte tells how Lieutenant Sienz acted the part of the vandal. On one occasion they destroyed a $1,000 piano bought in Paris. They burned the roof over his head, stole all his cattle, destroyed his crops and wrecked his factory. The climax was reached when Lieutenant Sienz said he had conclusive evidence against Mr. Monte that he was an insurgent. Sienz broke into Monte's house in the night, shot at him several times and struck him repeatedly with his sword. Monte's servants battled with the officers and were all killed or wounded. Monte was tied hand and foot and carried into Morro Castle. He was shut up only a short while, his friend, Gabriel Francois, and the Brazilian consul having some weight with the government. Monte says he is in the United States to stay. He has suffered enough in Cuba, and he is now on the brink of nervous prostration.—Boston Herald.

CONDITION OF HAVANA.

Starving People Given Food as Pay For Work on Intrenchments.

The New York World correspondent has succeeded in getting reliable information of the state of affairs in Havana. General Blanco on Monday, July 18, made a speech from the balcony of his palace to several thousand people. He implored their unconditional support and promised them that whatever territory the Spanish government surrendered they would regain; that Spain would never suffer the loss of any territory while there was a Spaniard living. He promised that the American navy would be destroyed if it attacked Havana. The promise to destroy the American navy aroused the most frenzied enthusiasm, all present swearing they would die rather than surrender.

The work of fortifying the city is being pushed without intermission. Sand batteries have been raised all along the coast from Mariel to Havana and from Havana to Marianao. Deep trenches are being dug around the city. These are the work of starving people, who are paid for their labor with food. Food is so scarce that moneyed people are unable to purchase what they can pay for. General Arola's edict regulating the prices of the necessaries of life is causing great trouble. Not a retailer abides by it, all charging their own prices and many of them being arrested. The reconcentrados get no help. Women and children are found dead on the streets. Cattle have been brought from the Isle of Pines, as well as large quantities of tobacco and vegetables. It is actually the base of supply of Havana. Stores are deserted, and many have been closed by General Blanco's orders. The theaters are kept open every night, playing to empty houses.

Uncle Sam Trusted Him.

A letter was received in North Adams, Mass., recently from Harry Brown of Company M, Second Massachusetts, before Santiago. He wrote on the envelope in place of a stamp. "Kind Uncle Sam, please pass this through. I'm a soldier, broke, with money due." The letter was forwarded all right, and it made his people glad.—Springfield Republican.

Spain cannot depend on the European powers, but she does have faith in yellow fever as an ally.—Indianapolis News.

BRIEF WAR ITEMS.

The London political weeklies see in our war with Spain signs that the United States will soon dictate to the rest of the world.

Admiral Sampson reports that the Spanish warship Maria Teresa will be raised and that the Reina Mercedes can probably be saved.

Wounded regular army soldiers now in Bellevue hospital in New York say the Seventy-first regiment boys fought with great bravery in front of Santiago. The testimony is by men who saw the New Yorkers under fire.

Captain Sigsbee of the St. Paul says that when he saw the wrecks of Cervera's ships he felt no exultation, but merely that brave men had died, as was the case when the Maine was blown up.

Vice President Capote of the provincial Cuban republic says he is satisfied that the purpose of the United States is to establish a republic in Cuba and that the Cubans will fulfill their pledges to this government.

The Cuban junta advises no man to go to Cuba at this time unless he is provided with at least $1,000. Men who go there now seeking work will find it impossible to live unless food is given them by the government.

His Revolver Spoke.

Blackstone, Mass., July 27.—The awful tragedy of Monday night, when Bernard F. Boylan fatally shot his mother-in-law, Kate Maroney, seriously wounded his wife and then sent a bullet through his own brain, is still uppermost in the minds of the people of Blackstone. Mrs. Boylan recovered consciousness and gave the first idea of the scene of those few minutes in the Maroney kitchen.

Boylan entered the house after her mother had arrived from the mill, and Mrs. Boylan stood near the door with her back towards it. Her husband said: "I have something for you," and without further warning commenced to shoot. The first shot entered Mrs. Boylan's back over the left kidney, and as she turned to flee he fired again, the shot entering her abdomen. Mrs. Boylan ran from the kitchen down the back stairs, and her mother ran out of the pantry. Boylan fired another shot, which took effect in Mrs. Maroney's side under the left lung and went into her abdomen. As the women ran the murderer sent the fourth shot after them without effect. The fifth bullet he put into his own head.

Murder and Suicide.

Rutland, Vt., July 27.—Katherine Robinson and her little daughter were found dead in bed at their home in Fair Haven with bullet holes through their heads. Mrs. Metheney, a sister of Mrs. Robinson and a cousin of Mrs. Robinson's husband, died at Lake St. Catherine Monday night in a tent where Mr. Robinson and she had been camping, and it is thought that grief led to the crime.

The officers found the following note in her room from Mrs. Robinson to her husband: "Bev., dear, dear Bev.:—Forgive me; I think I am not quite myself. I cannot, cannot bear it. Forgive for everything I have ever done and remember I am your wretched, heartbroken Kit."

Mr. Robinson gave the officers a will signed by Mrs. Robinson and dated July 25, 1898. In the will many relatives were remembered, and Mr. Robinson was given a generous portion of the estate.

Was She Killed?

Salem, July 27.—A party of boys found the body of a woman, 50 years old, washed upon the shore on Eagle island Tuesday afternoon. In one of her pockets were a piece of hemp rope, two handkerchiefs, a thimble, a pair of black gloves and a metal smelling salts bottle. The meidcal examiner gave it as his opinion that death was not due to drowning, but to suffocation. There was no water in the lungs, while the condition of the head, face and neck indicated that the woman had been suffocated. There were bruiess on the head, but it was not made plain whether they were made before or after death.

CHARY ABOUT PRAISING ANYON.E

Work of All of a Character to Elicit Commendation.

MODEST SCHLEY TAKES NO CREDIT.

Achievement Big Enough For Everybody to Share In the Glory.

Washington, July 27.—The reports on the destruction of Admiral Cérvera's squadron, written by Admiral Sampson, Commodore Schley and the other officers of the American fleet, were given out by the navy department yesterday. Admiral Sampson says in part:

Admiral Sampson says: "The enemy's vessels came out of the harbor between 9:35 and 10 a. m., the column appearing around Cay Smith at 9:31, and emerging from the channel five or six minutes later. The positions of the vessels of my command off Santiago at that moment were as follows: The flagship New York was four miles east of her blockading station and about seven miles from the harbor entrance. She had started from Siboney, where I intended to land, accompanied by several of my staff, and go to the front and consult with General Shafter. A discussion of the situation and a more definite understanding between us of the operations proposed had been rendered necessary by the unexpectedly strong resistance of the Spanish garrison of Santiago. I had sent my chief of staff on shore the day before to arrange an interview with General Shafter, who had been suffering from heat prostration. I made arrangements to go to his headquarters, and my flagship was in the position mentioned above when the Spanish squadron appeared in the channel. The remaining vessels were in or near their usual blockading positions, distributed in a semi-circle about the harbor entrance.

"The men of our ships in front of the port were at Sunday 'quarters for inspection.' The signal was made simultaneously from several vessels, 'Enemy's ships escaping,' and general quarters were sounded. The men cheered as they sprang to their guns and fire was opened probably within eight minutes by the vessels whose guns commanded the entrance. The New York turned about and steamed for the escaping fleet, flying the signal, 'Close in towards harbor entrance and attack vessels,' and gradually increasing speed, until towards the end of the chase she was making 16 1-2 knots, and was rapidly closing on the Cristobal Colon. She was not at any time within the range of the heavy Spanish ships, and her only part in the firing was to receive the undivided fire from the forts in passing the harbor entrance and to fire a few shots at one of the destroyers, thought at the moment to be attempting to escape from the Gloucester.

"When about 10 miles west of Santiago the Indiana had been signalled to go back to the harbor entrance, and at Ascarraderos the Iowa was signalled to 'Resume blockading station.' The Iowa, assisted by the Ericcson and the Hist, took off the crew of the Vizcaya, while the Harvard and the Gloucester rescued those of the Infanta Maria Teresa and the Almirante Oquendo. This rescue of prisoners, including the wounded, from the burning Spanish vessels was the occasion of some of the most daring and gallant conduct of the day. The ships were burning fore and aft, their guns and reserve ammunition were exploding, and it was not known at what moment fire would reach the magazines. In addition to this a heavy surf was running inside of the Spanish ships; but no risk deterred our officers and men until their work of humanity was complete.

"Where the Vizcaya went ashore the Colon was about six miles ahead of the Brooklyn and Oregon, but her spurt was finished and the American ships were now gaining upon her. Behind the Brooklyn and Oregon came the Texas, Vixen and New York. It was evident from the bridge of the New York that all the American ships were gradually overhauling the chase, and that she had no chance of escape. At 12:50 the Brooklyn and Oregon opened fire and got her range—the Oregon's heavy shells striking beyond her—and at 1:20 she gave up without firing another shot, hauled down her colors and ran ashore at Torquino, 48 miles from Santiago. Captain Cook of the Brooklyn went on board to receive the surrender. While his boat was alongside I came up in the New York, received his report and placed the Oregon in charge of the wreck to save her, if possible, and directed the prisoners to be transferred to the Resolute, which had followed the chase. Commodore Schley, whose chief of staff had gone on board to receive the surrender, had directed that all their personal effects should be retained by the officers. This order I did not modify. The Cristobal Colon was not injured by our firing and probably is not much injured by beaching, though she ran ashore at a high speed. The beach was so deep that she came off by the working of the sea; but her sea valves were opened and broken, treacherously I am sure, after her surrender, and despite all efforts she sank. When it became evident that she could not be kept afloat, she was pushed by the New York bodily upon the beach—the New York's stem being placed against her for this purpose—the ship being handled by Captain Chadwick with admirable judgment, and sank in shoal water and may be saved. Had this not been done she would have gone down in deep water and would have been to a certainty a total loss.

"I regard this complete and important victory over the Spanish forces as the successful finish of several weeks of arduous and close blockade, so stringent and effective during the night that the enemy was deterred from making the attempt to escape at night and deliberately elected to make the attempt in daylight. That this was the case I was informed by the commanding officer of the Cristobal Colon.

"I enclose, for the information of the department, copies of orders and memorandums issued from time to time relating to the manner of maintaining the blockade. When all the work was done so well it is difficult to discriminate in praise. The object of the blockade of Cervera's squadron was fully accomplished, and each individual bore well his part in it, the commander in command of the second division, the captains of ships, their officers and men. The fire of the battleships was powerful and destructive, and the resistance of the Spanish squadron was, in great part, broken almost before they had got beyond the range of their own forts. The fine speed of the Oregon enabled her to take a front position in the chase, and the Cristobal Colon did not give up until the Oregon had thrown a 13-inch shell beyond her. This performance adds to the already brilliant record of this fine battleship and speaks highly of the skill and care with which her admirable efficiency has been maintained during a service unprecedented in the history of vessels of her class.

The Modesty of Schley.

Commodore Schley, in his report to Admiral Sampson, after declaring that the signal was first given by the Iowa and then by the Brooklyn, remarks: "I have never before witnessed such deadly and fatally accurate shooting as was done by the ships of your command as they closed in on the Spanish squadron, and I deem it a high privilege to commend to you for such action as you may deem proper the gallantry and dashing courage, the prompt decision and skilful handling of their respective vessels of Captain Philip, Captain Evans, Captain Clark and especially of my chief of staff, Captain Cook, who was directly under my personal observation, and whose coolness, promptness and courage were of the highest order. The dense smoke of the combat shut out from my view the Indiana and the Gloucester, but as these vessels were closer to your flagship, no doubt their part in the conflict was under your immediate observation.

"I have never in my life served with a braver, better or worthier crew than that of the Brooklyn. During the combat, lasting from 9:30 a. m. until 1.15 p. m., much of the time under fire, they never flagged for a moment and were apparently undisturbed by the storm of projectiles passing ahead, astern and over the ship. I congratulate you most sincerely upon this great victory to the squadron under your command, and I am glad that I had an opportunity to contribute in the least to the victory that seems big enough for all of us."

BOSTONS WON.

A Crippled Team Defeated the Brooklyns With Great Ease.

Brooklyn, July 27.—Lewis pitched one of his fine games against the Brooklyns yesterday, and the champions won easily by 6 to 1. He let the locals down to three hits, two of which were of the scratchy order. The only one that was clean earned was made by Sheckard in the fourth, and he was doubled up on a brilliant play by Long. After that not a Brooklyn man reached first. On the other hand, the champions touched up Yeager's curves in lively fashion during the early stages, getting eight hits and five runs. This was a sufficient lead in the circumstances, and, as rain came later, they hurried matters.

They could not help scoring in the sixth, when Long tried to rival Hamilton by stealing second and third and coming in on Sheckard's muff. Captain Duffy also did clever running in the third, when he drew a round of applause by stealing two bases in rapid succession. Major Stafford did not have a chance to distinguish himself in the field, but contributed to the run getting with a sacrifice. Score:

The St. Louis team lost the game in Louisville in the second inning, two errors and four hits netting five runs.

The game in Toronto was a pitchers' battle in which Williams of the Torontos did better work than Eagan of the Providences. Score: 5 to 2.

Both games in Pittsburg with the Cincinnatis were giltedged contests. McCreery's batting and Bowerman's work behind the bat were the features. Each club won one.

The Baltimores beat the New Yorks in a 13-inning game, 4 to 3. Both teams fought hard throughout, and it was anybody's race until the last man was out. Meekin of the New Yorks was injured, and Gettig replaced him. The second game was not started, as both teams had to catch trains.

The Montreals made it five straight from the Springfields, winning in the eleventh, 9 to 8. Both sides protested a decision which did not affect the result.

STARRY FLAG HOISTED

Short Skirmish on Porto Rican Soil, With No Casualties.

Landing Force Popped at by a Few Spanish.

Opposition Quickly Overcome and the Enemy Skedaddled.

St. Thomas, July 27.—The stars and stripes waves on Porto Rican soil, the event occurring Tuesday afternoon, when representatives of General Miles' expedition landed at Guanica and took the preliminary stemp for the subjugation of the island. Little resistance was offered by the Spanish, who fired a few shots and then skedaddled to safety after our guns had laid four of them lifeless.

The Spaniards were completely taken by surprise. Almost the first they knew of the approach of the army of invasion was the firing of a gun from the Gloucester, saucily demanding that the Spaniards haul down the flag of Spain which was floating from a flagstaff in front of a blockhouse standing to the east of the village. The first couple of three pounders were fired into the hills right and left of the bay, and in order to scare the enemy the fighting yacht purposely avoided firing into the town. The Gloucester then hove to within about 600 yards of the shore and lowered a launch, having on board a Colt rapid-fire gun and 30 men under the command of Lieutenant Huse. She was sent ashore without encountering any opposition.

Yeoman Lacy hauled down the Spanish flag and then raised on the staff the first United States flag to float over Porto Rico soil. Suddenly about 30 Spaniards opened fire with Mauser rifles upon the American party. Lieutenant Huse and his men responded with great gallantry, the Colt gun doing effective work.

Almost immediately the Gloucester opened fire on the enemy with all her three and six pounders which could be brought to bear, shelling the town and also dropping shells into the hills to the west of Guanica, where a number of Spanish cavalry were to be seen hastening towards the spot where the Americans had landed. Lieutenant Huse threw up a little fort which he named Fort Wainwright, and laid barbed wire in the street in front of it in order to repel the expected cavalry attack. The lieutenant also mounted the Colt gun and signalled for reinforcements.

Presently a few of the Spanish cavalry joined these who were fighting in the street of Guanica, but the Colt barked to a purpose, killing four of them. By that time the Gloucester had the range of the town and of the blockhouse, and all her guns were spitting fire, the doctor and the paymaster helping to serve the guns. Soon afterwards white-coated, galloping cavalrymen were seen climbing the hills to the westward, and the foot soldiers were scurrying along the fences from the town. By 9:45, with the exception of a few guerilla shots, the town was won and the enemy was driven out of the neighborhood.

After Lieutenant Huse had captured the place he deployed his small force into the suburbs, but he was soon reinforced by the regulars, who were followed by company G of the Sixth Illinois, and then by other troops in quick succession. All the boats of the men-of-war and the transports were used in the work of landing the troops, each steam launch towing four or five boats loaded to the rails with soldiers. Everything progressed in an orderly manner and according to the plans of General Miles. The latter went ashore at about noon, after stopping to board the Gloucester and thank Lieutenant Commander Wainwright for his gallant action.

Guanica is the most lovely spot yet occupied by our forces. It is the seat of the coffee and sugar industry and large herds of cattle are pasturing in the meadows, which are bordered by cocoa nut palms. Many head of cattle and a large number of horses have been driven into the mountains by their owners. Some of them will be recaptured. Guanica is about six miles south of Yauco, of which city it forms the port and with which it is connected by a good road. The town is situated on a bay of the same name which forms one of the best ports in the whole island. The banks to the right are steep and form a natural wharf. Three vessels can lie alongside and unload by means of gangplanks. Vessels of 30 feet draught can enter the bay easily and proceed close in shore. The conspicuous advantage of this port, aside from its excellent harbor facilities for the transports, is the utter absence of fortifications or mines.

BEAR IN MIND

That we do not claim the goods we sell to be in any respect different from what other people sell, except in price. All our goods are new goods (1898 goods) and amongst them is nothing that we are selling for 25 cts. on the dollar. Our expenses are small and we sell our goods for all they are worth, but do not sometimes have to sell them for more than they are worth, like some merchants do to help pay the enormous expense they are under.

We have about 200 Negligee Shirts, which we will sell this week and next week, too, if we do not sell them all for 69c. We have them in all styles, with attached and detached collars. We would not have you believe they are the $1.00 kind. Although some are woolen madras goods, which are usually sold for that price. Some others sell some of them for 75c. and claim they are worth $1.00. We guarantee everything we sell, and will always pay your money back if goods purchased are not satisfactory.

WILL ANSWER FRIDAY.

Course as to Peace Under Presidential Consideration.

Matter of Suspending Hostilities In the Interim.

Only Hitch Probable Over the Colony in the Pacific.

Washington, July 28.—The administration is carefully deliberating over the formal deply to be made to the peace message presented through the French ambassador. Secretary of State Day and Postmaster General Smith went over the situation with the president yesterday and reviewed the course to be taken. Weight is given to the counsels of the postmaster general owing to his diplomatic experiences and study of international questions.

A final conclusion will not be reached until the cabinet has an opportunity to take up Spain's note and our projected answer. There will be no extra session of the cabinet and the matter will not be placed before the president's advisers until tomorrow, when a reply will be definitely settled. The Spanish government will have the answer of this administration in its possession by Friday night or Saturday morning.

The Spanish proposition is clothed with all the solemnity and formality of a government act. The official instructions to Mr. Cambon bear the official signature of Duke Almadovar, the Spanish minister of foreign affairs, and, besides expressing the desire of the cabinet and government that the negotiations be opened, they are given the added solemnity of approval and earnest personal request by the queen regent. The instructions bear the date of Madrid, July 25. These formalities dismiss all question in the minds of officials here as to the wishes of the government of Spain. Aside from this, Cambon is too much of a veteran in diplomatic affairs to have embarked on private overtures toward peace.

Naturally the first point of inquiry was the exact shape taken by the Spanish presentation. Curiosity on this point remained ungratified and must probably so continue for some days to come, the president having decided that nothing more definite than the statement issued from the White House shall be given to the public at this time. The motive is a prudential one, and the president has even gone so far as to suggest to the Madrid authorities the expediency of keeping the text of the Spanish overture from publication for the present.

Character of the Demand.

The next point of interest was the character and extent of the demand likely to be made by the United States as the condition of peace. It is felt that the statement of terms both from Spain and from the United States may be some days off, as there doubtless will be considerable fencing at the outset before the actual point of stating terms is reached. A good deal of this for instance may result from the attempt to define the methods of approach to the object sought, whether through a commission or through the direct exchange of notes. There will be much discussion in all likelihood also regarding an armistice, for it is the distinct purpose of the Spanish authorities to secure a suspension of hostilities pending the negotiations for peace. It may be that the application will be granted, but if so it will be only under the most effective safeguards to prevent loss of any advantage to the United States and upon binding pledges that certain well defined objects are to be conceded to us. The president discussed this complex subject all day with various members of the cabinet as they called in the course of ordinary business. Secretary Day and Postmaster General Smith spent some time at the White House.

It is virtually admitted by leading members of the administration that upon only one point in the peace negotiations is there likely to be serious friction, and that relates to the future of the Philippines. As to Cuba and Porto Rico, all believe that there is a reasonable certainty of encountering little opposition to our demands. The Spanish government might insist upon the proposition thrown out by the vatican, namely, that the United States shall annex Cuba, the ostensible purpose being to secure further protection for the Spanish element left in the island; but while this would be a vexatious point, it would yield to adjustment. As to the Philippines, there is a full expectation of greater difficulties to be surmounted. There is reason to believe that these difficulties will be rather internal than international in their character, at least from the outset. The president is firmly of the opinion that the United States has no use for the islands as a permanent possession. The gravest problems of government would result were the attempt to be made to annex them owing to the heterogeneous and ill-favored character of the large population of the islands, while any effort to unite with other powers in a joint administration might be fairly expected to result as unsatisfactorily as the tripartite arrangement between the United States, Great Britain and Germany for the government of the Samoan group. However, there are evidences that a large element in the United States is of the opinion that the islands should be acquired by the United States, and it is hoped by the president that before it comes to the formulation officially of the United States' demand public sentiment in this country, through newspaper discussion and otherwise, will have so far crystalized as to enable the government to perceive the popular demand clearly.

Early Agreement Possible.

It may be stated that it is confidently expected that when the governments arrive at the point of actually fixing terms they will be found much closer together than is generally supposed. It is felt by officials that with the diplomatic formalities out of the way the actual peace terms would require little time for arrangement; and it is even suggested that the anomalous condition might be presented of Spain's conceding as much or more than the United States felt justified in demanding. There is little reason to doubt that Spain has made up her mind to give up Cuba. It is almost equally certain that she recognizes that she must consent also to the abandonment of Porto Rico. With those two vital points passed, there is every disposition here not to press with undue severity. About the only reason which would impel this government to insist upon an indemnity would be a further resistance by Spain. Speaking broadly, the statement is made that a settlement in which Spain conceded two vital points, namely, Cuba and Porto Rico, and at the same time gained freedom from a war indemnity and a retention of her control of the Philippines, would appear to be a just balance of equities.

Defers to Miles' Judgment.

Nothing was heard from the Miles expedition, but Captain Higginson, the senior officer of the naval convoy, forwarded a brief cablegram that gave keen delight because of the unstinted praise it accorded to a popular and dashing young officer, "Dick" Wainwright, the commander of the Gloucester. Wainwright, having been commended by Higginson for his actions at Guanica, enjoys the solitary distinction of being the only officer attached to Sampson's fleet who has been twice officially commended since the war began.

LIEUTENANT COMMANDER WAINWRIGHT.

The war department has reconciled itself to the summary change in its plans made by General Miles when he landed at Guanica instead of on the northeast coast of Porto Rico. It is surmised that he was led to make this change by reason of the detention of his lighters, and foresaw a week's delay in effecting a landing unless he went in where he did and ran his troops and artillery directly ashore. He thus has avoided exposing his troops to the hardships suffered by Shafter's men as they lay for so many days off Santiago. It is also suggested that the general has scored an important advantage in setting foot upon Porto Rican soil before the first overtures had been received from Spain looking towards peace.

The departure of General Brooke and General Hains from Hampton roads to reinforce Miles in Porto Rico is a very substantial evidence of the purpose of the government not to abate the prosecution of military operations at this stage of the negotiations. The two generals are embarked on rapid liners and should reach General Miles by Monday, putting him in possession of a sufficient force to begin the movement upon San Juan at once.

Cabled to Dewey.

The president has sent a dispatch to Admiral Dewey asking him to give his views as to the value of the Philippine islands to the United States, what portion, if any, should be retained by us for naval and strategical purposes, the prospects of the insurgents being able to establish and maintain a stable government, and his general views on the situation. It is understood the president will be guided largely by Dewey's views. He has the greatest confidence in the admiral's sound judgment, and he has shown himself to be not only a great naval commander but a man of such conspicuous tact and diplomatic ability that the president feels he is a safe counselor, and the country will accept his advice without question and follow his counsel.

Sweet to Die For One's Country.

Havana, July 28.—The bishop of Havana, Mgr. Santander, has published a pastoral in which he says that there are times when war is justifiable, and reminds his people how Saint Louis, St. Maurice and Saint Fernando became perfect in military exercises. The pastoral proceeds: "The war which Spain is sustaining against the United States is a just war. Spain is doing nothing but defending her rights over her possessions. When the United States provoked a war to take away Spanish property, what should a brave, proud and righteous people do? Should they give away their rights to a stronger or more populous claimant? Conscience arises against such injustice, and the appeal is to the justice of God.

"It is sweet to die for one's country and in behalf of God's justice. Life without honor is a thousand times worse than death. It is impossible to ask the heroic Spanish army to lay down its arms without a struggle. The Catholic religion does not enjoin upon its votaries such humility as that. Otherwise nations would be but the playthings of those who do not believe in God. The right to repel force by force is not merely a permissible right; it is an obligatory right. In this case it is all the more so because the United States declared the war. In the days of Pelayo and the times of Isabella, Spaniards cared nothing about the number of their enemies. It was a shame to surrender, and they did not give up their rights. They fought to the death. Neither the army nor the people is the authority to settle the issues involved. When the word goes forth for resistance to invasion, all must obey without murmuring or without finding fault."

The pastoral calls upon the people to give alms to the poor, and to help them in other ways, so that their lives may not be in danger from failing subsistence

Cubans Leave Camp McCalla.

Playa Del Este, July 28.—All the Cuban troops at Camp McCalla were transferred yesterday morning to Caimanera awaiting orders. They rather expect to go to Santiago. The parting between the marines and their Cuban allies was attended with quite a ceremony. A guard was drawn up and the Cubans shouted, "Live the Americans," "Live, Cuba free" and "Live McCalla." It is generally conceded that they have been of great service to the marines.

Spain Addressed Cambon.

Paris, July 28.—French officials assert that the first peace proposal was sent direct from Madrid to Ambassador Cambon in his capacity as representative of Spanish interests in the United States. Mr. Cambon thereupon cabled to the government here, requesting instructions for his guidance in the matter, and received authority to open negotiations.

on the Samoset. They will camp there,

The Times says the cabinet, 10 days ago, concluded to inquire how to terminate the war, which henceforth, in the opinion of the ministers, will be purposeless. They realized that the United States was sensitive of its dignity and that foreign intervention would only irritate, and requested Mr. Delcasse, through Mr. Cambon, to ascertain if the United States would consent to France tendering her good offices. On Cambon responding in the affirmative, Spain's note was immediately entrusted to him.

Promoter Hooley Tells How He Was Fleeced.

Peers and Newspaper Men Victimized Him.

Had to Buy Introductions and to Silence Sordid Journalists.

London, July 28.—The public examination in the bankruptcy court into the affairs of Ernest Terah Hooley, the company promoter, for whose property, on his own application, a receiver was appointed July 23, attracted a big crowd of people Wednesday. The debtor attributed his failure chiefly to his partner, a man named Rucker, crippling the business by drawing out £500,000 within two months.

ERNEST T. HOOLEY.

In detailing the flotation of the Dunlop Tire company, Mr. Hooley said the names on the directorate cost from £80,000 to £100,000, including Lord Albemarle, £12,500, and Lord De La Warr, £25,000. He lost £63,000 on "press calls," these being "shares intended for people connected with newspapers." Mr. Hooley detailed the payments he had made to newspapers, including, it appears, The Pall Mall Gazette, The Financial Post and a number of smaller papers. When questioned about £10,000 paid to Harry Marks, editor of The Financial News, Mr. Hooley denied that it was connected with insertions of "puffs" in that paper.

As a matter of fact the supposed profit on the flotation of the Dunlop company, amounting to £1,700,000, had been "sweated" away to under £200,000. Mr. Hooley further asserted that he gave many thousands of pounds for introductions to Lords Ashburton, Warwick, Norbury and others, and he testified that the Earl of Winchilson received £10,000 for acting as chairman of one of the bicycle tube manufacturing concerns.

The testimony is creating even more of a flutter in the west end than in the city proper. The revelations concerning such men as the Earl of De La Warr and the Earl of Albemarle have been received with astonishment. Numerous instances were disclosed by Mr. Hooley in which a peer bearing a proud title would charge the promoter a sum ranging from £500 to £2000 for an introduction to another peer. Thus, Mr. Hooley said, the Earl of De La Warr received £2000 for an introduction to Lord Greville, while Lord Doerhurst was paid £2000 for an introduction to Lord Ashburton.

Squantum Inn Opening.

Invitations are out for the formal opening of "The Squantum Inn" at Squantum Park on Saturday of this week, although opened informally for business since Saturday last. The guests include several of the city officials of Quincy and Boston and the officials of the Quincy & Boston street railway, and promises to be a notable gathering. Squantum Park is a lovely spot and a fish dinner by Mr. Joseph Lee is sure to be a great attraction and a grand treat. The street railway lines to Quincy and Boston, and the new steamboat line to Marine park are making Squantum park very popular.

—Whenever the empress of the French writes about her lamented husband she invariably uses the diamond pen which signed the treaty of Paris. Each of the 14 plenipotentiaries wanted to keep the pen which sigend the Paris treaty as a memento of the occasion. They, however, yielded to the request of the Empress Eugenie, who begged that one pen should be used, which should be retained by her as a souvenir. Only one pen was accordingly employed, it was a quill plucked from a golden eagle's wing and richly mounted with diamonds and gold.

OFF ON TALLY-HOS.

Grocers and Merchants on Their Annual Outing.

Today is Grocers' day and the city presents a deserted appearance. The drug stores and banks are open and D. E. Wadsworth and the Boston Bargain store; most everything else is closed up. The Old Colony Grocers' Day, which was observed last week Thursday, interfered somewhat with the success of that of the Quincy Association today, and the party that left this morning was not as large as on previous years.

In the party were: John W. Nash, Benjamin Johnson, Jr., A. F. Macleod, John Curtis, George Ames, John F. Merrill, Joseph P. Prout, W. H. Rideout, F. Goodhue, W. H. Callahan, C. F. Derby, Mr. Kemmick, L. M. Pratt, Frank S. Patch, George Spooner, Joseph Johnson, Howard Rogers, P. Coombs, B. H. Bain, Fred Goss, F. W. Tirrell, J. W. Dennen, B. F. Dyer, W. R. Lofgren, D. M. McIntosh, J. H. Gleeson, Mr. Smith, W. E. Brown and William Callahan.

The indications during the early morning hours was that the day would not be over and above pleasant but believing that it would burn off before noon the start was made. It was intended to start at 8 o'clock but at that hour but few had assembled. The grocers usually turn out early, believing that the early bird catches the worm, but this morning they seemed to have decided that someone else could have the worm. It was therefore 8.40 before the start was fairly made and then they went via West Quincy to pick up two who had not appeared.

The trip was made in two six-horse drags, and as it is about eighteen miles to Sharon, the destination of the party, they will probably be hungry by the time they arrive.

TO MOVE UP.

Massachusetts Republican Press Wants Col. Lovell for Lieut-Gov.

There is an almost unanimous approval of the Republican press of its mention of Colonel Benjamin S. Lovell of Weymouth as the running mate of William Murray Crane when it becomes his turn to come before the people as a candidate for governor.

Colonel Lovell is singularly exempt from those personal traits which are usually the consequence of association with men who insist upon being active in political disputes without any special fitness for the work in which they engage. He is a business man in every sense of the word, and an employer of labor, which gives him a right to the fullest consideration as a public man who is useful to the commonwealth.—Dorchester Beacon.

Thomas—Frye.

Mr. William L. Thomas, one of Quincy's well known young men, and Miss Mattie E. Frye, daughter of Mr. William Frye, were united in marriage Wednesday evening, at the residence of the bride's parents, at 27 South street, in the presence of the immediate family and friends of the contracting parties, by Rev. William Hyde of the Trinity church, Weymouth.

The bride who was given away by her father wore a gray travelling dress and carried a bunch of bride roses. At the conclusion of the ceremony a wedding supper was served by Cook of Boston.

After a brief trip to the mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will reside at 27 South street for the present, until their new residence on South street is completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas were the recipients of a number of handsome and costly presents.

It is estimsted that there are 135,000,000 Protestants scattered over the globe; the Roman Catholics number 195,000,000, the Hebrews 8,000,000, the Mohammedans 173,000,000 the Greek-85,000,000. In addition there are 874,000,000 heathens.

SMALLER STATE TAX.

Quincy's Assessment Less Than for Last Six Years.

The tax rate of Quincy will not be known for two or three weeks yet, but the indications are that it will be smaller than last. Both the State and county tax are less, that of the State this year being $10,005.00, which is the smallest since 1891.

In 1890, Quincy's State tax was $8,557.50; in 1891, $7,335.00; in 1892, $10,902.50; in 1893, $15,575.00; in 1894, $12,460.00; in 1895, $10,095.00; in 1896, $11,777.50; in 1897, the same, and this year has dropped to $10,005.00.

The State tax of Norfolk county cities and towns for two years will be of interest:

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Patrick Lofgus and Anna M. Gilligan for adultery at Weymouth was heard.

When we read of an elephant hunter who has been trampled to death in the wilds of India, we wonder at the foolhardiness of a man who will travel round the world and endure all manner of hardships, in order to court death in a far away jungle. A man does not have to make a journey to India in order to court death in a manner equally foolhardy.

Thousands of hard working men are daily courting death in a much more certain form, without ever leaving their native villages or cities. They are the men who neglect their health. They are the men who court death from consumption, or some other deadly disease due to improper or insufficient nourishment. The man who suffers from bilious or nervous disorders, who has a weak stomach and an impaired digestion, who has lost the power to eat, rest or sleep, and who fails to take prompt steps to remedy these conditions, is courting death in the guise of some fatal malady. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 98 per cent. of all cases of bronchial, throat and laryngial affections that lead up to consumption. It soothes the cough, facilitates expectoration and restores the lost appetite. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, makes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food perfect. It invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, nerve tonic and restorative. It is the best of all known medicines for nervous disorders. Dealers sell it and have nothing else "just as good."

"I had a bad cough and got so low with it that I could not sit up," writes Mrs. Mittie Gray, of New London, Union Co., Ark. "Our family physician told my husband that I had consumption. I had pains through my chest and spit up blood. I took your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and it cured me. It saved my life."

the Wanderer. Havana reports describe the landing as a failure and say that four of the landing party, including the lieutenant, were killed. This is the usual exaggeration. One-third of the supplies carried by the Wanderer had been landed and sent into the territory beyond Spanish reach when an overwhelming force of troops appeared and compelled the abandonment of the attempt to land the remainder. None of the American party was killed, but four men were wounded. Their injuries were slight and they will be put ashore in Key West, to which port the Wanderer returned. The vessel made another start for western Cuba, this time with a naval convoy to prevent interruption with her work, and it is believed that before this time she has succeeded in discharging her whole cargo.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, July 28.—"Much as our people would like to see the fighting stop," The Post holds that "public sentiment will not approve the establishment of an armistice pending peace negotiations."

"If Spain means peace," The Journal says that "Uncle Sam will talk it over at the proper time; but meanwhile he will keep his powder dry and his gun handy."

The Advertiser remarks: "Never do today what can be put off until tomorrow and never to follow a straight course when a crooked one is available—these are, if not the maxims, at any rate the practices by which Spanish diplomacy is distinguished."

Passengers Who Were Hogs.

New York, July 28.—The steamship Arandhu of the Tweedie line, trading between the West Indian ports and this city, arrived yesterday with a heavy list to starboard and the cargo stood in her lower hold on fire. The fire made its appearance at 9:30 o'clock Monday night. The wildest excitement followed, and several of the steerage passengers, all Jamaicans, endeavored to seize the lifeboats. Third Mate Saunder was forced to draw his revolver to prevent the men from the steerage leaving the burning steamer in the three lifeboats, which could have easily accommodated the other 45 passengers and members of the crew. When discipline was restored preparations were first made for the saving of the lives of the women and children on the vessel. The lifeboats were lowered into the sea. Thus a panic was avoided and the safety of the 56 persons on board assured until the flames were controlled.

Wednesday's Ball Games.

The Philadelphias and Washingtons played two games yesterday, the Phillies winning both by timely hitting. The second game was called in the seventh inning on account of darkness

The Baltimores and Clevelands will play in Philadelphia a series of four games which were scheduled to be played in Cleveland.

The Clevelands hit Killen of the Pittsburgs as they pleased, while Young was a puzzle for the opposition. Score: 6 to 1.

Stenzel's home run in the ninth saved the St. Louis team from a shutout in Louisville. Harley of the losers, while at the bat in the fourth, had a finger split by a pitched ball. Score: 14 to 1.

Gaston had the better support yesterday, and the Torontos won from the Providences, 10 to 7.

Battle With Robbers.

Muskogee, I. T., July 28.—Five men who attempted to rob a bank in Choctaw were met outside the city limits by 15 citizens of Choctaw, well armed. A pitched battle took place, in which two of the robbers were wounded and three were captured. Miller and Crosby, the leaders of the gang, escaped, but deputy marshals are in pursuit. One of the gang had notified the United States officials of the intention of the robbers to break into the bank, and the officers were watching for them.

Emery B. Gibbs of Brookline is the referee for Norfolk county under the new bankruptcy law. He is appointed for two years. The referees have numerous duties. They shall declare dividends and prepare tabulations of dividends for the trustees of the bankrupt; they shall examine into schedules of the bankrupt's property and his list of creditors, and cause the correction of defective schedules or lists; they shall furnish such information about estates before them as may be requested by the parties in interest; they shall, when requested, make up records embodying the evidence and their findings and transmit them to the court; they shall see to it that the bankrupt files his schedule of property and his list of creditors, and they shall transmit to the clerk of court papers filed with him.

SWORDS PRESENTED.

Captain and Lieutenant of Co. K Remembered.

Camp Dalton
Thursday, July 28.

The dullness of routine camp life was somewhat broken by the arrival on Wednesday of a number of brother Masons and associates of Capt. Kincaide and Lieut. Whitney from Quincy and adjoining towns. The party came to visit camp and mainly to show their appreciation of the officers named. The party consisted of: Dr. F. S. Davis, H. F. Pierce, Dr. F. W. Brett, Past Master F. L. Jones, ex-Mayor C. H. Porter, C. F. Pettengill, wife and daughter, A. W. Stetson, ex-Mayor W. A. Hodges, Chief Engineer Packard, John Page, Fred W. Tirrell, Roger H. Wilde, W. J. Wellington, H. O. Studley, John Curtis, J. H. Whitehead, Fred West, John A. Gordon, J. A. Arnold, J. W. Stevens, H. E. Spear, W. S. Pierce, R. W. Stoddard, George H. Wilson, W. P. Chase, J. W. Hersey and Warren Edwards.

They arrived in South Framingham at 2.55, and rode to camp by special car. Capt. Kincaide was sitting on a court marshal but returned at 4 o'clock. The party encircled the captain's tent and the Company members stood en masse in the rear.

Past Master Fred L. Jones made the presentation speech for Capt. Kincaide's sword and it was done very nicely. He told him of the object of their visit and said he had no doubt that if an opportunity arose the sword would be drawn for glory.

In return Capt. Kincaide pleaded complete surprise but thanked the party and promised to do his duty as a soldier should, with the sword as a remembrance at all times.

Cheers were given by the members of the Company for the delegation and for Capt. Kincaide.

Dr. F. W. Brett, the Junior Warden of Rural lodge, then presented Lieut. Whitney with a sword.

The Lieutenant was so taken by surprise that he could not speak and looked from the token to the givers. He at last collected himself together and said he would let his deeds speak for him.

Cheers were given for Lieut. Whitney, Capt. Kincaide, Lieut. Spear and the visiting party. The visitors then cheered Co. K.

The swords were given by members of Rural lodge of Masons of Quincy of which Capt. Kincaide and Lieut. Whitney are the first two officers.

The visitors were introduced to Col. Whitney of the Fifth. They made an inspection of the camp, not forgetting to look into the mess house.

The swords were beautifully engraved. On the blade were the names and on the hilt were the words: "Presented to our Worthy Brother H. L. Kincaide, Capt. Co. K, 5th Regt. Mass. Vol. by Rural Lodge, F. and A. M., Quincy, Mass., July 27th 1898." and "Presented to our Worthy Brother W. H. Whitny, etc.

The party remained for evening parade and were well pleased by the work.

Col. Whitney was called upon Wednesday by a delegation of Post 66, G. A. R., and presented with a meerschaum pipe.

It is rumored that the Fifth may go to a new camp in Pennsylvania, but it is only a rumor.

Bourgoyne Responsible for the Disaster.

Halifax, July 28.—The court of inquiry into the accident off Sable Island, in which the French liner La Bourgogne was sunk, and many lives lost, finds that the La Bourgogne was responsible for the accident. The court finds that she violated the international rules of navagation and should have kept out of the way of sailing vessels. The court exonerates the sailing vessel from causing the accident.

BOY OF 13 KILLED.

Was Riding With His Father at Braintree.

Alphonse Nesebre of South Hanson, a boy of 13 years, met with an accident, Wednesday afternoon at Braintree, which later resulted in his death at the Quincy City Hospital. The young man was riding on a team with his father, and when near Drinkwater's mill the horse became frightened and jumped, throwing the boy violently to the ground. He struck on his head, causing a fracture of the skull. Hall's ambulance was called and he was removed to the hospital.

Mourned by Railroad Men.

There was a notable gathering of railroad men at Atlantic on Tuesday at the funeral of Mr. James F. Gay, late freight agent of the Boston & Albany railroad. The Albany and the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. were both largely represented, including:

Blood, assistant general freight agent; Charles E. Stevens, treasurer; J. L Snelling, division superintendent; W. Shepard, chief engineer; W. H. Taft, master mechanic of the Boston & Albany. The New York, New Haven & Hartford was represented by Division Superintendent J. H. French and others. Several of the western roads were represented.

The services were simple in character, consisting of prayer and scripture selection by the Rev. Mr. Wittaker of Atlantic, and singing by a quartette. Solos were rendered by Herbert Johnson and Joseph L. White, the latter contributing "Only Waiting."

Many floral pieces were sent by relatives and friends. The freight department of the Boston & Albany railroad sent a large broken column; trustees of the Emergency Hospital, wreath and sickle: Mrs. L. V. Heyer, wreath: Mrs. Josephine Heyer, bunch of roses: Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Robinson, sheaf of wheat and roses; Miss Ayer, basket of roses; Mrs. L. A. Easter, wreath.

SHAFTER AND GARCIA.

Why the Cuban Refused an Invitation to the Surrender.

Scathing Criticism of the Insurgents' Deportment.

"Mango Bellied Degenerates" Name Given Them by Our Soldiers.

Santiago, July 28.—General Shafter, in an interview, throws much light on his controversy with Garcia, the Cuban leader, and now makes public for the first time the fact that he and the Cuban general had some correspondence about their difficulties prior to the open break between them. "The fact is," said he, "I did recognize General Garcia, as far as I could, by inviting him to be present at the surrender of Santiago as my guest. He declined to come, sending this message: 'I cannot be your guest under the Spanish flag.' I have the most kindly feeling for General Garcia, and sincerely regret that he found cause for complaint. It is idle, however, to argue the point, for, no matter how warmly one may sympathize with the Cubans, the proposition to install them in power immediately after the surrender of the Spanish is untenable and lacks support among the Cubans themselves."

Incident of Santiago Fight.

So terrific had been the slaughter of our men, 90 percent of whom were then under fire for the first time, that the fact is, though comparatively few know it, that on the night of July 1 officers of high rank, brave soldiers, too, went to General Wheeler, who was in command at the front (General Shafter being still aboard his ship), and appealed to him to withdraw. They predicted an awful disaster to our arms if we attempted to hold the position we had earned so dearly; but the intrepid old leader of the Confederacy said: "No." He spoke reassuring words to those who came with dire forebodings. "We are in an uncomfortable position, but the Spaniards are more uncomfortable than we. Pass that word down the line." General Wheeler even sent back a dispatch to General Shafter, telling of the pressure that was being brought to bear upon him. "I presume the same influences are being brought to bear on you," he wrote in effect, "but it will not do. American prestige would suffer irretrievably if we gave in an inch. We must stand firm."

When Dr. Goodfellow and Captain Stuart Brice, son of ex-Senator Calvin Brice, took wounded Spanish into the enemy's lines a few days ago, one of the Spanish officers who met them, speaking of the storming of San Juan hill, expressed keen curiosity to know what command the American officers gave as they came on. "We could hear them," said he, "shouting at the head of their men something which sounded like 'Johnson's breeches.' We looked in our dictionaries afterwards, but could make nothing out of it." Captain Brice and Dr. Goodfellow professed ignorance of what it could have been, whereupon one of the troopers who were in the escort explained that the command given was "Charge by rushes," a command invented since the deadly fire of modern rifles has made open order formation necessary.

"Mango Bellied Degenerates."

The Cubans have proved a sorry disappointment throughout this campaign, even to their warmest friends. They have been everywhere except where the battle raged, but their chief and favorite station has been near the commissary. So persistently have they hung about the supply stations that they have come to be known and described, in language more forcible than elegant, as the "mango bellied degenerates." During the various actions since the army landed only seven Cubans, so far as is known, have been wounded. At El Caney, when the pack train brought up supplies for the starving refugees, the Cubans crowded out women and children and demanded rations, not as a privilege, but as a right. Captain Brice, who was in charge, was compelled to knock down two Cuban officers. They were highly indignant, but when they looked at the captain's stalwart frame and saw the flash of determination in his eye; they did not seek to assuage their wounded vanity by trying conclusions with him.

Even as sources of information the Cubans have proved unreliable. They could not be trusted. One of the officers attached to General Shafter's staff is authority for this illustration of their untrustworthiness. Several times he desired certain information from Santiago. In each instance the Cuban officers, with much profusion, assured him that the information would be promptly procured, and they scorned to accept money for the spies who were to be sent into the city. On one occasion a Cuban officer promised to procure him a Santiago paper and deliver it the following day. The day came, but brought neither the paper nor the officer. In 99 cases out of 100 the Cuban, officer or man, discreetly keeps out of the way when the time comes for redeeming a pledge. Such information as they do procure or volunteer usually proves unreliable.

The more our commanding officers see of the Cubans the less they appear to think of them, either as soldiers or as men. Among the officers there are noble hearted individuals, notably General Garcia, who stands head and shoulders above the rest; but the rank and file are without discipline or any idea of military duty. The vast majority seem already to believe that this land of milk and honey is theirs to enjoy, not to fight for. They are willing to let us feed them and achieve the liberty for which they appear to be ill-fitted and ill-equipped mentally and morally. Poll the United States troops in the province of Santiago today, and 9 out of every 100 will say in almost so many words, "We have bought a gold brick in 'Cuba libre.'" The Cuban leaders are vain and jealous, and if they were given the government, the odds are that those who failed to get places of prominence and profit would in the course of a month start a revolution against those who had fared better than they.

"We go to the interior to hold the towns we have taken ourselves," General Castillo said to an interviewer. "Our soldiers, disheartened, have in many instances left us. Our long cherished dream, a Cuban republic, free, independent, is apparently again vanishing in the dim distance. Our men, unpaid in three years, serving entirely for the love of country, deserve some reward. We do not want office or positions. We wish cordial recognition, as brothers in arms, on equal terms, but throughout we were treated with scantest courtesy.

"General Garcia was never made aware of the terms of surrender, or consulted in regard to negotiations or acts. His relation to the town was entirely set aside. When the refugees arrived at El Caney, we considered them as forming the town of Santiago. General Garcia gave me a commission as governor, which was confirmed by a popular vote. I acted as such, regulating and controlling affairs, issuing orders and appointing officers. This commission was not even recognized, and I am here, lying on the outskirts of Santiago, with 100 followers, actually prohibited entry.

"Our grievances in no way weaken our faith in the honest purpose of the American people, expressed in the resolution of congress. On this we now rely. I am no opponent of annexation, and firmly believe it will solve the Cuban problem with the greatest benefit, and to the material advantage of the island, but we desire first the establishment of our republic, the realization of the object of our long fight, and then let the will of the liberated people decide."

Still More Rulings.

Washington, July 28.—The commissioner of internal revenue has held that merchandise brokers are not required to stamp both buyers' and sellers' contracts under the new act. The original note or memorandum of sale is alone held to be subject to the tax, and further, a mere memorandum accompanying an offer to purchase is subject to the tax only when the offer is accepted. Merchandise brokers are held to be commercial brokers, and as such are subject to the tax provided for in section 2 of the new revenue act. The commissioner also has held that merchants, warehousemen, auctioneers and cattle brokers who receive goods, produce of any kind or livestock are not commercial brokers within the meaning of section 2 of the new revenue act, and therefore are not subject to a special tax.

In declaring on the medical schedule, the commissioner says: "Any medicinal article which is compounded by any formula, published or unpublished, will be held to be taxable under schedule B, when it is put up in style or manner similar to that of patent, trademark or proprietary medicine in general, or is advertised on the package or otherwise as a remedy or specific for any ailment, as having any special claim to merit, or as having any peculiar advantage in mode of preparation, quality, use or effect."

Prince Bismarck's Sickness.

Berlin, July 28.—The reports of Prince Bismarck's serious illness are unfortunately verified so far as can be ascertained. The family feared the worst yesterday. The prince is weaker today, but as he slept well last night it is hoped he may again improve. The whole family is assembled at Friedrichsruhe.

From the best available sources it may be gathered that Bismarck's condition is one of diminishing strength and power to fight against chronic disease rather than of sudden collapse or change. His vital organs are sound, and as active as is usual in a man of his age. Although his weight diminishes and is now only 187 pounds, he may live for sometime unless sudden weakness of the heart sets in. The inflammation of the veins of the leg is causing increasing trouble. Some reports say that an open, painful sore on one leg has prevented him from sleeping and has caused general weakness.

Dr. Schweninger, in a public statement, denies alarmist reports. Prince Bismarck's spirits are good, and the doctor distinctly asserts that there is no immediate danger.

The athletes participating in the international tournament had hoped to have the privilege of offering greetings to the prince, but in view of his condition they could not be admitted for the interview.

Honolulu Broke Loose.

San Francisco, July 28.—When the Coptic arrived with the news that the senate had adopted the Newlands resolution making Hawaii a part of the United States, whistles of foundries, mills and steamers were turned loose and pandemonium reigned. Fireworks were set off and 100 guns were fired on the grounds of the executive building. At the same time the Hawaiian band marched throught the streets to the wharf playing American patriotic airs. An immense procession was formed, and a march was made to the executive building.

President Dole was at his beach home when the steamer was sighted. He hurried into town and reached the wharf as the steamer tied up. Captain Sealby of the Coptic was presented with a silver cup by the citizens of Honolulu for bringing the news. The cup bore the inscription: "Annexation. Presented by the citizens to Captain Inman Sealby, R. N. R., who brought the good news to Honolulu."

The leading men of Honolulu have recommended Harold M. Sewall, United States minister to Hawaii, for governor of the islands. It had been generally thought that President Dole would be their choice.

What Rum Will Do.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., July 28.—Gardner McLean, proprietor of a summer hotel in St. Regis Falls, was summoned to his home a few days ago by the announcement of the birth of a child. He reached Saranac Lake badly intoxicated, and quarreled with his wife, who lay almost helpless on the bed with the new born babe in her arms. In his frenzy he pulled a revolver and fired three shots at her, one of which took effect in the abdomen, inflicting a fatal wound.

McLean was arrested, but before he went his dying wife asked him to kiss her, and later in an ante-mortem statement tried to exonerate him. McLean when he came to his senses was mad with grief and remorse, and is making every endeavor to commit suicide.

CHANLER ON GOMEZ.

HE THINKS THE GENERAL'S ARMY COULD GIVE US VALUABLE AID.

Can Blockade Havana on the Land Side Without Trouble — With Ammunition and Provisions Gomez's Men Would Become Splendid Soldiers.

Winthrop Chanler has returned to New York after his successful expedition to aid General Gomez. He was shot through the right arm when the supplies were loaded, but beyond the bandage he wears there are no indications in his appearance of the lively experience through which the Florida and Fanita went at Palo Alto. Mr. Chanler brought additional details concerning the trip. He is anxious to return on another expedition as soon as the government can be persuaded to send one. He believes that General Gomez and his forces will prove most valuable allies and in case of peace would supply the best kind of police for the island until the questions certain to arise have been finally settled.

"General Gomez and his men could blockade Havana on the land side without trouble and make the blockade much more complete than it has been yet," he said to a reporter. "The blockade of Havana has been run, and cattle are frequently landed on the small keys near the town. This may be no longer possible, since there is not now a Spanish fleet for the ships of the navy to watch. Provisions have not been landed at Havana in great quantities, but there has been enough beef taken in to feed the soldiers. If General Gomez were supplied with ammunition and provisions by our government, he would be able to make the blockade absolute. He would do it in the best possible way—by seizing the railroad system and preventing all communication with Las Tunas, Cienfuegos and other towns.

"We found the Cuban officers with General Gomez to be cultivated gentlemen. Many of them were in a wretched condition. The insurgent army which he has is composed of excellent fighters who are willing to meet the Spaniards man to man and could defeat them then. There has been little fighting of late, largely because the Spaniards are intrenched in the towns and never come out. The Cubans are not able to take a town, as they are poorly equipped. The blockade has had nearly as bad an effect on them as on the Spaniards. Formerly they were able to obtain anything they needed from the Spaniards if they had the money to pay for it. They bought their clothes and provisions until the blockades at Havana and Cienfuegos made that impossible. There has been no meeting between Gomez's forces and the Spanish army partly because the Spanish generals are perfectly willing to remain in the towns, sending out an occasional detachment for a skirmish with the Cubans in order that their men might be killed and they be enabled to draw the pay of the soldiers.

"For the last three months General Gomez did no fighting because his men had neither ammunition nor provisions. Since we landed supplies for them General Gomez has attacked several towns. When I met General Gomez, he had only five pistol cartridges left, and the rest of his men were equipped in about the same fashion. Now they have two dynamite guns, with 350 30 pound projectiles to fit them, and two full batteries of light fieldpieces, ten 3 inch rifles of regular ordnance patterns and 3,500 cartridges. In addition to this the expedition took down 4,000 Springfields with 954,000 cartridges and 200 Mausers with 200,000 shells.

"If the United States could be persuaded to send down another expedition now, it would make most valuable allies of General Gomez and his men. All they need are ammunition and provisions to become splendid soldiers. Now they are half starved and naked. What they need is regular help, relief at regular periods, and this can best be rendered to them by sending several expeditions and not one. If necessary, the supplies can be landed at different points, and the soldiers most in need of relief can be sent to get them while the army which has already been provided for is busy in another part of the Santa Clara province.

"The Cuban officers we met on General Gomez's staff are willing to do everything in their power, but any such thing as a general uprising of the insurgents is looked upon by everybody as a very foolish piece of business. What could a lot of half starved men, women and children do against the Mauser rifles of the Spaniards? If they were properly equipped, some such action might be taken when the American forces come to their assistance. But it is now out of the question, considering the condition of the Cuban army.

"I think that General Gomez believes that the United States merely mean to drive out the Spaniards and turn the country over to the Cubans, but that is not the opinion of many other Cuban officers. They believe that the army has simply come there to take possession of their country, and they have got that impression from the treatment they have received. They have been made to feel that the Americans regard them even with less favor than the Spaniards. They are made to feel that the soldiers look upon them as 'dagoes' and class them generally with all dark skinned people. That makes them suspicious of the purpose of the army. Nothing of the kind has happened in the case of the navy, and there has been no complaint from the officers of any lack of bravery or co-operation among the Cubans. It is ridiculous to say that the Cubans want to loot the towns. General Gomez would never allow anything of the kind. Besides, the towns have been looted by the Spaniards already. The Cubans feel as all men would who are returning to their own homes, from which they have been driven out."—New York Sun.

BEAR IN MIND

That we do not claim the goods we sell to be in any respect different from what other people sell, except in price. All our goods are new goods (1898 goods) and amongst them is nothing that we are selling for 25 cts. on the dollar. Our expenses are small and we sell our goods for all they are worth, but do not sometimes have to sell them for more than they are worth, like some merchants do to help pay the enormous expense they are under.

We have about 200 Negligee Shirts, which we will sell this week and next week, too, if we do not sell them all for 69c. We have them in all styles, with attached and detached collars. We would not have you believe they are the $1.00 kind. Although some are woolen madras goods, which are usually sold for that price. Some others sell some of them for 75c. and claim they are worth $1.00. We guarantee everything we sell, and will always pay your money back if goods purchased are not satisfactory.

Terms Upon Which Hostilities Will Be Ended.

Coaling Station In the Philippines One.

A Guarantee of Good Government For the Islands Must Be Given.

Washington, July 29.—According to the best information obtainable the terms to be submitted to Spain as the price of peace will be: The cession of Porto Rico to the United States; the independence of Cuba, with a recognition of the protectorate of the United States over the island until a stable government has been established; the cession of the Ladrone islands to the United States; cession of sufficient territory in the Philippines for the purposes of a coaling station and naval depot, with the declaration that the government of the islands hereafter shall be satisfactory to the natives of these islands; the Cuban and Porto Rican debts to be assumed by Spain, which pledges its responsibility therefor.

The president has been seeking for light. He has been informed by the Republican leaders in the senate that it is extremely doubtful whether the senate will ratify a treaty which contemplates either a joint protectorate of the Philippines or the restoration of any part of the island of Luzon to Spain. He has observed that the press of the country in the past two days, especially the Republican press, has been substantially unanimous in favor of the retention of the Philippines, and he hesitates to make any admission now at the threshold of the negotiations for peace which will embarrass us later, or which will lead to conditions of peace which are not approved by congress or the country. He is aware that in naming terms at all the administration will be playing with edged tools; and that while the purpose of offering terms to Spain may be to test her sincerity and determine whether she is ready to accept certain indispensable conditions, it is possible that with her well known diplomatic subtlety she may turn our frankness and generosity to our disadvantage.

One of the cabinet members said Thursday: "I believe that for this government to restore the Philippines to Spain after having once freed the islands from the yoke of tyranny, would be a crime against civilization and an exhibition of moral cowardice which would bring us into contempt. The idea that the problems presented there are too difficult for us to grapple with is almost too petty for consideration. Holland, with a population of 4,000,000 people, has governed Java as a colony with a population of nearly 20,000,000 for 200 years, and it would be a curious confession of weakness if the United States, with their 80,000,000, were to withdraw from the Philippines because of a fear that the 8,000,000 Philippinos presented too grave a problem for the American people to grapple with. I am not sure that we want to keep the Philippines, but I am sure that we ought to keep them. It is as much a question of moral obligation as it is of political or commercial advantage."

A Very Opportune Thing.

The recent agitation of the Philippine question with Germany in the foreground as a self-appointed party to its settlement is regarded by the Spanish government, as ours happens to know, as a very opportune thing. The idea is that the fate of the Philippines is one of the matters to be decided when the terms of peace come up for consideration, and that Germany's attitude has placed us in an embarrassing position. Having no desire to rush into another war if it can be avoided honorably, Spain believes that we would be disposed to get out of our Philippine muddle as cheaply as possible, and that would be by heeding Germany's disguised warnings and making terms which will practically hand back the islands to Spain. This covers the motive for her choice of a time, and has made our government rather more independent than it would ordinarily be in the manner of receiving Spain's overtures. Recent events have contributed, also, to the ease with which we could relinquish our grip upon the Philippines as a whole without loss of dignity or cause of self-reproach. The party chiefly responsible for relieving us of our embarrassment is General Aguinaldo himself, who, while he has justly commended himself to our administration by his course of moderation and ordinary adherence to the rules of civilized warfare, has had his undisciplined vanity unduly swelled by his success at arms.

Where Sagasta Falsified.

In diplomatic quarters it is stated that the peace propositions took form in Madrid on Friday last and that not until then had the Spanish cabinet itself determined to risk a direct proposition for peace. Before that day there was doubtless more or less talk in the line of peace, but it was not finally agreed upon as the government policy of Spain. On that day Duke Almadover drafted the proposal to this government, and it was formally agreed that it should be presented direct to President McKinley, the French ambassador at Washington acting as a medium of communication. The proposal was cabled to Ambassador Cambon in cipher, but before acting he advised with his government as to its wishes. In the meantime, the state department received no intimation from the ambassador that Spain was about to present a proposition. The instructions from Paris came last Monday night, too late for the presentation of Spain's proposal that day. Tuesday the state department was asked to arrange for a call by the ambassador on the president, and this being set for 3 o'clock, the proposal for peace for the first time was made known to the United States. Until then there was not even an intimation to this government that the proposition was to be made, so that all cognizance of Spain's purposes to sue for peace dates from 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. It may be said, also, in this connection that at no time previously had the French ambassador or any representative of the French embassy spoken on the subject of peace to any official of this government. The French government had not—and has not now—authorized peace overtures or inquiry relating to peace, nor had the Spanish government, prior to the written communication of last Friday, reached a definite determination to sue for peace.

With these facts established beyond question, the statement attributed to Premier Sagasta, that "We [Spain] resolved on peace many days ago, and made known our resolutions to the United States government," is discredited with great positiveness in those circles having the most intelligent knowledge of the situation. The report, it is pointed out, comes by way of London, which is regarded as furnishing a reason for this indirect effort to prejudice the negotiations.

Place For the Sick and Wounded.

Secretary Alger is deeply concerned over the welfare of the gallant troops under Shafter's command now encamped on the outskirts of Santiago. The health report shows a surprisingly large number of cases of sickness, but army surgeons authorize the statements that these figures are misleading in a certain sense and that the situation may not be nearly so bad as they would seem to indicate. The slightest ailment of the most temporary nature suffices to place a soldier's name on the sick reports, which in their present shape would not distinguish between such a case and one of mortal illness. The inference is that many of these cases in Shafter's camp are of a trivial nature, but go to swell its grand total of sick and wounded. Notwithstanding this mitigating fact, Secretary Alger is going to remove the soldiers at the very earliest opportunity to a more healthful clime.

The surgeon general a few days ago inspected a tract of land adjoining Montauk Point, L. I., belonging to the Long Island Railroad company, which the road offered to the government as suitable for a large encampment. The tract is three miles square, contains an abundance of fresh water, a considerable lake, a hill 150 feet in height and other advantages, including salt water bathing. The necessary orders to equip this as a camping ground will go forward immediately, and every advantage will be taken of the experience gained in the formation of the great camps at Chickamauga and Camp Alger to make the conditions as comfortable as possible for the battle-scarred veterans of Shafter's army. The time for their removal is left to General Shafter, the only limitation placed upon him being that he shall not delay the homeward sailing of his troops beyond the moment when it shall be safe for them to leave Santiago, having regard to the fever conditions. Meanwhile, details are being made of troops to supply the force that shall garrison Santiago so long as it shall be found necessary to continue troops there. This force will be made up almost altogether of immunes.

Statement a Canard.

Washington, July 29.—Secretary Long said that so far as he knew no cable request had been sent to Admiral Dewey to give his views on the political future of the Philippines. Moreover, the suggestion that the administration desired the advice of Dewey as a preliminary to the answer to Spain's peace proposal is manifestly improbable, as it would take four or five days for a dispatch boat to get the government's message from Hong Kong to Admiral Dewey at Manila, and as much longer to get back the reply, whereas the government's answer to Spain's proposal will be made immediately.

Fevers and Dysentery.

Santiago, July 29.—Cubans who hang about the town declare that it is not yellow fever at all, but a severe form of malarial fever. The physicians, however, are treating the disease as genuine yellow fever, and the success of this treatment is considered highly gratifying by all in the camp.

One of the regiments which suffered most from exposure and uncomfortable conditions is the Ninth Massachusetts, and, therefore, it is not regarded as surprising that there is a good deal of sickness in the regiment; but officers and physicians are gratified at the fact that of the 400 or 500 reported on the sick list a great majority of the cases are comparatively mild and harmless. Most of them are swamp fevers, and there are also a large number of cases of dysentery.

Up to the present there has been scarcely any yellow fever in the Ninth, and the few cases reported have proved very mild. This is shown by the fact that up to the present there has been only one death from yellow fever in the regiment—that of Private J. H. Farrell of company H of East Boston, which was reported yesterday. The mild character of the fever cases is also shown by the fact that so many are daily returning to duty. The number of fever cases returned to duty yesterday was 542.

Condition of Bay State Injured.

Washington, July 29.—Adjutant General Corbin made public last night a statement of the condition of the officers and men who arrived at Fort Monroe on the steamship Hudson, July 27, from Santiago. While some of the cases are reported by the surgeons to be serious, the majority of the patients are convalescent.

Captain W. S. Warriner, Second Massachusetts volunteer infantry—Perforating gunshot wound, entrance lower anterior border of left clavicle, exit three inches above left iliac crest; condition, convalescent.

Second Lieutenant Oscar D. Hapgood, Second Massachusetts—Perforating gunshot wound in chest, entrance three inches above right nipple, exit three inches from spine on line with 10th rib; condition, convalescent.

Captain Henry McDonald, Second Massachusetts—Coccygeal sprain sacral joint from fall during battle; condition, convalescent.

Second Lieutenant Daniel J. Moynihan, Second Massachusetts—Perforating gunshot wound, entrance middle axiliary region, right side, through both lungs, exit middle region left side; condition, convalescent.

Culver Not to Blame.

Washington, July 29.—The war department officials declare most positively that Colonel Culver of the Fifth Illinois volunteer regiment at Chickamauga is an innocent victim of misrepresentation. It is reported that because this regiment was turned back from the Porto Rican expedition many men had deserted, the morale of the regiment had been destroyed and the failure to secure active service had been charged up to the secret efforts of Colonel Culver to keep it from going to the front. As a matter of fact the colonel has done all in his power to meet the demands of the regiment in that respect, but he has been a victim of circumstances of which he had no control.

After the Fifth Illinois had been ordered to Porto Rico a delegation of Indiana people waited on the president and pointed to the fact that although there were three Indiana regiments fully equipped and ready for service none had been ordered to the front. It happened that of three Illinois regiments available two had been sent forward in advance of the Fifth, so the department felt obliged in order to avoid a charge of discrimination to substitute one of the Indiana regiments for the Illinois regiment.

At Seavey's Island.

Portsmouth, July 29.—The Spanish prisoners confined at Seavey's island were paid off by the Spanish government, the money being received from Admiral Cervera. The men received from $4 to $10 each in American money.

The official report to the surgeon general shows that there has not been a death among the Spaniards on the island during the past five days. Additional clothes and shoes will be furnished those who need them at the expense of the United States government.

French Parliament to Legislate on the Safety of Ocean Travel.

Hamburg, July 29.—Prince Bismarck's condition still gives employment to his physicians, but there is no ground for anxiety. The pain from which he has been suffering continues, but the last two nights have been comparatively good. His appetite begins to increase and his spirits are good. When told that foreign athletes who had taken part in the turnfest had called at the castle to pay their respects he said: "Tell them I myself have been standing on my head for a week."

Peace Prospers Peru.

Lima, July 29.—The speech of President Pierola at the opening of the Peruvian congress yesterday was notable, and at its conclusion he was loudly applauded. The president said that the national life of Peru was calm and prosperous, and that the foreign relations of the government were friendly, with the solitary exception of an issue raised between Peru and the United States, dating from 1885. With respect to this, he said, Peru had been compelled to accept arbitration under somewhat vexatious conditions in order to avoid a rupture. Negotiations were also progressing with the United States, he asserted, respecting a modification of tariffs. Without discounting the future, the exports for 1897 showed an increase of 50 percent over the previous year, exceeding by $13,000,000 the importations.

Somebody Is Lying.

London, July 29.—Counsel for the Earl of Winchilsea, in a letter published in the newspapers here, makes a formal denial of the statement made by Mr. Hooley, the bankrupt company promoter, that he had paid the earl £10,000 for acting as chairman of one of the bicycle tube manufacturing concerns.

In the house of commons today Robert Ashcroft, Conservative, asked the government whether, in view of the revelations made by Hooley as to payments made to peers and others, the government, at the next session of parliament, will appoint a committee to consider means for protecting company investors.

A Bombardment Unlikely.

Colon, Colombia, July 29.—The presence of the Italian squadron at Cartagena is doubtless connected with the payment of the Cerruti claim, but a bombardment of Cartagena is exceedingly unlikely, as the matter is certain to be settled without harsh measures. The amount said to be still due is $125,000, the payment of which is being pressed, not by Cerruti himself, but by some of his creditors.

Fresh Inquiry Ordered.

Paris, July 29.—The minister of marine has decided to order a fresh inquiry into the loss of the Bourgogne. If it is found that any of the crew failed of their duty, they will be punished. He has also decided to submit to the chamber of deputies a bill providing measures for the better safeguarding of ocean navigation.

In Boston Yesterday.

Boston, July 29.—The First battalion of cavalry, companies A and D, Boston, and company F of Chelmsford, will go into camp Aug. 27 for an eight days' tour of duty.

Simon McPherson, for assault on William Gross with intent to kill, was held in $5000 yesterday. In his turn Gross was held in $1000 for an assault on his wife and on McPherson. Gross, objecting to attentions paid his wife by McPherson, attempted to stop it by force. Mrs. Gross was shot twice and McPherson was badly injured. It was at first thought that Gross fired the shots, but it was learned later that McPherson had a revolver, while Gross used a bottle as a weapon.

Frank P. Collins is under arrest charged with a vicious assault upon John V. McKee, who was stabbed three times, once in the groin and twice in the left side. Neither man would tell how the trouble originated.

Internal Revenue Collector Gill ruled yesterday that receipts for rent do not require a revenue stamp.

Employment and Wages.

Boston, July 29.—The second part of the fifth volume of the census of Massachusetts shows that the average number of persons employed for the state was 432,272, ranging from 375,249, the number employed at the periods of employment of the smallest number, to 518,744, the number employed at the periods of employment of the greatest number. The total amount paid in wages has risen from $147,415,316 in 1885 to $192,970,059 in 1895, an increase of $45,554,743, or 30.90 percent. Boston shows the largest number of persons employed, namely, 57,108, the city's salary roll having doubled since 1885.

Bullet not Located.

The wounded Rough Rider, Winslow Clark of Milton, who was shot by the Spaniards when they ambushed Roosevelt's men near Santiago, was resting comfortably last night at the Massachusetts General Hospital. An operation was performed upon him during the day, but the bullet could not be located. It is believed that the leaden pellet was one of the kind that breaks into small pieces when it strikes a person.

Sergt. Clark, who is 29 years of age, is the son of Mrs. D. O. Clark of Milton Hill, Milton, and is a graduate of Harvard, '92.

He was a member of Roosevelt's Rough Riders, having enlisted as a private in G troop in San Antonio, just before the departure for Tampa.

During the first engagement of the troop on Cuban soil, he acted as adjutant's orderly, and in the famous charge at San Juan, on July 1, was hit by a Mauser bullet, which pierced his left shoulder and entered the lung.

THE DAILY EVENTS.

The Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

Old Sol was a welcome visitor this morning when he appeared out at 9 o'clock.

The recent rains have reinforced the water supply, and the consumption has at the same time been smaller.

Quincy names frequently appear among the contributors to the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association.

A prize dance was held at Fensmere Beach Hotel Thursday night. The attendance was small on account of the rain.

Officers Hanson and Bradey return from their vacations Saturday, and Officers Barry and Holloran go off for two weeks.

The contract for building the new city stable was awarded this morning to A. W. Parker, whose bid was $5,500 exclusive of heating.

This is not good vacation weather and those who left Quincy recently for a yacht cruise along the shore have had fog and rainy weather.

In 1897 the weather for July 25, 26 27 and 28 was very like the weather of Wednesday and Thursday. It was showery and threatening, with great humidity and low thermometer.

Mr. Charles Jones of South street has been engaged the past month in filling in a large gap on his lawn which is now nearly completed and a great improvement.

Three different express teams called at a house on Howard street at Quincy Neck Thursday, to carry away a small lot of goods, but the family moved early in the morning before the teams arrived.

Capt. Stephen B. Wiley of Wollaston started for Provincetown and other Cape ports on his yacht, on Thursday morning. He had as guests Mr. George H. Murray, Mr. S. B. Wiley, Sr., and Mr. A. A. Lincoln.

The ball game Saturday at Merrymount park will be between the T. R. & S. and Prospects. McQueen and Mahoney are the battery for the T. R. & S. and Maguire and Regan for the Prospects, and a good game is assured.

Owing to the light wind and dense fog that prevailed yesterday afternoon, the Regatta Committee decided to postpone the second race in the midsummer series of the Manchester Yacht club until today at 10.30 o'clock. The third race will be sailed in the afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

Sewer Notes.

Engineer Branch has prepared an interesting map of Quincy showing the sewer already built, that under construction and that proposed in the near future.

The board of Sewer Commissioners has changed its night of meeting from Thursday to Friday night.

Work has been commenced laying the twenty-inch sewer pipe from Hancock street, through Woodbine street to Farrington street.

The pumps, machinery and boilers for the pumping station are being placed in position and the grounds about the station are being graded.

Gangs of men are at work in different parts of Wards One, Three and Five putting in the lateral sewers.

Wollaston hill is pretty well covered with the lateral sewers; if any section of the city needs a sewer this is one of the places.

—England is going to spend some $50,000,000 on new war vessels, gunboats, torpedo boat destroyers, etc., in order to keep up her policy of having her navy twice as great as that of any other power. If England's existence depends on such outlays as this, she is paying a terrible price for it, and her future will depend on the depth of her purse. There is no reason why Russia cannot add to her navy on the same scale that England does, and the rivalry can be kept up until the resources of one power or the other are exhausted, with the chances in favor of Russia, because her area is vastly larger and she is not dependent on foreign countries for her food.—New Bedford Standard.

The Ledger has already shown by a previous report of the bureau that Quincy ranked high in number of manufactories. Let us now see if the number of persons employed will also stand the test.

NUMBER EMPLOYED.

The average number employed was 2,685. This was more than the cities of Beverly, Everett, Gloucester, Medford, Northampton, or Woburn; but not as many as in Boston, Brockton, Cambridge, Chelsea, Chicopee, Fall River, Fitchburg, Haverhill, Holyoke, Lawrence, Lowell, Malden, Marlboro, New Bedford, Newburyport, Newton, North Adams, Pittsfield, Salem, Somerville, Springfield, Taunton, Waltham or Worcester.

MOTIVE POWER

In classification of mechanical motive power Quincy showed an increase of 1,437 horse power, or 124 per cent. A much larger percentage than Boston, and larger in fact than all the cities except Chelsea, Fitchburg, Marlboro, New Bedford, and Newton.

Seventy-two per cent. of the capital in manfacturies is invested in cities, and these cities have a smaller percentage than Quincy: Beverly Everett, Marlboro and Medford.

The percentage of value of stock used is smaller in Everett and Medford.

The percentage of value of goods made and work done is less in Everett and Medford.

The percentage of average number of persons employed is smaller in Beverly, Chicopee, Gloucester, Medford, Northampton, and Woburn.

The percentage of total amount paid in wages is less in Beverly, Everett, Gloucester, Marlboro, Newburyport, Northampton and Woburn.

The total value of the goods made and work done in Quincy in 1895 is placed at $3,532,472 and our relative rank is 40, while the city ranks 22 in population. The towns ahead of Quincy in value of goods were Peabody, Gardner, Weymouth, Leominster, Clinton, Attleboro, Hyde Park, Westfield, Blackstone and Plymouth.

HOUR, DAY OR PIECE.

The following table shows the number of hour, day and piece hands classified by sex for that week of the census year during which the greatest number of persons were employed:

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Hour hands,	676	251	927
Day hands.	1,693	44	1,737
Piece hands,	560	83	343
Aggregate,	2,929	378	3,307

The average earnings in the State of the wage earners was $446.41. In Quincy they were $510.92. They averaged lower in the cities of North Adams, Pittsfield, Fall River, New Bedford, Taunton, Beverly, Gloucester, Haverhill, Lawrence, Newburyport, Salem, Chicopee, Holyoke, Springfield, Northampton, Cambridge, Malden, Marlboro, Medford, Newton, Somerville, Waltham, Woburn, Chelsea, Fitchburg and Worcester, or nearly all the Massachusetts cities.

The weekly wages in Quincy were classified as follows:

	Male.	Female.	Total.
Under $5,	38	39	77
$5 but under $6,	106	204	310
$6 but under $7,	68	93	161

$15 but under $20,	879	1	880
$20 and over,	72	–	72

There was an increase in amount paid in wages in Quincy in 1895 over 1885, while five cities reporting a loss.

It was reported that 117 person were employed by manufacturers on salary, the total amount paid being $135,623 or an average of $1,159.17. This was below the State average, which was $1,265.08.

A GRAND DINNER.

Enjoyed by the Quincy Grocers at Sharon.

Although the weather Thursday was anything but pleasant, the showers throughout the day in no way dampened the spirits of those who went to Sharon on the Quincy grocers' excursion. When the party left Quincy there was no rain, and at times it looked as though it would burn off.

At Canton they were greeted by a shower and it was proposed to stop at the Rising sun stove polish works, which they did. Unfortunately the works were not in operation, although Mr. Morse who was in the office invited them to go through the establishment. The party did not drive fast and it was noon before they arrived at Sharon. The spot is a beautiful one and had the weather only been with the party they would have had an elegant time boating, etc., but the elements were against them and they had to content themselves with looking and wishing.

At a little after 2 o'clock the welcome sound of the call for dinner was heard and for an hour or more a most excellent dinner occupied their attention, the menu being as follows:

Consomme Monte Carlo.
Mock Turtle au Madeira.
Sliced Tomatoes. Olives. Lettuce.
Boiled Penobscot. Salmon. Hollandaise Sauce.
Boiled Leg of Lamb, with Peas.
Boiled Potatoes.
Roast Sirloin of Beef, au pis Wax Beans.
Mashed Potatoes.
Croquettes of Chicken en Form.
Queen Puffs, Vanilla Flavor.
Roman Punch.
Roast Domestic Duck. Apple Sauce.
Russian Salad.
Steamed English Plum Pudding.
Sherry Wine Jelly. Assorted Cake.
Tutti Fruitti Ice Cream.
Crackers. Fruit. Cheese.
Demi Tasse.

During the afternoon hours bowling, pool and billiards and music served to occupy their attention until 6 o'clock, at which hour the start for home was made and at 9.30 the drags rolled into Quincy.

HOUGHS NECK.

The weather for the past few days has not been of the kind that the beach people, like especially the store proprietors. Eerything is damp and sticky and then no one comes down unless they are obliged to. Good weather however, is expected soon.

Liable for Military Duty.

It may be of unusual interest just at this time to know that in case the present war with Spain is continued and Uncle Sam desires more soldiers, how many citizens of Quincy are liable to military duty under the act of chapter 367 of 1893. Under this act the Assessors each year compile a list of males between the ages of 18 and 45 years liable to a draft. This list for 1898 has now been completed, and Quincy can be called upon to furnish 3008 men between these ages. By wards the number is as follows:

Ward One,	531
Ward Two,	395
Ward Three, precinct one,	324
Ward Three, precinct two,	308
Ward Four, precinct one,	334
Ward Four, precinct two,	336

ANSWER TO SPAIN.

Cabinet at Washington Considering Terms.

Washington, July 29—The cabinet is now in session considering the answer of the United States to Spain's proposal for peace. It is understood that the propositions the cabinet are considering include the secession of Porto Rico and adjacent coral islands to the United States. The relinquishing of Spanish rule in Cuba. The question of the Philippine islands to be considered later, but the United States to retain a coaling station there. It is more than probable that the cabinet will adopt this answer.

Had Full Sway.

Washington, July 28—General Shafter has issued a statement in which he says that he was not in any way interfered with during the campaign at Santiago by the War department.

Manila Has Surrendered.

Paris, July 29—A cablegram announces that Manila has surrendered to Admiral Dewey. The report is unconfirmed.

More Reports Submitted.

Washington, July 29.—Additional reports from the commanders of Sampson's warships taking part in the battle of Santiago were made public yesterday. They include an interesting report from Captain Cook of the Brooklyn, but its principal features have been covered in Commodore Schley's report. He pays a beautiful tribute to the power and speed of the battleship Oregon.

Shell Was Loaded.

Playa Del Este, July 29.—The body of Karl J. Anderson, a seaman of the Brooklyn, was buried Thursday. He was killed by the accidental discharge of a Spanish 1-pound shell, smuggled from one of the destroyed Spanish cruisers against the orders of Captain Cook. The shell exploded while Anderson was hammering it in an effort to separate cartridge and shell. Several of the Brooklyn's men were around at the time, but all escaped the flying fragments except Anderson. A number of pieces entered his abdomen. The marines paid the last honors. The misfortune had a special accent of pathos because the day of death was Anderson's 24th birthday.

Kansas Volunteer Embezzled.

San Francisco, July 29.—Quartermaster Sergeant Young of the Twentieth Kansas regiment has been ordered under arrest by Colonel Funston, charged with embezzling government property. He is alleged to have sold stores issued as food for the regiment. Young admits his guilt and gives the excuse that he was only doing what every other commissary officer of Camp Merritt has been doing all along. The regimental commanders deny that such a state of things exists in their commissary departments, but the matter will be investigated at once.

Well Enough to Come Home.

Boston, July 29.—Early next week a detachment of wounded Massachusetts soldiers will leave Fort Monroe for their homes. Sherman Hoar of the executive committee of the Volunteer Aid association visited these men in the hospital at that place recently, and, finding that many were able to travel, reported to the association to that effect. Arrangements were made for furloughs with the war department.

The names given by Mr. Hoar of men able to come north are as follows: Scannell, Larkin, Squires, Smith, Carey and Gagnon, Worcester; Nolan, Northampton; Coates, Greenfield; Fortier, Holyoke; Kent, Gardner; Ferier, Springfield; Le Plant, Lawrence; McDonald, Lowell; Marston, Boston; Willard, Orange. These men are doing well, and a speedy recovery is looked for in each case.

Diplomacy When Backed by Force.

South Framingham, Mass., July 29.—The principal address of the day at the Chautauquan assembly yesterday was by Rear Admiral Kimberly, who spoke on "Our Navy." In course of his address the admiral said: "Diplomacy is good, but there are times when it is impotent unless backed up by a strong navy. We are now going to build up our navy to a proper size, and I am glad of it. But no matter how fine ships we have they will be practically useless unless they are manned by capable officers."

The rear admiral then took up the matter of the disposition of the Philippines, saying: "This victory of ours in the far east not only means continued supremacy, but it means the carrying into Manila of 19th century civilization. The only way to solve the problem is to take the islands ourselves, or to set them free after establishing the best form of government we can. We cannot shut ourselves off from the rest of the world any longer. This opportunity has been given to us; we must grasp it."

Boston Opinion.

Boston, July 29.—The Post remarks: "It is a question whether the Spanish rule, bad as it is, is not as good as any that Aguinaldo and his associates can establish. By simply withdrawing and leaving affairs statu quo, we neither shirk any responsibility nor betray any trusts."

The Advertiser says: "The American people wish to mind their own business; but if Europe attempts to interfere in American affairs, it is likely to follow almost as a direct consequence that the United States will promptly consider the advisability of interfering in European affairs."

MORE GIFTS TO CO. K.

24 Pairs of Shoes and 250 Abdominal Bandages.

Camp Dalton,
Friday, July 29,

The sun came out at 8 o'clock this morning and at noon the heat was something terrible. Private Trudell of Co. K was overcome by the heat in the field this morning.

A special detail from Co. L, consisting of a corporal, bugler and eight privates, went to Stoneham this morning to bury a private of Co. L, 6th regiment, who was brought home sick with typhoid fever and died.

Captain Charles W. Facey of Company B Fifth regiment was surprised Wednesday at Framingham by a party of his Cambridge friends who presented him with a new uniform and side arms. City Clerk Brandon of Cambride made the presentation speech.

Yesterday was indeed a very bad day in camp. A slight drizzle in the morning made drilling rather uncomfortable. It started to rain hard at noon and it was necessary to take to the mess houses for the afternoon drill. It is not known whether it was because of the arrival of a few Quincy people or whether it was on account of its being Grocers' day. Several of the clerks came down in the afternoon.

Leonard Ferguson, John Harkins, John Ross and Gene Gallagher were among the number. These gentleman are well acquainted with the boys and spent a pleasant afternoon notwithstanding the weather. They remained until evening.

Capt. Kincaide, through Sergt Crane, purchased 24 pairs of shoes from the firm of Rice & Hutchins. A bill was received at factory price. Upon receipt of bill Capt. Kincaide made out a check for the amount. Before mailing a telegram was received from Mr. W. B. Rice instructing the captain not to pay the bill until he received a corrected bill. It is unnecessary to mention the captain's surprise when he opened his next mail to find a receipted bill for the amount due. Mr. W. B. Rice's heart is in the right place, and it shows where Quincy is, as he is a representative Quincyite.

Capt. Kincaide received a letter yesterday from Mrs. Alma Faunce Smith, president of the Wollaston Auxillary, notifying him of the shipment of 250 abdominal bandages for Co. K. These bandages will be issued when needed and are a useful article, as the men will find when they get south. The captain and Co. K members wish to thank the auxillary for their thoughtfulness and generosity.

The rumors of leaving have worked the men up to so high a pitch that they are, to use slang, somewhat sore," at not going. The officials say that they will get enough before they are through with it, and no doubt they will. The south is well enough but Camp Dalton is a paradise to some of the southern camps. If we are to remain in camp, Camp Dalton is all right until a better adapted one is found.

These little dissappointments are part of a soldier's life and do not interfere in any way with the work of the 5th. They are here to learn, and are putting in the time to good advantage.

Owing to the weather no dress parade was given. MACK.

Blasting ordinance Legal.

A decision of a Somerville judge rules that cities may establish ordinances prohibiting blasting without license. Collins and Ham are joint owners of a stone quarry on Clarendon Hill, West Somerville, and during the present year have several times petitioned the aldermen for a permit to blast. On each occasion the board has refused to grant the request. The firm however ordered the blasts and has now been fined. The cases were appealed.

LEAD PIPE USED.

Julius Johnson Continues to Show Up Plumbing.

The following open letter has been forwarded for publication:

To the Board of Health of the City of Quincy:

On May 11, 1898, I addressed an open letter to your Honorable Board, relative to the charges of neglect of duty preferred by me against the Inspector of Plumbing, Mr. J. J. Keniley, and the admission of guilt of Mr. Keniley and his counsel, and his remarkable plea that "he wouldn't do so any more." At that time, I endeavored to point out the absurdity of your decision that a self-confessed public officer still had the "full confidence" of your board.

Possibly you may have answesed my letter of May 11, but I have failed to receive it, either by mail or to see any reply thereto through the press. As I stated in my last letter, this case will not be settled until it is settled right, if it takes all summer. In the interest of public health and good government, I do not propose to let the guilty man escape, and will not submit to such a whitewashed verdict as rendered by your board, without a thorough ventilation of this cut and dried affair. ways that are dark, and tricks that are vain, should not be practiced by any board of city officials, however much it may be the desire to establish "a Tammany" at City Hall.

If you thought that silence was the better part of valor, and that the matter would blow over and in time be forgotten, you have certainly made a mistake, for I have only just commenced my work of disclosing the inefficiency, irresponsibility, and guilt of the present Inspector of Plumbing. The retention by your board of a self-convicted city official bodes no good to the public, and certainly will not bring renown to the present city administration. The citizens of Quincy, know not when they are safe, or where they are at, under the present regime.

Mr. Keniley admits inspecting over one thousand plumbing jobs which he has been liberally paid by the city. What has the city to show for the "full confidence" bestowed and the work alleged to have been done? Nothing but anxiety in the future. I claim that over sixty per cent. of these plumbing jobs are nothing less than death-traps. This inspector, even after your star-chamber proceedings, has allowed lead pipe to be used for back venting behind partitions and under floors, where he admitted that he knew these lead pipes would be concealed from view. These pipes are exposed to ravages of rats, and nail holes made by carpenters, which will allow the deadly sewer gas to escape into the house without the knowledge of the occupant. Malaria, typhoid fever, diphtheria, and other diseases are inevitable. The doctor is called in, and if he is young and knows it all, he looks wise, shakes his head, prescribes for the disease, but does not locate the cause, because he does not know that behind the partition, or under the floor, there is a lead pipe with a rat hole or a nail hole allowing deadly poison to escape into the house. The result is a large doctor's bill and possibly the loss of a dear friend, all because your present inspector has neglected his duty.

It will require many thousands of dollars to make right this defective plumbing which has been allowed and passed by your Inspector of Plumbing. And who is to pay to make it right? Suppose the parties who have these vent pipes behind the partitions demand that their plumbing shall be made right, and the ordinances of the city complied with? Who is responsible for this state of affairs, if not the Board of Health?

There is not another city in Massachussetts, with a population as large as ours, that has an Inspector of Plumbing who is himself engaged in the plumbing business. You cannot serve two masters; one must suffer. Brockton, New Bedford, Newton, Lynn, Taunton and Somerville, in fact, every city has an Inspector of Plumbing who gives his whole attention to the best interests of the city, and does not devote the larger part of his time to his own private business to the neglect of the city's interests. The office is the most important from any standpoint in the gift of the city, and should have an inspector who would give value received, and should have not only the "full confidence" of your honorable board, but also the full confidence of every citizen of Quincy.

It is too serious a position to trifle or fool with. It is not necessarily essential that the Inspector of Plumbing should be a man who has a political pull, or one who claims to control a certain class of voters, for in this enlightened age men are scarce who are able to carry votes in their vest pocket, and they are not always able to "deliver the goods." The people of Quincy want and demand the best qualified and practical person to be obtained, and it is your duty without fear or favor to see that such a person is appointed to the office of Inspector of Plumbing. Many of our best citizens have petitioned for another inspector, and one whose ability as a practical plumber has never been questioned, who is ready and willing to devote his whole time to the interests of the city.

Having repeatedly asked for the removal of Mr. Keniley, for good and sufficient cause, I shall continue to ask, plead and agitate his removal until right and justice prevail.

Respectful y yours,
JULIUS JOHNSON.

Quincy, Mass., July 28, 1898.

ANOTHER BREAK.

Department Store of A. H. Doble & Co. Visited.

Burglars continue to hover about Quincy and get in their midnight work. The last place reported as being burglarized was the store of A. H. Doble & Co., at South Quincy, which was entered between Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

The character of the break indicates that the party or parties were familiar with the premises. Entrance was made through the stable window; from the loft entrance was had to the bakery by forcing a door with a pair of ice tongs. Here another door was forced to the storeroom and from there through a glass window to the meat room. Here a watermelon was cut. The bakehouse store was next visited and a couple of pies and a box of candy was disposed of.

The next place visited was the grocery department, from which they went to the cashier's office and took what change there was in the stamp box.

Then came the dry goods and shoe department, where several pairs of shoes were taken from the boxes. In order that they should not be soiled a paper was placed on the floor while they were trying on the shoes. They took one pair of shoes to the grocery department, but evidently changed their minds about taking them away, as they were left on the floor.

A SORRY CROWD.

Wollaston Storekeepers Mourn the Departure of a Sharper.

Wollaston storekeepers have just been hit quite heavily by a sharper. He came to Wollaston some time ago and rented a house on the hill. After living there a few months he moved into a handsome place on Beale street, which he also occupied without paying a cent of rent. He cut quite a dash, and, having a pleasing address, easily opened accounts with the grocery stores, newsdealer, druggist, milkmen, fishmarket and provision stores. He and his family lived sumptuously on the credit so lavishly accorded him.

Now he has departed leaving bills to a large amount unpaid, in fact it is understood that the very money paid out by the party while he lived in Wollaston was his car fare to and from Boston. It is a sorry crowd that mourns his departure.

How to Make Goose Terrapin.

Chop enough cold goose to fill two large cups. Add one cold boiled sweetbread, also chopped. Blend a quarter cup of butter with two teaspoonfuls of flour, and pour over it one cup of boiling cream or milk. Add the goose and sweetbread, a saltspoonful of salt and dust of cayenne. Let it heat five minutes, and just before serving grate over two hard boiled egg yolks.

How to Clean Lace.

The following is a good method for soiled blond lace. This lace, it may be noted, demands much care in cleaning. First shake the lace gently, then in an absolutely clean and greaseless vessel boil it in enough water to cover, with a trifle of blue added to it. Boil for one hour and repeat the operation twice more; on the last occasion, however, omitting the blue. Do not wring the lace when taking it from the water the third time, just gently press it between the hands. While still damp pass the lace through weak gum water with a little brandy and alum, and iron gently while damp.

Bridge Was Weak.

Still Pond, Md., July 29.—A wrecking train plunged through a bridge at Worten yesterday, and Fireman Clark was killed and five men were badly injured. The morning passenger train found the bridge weakened from heavy rains and sent for the wrecking train. As the latter passed slowly over the structure the bridge gave way, and the engine, caboose and tool car plunged into the river.

Hotter than a Furnace

You say of the weather sometimes, but it is never hotter than you can make your home (if you want to) when you buy a Furnace from that popular dealer, BATES. He has just bought two-carloads. Do you want one?

Incidentally, you might want one of those fine Ranges or a Parlor Stove when you return from the mountains.

BOYS START WELL.

Took First of the Series From the St. Louis Browns.

St. Louis, July 29.—Hurst and his outfit returned from a very disastrous trip yesterday morning and in the afternoon began a series of four games with the Bostons. The fans knew that the home boys had no chance to defeat Frank Selee's champions, but about 700 of them journeyed to Sportsman's park to witness the fun. They expected that the browns would be treated a la Spanish by Commander "Dewey" Duffy's crew. Instead the home players put up a fair game, but when the smoke of battle had cleared away they had but two runs to their credit to the visitors' six. The "beaneaters" presented a badly crippled team. Hamilton, Stahl and Tenney were out of the game and their substitutes gave good satisfaction. In Yeager, Pickett and Stafford, Selee has picked up three fairly good men, who so far have given great satisfaction. Yeager batted strongly, rapping out a home run and two singles. Long, despite his two errors, played a great game at short. Score:

Mystifying curves and excellent support behind him enabled Piatt of the Philadelphias to shut the Pittsburgs out, 7 to 0.

Wagner won the New York game for the Louisvilles, 6 to 4. He batted in four runs, and scored two.

The Brooklyns could not hit Hawley of the Cincinnatis with men on bases. The Ohioans did their batting when hits meant runs. Score: 7 to 1.

Fielder Shearon of the Montreals dropped an easy one in the fifth, and the Providences scored the winning run. The game was a pitchers' battle. Score: 2 to 1.

The Springfields defeated the Torontos in an 11-inning game, 7 to 6. The score was tied in the ninth, and the finish was exciting. Pitcher Korwan of the winners batted with one hand, having a broken finger on the left hand.

Bottle Contained Water.

Essex, Mass., July 29.—The state police boat Lexington was successfully launched yesterday at 5:40 p. m. Amidst the plaudits of 2000 spectators, the blocks were knocked out from under her, and as the craft slid down the ways, Mildred Proctor, daughter of Captain Proctor of Swampscott, who is to command the steamer, broke the customary bottle, which in this instance contained Essex water, over the starboard bow. A large party of friends of the builder and others in official life from various parts of the state were on the vessel, which was gaily bedecked with bunting.

The steamer is 122 feet long, 10 feet 6 inches deep and 22 feet beam, with an estimated speed of 14 knots, and a displacement of 225 tons. She is to have compound engines of 100 horse power, and a searchlight of 7000 candle power. Her crew will consist of about 10 men.

Morales Has Pronounced.

Tapachula, Mex., July 29.—General Prospero Morales, the Guatemalan insurgent leader who was driven out of the country by President Barrios, not being satisfied with the transmission of power to President Cabrera, has pronounced, and the news from Guatemala is that the government party is much alarmed and has concentrated around Guatemala, daily expecting to be attacked by the revolutionists. The business community and many planters are disgusted with the frequency of revolutions, and many of them advocate annexation to the United States, or the establishment of an American protectorate, and some would like to be annexed ot Mexico.

Glass Was Broken.

Chicago, July 29.—Thousands of window-panes were broken during a heavy hailstorm in this city yesterday. Rain, which fell in torents for an hour after the hailstones had done their work, did great damage to the interiors of apartment buildings and schoolhouses.

In the suburbs trolley wires were down in many places, and streets were made impassable by backwater from the sewers. Many horses were killed by contact with live trolley and electric light wires. The temperature, which had been hovering around 90 degrees for several days, dropped to 68 after the storm.

A FEELING OF RELIEF.

Announcement of Peace Overtures Well Received.

Little Probability of Popular Discontent.

Pretender's Chances Made Dubious by Spanish People's Attitude.

London, July 29.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail, remarking the "feeling of satisfaction and relief the peace overtures have produced," says: "There is little probability of popular discontent, and none at all if Spain is allowed to retain the Philippines and is not compelled to pay indemnity. The attitude of the people makes the chances of the pretender small. Moreover, the Carlists are said to disagree about the advisability of rising. Nevertheless, it is feared that Charles will insist upon carrying out the plans."

Terms "Much Too Hard."

London, July 29.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says: "The terms of peace which America imposes occasion surprise here as much too hard. The National Gazette remarks that the United States has not won a victory signal enough to warrant such terms and expresses the opinion that the prospects of peace are in consequence gloomy."

The Times, commenting editorially upon the above suggestion, says: "This suggestion from would-be friends of Spain merely shows that these critics entirely fail to grasp the military significance of America's sea power. Only by prompt and straightforward dealings with President McKinley can Spain hope to prevent the fruition of American imperial policy in the Pacific, the advantages of which even peace-loving, moderate Americans cannot ignore."

Searching For Their Dead.

Halifax, July 29.—The Hiawatha sailed last night on a cruise in search of bodies of victims of the Burgogne disaster. She will call at Sable island and cruise on the Grand banks and vicinity in search for remains. The expedition is fitted out by John Dillon of New York and W. C. Perry of Kansas City, both of whom lost their wives and children. The General Transatlantic company had been asked to institute a search, but declined, and the work was undertaken by the two gentlemen at their own expense, limiting the quest for members of their own families. The Hiathawa is provisioned for three weeks and carries caskets for enclosing possible remains and men to hermetically seal them if required.

Responsibility for the collision has been placed on the sunken steamer by the court of inquiry.

Struck at a Crossing.

Saratoga, July 29.—George W. Morris, his daughter, Mrs. William Quackenbush, and her baby, all of Gelserville, while driving across the Delaware and Hudson railroad tracks south of this place, were struck by a train and instantly killed.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The project of a European conference regarding the Philippines was brought forward long ago, and there is every prospect that the conference will meet in Paris.

There is a probability of an international question arising over the difficulty of dealing with the Cuban debt, since a majority of the Spanish bondholders are Frenchmen.

After a long trip, made miserable by prevailing headwinds and lack of fresh food, the Carrie and Annie of Boston arrived in San Francisco yesterday. The vessel is bound for Seattle, but she was forced to put in for repairs and supplies.

On July 20 the executive council of the Hawaiian government signed a contract with the Pacific Cable company to lay a cable between the United States and Hawaii and Japan, China and the Philippines, the contract being for a period of 20 years.

A Berlin newspaper professes to know that the Porto Rican colonial legislature has adopted autonomy and has resolved to protest against American occupation of the island as a violation of the principles the United States went to war to enforce.

The British steamship, Adula, captured off Guantanamo bay by the Marblehead, has been declared a lawful prize. She was chartered by a Spaniard, and was on the way to Guantanamo to take out refugees. An appeal to the supreme court will be taken.

The war department has awarded the contract for furnishing beef to the troops in Porto Rico to Swift & Co. of Chicago. The price paid is $9.39 per 100 pounds. The beef is to be of the same quality furnished the regular army, and in such quantity as the department may demand.

Admiral Cervera has forwarded to the Spanish government, through the French embassy, his full report of the naval engagement which resulted in the annihilation of the Spanish squadron. It is very long and treats of the great engagement even more elaborately than Sampson's report to the navy department.

Joseph F. Moss, representing Howe & Hummel of New York, counsel for Martin Thorne, who is under death sentence for the murder of Guldensuppe, the bath rubber, and who is to be electrocuted next week, appeared before the governor yesterday to ask to have Thorn's sentence commuted to imprisonment for life. Governor Black took the matter under advisement.

The government of Hayti has declined to permit this government to establish a weather station on its domain. Its action follows a request for this privilege made by the secretary of state at the instance of the secretary of agriculture with an express explanation of the purposes sought and that the Haytien government would thus get the benefit of our weather service.

MAUSER BULLET WOUNDS.

Surgeons Call Them Humane — Patients Recover if Not Killed Outright.

Lieutenant Colonel Charles Smart, surgeon of the United States army, was recently asked whether it was true, as has been stated in some reports from Cuba, that the Mauser bullet lacerates the wounded to a greater extent than the bullets fired from the American side.

"After the fight at La Guasima and the battles of the 1st, 2d and 3d of July, a report became current that the Spaniards were firing explosive bullets and then that their bullets spread in such a way as to cause great laceration. That was the first report, and it has been repeated constantly ever since. The fact is," he continued, "the Mauser bullets used by the Spaniards in the battles we have had in Cuba make what surgeons call a 'humane wound.' They drop the man at the time he is struck and take him from the firing line, but if they do not kill him then and there he gets well.

"Of all the men wounded in General Shafter's command I have heard of only one case of an amputation of a limb as the result of a bullet wound. The amputations made there have followed a wound by a bursting shell, where the bone has been shattered. The Mauser bullet does not leave a wound nearly so difficult to heal as do the bullets used in the Springfield rifle. The Mauser bullet will pass through the lungs, and the patient will recover. It does not crush bones so that amputations are necessary. A wound made by such a bullet, if it does not affect a vital part, heals as readily as would a slight cut.

"When the medical history of this war is written," said Colonel Smart, "it will show the most remarkable results ever achieved in antiseptic treatment of wounds. Every regiment, except one under General Shafter, was provided with a small package marked 'first aid to the wounded.' This package was carried in the hip pocket by all the men. This was extremely fortunate, because after the transports discharged their passengers they sailed away somewhere with the medicine chests on them. When a soldier was wounded, the doctor reached for the 'first aid' package carried by the soldier himself, and, applying it to the wound, completed the bandaging then and there. This antiseptic treatment caused the wound to heal without the formation of pus and has shown wonderful results."—Washington Star.

AFTER A SUSPECTED CRAFT.

Cutter McCulloch Makes a Rapid Run Up the Bay of Manila.

A San Francisco Chronicle special from Cavite of June 21 says:

"The McCulloch had an exciting chase up under the guns of Manila this morning on a mission that concerned the safety of Flag Lieutenant T. M. Brumby, who left Cavite in a small launch to go to the British cruiser Immortalite, at anchor with the foreign fleet off the mouth of the Pasig river. When he was well up the bay, the lynx eyed watch on the Olympia detected a larger craft steaming out of Manila under a flag that looked like the Spanish colors.

"The McCulloch was ordered to get under way, and five minutes later the dispatch boat went rushing up the bay at a 15 knot gait. Every officer had his side arms buckled on, and the crew stood ready at their guns. She headed direct for Manila in order to get inside the fleet and cut off the retreat of the supposed Spanish boat. When she neared the fleet, it was discovered that the craft under suspicion carried the Austrian flag, and the chase ended. The McCulloch held her course, however, and made a careful examination of the batteries in front of Manila and a close inspection of the foreign fleet. No hostile demonstration was made."

A Maryland Testimonial to Schley.

Mayor Malster has accepted an invitation extended by General Joseph Sprigg of Oakland to assist in the work of raising funds by popular subscription to present Commodore Winfield Scott Schley with an enduring and substantial testimonial in recognition of his work at Santiago. The letter of General Sprigg says: "I think we ought to secure without much trouble $25,000 or $30,000 from the whole state. I am not now advised as to Commodore Schley's financial condition, but if a handsome homestead in which to spend his old age would be acceptable to him I would favor that. But what the testimonial will be can be considered later on."—Baltimore Sun.

Day School at Chickamauga.

An innovation in camp life at Chickamauga was introduced several days ago by Private Sam Tudor, one of the "rookies" of Company L, Second Kentucky, in the establishment of a school for elementary instruction in reading, writing and arithmetic. Tudor has about 20 pupils and more applications than he can attend to.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Her Second Discovery.

It is true that Spain discovered us, but it is only just now that she is beginning to find us out.—Indianapolis News.

Hymn of the Santiago Spaniards.

We're going home, we're going home,
We're going home, manana,
And that is where we've got the bulge
On the dagoes in Havana.

We're going home, we're going home
To tell the folks the story
Of how we scoffed at and defied
And bowed before Old Glory.

We're going home, no more to roam
Through lands the Yanks are after,
And you can bet we'll shun the beat
Patrolled by big Bill Shafter.

Viva Toral! We're going home
To give up war and folly.
We're going home, and glad to get
The chance to go, by golly!

Man dislikes nothing more than to see his Ascot tie on woman. But she has elected to wear it, and wear it she will in spite of his disapproval. She wears it with a thin lawn shirt waist just as readily as she does with a severe tailor-made coat, never stopping to think that man considers the Ascot bad form unless the coat is worn buttoned to hide the ends. But never mind; woman says that the Ascot is swell and becoming to her, so man might just as well make himself contented about her wearing it. Every day sees something new in the Ascots. They are made of duck, cotton cheviot, Japanese silk, gingham, canvas, silk, satin and even wool. The very latest are of a conspicuous plaid material.

Expect to Decide on Terms of Peace.

Washington, July 30.—The Cabinet is now in session and will take a final vote on the peace terms to Spain.

Will Save Maria Teresa.

Washington, July 30.—Admiral Sampson cables that the Maria Teresa will be floated in a day or two.

Arrival of Merritt.

Washington, July 30—A cablegram from General Merritt announces his safe arrival at Cavite. He says his troops did not suffer any, and are in good health. The balance of the expedition will arrive in three or four days. He also says that he will need all the troops assigned him.

Have All Surrendered.

Santiago, July 30—The city of Gibara, the only city under Spanish rule at Santiago de Cuba surrendered to the American navy on Thursday.

A Lobster Case.

Officers Hersey and Chadwick of the fish and game commission visited Houghs Neck Friday, and securing a boat, made a visit to the several lobster cars in that vicinity. They found one owned by Charles Peterson and George W. Rackerman, which the officers claimed was not marked with the owners' name. Peterson and Rackerman, however, claimed the car was marked. They were brought into court this morning, and during the hearing it developed that the violation was a tecnical one. The law says that the car shall have the name and address of the owner, and in this case the car had the name of the owner, but the address was omitted, as Mr. Peterson had been told by another officer that the name only was necessary.

First Prize to Beatrice.

The Beatrice, owned by John Cavanagh of this city, won first prize in the class for 25-footers in the second of the Manchester races yesterday; the Eleanor was second, Little Peter third and Hermes last.

The third race of the series will be sailed Monday at 2 30 P. M. The Crowhurst race will be sailed at 10.30 A. M., instead of 11.30 A. M.

—One of Chicago's most successful business men declares that much of his success is owing to his policy of treating the newspapers right. He says he was never too busy to treat advertising solicitors politely, always endeavored to avoid friction in regard to the setting of his ads, and in every way tried to maintain cordial relations. The result is that the newspapers will go out of their way and often do things out of the ordinary for him. There's a moral in this, don't you think?

You say of the weather sometimes, but it is never hotter than you can make your home (if you want to) when you buy a Furnace from that popular dealer, BATES. He has just bought two-carloads. Do you want one?

game, but when the smoke of battle had cleared away they had but two runs to their credit to the visitors' six. The "beaneaters" presented a badly crippled team. Hamilton, Stahl and Tenney were out of the game and their substitutes gave good satisfaction. In Yeager, Pickett and Stafford, Selee has picked up three fairly good men, who so far have given great satisfaction. Yeager batted strongly, rapping out a home run and two singles. Long, despite his two errors, played a great game at short. Score:

Wagner won the New York game for the Louisvilles, 6 to 4. He batted in four runs, and scored two.

The Brooklyns could not hit Hawley of the Cincinnatis with men on bases. The Ohioans did their batting when hits meant runs. Score: 7 to 1.

Fielder Shearon of the Montreals dropped an easy one in the fifth, and the Providences scored the winning run. The game was a pitchers' battle. Score: 2 to 1.

The Springfields defeated the Torontos in an 11-inning game, 7 to 6. The score was tied in the ninth, and the finish was exciting. Pitcher Korwan of the winners batted with one hand, having a broken finger on the left hand.

Bottle Contained Water.

Essex, Mass., July 29.—The state police boat Lexington was successfully launched yesterday at 5:40 p. m. Amidst the plaudits of 2000 spectators, the blocks were knocked out from under her, and as the craft slid down the ways, Mildred Proctor, daughter of Captain Proctor of Swampscott, who is to command the steamer, broke the customary bottle, which in this instance contained Essex water, over the starboard bow. A large party of friends of the builder and others in official life from various parts of the state were on the vessel, which was gaily bedecked with bunting.

The steamer is 122 feet long, 10 feet 6 inches deep and 22 feet beam, with an estimated speed of 14 knots, and a displacement of 225 tons. She is to have compound engines of 100 horse power, and a searchlight of 7000 candle power. Her crew will consist of about 10 men.

Morales Has Pronounced.

Tapachula, Mex., July 29.—General Prospero Morales, the Guatemalan insurgent leader who was driven out of the country by President Barrios, not being satisfied with the transmission of power to President Cabrera, has pronounced, and the news from Guatemala is that the government party is much alarmed and has concentrated around Guatemala, daily expecting to be attacked by the revolutionists. The business community and many planters are disgusted with the frequency of revolutions, and many of them advocate annexation to the United States, or the establishment of an American protectorate, and some would like to be annexed ot Mexico.

Glass Was Broken.

Chicago, July 29.—Thousands of window-panes were broken during a heavy hailstorm in this city yesterday. Rain, which fell in torents for an hour after the hailstones had done their work, did great damage to the interiors of apartment buildings and schoolhouses.

In the suburbs trolley wires were down in many places, and streets were made impassable by backwater from the sewers. Many horses were killed by contact with live trolley and electric light wires. The temperature, which had been hovering around 90 degrees for several days, dropped to 68 after the storm.

A FEELING OF RELIEF.

Announcement of Peace Overtures Well Received.

Little Probability of Popular Discontent.

Pretender's Chances Made Dubious by Spanish People's Attitude.

London, July 29.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail, remarking the "feeling of satisfaction and relief the peace overtures have produced," says: "There is little probability of popular discontent, and none at all if Spain is allowed to retain the Philippines and is not compelled to pay indemnity. The attitude of the people makes the chances of the pretender small. Moreover, the Carlists are said to disagree about the advisability of rising. Nevertheless, it is feared that Charles will insist upon carrying out the plans."

Terms "Much Too Hard."

London, July 29.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says: "The terms of peace which America imposes occasion surprise here as much too hard. The National Gazette remarks that the United States has not won a victory signal enough to warrant such terms and expresses the opinion that the prospects of peace are in consequence gloomy."

The Times, commenting editorially upon the above suggestion, says: "This suggestion from would-be friends of Spain merely shows that these critics entirely fail to grasp the military significance of America's sea power. Only by prompt and straightforward dealings with President McKinley can Spain hope to prevent the fruition of American imperial policy in the Pacific, the advantages of which even peace-loving, moderate Americans cannot ignore."

Searching For Their Dead.

Halifax, July 29.—The Hiawatha sailed last night on a cruise in search of bodies of victims of the Burgogne disaster. She will call at Sable island and cruise on the Grand banks and vicinity in search for remains. The expedition is fitted out by John Dillon of New York and W. C. Perry of Kansas City, both of whom lost their wives and children. The General Transatlantic company had been asked to institute a search, but declined, and the work was undertaken by the two gentlemen at their own expense, limiting the quest for members of their own families. The Hiathawa is provisioned for three weeks and carries caskets for enclosing possible remains and men to hermetically seal them if required.

Responsibility for the collision has been placed on the sunken steamer by the court of inquiry.

Struck at a Crossing.

Saratoga, July 29.—George W. Morris, his daughter, Mrs. William Quackenbush, and her baby, all of Gelserville, while driving across the Delaware and Hudson railroad tracks south of this place, were struck by a train and instantly killed.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The project of a European conference regarding the Philippines was brought forward long ago, and there is every prospect that the conference will meet in Paris.

There is a probability of an international question arising over the difficulty of dealing with the Cuban debt, since a majority of the Spanish bondholders are Frenchmen.

After a long trip, made miserable by prevailing headwinds and lack of fresh food, the Carrie and Annie of Boston arrived in San Francisco yesterday. The vessel is bound for Seattle, but she was forced to put in for repairs and supplies.

On July 20 the executive council of the Hawaiian government signed a contract with the Pacific Cable company to lay a cable between the United States and Hawaii and Japan, China and the Philippines, the contract being for a period of 20 years.

A Berlin newspaper professes to know that the Porto Rican colonial legislature has adopted autonomy and has resolved to protest against American occupation of the island as a violation of the principles the United States went to war to enforce.

The British steamship, Adula, captured off Guantanamo bay by the Marblehead, has been declared a lawful prize. She was chartered by a Spaniard, and was on the way to Guantanamo to take out refugees. An appeal to the supreme court will be taken.

The war department has awarded the contract for furnishing beef to the troops in Porto Rico to Swift & Co. of Chicago. The price paid is $9.39 per 100 pounds. The beef is to be of the same quality furnished the regular army, and in such quantity as the department may demand.

Admiral Cervera has forwarded to the Spanish government, through the French embassy, his full report of the naval engagement which resulted in the annihilation of the Spanish squadron. It is very long and treats of the great engagement even more elaborately than Sampson's report to the navy department.

Joseph F. Moss, representing Howe & Hummel of New York, counsel for Martin Thorne, who is under death sentence for the murder of Guldensuppe, the bath rubber, and who is to be electrocuted next week, appeared before the governor yesterday to ask to have Thorn's sentence commuted to imprisonment for life. Governor Black took the matter under advisement.

The government of Hayti has declined to permit this government to establish a weather station on its domain. Its action follows a request for this privilege made by the secretary of state at the instance of the secretary of agriculture with an express explanation of the purposes sought and that the Haytien government would thus get the benefit of our weather service.

MAUSER BULLET WOUNDS.

Surgeons Call Them Humane — Patients Recover if Not Killed Outright.

Lieutenant Colonel Charles Smart, surgeon of the United States army, was recently asked whether it was true, as has been stated in some reports from Cuba, that the Mauser bullet lacerates the wounded to a greater extent than the bullets fired from the American side.

"After the fight at La Guasima and the battles of the 1st, 2d and 3d of July, a report became current that the Spaniards were firing explosive bullets and then that their bullets spread in such a way as to cause great laceration. That was the first report, and it has been repeated constantly ever since. The fact is," he continued, "the Mauser bullets used by the Spaniards in the battles we have had in Cuba make what surgeons call a 'humane wound.' They drop the man at the time he is struck and take him from the firing line, but if they do not kill him then and there he gets well.

"Of all the men wounded in General Shafter's command I have heard of only one case of an amputation of a limb as the result of a bullet wound. The amputations made there have followed a wound by a bursting shell, where the bone has been shattered. The Mauser bullet does not leave a wound nearly so difficult to heal as do the bullets used in the Springfield rifle. The Mauser bullet will pass through the lungs, and the patient will recover. It does not crush bones so that amputations are necessary. A wound made by such a bullet, if it does not affect a vital part, heals as readily as would a slight cut.

"When the medical history of this war is written," said Colonel Smart, "it will show the most remarkable results ever achieved in antiseptic treatment of wounds. Every regiment, except one under General Shafter, was provided with a small package marked 'first aid to the wounded.' This package was carried in the hip pocket by all the men. This was extremely fortunate, because after the transports discharged their passengers they sailed away somewhere with the medicine chests on them. When a soldier was wounded, the doctor reached for the 'first aid' package carried by the soldier himself, and, applying it to the wound, completed the bandaging then and there. This antiseptic treatment caused the wound to heal without the formation of pus and has shown wonderful results."—Washington Star.

AFTER A SUSPECTED CRAFT.

Cutter McCulloch Makes a Rapid Run Up the Bay of Manila.

A San Francisco Chronicle special from Cavite of June 21 says:

"The McCulloch had an exciting chase up under the guns of Manila this morning on a mission that concerned the safety of Flag Lieutenant T. M. Brumby, who left Cavite in a small launch to go to the British cruiser Immortalite, at anchor with the foreign fleet off the mouth of the Pasig river. When he was well up the bay, the lynx eyed watch on the Olympia detected a larger craft steaming out of Manila under a flag that looked like the Spanish colors.

"The McCulloch was ordered to get under way, and five minutes later the dispatch boat went rushing up the bay at a 15 knot gait. Every officer had his side arms buckled on, and the crew stood ready at their guns. She headed direct for Manila in order to get inside the fleet and cut off the retreat of the supposed Spanish boat. When she neared the fleet, it was discovered that the craft under suspicion carried the Austrian flag, and the chase ended. The McCulloch held her course, however, and made a careful examination of the batteries in front of Manila and a close inspection of the foreign fleet. No hostile demonstration was made."

A Maryland Testimonial to Schley.

Mayor Malster has accepted an invitation extended by General Joseph Sprigg of Oakland to assist in the work of raising funds by popular subscription to present Commodore Winfield Scott Schley with an enduring and substantial testimonial in recognition of his work at Santiago. The letter of General Sprigg says: "I think we ought to secure without much trouble $25,000 or $30,000 from the whole state. I am not now advised as to Commodore Schley's financial condition, but if a handsome homestead in which to spend his old age would be acceptable to him I would favor that. But what the testimonial will be can be considered later on."—Baltimore Sun.

Day School at Chickamauga.

An innovation in camp life at Chickamauga was introduced several days ago by Private Sam Tudor, one of the "rookies" of Company L, Second Kentucky, in the establishment of a school for elementary instruction in reading, writing and arithmetic. Tudor has about 20 pupils and more applications than he can attend to.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Her Second Discovery.

It is true that Spain discovered us, but it is only just now that she is beginning to find us out.—Indianapolis News.

Hymn of the Santiago Spaniards.

We're going home, we're going home,
We're going home, manana,
And that is where we've got the bulge
On the dagoes in Havana.

We're going home, we're going home
To tell the folks the story
Of how we scoffed at and defied
And bowed before Old Glory.

We're going home, no more to roam
Through lands the Yanks are after,
And you can bet we'll shun the beat
Patrolled by big Bill Shafter.

Viva Toral! We're going home
To give up war and folly.
We're going home, and glad to get
The chance to go, by golly!

Man dislikes nothing more than to see his Ascot tie on woman. But she has elected to wear it, and wear it she will in spite of his disapproval. She wears it with a thin lawn shirt waist just as readily as she does with a severe tailor-made coat, never stopping to think that man considers the Ascot bad form unless the coat is worn buttoned to hide the ends. But never mind; woman says that the Ascot is swell and becoming to her, so man might just as well make himself contented about her wearing it. Every day sees something new in the Ascots. They are made of duck, cotton cheviot, Japanese silk, gingham, canvas, silk, satin and even wool. The very latest are of a conspicuous plaid material.

A Lobster Case.

Officers Hersey and Chadwick of the fish and game commission visited Houghs Neck Friday, and securing a boat, made a visit to the several lobster cars in that vicinity. They found one owned by Charles Peterson and George W. Rackerman, which the officers claimed was not marked with the owners' name. Peterson and Rackerman, however, claimed the car was marked. They were brought into court this morning, and during the hearing it developed that the violation was a tecnical one. The law says that the car shall have the name and address of the owner, and in this case the car had the name of the owner, but the address was omitted, as Mr. Peterson had been told by another officer that the name only was necessary.

He says he was never too busy to treat advertising solicitors politely, always endeavored to avoid friction in regard to the setting of his ads, and in every way tried to maintain cordial relations. The result is that the newspapers will go out of their way and often do things out of the ordinary for him. There's a moral in this, don't you think?

—It is said that Spain once had a chance to sell the Philippines for $200,000,000. The fact that she once had a chance to get about the same price for Cuba indicates that Spain is addicted to the habit of letting goods spoil on her hands.—Cleveland Leader.

WOULD CONTINUE WAR

Spain Wholly Unwilling to Part With the Philippines.

Other Terms Likely to Be Acceded To.

Sacrifice of West Indian Possessions Involved In the Acceptance.

Washington, July 30.—It was stated in a high diplomatic quarter, in such a manner as to give semi-official character to the expression, that if American control or supervision of the Philippines it to be an indispensable condition as the basis for peace negotiations, it is practically certain that the Spanish government will not accede to this condition, but will decide rather to continue the war.

As to the other peace conditions understood to have been decided on by the cabinet yesterday, those who are best able to judge the disposition of the Spanish government feel that while the terms are hard, yet they do not present an insurmountable barrier to the speedy restoration of peace. While there is no authority for saying that Spain would accept and retire from Cuba and Porto Rico, there is every indication that the nation would yield rather than continue a disastrous war. The future of the Philippines appears to be of as much concern to the Spanish government as it is to the American cabinet, and there is even greater insistence on the continuance of Spanish sovereignty over this group than there is over Cuba and Porto Rico.

It is also said that the failure to demand a money indemnity would be appreciated by the Spanish authorities as an act of noble generosity by the victors, and that this will in part reconcile the government to a compliance with the other terms laid down.

The disposition of the Philippines is the question that caused the members of the cabinet to adjourn Friday until today, after five hours of deliberation. On all the other issues unanimity developed. There was to be independence for Cuba; Porto Rico was to be ceded to the United States, and coaling stations were to be acquired at Guan in the Ladrone and the Caroline islands. These propositions were disposed of quickly, but when it came to the Philippines some diversity of opinion was revealed. As near as can be gathered this did not relate mainly to the retention of the islands, on which proposition a majority of the cabinet was speedily recorded in the negative; but accepting the broad proposition that Spain was to be allowed to keep these possessions, other questions of importance developed, and it was felt that these must be answered definitely before the subject could be disposed of. There was no question as to the propriety of demanding a station in the Philippines, and, while there reasonably might be a difference of opinion as to the location and extent of this station, little difficulty was expected to be encountered in solving that problem, because the matter could be referred to the naval war board, whose members are competent to deal with the subject.

The perplexing problem was what form of government should be instituted in the Philippines, and what should be the nature of the guarantee required of Spain that the new government should be liberal and autonomous in character. These two questions hinged on the primary decision to interfere at all in prescribing a change in the conditions in the Philippines. Some members of the cabinet felt that the insurgents under Aguinaldo, having acted independently of the United States from the very beginning of the insurrection, and having lately shown a disposition to make trouble for us, had no moral claim upon the United States in the settlement of the terms of peace. On the other hand it was urged that our government should lose no opportunity to extend its principles throughout the world and that this could be done in the present case by requiring Spain to extend genuine autonomy to the Philippines. It was on such points as these that the discussion proceeded all day.

A point which was quickly established was that there should be no reference of any phase of the question of the disposition of the islands to any concert or individual action by outside powers. Another point that was settled, though there was no formal action, was that no protest against the continuance of military or naval operations pending the peace negotiations would avail in the slightest; that there would be no armistice, no suspension of operations, nor any modification whatever of the present plans until the Spanish government had agreed to the terms proposed.

Incidental to the cession of Porto Rico and the recognition of Cuban independence by Spain was the decision that every vestige of Spanish government and authority in the Carribbean and West Indian waters must be removed, effecting a material acquisition of numerous islands over which the Spanish flag flies, one of the most important of which is the Isle of Pines. Furthermore this sweeping change of authority from Spain to the United States in our nearby waters is to be effective also as a quit-claim of all indebtedness assumed by Spain and charged by her to those islands, so far as the United States is concerned, and all commercial treaties now existing between Spain and her possessions there and outside powers are extinguished.

Probability of Acceptance.

Some discussion was had as to the probability of the Spanish acceptance of our terms. The views differed, though it can be stated that several of the most influential members of the cabinet believed that the terms substantially agreed on would not be acepted by Spain at once. While believing that the propositions made should in all reason constitute the minimum to be considered, some expressed the belief that Spain would not be immediately disposed to reach an agreement on them, and that possibly considerable time would elapse before that government would be ready to yield, meantime seeking a compromise, which, it was asserted, was not to be entertained for a moment. Others took the ground that there was every indication that Spain had decided to make terms, and that what was now proposed would soon be acceded to to avoid further disaster.

News From the Front.

The most important news received at the war department yesterday was a cable dispatch from General Miles announcing the excellent progress being made in southern Porto Rico and the capture of Ponce. The navy department also received a dispatch announcing that the navy had captured the city of Ponce and landed the forces under General Miles. Both departments are very much satisfied with what has been accomplished, and the tone of both dispatches indicates that the rivalry between the army and navy for honors in the Spanish war is not at an end. The department expects an easy conquest of Porto Rico and, notwithstanding the overtures for peace made by Spain, the war will be prosecuted vigorously in that island.

The results thus far achieved by General Miles and by Captain Higginson, who is in charge of the naval squadron, in the occupation of Porto Rico have created a feeling of intense satisfaction among officials. General Miles telegraphed as follows: "Spanish troops are retreating from southern part of Porto Rico. Ponce and Playo have a population of 50,000, and are now under the American flag. The populace received the troops and saluted the flag with wild enthusiasm. The navy has several prizes, also 70 lighters. Railway stock that was partly destroyed is now restored. Telegraph communication is also being restored. The cable instruments were destroyed; I have sent to Jamaica for others. This is a prosperous and beautiful country. The army will soon be in the mountain region. The weather is delightful, and the troops are in the best of health and spirits. I anticipate no insurmountable obstacles in the future. Results thus far have been accomplished without loss of a single life.

"In an affair of the 26th before Yauco, which has been captured, Captain Edward J. Gibson, company A, was wounded in the left hip; Captain J. H. Prior, company L, slightly wounded in the hand; Private James Drummond, company K, two wounds in the neck, and Private Benjamin F. Bosbick, company L, slightly wounded in the right arm. All are of the Sixth Massachusetts, and doing well. The Spanish retreat from this place was precipitate, they leaving rifles and ammunition in barracks and 40 or 50 sick in the hospital. The people are enjoying a holiday in honor of our arrival."

The navy department posted the following bulletin from Captain Higginson of the Massachusetts: "Commander Davis with Dixie, Annapolis, Wasp and Gloucester left Guanica July 27 to blockade Ponce and capture lighters for the United States army. City of Ponce and Playa surrendered to Commander Davis, upon demand, at 12:30 a. m. July 28. American flag was hoisted at 6 a. m. 28th. Spanish garrison evacuated. Provisional articles of surrender until occupation by army; first, garrison to be allowed to retire; second, civil government to remain in force; third, police and fire brigade to be maintained without arms; fourth, captain of port not to be made prisoner. Arrived at Ponce from Guanica with Massachusetts and Cincinnati, General Miles and General Wilson and transport at 6:40 a. m. on the 28th. Commenced landing army in captured sugar lighters. No resistance. Troops welcomed by inhabitants with great enthusiasm. Captured 60 lighters, 20 sailing vessels and 120 tons of coal."

The surrender of Ponce, practically without a struggle, is regarded by the war officials with especial satisfaction. In importance, it is the second city of the island. It has a population of 22,000, with a jurisdiction numbering 47,000. Yauco, mentioned in General Miles' dispatch as having been occupied by the American forces, is only 15 miles from Ponce, and was seized because it is the seat of an important jurisdiction of 24,500 inhabitants. The war authorities say General Miles took possession of Yauco early, because at that point it was known that a large supply of pack mules and carts could be had. These, it is pointed out, will be of immense value to the American expedition in its march upon the capital, San Juan.

Helping Needy Soldiers.

Two orders have been issued which are of importance to the sick and wounded troops and their friends. One authorizes those who have been furloughed from hospitals to report to the nearest government post instead of being compelled to report to the hospital from which they were furloughed. This will allow the soldiers to be transported from the nearest post to their regiments at the expense of the government. Before this order was issued a soldier on furlough from a hospital could not go home without being compelled to pay his fare back to the hospital point. This will apply to men of the regular army as well as volunteers. Another order allows a man furloughed who has not been paid on account of his regiment being away in Cuba to go to the nearest quartermaster and obtain transportation to his home. The cost will be charged to him through the pay department of the army.

Many wounded soldiers from Cuba have been unable to get pay on account of the absence of their regiments, and when their furloughs were obtained could not go home because they had no money. As some of them have not been paid for two or three months, they cannot take advantage of the furloughs granted them and go to their homes.

With respect to the proposition to require Spain to grant an autonomous form of government to the Philippines in the event that she is allowed to retain those islands, it is suggested that little opposition can be expected from Spain. It has been reported already that in their desperation the Spanish officials hemmed in at Manila, with the consent of the Madrid government, have made the broadest promises to the natives if they would return to their allegiance to the crown. Inasmuch as the insurgents are so firmly established in the islands as to make it improbable that Spain could overcome them unaided, it seems only probable that the Spanish government would be willing to make any pledges in the direction of granting an autonomous government that would result in the submission of the natives. The difficulty about the matter is that it might be assumed that the United States has obligated itself to compel the acceptance by the insurgents of autonomy, something it was indisposed or unable to do in the case of the Cuban insurgents.

FOR LOSS OF ANTILLES.

Spanish Sovereignty In the Philippines Would Probably Compensate.

London, July 30.—A special from Madrid says: "Though it is not likely that the government will decide to prolong the war because of Porto Rico, considerable feeling is manifested, and every possible diplomatic effort will be made to retain it. Apparently there is little objection to ceding a coaling station in the Philippines provided Spanish sovereignty is respected in the islands, which, in the opinion of the government and official circles generally, will afford compensation in commerce for the loss of the Antilles, beside procuring occupation for the West Indian army in re-establishing Spanish rule.

"The American reply is still anxiously awaited. Judging from press opinions anything beyond the cession of Cuba will be considered harsh and unjust. This is the unanimous feeling among even the strongest advocates of peace. The people are beginning to realize that pace will mean almost a total loss of colonies and, looking to the delicate and difficult position of the queen regent, great care is necessary to induce the nation to accept the terms. It is feared that the peace negotiations will not be very smooth or expeditious. Already there are premonitory symptoms of agitation against the inevitable concessions, and the correspondent considers it 'very doubtful whether all the ministers have the moral courage to accept the responsibility and to face boldly a certain amount of unpopularity.' "

The Carlist and Republican newspapers are making the most of the situation, while many of the Catholic prelates decline to comply with orders from the vatican to censure the Carlist agitation. The Impartial's Rome correspondent says the pope is so displeased with the attitude of the priests that he has washed his hands of the whole affair.

According to The Liberal the government would not allow even the loss of some Philippines to hinder the conclusion of peace, because it is very doubtful whether the country would endorse sending an army of 40,000 men to crush the rebellion.

The Herald publishes a warning as to the necessity for closely watching the Carlists as peace approaches.

It is estimated that there are over 20,000 persons out of employment in Catalonia.

Message Was Delayed.

London, July 30.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times explains that the function of the French ambassador in Washington in Spain's approach to the United States was merely that of a transmitting agency. The message was dispatched from Madrid Thursday night. The delay in its delivery at Washington arose from the fact that when Mr. Polo, the Spanish minister to the United States, retired on the breaking off of diplomatic relations and confided the interests of Spain to France and Austria, he left only a single copy of the diplomatic cipher. When Cambon received the peace message this cipher happened to be in the possession of his Austrian colleague, who was out of town. The idea is current here that but for this delay the Porto Rico expedition might have been indefinitely deferred. This will not, however, stand the test of careful examination."

Prize Money For Sailors.

Washington, July 30.—The sailors from Sampson's fleet who participated in the destruction of the vessels of Cervera's squadron probably will have to wait sometime for their prize money. The navy department had prepared lists of all the crews of the Spanish vessels and of the vessels of our own fleet that participated in the engagement who were entitled to prize money for the use of the auditor of the treasury in settling the accounts, but the treasury department officials, in their care to prevent any misapplication of the funds, required that they be supplied with further information.

To prevent further trouble and delay on this score, Secretary Long has issued a circular to all commanding officers of the navy, laying down the rules for the preparation of the prize lists as suggested by the order from the navy department.

Non-Receipt of Mail.

Washington, July 30.—The war department has received large numbers of complaints from persons all over the country of the non-receipt of mail from the soldiers in Cuba. The postmaster general has completed arrangements for regular trips for carrying the mail, and will not depend as heretofore upon the irregular trips of transports. Mail deliveries, however, will be retarded by quarantine regulations owing to yellow fever.

London Weekly Papers.

London, July 30.—The weekly papers credit the United States with a desire to deal generously with Spain. The Saturday Review says: "We are convinced that America will not play the part of shylock, but now that she has learned to appreciate the bravery and fighting qualities of the Spaniards, as well as the worthlessness of the Cuban rebels, she will make obvious atonement for the precipitancy with which she entered upon the war by dealing generously with her opponents."

The Spectator takes a line quite unusual in the English press, most strongly urging the United States to assume direct control of both Cuba and the Philippines. It implores the Washington government "rather to break an injudicious pledge to congress than to allow Cuba and the Philippines to be independent or to return to the cruel Spanish dominion. Since it is equally inadmissible," says The Spectator, "to grant independence or to transfer the Philippines to any other power, it is best that the United States should assume the heavy responsibility involved, which will serve to bring out the best qualities of the American nation. England does not desire the Philippines, and if she did she would not take them because she wishes to prove that her sympathy for the United States is quite disinterested."

KINDNESS WAS DEADLY

Yellow Fever Imported Into the Army In Ambulances.

Drivers Gave Santiago Refugees a Lift.

Food, Sick and Wounded Hauled In the Same Vehicles Afterward.

Chicago, July 30.—The first definite statement as to how yellow fever was brought into the ranks of the American army in Cuba was made yesterday by H. L. Beach, who represented the Associated Press among the fighting lines at Santiago and who has just returned to Chicago.

"It is an actual fact—something I saw with my own eyes," he said, "that our army ambulances were used to carry Cuban refugees who had fled from Santiago and who were carrying the germs of the dread fever with them.

"When General Shafter sent word to Santiago that he intended to bombard the city, the people all began to flee, and most of them went at El Caney. This is a town of about 500 people, but 15,000 refugees went thither and occupied the houses in which there was room for only 500. The town was overflowing, there was no food for the Cubans and the army had not enougt to spare. So these people had to go out and forage for themselves.

"Santiago is known as the worst yellow fever port in Cuba, and those people who did not carry it with them soon had it, for their condition, huddled together as they were, was terrible and brought on the pest almost immediately. I know it to be a fact, having seen it myself, that the military ambulances were used to haul these refugees from El Caney so they might get food. The people waded through the mud and were picked up by the ambulances. Then our sick and wounded were hauled in the same ambulances.

"Worst of all, it seems to me, is the fact that the commissary wagons, which always were going to Siboney and back carrying food, went out with food, returned loaded with refugees and went back again with food. No yellow fever appeared in the army before the lines were opened to these people from Santiago, and Dr. Ducker of Chicago, who was with the correspondents, told us just two days before yellow fever appeared that it must come in 48 hours. He also told Major Pope, the surgeon, but the latter said he could do nothing to avoid it."

"He Lies In His Throat."

Salem, July 30.—About 175 members of the Essex club attended the anniversary meeting at Salem Willows yesterday afternoon. M. P. Frye of North Andover, the vice president, presided. Speeches were made by Congressmen Moody and Knox. After eulogizing the tariff for having "brought back prosperity to the nation," Mr. Moody said: "The events of the last two months are also reasons for pride on the part of the Republicans. The magnificent exhibition of national power and the obliteration of sectional lines are causes for national rejoicing. Massachusetts is in the front in both army and navy. A son of Massachusetts, as a cabinet officer, has made a record unsurpassed by any official since the days of Washington. Right here I want to say that through all the excitement the house of representatives stood by the president. No man on the floor of the house worked harder in the president's support than your representative [meaning himself], and if any man says to the contrary, he lies in his throat. Had the president asked for more time he would have had it from the house of representatives." Mr. Moody did not believe that the president was forced into the war.

Dukedom at Stake.

London, July 30.—The chancellor of the diocese of London has ordered that application should be made to the president of the probate, divorce and admiralty division of the high court of justice to say whether the faculty ought to issue an order empowering Mrs. Anna Druce to open the vaults and inspect the coffin which is alleged to contain the remains of T. G. Druce, who, the applicant asserts, was really the fifth duke of Portland.

Mrs. Druce claims that the father of her late husband was no other than the Duke of Portland, who was supposed to have died unmarried, and that her son is the rightful duke of Portland. She claims that her husband's alleged death and burial under the name of Druce were deceptions, and that he finally lived and died, after having been in a lunatic asylum, as Dr. Harmer.

Bade a Prisoner Godspeed.

Louisville, July 30.—Lewis Warner, the defaulting banker, has departed for Northampton in charge of Sheriff Clarke. A draft for $1000 was handed Chief of Detectives Sullivan when the officers took Warner in charge. The money was paid as a reward by the officials of the bank which Warner looted.

A number of the detective force accompanied the party to the depot to bid the banker godspeed. The parting between them and Warner was very affecting. During Warner's confinement the men had shown him every consideration, and that he appreciated what they had done for him was shown when the time for parting came.

Girls Couldn't See It.

Woonsocket, July 30.—Eighty spooler tenders in the Glenark Knitting company's mill struck yesterday afternoon because of a contemplated change in the system of payment from day to piece work. The management claimed that the girls could make better wages by the change, but they could not see it, and refused to work. About 75 knitters, all men, voted to stand by the girls. Superintendent Payne finally agreed to continue under the old system of payment. The girls will return to work Monday.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 31. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The evils of covetousness.—Ex. xx, 17; Luke xii, 13-21.

Covetousness is an inordinate and unlawful desire for that which is not ours. It usually leads to an effort to possess what we wish for most inordinately, whether by fair means or foul ones. Covetousness is forbidden by the law of God. "Thou shalt not covet" is the final command of God in the summary of the moral law given to Moses.

Covetousness is selfishness. It does not consider the rights of God or the rights of man, but only self. The rich fool, who had such abundance that he did not know what to do with it, did not inquire, "What would God have me do?" or "What do my obligations to humanity demand that I should do?" but only "What shall I do?" and the conclusion reached was a selfish one—"This will I do. I will pull down my barns and build greater, and there will I bestow all my fruits and goods," not to use for God or humanity, but for his own ease for many years. That which leads us to disregard God and to fail to consider our fellow men is a great and grave evil.

Covetousness is one of the most dangerous evils to which humanity is heir. It is a sin of the heart and is not so easily seen and its dangers realized. It creeps upon us gradually and has us in its toils before we are aware of it, and, in fact, while its prisoners many never realize the fact. No sin is so insidious, and in this fact lies one of its greatest dangers. It is also a prevalent evil. It affects, more or less, the whole human race. Man naturally desires that which is of value and attractiveness to him, and it is an easy step from the natural, proper desire to an inordinate, sinful desire. Being so prevalent, it is lightly treated by men generally. It is forbidden by the law of God, but not by the law of man. It is often called by other names, and applauded by the world rather than condemned by it. But it is no less an evil in the sight of God. God looks at the heart and not on the outward man. The world's standard of judgment is not God's standard. We may escape the judgment and punishment of men, but when we stand before God we will be judged by what we are and not by what we seem.

The cure for covetousness is Christianity. Christianity teaches men to live for God and for humanity rather than for self. Such a man can never be covetous. Christianity shows us the absolute deceitfulness and uncertainty of the riches of this world and of the folly of sacrificing eternity for time. Christians themselves are often too much absorbed in the things of this world. As Christians and as Endeavorers let us prove to the world by our lives and teachings that godliness with contentment is the most desirable of all possessions.

Bible Readings.—Joshua vii, 16-26; I Sam. xv, 10-25; II Kings v, 15-27; Ps. x, 3; Prov. xv, 27; xxi, 24-26; Isa. v, 8; Eccl. v, 10; Ezek. xxxiii, 31; Math. xxvi, 14-16; Mark vii, 21, 22; Acts v, 1-11; Rom. xiii, 9; Eph. v, 5; I Tim. vi, 9-11.

The Active Love.

Contemplate the love of Christ—that which made his life so much to the world, so much to you and me, was active love, or love in action. If we would study that perfect character more, we would love it more, and our own characters would become more like His. The Christ life would bring us very near to God. If a piece of iron is put close to an electrified body, the iron becomes charged and both become magnets while together. If we will keep close to the Father spirit, we shall feel the magnetic touch of His love, and our hearts will thrill with new life.

The great God and Father of all, the eternal spirit of love, can never fail. He is the same yesterday, today and forever, and that spark of the Infinite in our own breasts shall never cease to burn until we are purged from all dross. God has loved us into being and will love us until the great purpose of our creation is accomplished, until everything shall be subdued unto Him, "and He shall be all, and in all."—Universalist.

Great Sins.

The great danger in the Christian life is the supposition that only great sins affect the life. On the contrary, it is rare that the evil comes in like a flood. There is in the embankment the little crack through which the water trickles almost unobserved, and in such small quantity that it is not regarded as worthy of effort to restrain it. But each minute it works its deadly work, removing particle after particle, until, under the stress of the storm, it opens the way for the giving away of the embankment, and in a moment the flood with its ruin!—Lutheran Observer.

The Bible.

To us the Bible is more than a mere literary study. We never read it but with that profound sense of veneration which is due to one of the masterworks of God! Call us a fanatic, an ignoramus, if you please; you cannot take from us that sense of veneration.—Jewish Voice.

After the Storm.

The ships passed over the water,
But the wings of the storm were there,
And they beat the light back into the night
Till the sea moaned in despair.
They beat the ragged pinions
Till black was the heavens' frown,
And they cleft the waves into yawning graves
Till the ships in the sea went down.
They beat and beat the ribs of the fleet
Till the fleet in the sea sank down.

Now peace broods over the water,
And those wings no more are out
That scourged in their wrath the ocean's path
And tossed the ships about,
That smote the sea in their anger
Till they made it shriek and roar
With their cruel whips that lashed the ships
Till the ships could hear no more,
And the airs are sweet, but the ribs of the fleet
Are whitening on the shore.

SMILES AND TEARS.

You bid me sing a gay refrain,
Win from my lyre a note more glad,
And when I chose a brighter strain,
Still—still you told me it was sad.

I did not mean it should be so,
Nor was my wish to make you sigh;
But you are young and do not know
How joy and grief together lie.

There ever is a minor chord
Struck somewhere in our earthly lays,
Ever a shadow on the sward
Of brightest scenes whereon we gaze.

And while we may not heed the one
Nor hear the other, each is there,
Yet lurking in the blithest tone,
Yet darkening the landscape fair.

Thus, often scarcely knowing why,
We cannot look without a tear,
And so it is we sometimes sigh,
Though joyous by the song we hear.
—Argosy.

MILLIE AND MOLLIE.

"I've come to ask you for the hand of your daughter," said young Bromley, stumbling to the seat offered him by the girl's father.

"Which one?" asked old Dimmock, the coal merchant, laying down the newspaper.

"Sometimes I think it is Mollie, and again I am sure it is Millie," replied young Bromley, genuinely perplexed.

The old coal merchant looked sympathetic.

"You can't have both," said he, after an awkward pause.

"They're splendid girls, good enough for anybody!" exclaimed the young man. "I could be happy with either of them."

"I'm disposed to think," observed old Dimmock, "that you have been happy with both of them."

"So they've told me more than once," said Bromley, with the pleasantest light of recollection in his eyes.

"Well, can't you make up your mind which girl you want to marry?"

Young Bromley did not answer for a moment, and then he said slowly: "Which do you think sounds the better —'Millie Bromley' or 'Mollie Bromley?' Sometimes I've looked at it in that way."

"I don't think there's much to choose," returned the old coal merchant, weighing the question with every desire to be fair.

"You know," continued the young man, "there have been times when I've gone to bed perfectly charmed with the name 'Millie Bromley,' and in the morning 'Mollie Bromley' has caught my fancy. Millie, Mollie! Mollie, Millie—it's an awful puzzle."

"Of course you've proposed to one of the girls?" inquired their father.

"Oh, yes, indeed," said young Bromley.

"Then that is the girl you want to marry," exclaimed the old man triumphantly. "Why, it's simple enough, after all. You've taken quite a load off my mind. Which one was it?"

"It was Millie, I think," answered young Bromley hesitatingly.

"Think! Good Lord, don't you know?"

The young man flushed and looked reproachfully at the coal merchant.

"Mr. Dimmock," said he, "I'll put it to you as man to man. Which is Millie and which is Mollie?"

"Don't cross examine me, sir," rejoined the old man. "If you want to marry one of the girls, it's your business to find out."

"Heaven knows," cried young Bromley in anguish, "I want to marry either Millie or Mollie, and have her all to myself. It's trying enough for a fellow to be over head and ears in love with one girl, but when there are two of them it's more than flesh and blood can stand."

"There, there, my boy," said the old coal merchant soothingly, "don't take on so. Either girl is yours with my blessing, but I want to keep one for myself. Let me see if I can help you out," and going to the open French window he called:

"Millie, Mollie! Mollie, Millie!"

"Yes, papa, we're coming," sounded two sweet, well bred voices from the shrubbery.

There was a tripping of light feet along the stone walk under the grapevine, and Millie and Mollie bloomed into the room.

"How do you do, Mr. Bromley?" they said together, with the same intonation and the same merry glint in their eyes.

Millie had auburn hair and brown eyes. So had Mollie. Millie had a Cupid's bow of a mouth, little teeth like pearls, and a dimpled chin. So had Mollie. Millie's arms, seen through her muslin sleeves, were round and white. So were Mollie's. There was nothing to choose between Millie's bust and Mollie's bust as they stood side by side.

"Well, papa?"

"Young Bromley tells me," began old Mr. Dimmock, after he had taken drafts of their fresh young beauty by looking first at one and then at the other and then dwelling upon the features of both with one eye sweep, "that he proposed to you last night."

"Oh, not to both, you know, Mr. Dimmock," interjected young Bromley.

"He asked me to be his wife," said Millie demurely.

"He told me that he couldn't live without me," said Mollie mischievously.

"How is this?" said the old man, turning to young Bromley with a severe look.

The young man blushed furiously and lifted his hands in protest.

"I'm sure," he stammered, "one of you is mistaken. I asked Millie to be my wife in the summer house—and—I kissed you. That was before supper, and later in the evening, when we sat on the front steps, I said that I couldn't live without you, and that we must get married."

"Before we go any further," interrupted the coal merchant, "which is Millie and which is Mollie? When your dear mother was alive, she could tell the difference sometimes, but I don't know to this day."

"Oh, how dull you are!" said the girls in duet.

"I think this is Millie on the right," spoke up young Bromley.

"Why, Mr. Bromley," said she, "I am Mollie."

"Very good; now let's go on," said their father. "Where were we? Oh, yes, young Bromley says that he asked you to be his wife, Millie, and declared he couldn't live without you."

"I beg your pardon, papa," said Mollie. "He told me that he couldn't live without me."

"Well, let's get our bearings," continued the old coal merchant. "Bromley, you asked Millie to marry you down in the summer house, and you kissed her? That's correct, isn't it?"

"There's no doubt about that, sir," said Bromley eagerly.

"And after supper when you sat together on the stoop you told Mollie that you couldn't live without her?"

"That I deny, sir. Oh, I beg your pardon, Molly, you needn't look so angry. I meant no offense."

"Did you kiss Mollie?" went on the old man relentlessly.

"No, sir; I"—

"Yes, you did, Mr. Bromley," flared up Mollie.

"I admit," said the young man, struggling with his emotions, "that I kissed her when I said I could not live without her, but it wasn't Mollie."

"Oh, Mollie!" said Millie. "How could you?"

"Now, Millie, do be reasonable," said Mollie.

Old Mr. Dimmock looked mystified.

"It seems to me," said he, with a show of impatience, "if I were in love with one of those girls I could tell the difference between them. So far as I can make out, young man, you have asked Millie to be your wife and have tried to make Mollie believe that you could not live without her. Now, to any one who does not know Millie and Mollie your conduct would appear to be perfidious. Of course as between you and Mollie I must believe Mollie, for the girl certainly knows whether you kissed her."

The old man eyed both his daughters. Millie was biting her nether lip, and so was Mollie. But Mollie was trying to keep from laughing.

Old Mr. Dimmock had an idea.

"I would like to clear up this thing to your satisfaction and my own, Bromley," said he. "Let me know whether Mollie kissed you when you told her you couldn't live without her?"

The young man got very red in the face.

"You mean Millie, of course," he replied, with embarrassment. "Perhaps she wouldn't mind my saying that she did kiss me in the summer house. But she didn't kiss me on the stoop. I kissed her."

"How is that, Millie, Mollie?" asked their father.

"Papa," said Mollie decidedly. "I couldn't keep Mr. Bromley from kissing me, but I assure you I didn't kiss him."

Mollie looked her father straight in the eye and then shot an indignant shaft at Mr. Bromley.

Millie hung her head and her face was as red as a poppy.

"I think," said the old man dryly, "that it's plain I'll keep Mollie and we'll have that marriage before you make another mistake, young man."—New York Sun.

A Weapon of Ancient Pugilists.

The four ounce glove was unknown to the ancient pugilist. When the boxers and fighters came together in the old days of Greece, they wore upon their hand the cestus, which was in itself a terrible adjunct to any fighter. But Dr. Daniel G. Briton has discovered that there was sometimes attached to the cestus a deadlier weapon, consisting of a three pronged fork of bronze.

This was known as the myrmex, and Dr. Brinton, who found this specimen, has given it to the museum of archæology in the University of Pennsylvania. Classical literature has frequent references to the myrmex, which is described as the deadliest weapon of the ancient pugilist. The right hand was swathed in tough hide, bound in place with thongs and supplemented by small knobs of lead or iron, to which was affixed the myrmex. Dr. Brinton made his discovery in Paris by examining the Greek and Roman marbles in the Louvre. One of these groups represented a fighter bearing on his right fist the cestus and myrmex.

Combats in those days were much more brutal and dangerous than those of the modern prize ring. It is easily seen that a single blow of the myrmex might cause death or permanent injury.

Confused His Papa.

An amusing incident occurred in an A., B. and C. car on the afternoon of the Fourth. Four young couples, evidently out for an enjoyable day, were seated on one side of the car having a decidedly good time. While their merriment was at its height a 7-year-old boy across the aisle suddenly leaned forward.

"Say, mister," he called to one of the young men, "why don't you kiss your girl?"

The young man looked up in surprise, and the girl—a pretty girl too—blushed.

"Talmage, Talmage," said the boy's father, "what do you mean by such talk?"

The boy looked at his father in surprised disgust.

"What's the matter with you, dad?" he cried. "You told me you'd do it if you was him!"

And the father found the landscape decidedly interesting until the young people left the car.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A WATERING-PLACE COSTUME FROM HARPER'S BAZAR.

A thorough outfit for a season at a fashionable watering-place requires, in our climate, to be quite elaborate, for there must be gowns for cool as well as for hot days. Blue serge is a material which comes into fashion every year. Of course there are many different weaves of it, as well as different colorings, but a blue serge gown is considered almost a necessity for every wardrobe. An original design, which we publish today, taken from Harper's Bazar, in blue serge from la maison Weille, is in the bluet shade. The waist is tight-fitting at the back, blousing a little in front. It is made with a round yoke, which extends to the sleeve on the shoulders, the yoke of white mousseline de soie laid in very narrow pleats. Around the yoke the waist is finished with three narrow folds of striped taffeta silk, in mauve and white, put above a a straight band of Irish guipure lace, and a band of the lace is put over the top of the sleeves. The waist itself fastens at the left, and is most effectively trimmed with rows of braid put on in clusters and at regular spaces. The sleeves are small, also trimmed with the rows of braid. The collar is very high, with straight turned-over pieces, and made of the striped white and mauve taffeta silk. A black satin belt makes the waist look smaller, while a bow of the striped silk fastens the belt and gives a pretty finish. At the top of the skirt there is a yoke let in of the striped silk, while at the foot there is a band put on in scallops. This is very effective against the deep blue serge.

The hat worn with this gown is quite different in shape from any of the fashions that have yet been brought out. It is somewhat like a toque, made of fancy straw trimmed with bunches of roses and leaves, and at the left side are large rosettes of deep blue velvet.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Laundering In the Kitchen — Dainty French Sash Curtains—Some Uses of Soda.

All housekeepers do not yet understand that what goes on in the kitchen on washing days affects the condition of the clothes if, as often happens, laundry work and kitchen work must be done in the same room. The smell of broiled or fried fish or even broiled steak or those odors which come from strong vegetables while cooking—such as onions, cabbage, and the like—cling to the clothes with great pertinacity even after they are ironed and sent up stairs. This is especially true if the smells are absorbed during the sprinkling of the clothes and when the latter are quickly rolled up tight and are opened to have the odors ironed into them. Persons who have occasion to send their linen to a city washerwoman often notice the unpleasant flavor which they will have on their return. Laundered as they are in stuffy tenement rooms, where all the processes of life go on, it would be strange indeed if they came out of the ordeal sweet and odorless. The housekeeper should be watchful on this point, even in washing on her own premises, and she who is obliged to trust to the outside laundress will find a suggestion to that often ignorant but amenable woman productive of excellent results.

Some Uses of Soda.

Apart from the use of bicarbonate of soda as a relief for indigestion, both this form and the crude washing soda are useful to the cook and the housekeeper.

A burn caused by a hot iron will cease to pain almost immediately if a piece of soda, moistened with the tongue, is put on. A scald or burn, if the skin is not broken, can be cured by placing the burned part in strong soda water.

Boil greasy tins in soda water once a week and use hot soda water for a greasy sink.

Put a piece of soda the size of a walnut to a tablespoonful of salt into a basin and pour on boiling water. Allow dirty sponges to stand in this for a short time, when they will be quite clean and free from grease. Rinse in cold water.

Dissolve a cupful of soda in a gallon of water and leave in a jar near the kitchen sink. Into this throw all pieces of soap and remains of packets of dry soap. Dip into the jar and add to the water used for washing and scrubbing very dirty pans, earthenware, tinware, woodwork (but not paint) and for washing kitchen cloths and dusters.

Common washing soda dissolved in water until the liquid will take up no more is said to be an excellent cure for warts. Moisten the warts with it and let them dry without wiping.

French Sash Curtains.

The French have rather a pretty name for the small sash curtains which are intended to screen an interior. They call them "mysteres" and exercise considerable ingenuity in their construction and ornamentation. The little curtains of this kind pictured in the sketch are all dainty and elaborate and are generally made of mousseline de soie. The first one on the left is turned over at the top, with the flap bordered with guipure lace, with each end gracefully bunched up and tied with a bow of ribbon. The lower one is a pale shell pink, finished at the top with ecru applications, while the third has a transparency of poppies in red gauze applied on a white ground, with green leaves. These transparencies, by the way, are exceedingly pretty, and charming effects may be produced by the use of different colors. Even brilliant specimens of stained glass may be imitated in this way.

Good Afternoon.

It is by no means inconceivable of Spanish statesmen that they should think it a good stroke of home policy to conciliate the party of peace by proposing a settlement at the present stage. Much of our military plans is as yet unaccomplished, and nearly all we shall claim has yet to be actually won—a fact which, in negotiating, would certainly be no help to our case. If the United States government should accept an armistice, our troops at Porto Rico and in the Antilles would lose their enthusiasm, our fighting progress would be arrested, and Spain would gain time and an opportunity for recuperating her fighting strength. Should Sagasta discover that our terms are unacceptable and that he dare not take the risk of provoking serious disturbance by adopting them, then, having done what he could to satisfy the peace faction he would be free to play to the war party by declaring that a peace with honor to Spain is at present impossible and appealing to the country to stand by the army to the last extremity of endurance. It is certainly not beneath what may be fairly expected of Spanish statesmanship that Spain should resort to dilatory tricks of this character; on the contrary, it is the kind of action we might reasonably look for; and the fact that the present incipient stage of our operations has been chosen for making peace offers is suspiciously suggestive that this may prove to be her game.

It smacks strongly of a Castilian trick that we should be asked for an armistice and a possibly long suspension of hostilities within a few days of our certain capture of Porto Rico and when the completion of our capture of Spain's army in the Philippines may be any day expected; and for this reason our Government's response to M. Cambon's overtures needs to be carefully guarded by precautions.

Commissioner Knowlton has endeared himself to the people of Wollaston Park by his generous appropriation toward the grading and beautifying the grounds about the Massachusetts Fields school. The work is being well done by Mr. Henry Lavelle and is nearly finished. The amount of extra work necessary to keep the grounds looking as they should, has added the duties of Mr. Dorety, but that gentleman is not lazy and his love for the beautiful makes the extra labor a work of pleasure. Those living in other parts of Quincy not afflicted with enviousness are invited to visit the Park and see just how nice our school grounds have been made to appear. Don't come if you think it will make you feel bad.

VERY HOT AT CAMP.

Over 100 in the Shade Reported Today.

Camp Dalton,
July 30th, '98.

It was a scorcher yesterday. The sun came out at 8 A. M, and quickly dried up the last remnant of the previous day's rain. The humidity was very depressing. The drills were very hard indeed, as the present work is all done on the run.

With the mercury up in the nineties, and the air full of dampness, a run for an hour and a half is not the most comfortable thing in the world.

In the afternoon a battalion drill was held and was done in very good shape considering its being the first of the kind.

Several men were carried from the field from exhaustion. As the vaccination is getting in its fine work the cause of this is easily explained. It is going hard with some and a number of bad arms are being carried in consequence. Several of the worst cases in Co. K were given a 48 hours' leave of absence, in order to go home, where the facilities are greater for their treatment and comfort. A great many men throughout the regiment are drilling without arms, by order of the surgeon. Cooler weather is prayed for.

Nothing definite as to moving has been heard as yet.

Private McLaughlin of Co. K received twelve very comfortable comfort bags yesterday from Mrs. E. M. Whitney, of 73 Wyoming street, Boston Highlands, which were made by a number of children of her acquaintance. The articles which they were obliged to purchase were purchased by money which they saved for the purpose by denying themselves. Two photographs of the children at work on them came with the box, and also one of the Fifth as it marched through Boston on the way to camp, June 29.

The bags were given to the boys who had none, and from the circumstances surrounding them they are treasured very much by the owners. Co. K wishes to thank the little workers and their instructors.

A number of Quincy people were in camp yesterday.

It is scorching hot in camp today, the temperature being 108 degrees in the shade at noon.

All old rifles are being exchanged today for the new Springfield rifle.

There are no drills of any kind today.

MANY SMALL JOBS.

These Are What Are Keeping Granite Firms Busy.

To all outward appearances there is not much doing in the granite industry in Quincy, but the fact is that there is more work in Quincy today than for several years. The work is not large and public monuments are not very plentiful, but there are stacks of orders for small and medium sized work. Ask any manufacturer you meet and he will tell you that he is busy. Ask him what he has for large work and he will reply that he has nothing large worthy of special mention but he has a number of orders for medium sized work.

Usually the rush of work is over the first of June and there is a dull spell until the middle of August. But this year work has hung on remarkably well, and fall orders are coming in so that it is anticipated that there will be plenty of work until late in the fall.

Prout Bros. & Co. will ship the Uxbridge Soldiers' monument, which they are cutting, early in August.

Fuller, Foley & Co. are cutting three all polished sarcophagi jobs of dark Quincy granite, the bases of which range from 6 by 2-8 to 6 by 3-6.

Fred Barnicoat is cutting a handsome Quincy granite memorial to the memory of his brother, S. Henry Barnicoat.

W. F. Spargo & Co. have recently shipped a large spire job to Ohio parties. The spire istwenty-five feet tall, 2-6 at the base, and the whole job stands 33 feet high.

Fred Barnicoat is cutting a large sarcophagus monument, the base being 7-8 by 5-5, the job to be surmounted by a five feet sitting figure of grief.

Nearly every granite manufacturer at South Quincy has had his office connected by telephone, the measured rate system making it possible for them to have this very convenient addition to their office for a small rental per month.

The granite shipments from Quincy during the month of June were: Quincy Adams, 3,861,880 pounds; West Quincy, 2,901,220 pounds: Quincy Quarry Railroad, 6,166,210 pounds.

One of the busiest granite firms in Quincy is Joss Bros. & Co., which has an unusual large amount of work on hand.

The retail dealers are busy and are doing more locally this year than for several years, many of the monuments being erected in Quincy and adjoining towns.

Pneumatic tools are fast coming into general use for carving and lettering work and there are but few of the manufacturers who do not use them.

BEAR IN MIND

That we do not claim the goods we sell to be in any respect different from what other people sell, except in price. All our goods are new goods (1898 goods) and amongst them is nothing that we are selling for 25 cts. on the dollar. Our expenses are small and we sell our goods for all they are worth, but do not sometimes have to sell them for more than they are worth, like some merchants do to help pay the enormous expense they are under.

We have about 200 Negligee Shirts, which we will sell this week and next week, too, if we do not sell them all for 69c. We have them in all styles, with attached and detached collars. We would not have you believe they are the $1.00 kind. Although some are woolen madras goods, which are usually sold for that price. Some others sell some of them for 75c. and claim they are worth $1.00. We guarantee everything we sell, and will always pay your money back if goods purchased are not satisfactory.

BRAINTREE.

The annual picnic of St. Francis church will take place at New Downer Landing, August 17.

Rev. Oliver Huckle a former pastor of the Union church, has been visiting old friends in the east part of the town.

I. W. Holden and family have moved to Millis, Mass.

Mr. E. B. Hayden of River street has purchased a house at Wollaston, where he will move about September first.

The new Union church will soon be boarded. The clock fund seems to be growing and there ought to be no difficulty in putting a fine time-piece in its graceful tower.

About two hundred voters assembled in the Town Hall yesterday afternoon, in response to the call for a special Town meeting.

The building just erected for F. O. Wellington & Co. at East Braintree by C. O. Miller is 126 by 60 and was put up in just fifteen days.

Manager John H. Simmons of the South Braintree Brigade relay team has arranged for a race with the Campello bicycle team, at Rockland on the 3th of next month; the prize will be a silver tea service. Manager Simmons has the following men in his team: H. A. Thayer, Ernie Lord, R. E. Jones, G. A. Call, W. J. Todd; with G. W. Boyce as sub.

Miss Victoria F. Wilde and Miss Mary E. Vining have just returned from a most delightful visit to Mr. T. D. Watson's summer home, North Hero Island, Lake Champlain, Vt. Beautiful indeed as is this location it cannot surpass, Miss Wilde says, the refined hospitality of the host and hostess of this ideal home.

Little Jerry Decost met with a serious accident yesterday. He got beween two teams on Elm street and was run over, receiving some bad wounds. He was taken to the office of Dr. Henry L. Dearing and is now getting along nicely.

Th Gas and Electric light commissioners gave a hearing Monday morning in the case of the Town vs. A. S. Morrison and Bros., regarding the rights of that company. The town was represented by its committee, Mr. F. O. Wellington, Mr. A. O. Clark, Mr. Daniel Potter, Mr. Eben W. Pescott and Lawyer Wilson.

Last Sunday night while Mr. Ernest Edmunds and Mr. Ernest Stenstrom were returning from Nantasket on the big electrics, Mr. Edmunds received a blow upon the head which came near being very serious. It appears that when nearing Weymouth one of the trolleys became loose and struck a bridge with such force that it was forced down through the top of the car, striking Edmunds as above stated. The injured man was taken to the station and his wounds dressed by Dr. Pinkham in whose care the young man is doing well.

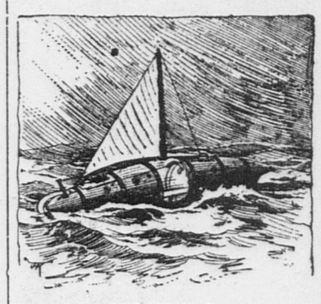
NEW LIFEBOAT.

A Craft Which Will Right Itself When Upset.

The accompanying illustration represents a novel lifeboat which has been devised and patented by James Mitchell, Sr., of Arrow River, Manitoba, Canada. In general form the boat is cigar shaped, tapering from the middle to both ends, and is constructed either of metal or wood. The boat pictured in the engraving is formed of wooden staves, surrounded by hoops and strengthened from within by stout ribs. A large conical block at each end of the boat is provided with a passage or rope guideway, whose ends are at right angles to each other. A rope passes through these guideways, extends through the whole length of the boat, and is attached to a ship by the usual means. Within the body of each conical block and intersecting each rope guideway is a recess containing a spring pressed block. When the rope is removed, the block is automatically forced down so as to prevent the entrance of water. Should it be impossible to lower the boat in the ordinary way by letting out the suspending rope, it may be launched upon an even keel by severing the rope from within.



NEW LIFEBOAT.

Hatchways for the entrance and exit of passengers, a rudder and steering ropes operated from the hatchways or from within the boat, are all provided. A heavy keel gives the boat stability and rights it, should it be overturned. Ventilating pipes are provided which can be closed by valves to prevent the entrance of water.—Scientific American.

Teeth and Health.

In late years more and more attention has been paid to the condition of the teeth of candidates for life insurance, and now the report of the dentist is considered of proportional value with that of the physician in determining the value of the "life." So important are the indications afforded by the teeth of the general health and strength of the constitution of candidates for the United States navy that unless a would be cadet can pass a creditable examination at the hands of the dentist he must make up his mind to look for another calling. It is argued that if the teeth are not in good trim the digestion, and eventually, of course, the general health, and consequently the professional efficiency of the candidate must be impaired. These restrictions are now likely to extend to the army. One of the first signs of this movement is the announcement that a bill is to be passed to establish a dental corps in the United States army. It is proposed to make the army dentist a part of the medical corps, assigning one surgeon dentist, with the rank of major, to each brigade, and one surgeon dentist, with the rank of captain, to each regiment. The army dentists are to be graduates of reputable dental colleges. The teeth of the rank and file of the army are to be inspected periodically and kept in order, and the soldier himself is to be instructed how to second the efforts of the dentist.—Chicago Record.

Pharmaceutical Soaps.

The medical journals of Germany make mention of a new sulphur soap—thiosavonal—soluble in water. For the production of soaps of this character sulphurized oils are used. The thick liquid thio oil is made fluid with alcohol, and gradually mixed while being continually stirred with an equivalent volume of potash lye, which is likewise thinned with alcohol. The addition of large quantities of potash lye at one time produces separation of sulphur, but this danger becomes less toward the end of the saponification, and at last a small excess of potash lye is used. The fact that all the thiosebacic acid has saponified is indicated by the liquid appearing clear as a whole and a sample taken being clearly soluble in water as well as in alcohol. The excess of alkali is neutralized by volatile fatty acid. The soap solution thus obtained is freed from the alcohol in a steam bath and boiled down to the consistency of soft salve, being occasionally tested for neutrality. Eighty-five parts of this soap are mixed with 15 parts of glycerin. The percentage of water in this mixture is 12 and that of thiosebate of potassium is 5.

New Stanch For Blood Flowing.

An original and efficacious device for stopping the flow of blood has for some time been used by the Chinese—a method, it is stated, still entirely unknown to the medical fraternity of this country and Europe. The plan is to use sachets filled with charcoal powder obtained from straw, the application of these fine bags showing considerable advantage over the ordinary medicated gauze. The bags shape themselves perfectly over wounds and have a considerable absorbing power, while the cost is almost nothing. They can be made also wherever they are to be used and in a shape to suit each particular case, which is a fact of no little importance in using for field hospitals and surgical cases. In preparation clean straw is taken, placed in a large vat, put on fire and a cover which closes hermetically is placed on top. The combustion of the straw is slow and the product is, of course, aseptic—that is, devoid of microbes.

HIS MEERSCHAUM.

Several of the old court benchers were discussing ways and means of getting even with their associate known as the proctor for the many pranks he had played on them, when he entered the jury room in the county courthouse, where they were seated, and exposed to their admiring gaze a new meerschaum pipe.

It was a handsome pipe, and the proctor, who claims to have had a large admiralty practice, called attention to a miniature schooner rigged ship carved on the neck of the pipe, saying:

"This pipe was given to me by a certain judge—I will not mention his name—of the United States court as a slight recognition of the valuable information I gave to him on international law in regard to prizes taken by our naval commanders during this war with Spain."

More than one bencher allowed a derisive smile to rest for a moment on his clean shaven face at these boastful words of the proctor, and the one called the judge, with a wink of his left eye at the other old fellows, inquired:

"What's the matter with you today, proctor? You don't look well."

The solicitor smiled at the judge and muttered something about pipes and liver complaints, while the proctor exclaimed:

"Why, really, I never felt better in my life. Not even on that glorious day when I libeled the good ship, the Betsy Ann, as she lay in Bowery bay in 1871"—

Here the proctor stopped and filled his pipe with navy cut tobacco—he couldn't have smoked any other kind—and lighted it. After he had puffed away for a few seconds he pulled the new meerschaum pipe from his mouth, gazed fondly at it, first on one side, then on the other, replaced it between his lips, blew forth a cloud of smoke, removed the pipe from his mouth, examined it again carefully, rubbed it gently with a silk handkerchief and placed it in his mouth once more.

After the proctor had gone through this operation a score of times the judge—in an apparent aside, but loud enough for the proctor to hear—remarked to the other benchers:

"Strange how many men have died from smoking meerschaum pipes."

The proctor moved uneasily on his chair, while the solicitor said: "Yes, there was old Colonel B——r; smoked cigars until he was 73 years old, and then some one gave him a meerschaum pipe. He smoked it for three weeks, and contracted cancer of the tongue."

"What happened to him then?" broke in the proctor.

"He had his tongue cut out." Here the solicitor hesitated a second, gazed sorrowfully at the proctor and added, "And died of starvation."

"I know of just such a case!" exclaimed another bencher. "A classmate of mine at college colored a meerschaum beautifully, but did not live long afterward—cancer too."

"It isn't possible!" exclaimed the proctor, as he blew a weak little curling line of smoke from his mouth.

"Yes—it is true. We warned him—told him of lots of fellows who had gone the meerschaum pipe route, but all in vain."

The proctor smoked on in silence for awhile, then he examined his pipe again with an effort to appear cheerful and called upon the other old fellows to examine it, remarking at the same time:

"See how it is beginning to color. The bow of the ship is turning yellow."

"You are mistaken," remarked the judge. "I don't see any yellow."

"Not a bit!" exclaimed the solicitor. "You are getting the jaundice, and everything looks yellow to you."

With a trembling hand the proctor slowly replaced the pipe between his lips while the councilor said:

"Remarkable how smoking a meerschaum pipe will ruin a man's liver. I once knew a fellow who smoked one for only two days and then died from an enlarged liver."

"And then the heart," broke in another bencher. "That sensitive organ is nearly always affected by meerschaum pipe smoking. Several of my friends have dropped off suddenly from smoking these d——d meerschaums."

"But sadder yet," said another—"there's the sight. Three men in my class in the law school went blind from smoking meerschaum pipes."

"And then the brain," remarked still another bencher. "How it softens and becomes weak from meerschaum pipe smoking"—

By this time the proctor's pipe was burned out. His face was several shades paler. His lips twitched and his eyes were watery as he gazed sadly on his new pipe while the judge said:

"And, gentlemen, how many men have died from cancer of the stomach from smoking meerschaum pipes!"

"I don't feel very well," broke in the proctor. "I feel dizzy."

"Brain!" exclaimed the judge, with a sorrowful glance at the proctor.

"Heart!" said another.

"Incipient enlargement of his liver!" suggested still another.

"Cancer, I am certain!" said the solicitor.

With another glance—this time of repugnance—at his meerschaum the proctor laid it down on the table and exclaimed as he left the room, "Any one of you can have the d——d thing with its homicidal mania."—New York Sun.

"Lady of Balmoral."

Hence when she goes there in the autumn she will have been a resident on Deeside for half a century, a fact which is to be commemorated by the erection of a fountain on the Ballater road.—Pall Mall Gazette.

JOHN WANAMAKER,

THE DYNAMITE GUN.

A Destructive Weapon of Warfare Used Before Santiago.

The accounts of the battle before Santiago, says the New York Tribune, all mention the work of the pneumatic dynamite gun which was in the charge of Sergeant Hallett Alsop Borrow. This modern weapon of warfare was shown for the first time at the electrical exposition held in New York in May and June, 1898. It consists of a few simple parts that may be manufactured rapidly in any well equipped machine shop, and the inventor, Dana Dudley, says that it is a perfectly safe and reliable piece of ordnance. In the patent the following claim is made:

The method of discharging a pneumatic gun, which consists in compressing air in a suitable chamber by means of the explosion of an explosive therein and communicating the air pressure thus produced to the base of the projectile in another chamber uninterruptedly connected therewith.

The method of discharging projectiles by means of the explosion of an explosive in an air chamber, which consists in interposing a confined body of air uninterruptedly between the projectile and such explosive and then exploding the explosive in said chamber, whereby high pressure is developed and the projectile discharged.

The gun is known as a "dynamite" gun, but its manufacturers—the Sims-Dudley Defense company—say that this is a misnomer, because the projectile which is fired by the gun is never loaded with dynamite, but always with some other and, as they say, much safer high explosive. Gun cotton, either wet or dry, or any high explosive, may be used in the projectiles, but the compound ordinarily used for loading the projectile is known as Nobel's gelatin.

"It is a high explosive remarkable for two peculiarities," the company says. "First, that it can be handled, stored and used with greater safety and security than any other explosive containing nitroglycerin; second, that when it is properly detonated, so as to produce an explosion, its destructive effect is greater than that of any other explosive known."

Projectiles loaded with Nobel's gelatin have been used in connection with the Sims-Dudley gun by the Cuban insurgents, and the Cuban junta has written many letters in which the deadly work of the destructive machine has been spoken of.

The gun consists of two tubes, one placed over the other, the upper and longer one being known as the projectile tube. These tubes are made of a specially manufactured composition metal possessing a tensile strength of about 80,000 pounds to the square inch. The diameter of the bore of this tube is 2½ inches, and its total length is about 14 feet. Below the projectile tube is the expansion or combustion chamber, which consists of a tube 4½ inches in diameter and 7 feet long.

Fascination of Light.

Many theories have been suggested as to why light attracts moths, but perhaps the best explanation is that it fascinates them as a serpent does a bird. So much is this the case that traps have been devised for their destruction based on this fact. One of these inventions consists of an electric searchlight in connection with a blowing fan. The insects, completely fascinated, are attracted by the light and fly close to the lantern; they are then drawn into a pipe by a suction draft and carried to a sort of mill, which mixes them up with a little flour. The resulting blend is then used for poultry food. When some warships were using their powerful searchlights off the coast of Egypt, at more than two miles from the shore, millions of insects, fascinated by the light, traveled along the beam of light until they struck the glass and fell, where they accumulated into a heap more than two feet in height. Light equally fascinates fishes, and they have been lured to the nets by a glowlight lowered in the water.

For Measuring Distances.

The telemeter is an invention the purpose of which is to measure distance in a very easy and accurate way. The construction of it is somewhat in this wise: A telescope is mounted upon an arm about three feet long, the end of the arm nearest the telescope having a graduation scale for either angles or distances. A horizon glass is firmly attached to the arm, and there is also an adjustable vernier which acts with the adjacent graduations on the arm. The reflecting surface of the index glass is set at an angle of 45 degrees to the axis of the lever. The manipulation is very simple. Looking through the telescope and horizon glass at the object the distance of which is to be measured, the lever is swung over so that the index glass receives the image and reflects it to the horizon glass at a point coincident with the line of sight. The vernier determines the angle, and the base line being known the distance of the object may be readily computed.

Japan's Great Steel Plant.

Japan is now building a great steel plant. The works will cost $10,000,000, and will be put into operation within three years. The product of the plant for the first year will be almost exclusively steel rails and probably some steel plates for ships. Boiler plates, bar steel and structural iron will follow in order. This steel plant, which will be situated at Yawatamura, a town of about 10,000 inhabitants, is on the extreme northern end of the island of Kushiu. This island, according to reports, is rich in coal.—San Francisco Chronicle.

HOW ALUMINIUM IS MADE.

It Is Now About as Cheap as Brass, Bulk For Bulk.

Aluminium is now made about as cheap as brass, bulk for bulk, but not pound for pound, for aluminium is very light, its specific gravity being only about one-third that of iron. Native aluminium is found in clay and in a state of silicate, as in felspar. It is found in great quantities in southern Georgia, mixed with red oxide of iron. It is the alumina there which is the oxide of aluminium. When separated from other substances, alumina is a white powder. Electricity is the chief factor in the production of metallic aluminium. The powdered alumina is placed in vats lined with carbon. The description of the process is as follows:

Immediately over the vat is constructed a metal framework, through which are inserted a large number of carbon rods about 18 or 20 inches long and from 2 to 2½ inches in diameter. This framework is insulated electrically from the iron crucibles. The framework and the carbons are connected with the positive conductor of the electric current and the vat or crucible with the negative.

These conductors are very large, something like a foot in width and an inch in thickness, and made of some good conductor of electricity. They have to be very large, because they carry a current equal to 3,050 horsepower. The current is one of great volume, but very low voltage, the electro motive force at each vat or crucible being only about seven volts.

As the process is electrolytic, and not simply a heating process, the direct current must be used, and therefore must be transformed twice—first, to bring it to a proper voltage, and, secondly, to change it from an alternating to a direct current. These iron vats or crucibles are connected up in series electrically, and then they are filled with the alumina and certain other materials, which act either as a flux or as a means of increasing the conductivity of the mixture. Just what this substance is is probably one of the secrets of the process. When all the crucibles are filled with the mixture, the current is turned on and kept on continuously night and day seven days in the week. All of the material in the different crucibles is heated to redness when the process of separation takes place. The oxygen of the alumina is thrown off as gas, and other residuum floats to the top of the crucible and is skimmed off.

Metallic aluminium in a melted state sinks to the bottom of the crucible, where it is dipped out from time to time with large iron ladles and poured into sand and molded into blocks similar to that of pig iron.

Aluminium is most useful as an alloy with other metals. It is being extensively used in many directions, and would be vastly more used except that up to date no satisfactory way has been discovered to solder it. In different compounds it is estimated that aluminium forms about one-twelfth of the crust of the earth.—Chicago Times-Herald.

New Textile Invention.

An Austrian inventor has succeeded in adapting photography and electricity to the laying out and application of designs in textile manufacture in a way which it is said will revolutionize this important branch of industry. By his novel method it is claimed that the work which has taken months or even years to compete can be accomplished in a quarter of an hour. This new electric loom will be exhibited for the first time at the Paris exhibition, where it will weave handkerchiefs. In three minutes the purchaser of these handkerchiefs will be photographed by an apparatus in the loom itself. The design plate will be prepared by the same machine, and in half an hour a silk handkerchief with the purchaser's portrait woven into it will be produced. At the jubilee exhibition now being held in Vienna small landscapes woven in silk, as well as portraits, are being shown. Mark Twain and Emperor Francis Joseph have had their portraits taken in this way.

Toxin Remedy Against Locusts.

There is a good deal for the farmer to think over in the story received from Mashonaland, Africa, of the efficacy of the toxin remedy against locusts. One farmer who procured a supply of locust toxin from the government says that as inoculated locusts died he kept and dried them, and afterward, having given the fungus time to mature, ground them into powder. A swarm of locusts which was two hours in passing went into a five acre mealie patch, and some of the insects were saturated with a solution from the ground up powder and set loose again. In a couple of days the swarm was visibly affected, the locusts remaining stationary on the mealie stalks. A little later they were all dead, and the farmer declares that he has not a single locust on his whole farm. If the story is true, it points to an effective method of treating a long list of farmers' pests.

Novel Fire Engine.

Enthusiastic descriptions are given, according to the Philadelphia Record, of a new hand fire engine for use in suburban and country towns where the public service is not within easy call which has lately been brought out in England. This machine is portable, being mounted on a pair of strong iron wheels, and can pump some 50 gallons of water per minute against a head of 65 feet, or, when used in emergency, can be forced to deliver 100 gallons a minute. The engine rests on four iron feet, this position being effected by raising the handle of the carriage and lowering the boiler. It is of the quick raising steam type and may be run up to a working pressure in a few minutes, which for emergency work is of course of great importance. The pump can be disconnected readily.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

The match between McCoy and Corbett is a natural outcome of the present situation. McCoy has challenged the champion before he has defeated the next best man. It is but natural that he should be expected to defeat Corbett before the champion will take him on. Corbett in turn feels that he has still some rights to consideration. The victory at Carson City was a curious one. A man strong and fighting as well as in the first round is cut down with a short jolt to the body. He is on his feet strong as a lion within two seconds after his defeat is announced. It is but natural that he would declare it was but a scratch and wish to be further convinced. McCoy believes himself the best, and of Corbett James J. has the same opinion. Let them settle it. McCoy or any other man who can win all along the line from welter to heavy weight, and win each battle with the precision of a machine, cutting his men into bits without being once inconvenienced, is worthy of consideration at the hands of Corbett.—New York Journal.

"KID" M'COY.

Fighters Want to Wrestle.

"Tom Sharkey," says a sporting man, "is among the boxers who are thinking seriously of temporarily casting aside the gloves to try out some of the fakirs who have recently caused a demand for wrestling carpets. As a catch as catch can wrestler Sharkey would give a rough reception to any of the heavyweight wrestlers, providing he could secure Evan Lewis or Hugh Leonard as a teacher. Charlie Mitchell's career as an athlete began as a wrestler. Charlie was the champion catch as catch can lightweight of Birmingham, England, before he blossomed forth as a boxer. Jack Dempsey was a collar and elbow wrestler in his younger days, when he worked in a Brooklyn cooper shop. The warriors of the London ring were skilled in wrestling, as the rules allowed throwing on holds above the waist. Tom Allen was an adept at Greco-Roman wrestling, while Jem Mace was one of the crack wrestlers among English boxers at one stage of his career. Bob Fitzsimmons knows something about wresting, gained through his training with Roeber, but neither man excels at the game."

Careless Shooters.

During the past few months, with the close season for game in full force, gun accidents have been quite rare, but the public must not imagine from the recent rarity of such accidents that those who carry guns have become any the wiser by reason of the number of such accidents that occur annually. The contrary is rather the fact, shooting accidents being far commoner during the hunting seasons of recent years than ever before in the history of the country. Careless gunners are a menace not only to themselves, but to everybody else who happens to be in the same neck of the woods with them. They blaze away at anything and at everything without the slightest thought as to the possibility of some human being happening to be within their line of fire. It has been suggested that it would be a good thing to make it criminal negligence for a man to fire at a moving object the exact nature of which he was uncertain about.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Amateur Bicycle Repairing.

"Amateur repairing of bicycles," says a rider, "is the sort of thing that can easily be overdone. Adjustment of the working parts and the repairing of the tire is as much as the average cyclist ought to attempt. I met a man the other day who said that he intended to put a couple of spokes in the rear wheel of his bicycle and true it up. I went around a few days afterward to inquire whether he had finished the job and found he had—in fact, he was just in the act of adjourning to the nearest cycle repair shop with a thing more like an umbrella blown inside out than a bicycle wheel."

Necessary Adjustments.

Many recruits to cycling are often greatly discouraged from persevering in the pastime owing to their want of knowledge as to the adjustment of the handle bar and saddle in their proper relation to one another and the consequent suffering thereby engendered. The infliction is usually borne because, knowing no better, advice is not sought for, and it is not until an expert friend happens to notice the fault and puts matters right that it is revealed to the sufferer what a martyrdom he or she has endured for want of a little knowledge.

Good Umpiring.

"Good umpiring plays no small part in helping baseball," said Frank Selee, the Boston manager, in discussing this troublesome and important branch of the national game. "Everybody likes to see a game well umpired. One can lose a game and see a game lost with some degree of satisfaction when he feels that he has got none the worst of the umpiring. It is my opinion that there would be an improvement in the umpiring if more attention was paid to the pairing of the umpires."

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

ENEMIES OF THE GRAPE.

Larvæ of the Hawk Moth and Cutworms. Satisfactory Remedies.

The larvæ of upward of 50 moths feed on the foliage of the grape. Many of these are rare, yet many others are occasionally destructive. The large, green or brownish, usually horned, sphingid larvæ and certain cutworms are oftenest the cause of important damage. The larvæ of some ten species of hawk moths or sphingids occur in the grape, and nearly all are widely distributed. The one most frequently met with is the Achemon sphinx (Philampelus achemon) herewith figured to illustrate the characteristics of the group. The sphinx larvæ strip a branch at a time completely and are therefore easily noted. They are not often very abundant, and the injury is not usually great, except in the case of young vines which may be entirely stripped and killed by a single larva. Hand picking is ordinarily the safest and most satisfactory remedy. The cut shows the moth, egg, young larva, mature larva, pupa and parasitized larva.

HAWK MOTH, LARVA, ETC.

Climbing cutworms have at times proved very destructive to the buds and foliage of vines, and in northern New York and in the raisin district of Fresno, Cal., as much damage has been done by them as by any other insect enemy. Of the several species which in different localities have been troublesome the worst record may be assigned to the dark sided cutworm (Agrotis messoria) and the variegated cutworm (A. saucia).

Cutworms remain concealed in the ground during the day and climb up and strip the vines at night. They may easily be destroyed by the use of a poisoned bait of bran, arsenic (or paris green) and water, preferably sweetened with a little sugar. It should be distributed about the base of each vine in the form of a mash, a handful or so in a place, according to C. L. Marlatt of the United States department of agriculture, from whose report on insect enemies of the grape the foregoing is learned.

Overfeeding Roses.

Many persons complain that though their indoor roses have a thrifty growth and dark green foliage they fail to produce blossoms. A correspondent of American Gardening says: Very often the trouble is from overfeeding with nitrogenous manures—in fact, this is the most common cause. It is well known that the rose is a gross feeder and that it responds quickly to applications of fertilizer, but it is believed that it is owing to an overestimate of this fact that most persons apply too much fertilizer to their roses. At all times the greatest care should be exercised in the application of liquid manures. A good rule in the application of nitrogenous fertilizers, nitrate of soda in particular, is to use not more than a pound to 50 gallons of water and to apply this not oftener than once in three weeks. Older plants growing in the benches and in the same soil for more than two years may toward spring be given a slightly stronger dose or what amounts to about the same thing, an application of the above formula, say once in two weeks. But it is advisable to apply sparingly even to these, to make the mixture half as strong as usual and to apply less frequently, but to give the bed a thorough drenching. The food then being very dilute can be utilized at once by the plants, which will respond very quickly.

Canterbury Bells.

Canterbury bells make such a brilliant display at this season that some preparation should now be made with a view to having a supply of plants next year. These plants are biennials, varieties of Campanula medium, and the seeds should be sown in July, wintering the plants in a cold frame where the climate is rigorous. The cup and saucer forms are perhaps the most showy, and the flowers come white, pink, purple, blue and striped, with the white and pink as the most effective. A plantation of the various colors in mixture is decidedly attractive. The plants bloom but once, and provision should therefore be made to replace them, especially as they are not in any sense decorative, when they cease to bloom.—Gardening.

Propagation of Gooseberries.

Gooseberries are propagated to some extent by cuttings, but generally by layers. The earth is heaped in a mound around the bushes and the young sprouts will strike roots. They should be planted in rows 4 by 4, on a rich, heavy soil, well cultivated and heavily pruned. The fruit grows on buds formed on 2-year-old wood and on spurs and buds of older growth. Pruning should be directed to cutting back the new growth and occasionally cutting out superfluous shoots. Some cultivate in low tree form, but the shrub form is the more natural way of growing, says the Denver Field and Farm.

How to Make Bromide Enlargements. Animals That Cycle—A Monument to Key.

Enlargements may be made either by day or by artificial light, but daylight enlarging is the simpler and less expensive. To make enlargements by daylight one must have a suitable room, one which can be darkened completely, with the exception of a small opening the size of the negative from which the enlargement is to be made. A room on the second or third floor and one with a north light is to be preferred. If an unobstructed view of the sky cannot be obtained, a reflector must be placed outside of the window to throw the light against the negative and to distribute it evenly. In fact, it is better to use the reflector in either case. The reflector should be about 24 inches square, and may be of white cardboard or a piece of board covered with white paper. Fasten it to the outside of the window sill at an angle of about 45 degrees.

Cover the window with black needle paper or any other opaque material, cutting out an opening just the size of the ground glass of the camera. Take the ground glass from the frame and fasten in its place the negative from which the enlargement is to be made. It should be put so that the glass side of the negative is toward the window, and if it is reversed the image thrown on the screen will be right side up and much easier to focus. Set the camera on a table drawn close to the window and of such a height that the ground glass of the camera will exactly fit the opening left in the window covering. The camera will thus be placed with the back close against the window and the lens pointing out into the room.—Harper's Round Table.

Johnny on Easy Writing.

I don't believe 'twas hard to do,
When Homer wrote of Troy.
There were no rules for him to watch,
No grammars to annoy.

He had no slang to guard against,
He spelt the easiest way.
The subjects were not threadbare then,
Because he had first say.

And Dante had it easy, too,
In Florence when he wrote.
He made each phrase as he went on.
There were no words to quote.

The common talk of every day
Was good enough to use.
"Too trite" was something never heard.
There were no terms to choose.

Old Chaucer had no task at all.
He wrote what came along.
He put down just what people said,
And couldn't spell words wrong.

You see, no one had tried before
To write this brand new speech,
So Chaucer fixed it his own way
For all the schools to teach.

It wasn't bad when Shakespeare lived.
The right no one could tell.
There were no dictionaries then.
No wonder he wrote well.

Now it gets harder all the time.
Each word must mean just so.
The very term you'd like the best
Is one that will not go.
—Anna C. Murphy in Christian Work.

Animals That Cycle.

It may surprise many to learn that there actually exist a large number of animals and birds which derive almost as much enjoyment as human cyclists from trips on the bicycle. Of course considerable time and patience were necessary to educate them up to an appreciation of the finest health giving pastime on earth. As might be expected, monkeys take an easy first place after mankind in their regard for the wheel. Besides these, dogs have been trained to ride bicycles. Members of the feathered world have proved apt pupils in cycling, and there are at least two cockatoos whose command of the bicycle is as perfect as it is wonderful. One belongs to the Bellonis, the owners of a very talented family of birds, and besides ordinary riding it gives an aerial performance, riding a tight wire. The other clever cockatoo was trained by Mlle. Irma Orbasono and rides a tricycle. But these birds use their beaks for the purpose of steering their machines and pedal with their claws. Hagenbeck, the noted Hamburg animal trainer, had in his menagerie two young elephants that rode a tricycle.

The Little Leaf.

Once there was a little leaf
That hung upon a tree.
It told the branch and told the twig,
"The wind has come for me."

And then the branch it told the tree.
The tree said, "Hold on tight."
"I will!" the little leaf exclaimed—
"I will, with all my might!"

And then the wind began to sweep
And blow and blow and blow.
The little leaf said to the branch,
"I guess I'll have to go."

And so the leaf it said "Goodby!"
To the twig, the branch, the tree,
And down it fell to the earth below
As softly as could be.
—Gregory Hartswick in St. Nicholas.

A Monument to Key.

Francis Scott Key, the author of the words of the patriotic song, "The Star Spangled Banner," is buried in the cemetery at Frederick, Md., his native town. Should you wish to visit his grave you will know it by the star spangled banner which, in winter and summer, rain or shine, floats from a steel staff above his grave. The flag is never removed except to be replaced by a new one donated by some patriotic person or society. The flag he loved and of which he sang in such stirring verses is certainly his most fitting monument.—Christian Work.

He Wouldn't Let Go.

When Rudyard Kipling was a boy of 12, he started on a sea voyage with his father, Lockwood Kipling, the artist. The father was below soon after the vessel got under way and heard a great commotion overhead. One of the ship's officers rushed down and banged at Mr. Kipling's door. "Mr. Kipling," he said, "your boy has crawled out on the yardarm, and if he lets go he'll drown." "Yes," said the father, with the air of a man who knew what he was talking about, "but he won't let go."

GRABBED BILLY'S LEG.

New Tactics In a Boxing Bout In New York.

"Mysterious" Smith's Encounter With Green.

Was the Aggressor From the Start, and an Easy Winner.

New York, July 30.—Although the heat was almost unbearable in the rooms of the Lenox Athletic club last night a fairly large crowd congregated there to witness the second meeting in the ring of George Green, "young Corbett," of California and "mysterious Billy" Smith of Boston. Both men were in good condition, and the betting before the men entered the ring was lively. Many wagers were made at odds of 100 to 70 on Green. The men were announced to box 25 rounds at 152 pounds and both weighed in under that weight.

The contest was a lively one from beginning to end, and each man landed hard and telling blows. They clinched frequently, and also frequently fought at close quarters. Smith had the better of it in nearly every round. In the third round he forced Green to his corner, and Green tripped and slipped to the floor. The referee cautioned Smith for using his head as if he were butting, but Smith claimed that he was only getting under the other man's guard. In the fourth round Green's left eye was badly marked. In the seventh round Green's injured eye bled freely. In the eighth, ninth, 11th and 12th rounds Smith rushed Green to the ropes.

In the 11th round Green's bad eye began to bleed again and his face was covered with blood. In the 13th Smith forced Green to his corner. In the 14th Green grabbed Billy's leg, raised it from the floor and held it until cautioned by the referee. Smith had it all his own way until the gong sounded. In the 17th Green was forced to his corner and later to the ropes. In the 18th Green backed into his corner from a stiff left on the chest and went to his knees from a right hook over the kidneys. In the 20th, 21st and 22nd rounds Smith again forced Green to the ropes. In the 24th Green swung his left on the body, landing very low, and was cautioned by the referee. Billy forced Green to the ropes and Green clinched. The referee pulled them apart.

In the 25th Billy rushed Green to the ropes, and as George stooped to get away Smith landed heavily over the kidneys with his right, jabbed his left to the face and hooked the right to the ribs. Green swung his left to the ribs and a hard left to the head. These blows were repeated. As the men retired to their corners there were loud cries of "Smith wins." Referee White gave the decision to Smith on points.

It Rained In St. Louis.

The Bostons did not play in St. Louis because of rain.

Callahan pitched a clever game for the Chicagoes, and they won as they pleased from the Washingtons, 8 to 3.

The Pittsburgs won from the Philadelphias by the daring base running of Donovan and McCreery and Hoffer's good work in the box. Score: 3 to 1.

Two of the four games between the Clevelands and the Baltimores, transfered to Philadelphia from Cleveland, were played yesterday. The Clevelands won the first game, and the second was called at the end of the eighth inning on account of darkness with the score a tie. The games were hotly contested.

Egan of the Providence team received miserable support, but the Montreals earned more than enough runs to win, scoring five in the sixth on good hitting. Score: 12 to 4.

The Springfields hit Baker of the Torontos hard, and won easily. The stick work of the first four men on the ponies' batting list was a feature.

After winning eight straight games the Louisvilles fell down before the giants yesterday. Altrock lasted but one inning. Score: 12 to 8.

Both Daman and Dunn were hit hard in Cincinnati. The Cincinnatis' hits, however, were mostly made with two out, while sensational fielding prevented the visitors from making more runs. They lost, 6 to 5.

Treasurer Was Obdurate.

Fall River, July 30.—For sometime the mule spinners in Sagamore mill No. 2 have considered that they were not being used fairly by the management. There were frequent complaints, without satisfaction. The spinners claim that the work has been going very hard owing to atmospheric effect upon the mules, and also that they were furnished an inferior grade of cotton. A committee interviewed the treasurer and asked for a better grade of cotton while the bad weather lasted. The reply was not favorable, and the spinners went out on strike.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

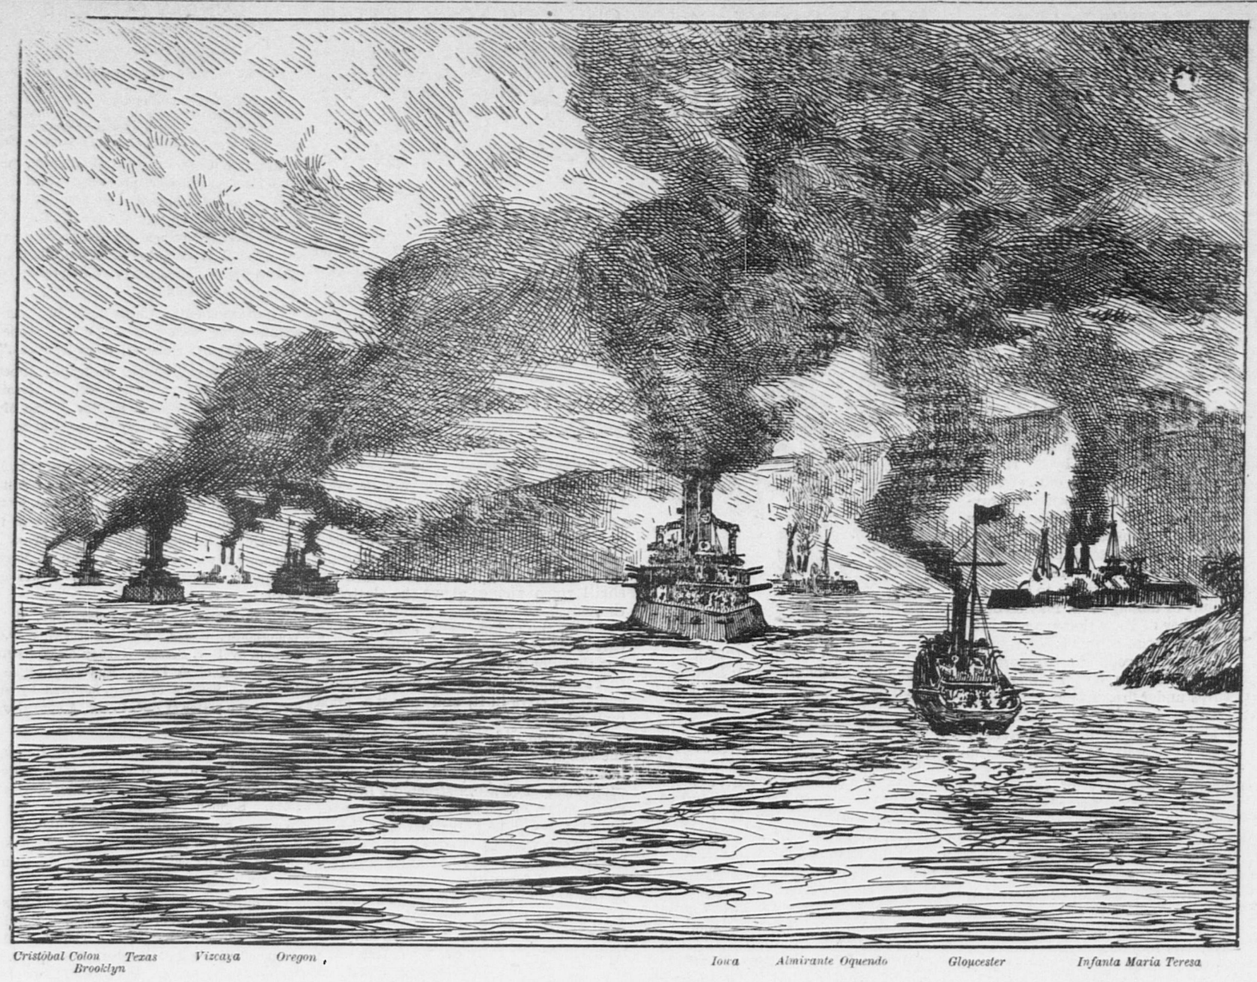
The factory of the Mergenthaler Linotype company in Montreal was badly damaged by fire last night. The loss is placed at $50,000.

The following drownings occurred Friday: Samuel Robinowitz in New Haven; A. W. Randall in Woonsocket; Charles Aliver in Attleboro; Joseph Robinson in Plymouth, N. H.

A syndicate in Halifax is considering the advisability of dispatching a ship to pick up the bodies of the Bourgogne victims and endeavoring to have relatives pay for the restoration of the remains.

P. McHenry, a sub-contractor, stopped operations on the electric road in Narragansett, R. I., by cutting the wires, preventing cars running from Saundersstown to the pier. He said that he was tired of working on a live wire.

Fire destroyed 10 four-storied frame dwellings at Grandmere, Que. Twenty-eight families are rendered homeless. Fifteen houses at Roberval were also destroyed by a fire which spread to the wharves and lumber piles, causing a loss of $25,000.



THE NAVAL BATTLE OF SANTIAGO. FORTY MINUTES AFTER THE FIGHT BEGAN. From HARPER'S WEEKLY

After a Drawing by Carlton T. Chapman. Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

THE CHASE.

The telegraphic reports of a battle are usually so meagre and so filled with errors that if one wishes to get a full and accurate account, it is necessary to wait until details are mailed. With this fact in view, we print the account of the chase of the Vizcaya and Colon by the American ships at Santiago, sent by Mr. Chapman, who witnessed the fight, in his letter in the Santiago number of Harper's Weekly. We also reproduce, by permission, one of his five pictures im the same number.

"Then began a splendid chase. The Colon was rated a 19 1-2-knot armored cruiser, the finest ship in the Spanish navy; the Vizcaya, a 21-knot ship, with two 11-inch guns was supposed to outclass the Brooklyn and New York, with their 8-inch guns and 19-knot speed. The Oregon, a 15-knot battle ship, was not classed as a speedy vessel, or able to catch a fast cruiser. Just here, however, the Oregon proved herself a wonder and the pride of the American navy. She had passed the Texas early in the action, doing twelve or thirteen knots, and cut inside of her to get at the foe, firing splendid shots with her first and secondary batteries. But now was her opportunity. The Brooklyn, keeping outside of the two fleeing ships, was firing from her forward 8-inch turret guns and starboard broadside guns, and, getting her speed up to 16 1-2 knots, was rapidly overhauling her enemy; but without the help of the Oregon it is possible that the Colon at least might have gotten away. But the Oregon was coming up at a 16-knot gait, smoke and flame pouring from her funnels, and the water piling in huge caseades about her bows and rolling out in long lines of white on either side. From her forward turrets sheets of flames burst at intervals, and her thirteen-inch guns were sending their shells around the Vizcaya, while the Brooklyn, nearly abeam, was hammering her with rapid fire that simply drove the Spanish to cover and soon sent the Vizcaya in for the land. She was run ashore at Aserradero, seventeen miles west of Santiago, completely wrecked and on fire. A torpedo in the forward tube exploded, tearing a great hole in her bow, and wrecking her completely. The Iowa followed up and received the surrender of the ship, and took off the survivors and a number who had gotten ashore.

"The Colon, meanwhile, having a good start, was doing her best to get away. Her speed, according to her captain, was at one time 17 1-2 knots; but she could not keep this up, and the heavy shells of the Oregon falling about her and beyond her, while the Brooklyn pounded her with rapid fire, gradually forced her inshore, and at 1.20 P. M., she ran her bows on the beach at Rio Tarquino, forty-eight miles from Santiago entrance, fired a lee gun, and hauled down her flag. She was practically uninjured; but the Spaniards, having surrendered, treacherously opened her water-valves, pounded out dead-lights, threw overboard the breeches of the guns, and injured the ship in every possible way before her captors could get aboard."

DIAMONDS FROM SUNBEAMS.

Investors In Shares of a Gold Extracting Process In Misery.

Eastport, Me., July 30.—For the past four months there has been much urging of speculators through the United States to buy shares of the Electrolytic Marine Salts company, which possessed the secret of extracting gold from salt water. Less than three months ago these shares could have been bought at the rate of three shares for $1, and at that time the company had issued but 150,000 shares. Today the company has a capitalization of 10,000,000 shares at a par value of $1 each, although it is understood that but 2,250,000 shares have been issued. Within the last two weeks there has been a demand for the shares at $1.40 and $1.50 each.

The entire scheme was worked by two or three men, who represented that there were "millions in it," at the same time producing tangible proof of what they alleged.

Those who invested do not know whether to be sorry or not. Circumstances are not encouraging, for the factory at Lubec was shut down Friday afternoon and the 600 employes were paid off. There is much anxiety in Lubec and Eastport, many business men having been induced to subscribe for stock, and some Lubec people have mortgaged their homes to buy shares. The inventor of the process is on his way to Europe and the accumulators do not work. The manager in Lubec has been served with papers in civil suits.

Solid Business Returns.

New York, July 30.—While as yet showing little actual effect upon distributive trade, there is evidence that the improved prospects for peace, with probable wider markets for American products, have given a more hopeful tinge to the trade outlook, more particularly at the east. Bradstreet's says that this is reflected in active preparations by shippers and coasting trade interests to share in the expected widening of demand from the West Indies. Reports of solid business returns, however, come mainly from the western part of the country, and in the markets of that section are reported signs of the ground swell of fall demand. Business in the central west continues of a satisfactory volume, and the same is true of the northwest, where harvesting is completed at many points, with the fall trade outlook regarded as satisfactory.

The textile situation is as yet a rather clouded one, a shutdown of print cloth mills being regarded as probable in another effort to restore the lost balance of this trade. Woolen goods are still slow of sale, while the relatively low range of wool prices at eastern markets and the improved inquiry by manufacturers have stiffened values, with the effect of discouraging sales. Raw cotton is firmer in reports of excessive rains affecting crops.

Business failures in the United States remain at a low point, aggregating for the week 189, against 188 last week and comparing with 259 in this week a year ago.

Bank clearings evidently reflect inactive speculation at leading markets and the completion of government operations in connection with the bond issue in a total aggregating $1,039,000,000, a decrease of 9.8 percent from last week, about equal to the clearings in this week a year ago.

Boston News Condensed.

Boston, July 30.—Dana J. Flanders, general passenger and ticket agent of the Boston and Maine railroad, and one of the most prominent Masons in New England, was taken suddenly ill in his office. The doctors attribute his illness to the heat.

Frank Mack, 28 years old, while at work for the New England Telephone company, touched a live wire, receiving a severe shock and being terribly burned. He died a few hours later.

The roof of the plant of the Boston Electric Lighting company, in process of construction in South Boston, collapsed yesterday, carrying down seven or eight men. Morris Breen and James Sullivan, laborers, were crushed by the timbers and probably instantly killed. All the other workmen were more or less injured.

Charles W. Morse, teamster, was found dead in his room at his home in Dorchester. According to the belief of the police he committed suicide by gas asphyxiation.

House of Commons.

London, July 30.—In the house of commons yesterday during the debate on the home office, Michael Davitt broached the question of the imprisonment of Mrs. Maybrick and represented that she was in ill health. Mr. Davitt said in the course of his remarks that "to release this American woman would be a small step in the direction of establishing good feeling between England and the United States."

The home secretary replied that he thought the reports of ill-health were exaggerated, but he promised to make inquiries.

The secretary of state for the colonies said that Du Bosc, the former Spanish charge d'affairs at Washington, was formally requested by the Canadian premier, Sir Wilfred Laurier, to leave Canada. This was done at the direction of the imperial government and on the ground that there was reason to believe Du Bosc was using Canada for the purpose of belligerent operations against the United States.

The Tennis Players.

Boston, July 30.—Good weather finally favored the Longwood tennis players, and there were excellent plays. The match of the day was that between G. L. Wrenn, Jr., and S. E. Millett, which Wrenn won. It was a very close and hard-fought match, but no brilliant tennis was seen. Neither player took chances, and though they did not seem to be relying on each other's mistakes, each preferred not to hit the balls too near the line. Ware won from Ewer in straight sets, as did Marvin from Pier without any trouble.

Mr. Dasherly Dane—Thank heavens, I didn't marry a greyhound!—New York Journal.

A Salad Fit For a King.

Waldorf salad is made from apples and celery. Use mayonnaise dressing into which you have stirred whipped cream. Pare the apples and chop them rather fine. Cut the celery, mix the two together and sprinkle over a little lemon juice, salt and pepper. Make the mayonnaise exceedingly stiff. Just before mixing it with the apples and celery stir into it sufficient whipped cream to make it light in color, but not enough to spoil its consistency. Add a few drops of green coloring. Mix the whole together and serve on lettuce leaves.—Mrs. S. T. Rorer in Ladies' Home Journal.

To Properly Roast.

One of the small but essential points in the roasting of meats often neglected or not understood by the average kitchen priestess is that hot fat rather than hot water should be used to baste them. Start the fat of the roast with a little butter or good drippings and then depend upon the juices to continue the process. It should be remembered, too, that all roast meats need a hot oven to start with. Afterward the heat should be tempered.

WAR AND SURGERY.

New Conditions Developed by the Improvements of Recent Years.

It is quite likely that during the progress of the present war there will be entirely new experiences in the character and treatment of the wounds inflicted in battle as compared with those of 30 years ago. Since that time the destructive machinery of the battlefield has been brought to such a degree of perfection in regard to distance of range, accuracy of aim and power of penetration that the percentage of such as may receive slight wounds, from which recovery may be possible, will be exceedingly small in proportion to such as are destined to be killed outright. It will be a question of wholesale slaughter, in which the winner can show the greatest amount of annihilation in the shortest possible time. The mill that has the best grinding power will be the first to receive the prize. The game is to be played with stakes in job lots. It is to be a wholesale business entirely, the mere retail exhibitions of personal bravery, individual tact or military genius being virtually unnecessary for the desired end. The best equipped machine shop will turn out the most goods. Hence it will be impossible to estimate the amount of damage that may be done or the number of lives that may be sacrificed. The wounds will be on a large scale and numerous in proportion. Especially will this be the case on the battleships under fire. Extensive lacerations from exploding shells, submarine mines and torpedoes and splinters of steel and wood will be the rule. The wide areas of tissue involved and the corresponding intensity of shock will necessitate new rules for operative interference and new methods of surgical technique. Comparatively speaking, amputation will be more necessary than resection.

When once the danger of operation itself is past, aseptic surgery will abundantly demonstrate its opportunities. What is lost in one direction will be gained in another. Hospital gangrene, the dreadful bane of wound treatment in our late war, will be virtually impossible, and suppurating stumps will no longer propagate their poisonous influences. Intestinal surgery has also elevated itself almost to a science, and death on the field, virtually inevitable before, is now most effectually thwarted by the modern and ingeniously skillful methods of the present day. Thus, while the war may inflict larger and more dangerous wounds than ever before, there is a comfort in contemplating the compensatory balance of odds in favor of the corresponding advances in operative methods and the improved technique of wound treatment.

The experiences along the new lines of surgical procedure will be of the greatest interest to the profession in demonstrating on a large scale the value of those general principles upon which the recent surgical advances have been based. Every pains will be taken to give all available information on these points to the readers of The Medical Record. Aside from arrangements for special correspondence from the field, we are particularly gratified to state that a representative of this journal, himself one of the operating surgeons on the Solace, the new hospital ambulance ship, will furnish our readers with such surgical data as may be interesting, suggestive or instructive.—Medical Record.

Anæsthetic From South America.

The latest thing in this line is named eucaine, prepared from a South American plant, and in its local action similar to cocaine, but without any of the poisonous effects of the latter, even though employed in much larger doses. The severest test as yet reported was the amputation at the lower third of the leg of a man 68 years old without the use of chloroform or ether, followed by rapid and painless healing of the stump. As much of the eucaine was put into two or three tablespoonfuls of water as the water would dissolve, and with a hypodermic syringe a few drops of the solution were injected under the skin. About an inch from the center of the injection another was made, then another, until the limb was girdled by them at the place where amputation was intended. After waiting five minutes to allow of the superficial tissues becoming insensible the needle was thrust deeply into the muscles and injections made. In a few minutes all that portion of the leg, including three or four inches above and below the ring of injections, was found to be destitute of feeling, and the operation of cutting off the limb was proceeded with exactly as with chloroform. When the deeper tissues were cut into, a slight smarting sensation was experienced a few times, but immediately relieved by the application of a little more of the solution to the seat of the discomfort.

Metallizing Wood.

Still another method of metallizing wood, one by which it becomes very solid and resistent and assumes the appearance of a true metallic mirror, is described in the Paris Monde with much detail. Briefly, the wood is first immersed for three or four days, as may be its degree of permeability, in a caustic alkaline lye, and thence passes immediately into a bath of hydrosulphite of calcium, to which is added, after 24 or 36 hours, concentrated solution of sulphur in caustic potash. The duration of this bath is about 48 hours, and its temperature is from 55 to 50 degrees. Finally, the wood is immersed for 30 or 40 hours in a hot solution of acetate of lead. The wood prepared in this manner, and after having undergone a proper drying at a moderate temperature, acquires under a burnisher of hard wood a polished surface and exhibits a very brilliant metallic luster—a luster still further increased in its attractiveness if the surface of the wood be rubbed thoroughly, in the first place, with a piece of lead, tin or zinc and afterward be polished with a glass or porcelain burnisher.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY.

He went to Cuba a lieutenant colonel. He returned after the battle at Santiago to be made a brigadier general, and he brought back four bullet holes in his body to prove that he had earned the promotion. Such is the record made in a few weeks by Lieutenant Colonel William S. Worth of the Thirteenth United States infantry. He is now at his home on Governors island under the care of skillful physicians, who say they will have the general up and around again in a few weeks.

BRIGADIER GENERAL WORTH.

Colonel Worth was in command of a brigade at the beginning of the battle on July 1. It was while making the charge up San Juan hill that he was wounded. His orderly, Corporal John Keller, who was with him in the fight and who accompanied his wounded commander home, says: "It was an awful charge up San Juan hill. Officers who went all through the civil war and had been in half a dozen Indian campaigns said they never saw anything like it. Those Spaniards on the hill were well intrenched, and they knew how to shoot too."

Commodore Schley's Ancestor.

The Rev. Edward Huber of Baltimore has shown that Commodore Schley's ancestor was Thomas Schley, a German schoolmaster, who, in 1735, came to Maryland from the Palatinate with about 100 settlers, part of whom were Swiss. They founded Frederickstown, which they called Friedrichstadt. The Rev. Schlatter, a Swiss-German missionary, who visited the United States from 1746 to 1757, writes, in his "Travels In America," that he considers it "a special privilege of the Frederick congregation to have the best schoolmaster I met in America." When the Germans, in 1870, conquered France, and even before that time, in 1866, when they gained their victories in Austria, it was said that "the German schoolmaster had won the laurels of the German army." At Santiago the descendant of a German schoolmaster, as it seems, won the victory for the United States.—Baltimore Sun.

In Command In Santiago.

Brigadier General Leonard Wood, who is in command of the American forces in Santiago, has been prominent since the beginning of the war with Spain. He it was who, with Theodore Roosevelt, raised the regiment of rough riders that has done such gallant work upon several occasions, and he was colonel and Roosevelt lieutenant colonel of the regiment. For gallant service around Santiago Colonel Wood was promoted to brigadier general.

General McKibben, who as senior officer of the detail of American troops in Santiago proper, was the commanding officer. He fell ill, and General Wood, as next in rank, assumed the command.

It happens, fortunately for Santiago, that General Wood was a most competent medical officer before his transfer to the line. So that he is, above all of the officers with Shafter, best qualified to relieve the city from the unhealthful conditions that are said to exist there and to put it in good sanitary order.

They Are Proud of Him.

The many habitues of Chamberlin's talk proudly of the way that Lieutenant Lucien Young, commander of the Hist, has disported himself in this conflict. They all knew that the chivalrous and warm hearted Kentuckian would prove his valor and skill if given half a chance, and the press dispatches attest beyond doubt that he did glorious service in Manzanillo bay on the morning that Cervera played his last desperate card. When on the eve of departure for Cuba, the lieutenant laughingly remarked that, in the language of a noted southern general, he was going in for h— or promotion. His friends here are sanguine that he will escape the former and are certain that he deserves the latter.—Washington Post.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

He Died of Shame In the Almshouse Cart—Thinks He Is Still Rich. The Military Impostor.

[Special Correspondence.]

"So, it's to be the union at last!" muttered old Frank Daly, in bitter accents, as he clambered painfully into the wagon that was to convey him to the almshouse at Flatbush. "And me that's fought again it all my life."

His companions in misery, who had their own moody reflections, paid no attention to him. Neither did the driver of the wagon, nor the clerk of the charities department at Elm place, Brooklyn, who checked off the names of the paupers on a slip.

The driver cracked his whip and the wagon started off with a jolt on its doleful journey. Daly's shoulders were hunched and his head was sunk on his breast. His lean hands clasped and unclasped themselves mechanically between his knees. At intervals he muttered in his beard: "It's the union after all! The union after all!"

The recurrence of this lament aroused the interest of an old woman who sat next to him, and the driver heard her shrill voice rising above the clatter of the wheels.

"Aye, the union," she said. "They call it the almshouse in this country, but that don't make it any better. And there's many a good man before you ended his days in it, and many a good man will yet!"

The driver did not hear any more of the conversation, if there was any more, but when the wagon lurched over the car tracks at Fulton street, he heard a shrill scream from the old woman. Looking round, he perceived that Frank Daly, who was recorded on the slip as having lived at 421 Atlantic avenue, had slipped from his seat and was lying in the bottom of the wagon. There was a commotion for a few minutes. An ambulance came, and the surgeon pronounced Frank Daly dead. A few minutes later, the wagon was jogging on its way again, one passenger short.

"Sure, I didn't oughter have spoke so sharp to him," lamented the old woman, wringing her hands. "He died of shame, poor man, and it's not meself that'll be after blamin him!"

Thinks He Is Still Rich.

Somewhat in the same line is the case of James Mahon of Williamsburg. He was up to about two years ago rich. He owned several houses in Williamsburg, which brought him in a goodly sum in rentals each month, but he got the fever of speculation and lost all in stock gambling. Most cherished of his possessions was a large house on Metropolitan avenue. It finally went as the others had gone. Mahon is no longer a young man, and when the last of what he had accumulated by years of hard work went a thread of memory mercifully snapped, and he forgot all about the transfers he had made.

For two years Mahon has made the rounds of his former possessions every month, demanding rent, of which he kept a strict account. Sometimes he would get angry with recalcitrant tenants and paste "To Let" signs on their doors.

He paid particular attention to the Metropolitan avenue place, the ground floor of which is now occupied as a carriage factory by Herman Schoen, who owns the house. Schoen, an unimaginative creature, showed no consideration for the former landlord's delusion. Mahon appeared at the factory yesterday.

"If you do not settle up all the arrears now, I shall have you evicted," said he.

Schoen, losing patience, tried to throw him out, but Mahon kicked over a stove and began to tear down the shelves. A policeman was called, and the monomaniac was led to a cell, weeping bitterly and declaring that his relatives, in conjunction with Scheon, were trying to rob him of his property.

The Military Impostor.

It's about time for his appearance, and he's on time. I refer to the fellow who pretends he was at the front in Cuba and who touches your patriotic buttons for drinks and things. One of my newspaper friends told me the following of his meeting with the chap:

"On Broadway a bearded individual, wearing a stained and worn uniform, leggings, campaign hat, 'ammunition,' shoes and all the rest of it, stopped me and asked for a match. As my soul goes out to the war worn soldier, I not only gave him the required light, but a cigar also, and naturally I began to draw him out. He wasn't a bit modest, quite the contrary. In a few moments I was impressed with the fact that I was standing in the presence of one of the most desperate daredevils that ever faced a rain of Mauser bullets on the bloody heights of San Juan. It need hardly be related as to what followed. But toward the end of the third round it occurred to me that not only was he shy on military detail, but that his voice and features were curiously familiar to me. Coincidentally with his requesting the loan of a quarter 'to get back to the hospital' I remembered him as an old time cadger of the Bowery. When I greeted him familiarly as 'Blowsy' and congradulated him upon his cleverness, he grinned, remarked 'Great graft, ain't it?' and disappeared."

The Sunny Side.

In Brooklyn borough, where many wounded heroes now have all the comforts of home, scores of pretty maidens are begging to be allowed to "just stroke aching heads and bathe fevered brows." They overflow the corridors of the hospitals and importune every one, but to all the pleading is turned a deaf ear. The corps of trained nurses is quite sufficient for the demand, but even the arraying of the trained against the untrained did not dampen the patriotic fervor of the applicants, and a truce has been agreed upon whereby the eager maidens are to be allowed to read to the soldiers and write their letters for them. War has its sunshine as well as its shadows.

In Spite of the Rain.

The Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Women's Relief Corps after an attempt to give a lawn party in the grove on French's Common for the past two weeks, held it in the lower Town Hall on Thursday evening. The attraction was a concert by the Braintree Brass band. The hall was filled with an appreciative audience, the band receiving several encores for their fine work. At intermission ice cream and and cake were served.

After the several attempts the success of the party is due to the following committee of arrangements; Mrs. J. L. Vining, chairman; Mrs. W. H. Cuff, Mrs. W. F. Crosby, Mrs. G. R. M. Bestick, Mrs. D. H. B. Thayer and Mrs. C. F. Allen. The following is the concert programme:

Lobsters cannot be persuaded to grow up together peaceably. If a dozen newly hatched specimens are put into an aquarium, within a few days there will be only one—a large, fat and promising youngster.

If mothers would cast aside foolish prudery, and impart to their daughters the knowledge that they, themselves, have acquired by years of suffering, they would be forced to spend fewer hours of anxious attendance at the bedsides of sick daughters.

A woman who suffers from weakness, disease, or derangement of the distinctly feminine organs is an incomplete woman. She is unfitted for woman's highest and best duty—motherhood. She cannot be a happy wife or the mistress of a happy home. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only proprietary medicine ever devised by an expert skilled specialist in woman's diseases for the one purpose of curing these troubles in the privacy of the home. It makes a woman strong and healthy in a womanly way, and can be relied upon to relieve motherhood of all peril and almost all pain. It insures healthy, robust children. It transforms weak, sickly, nervous invalids into healthy, happy wives and mothers.

"Words fail to describe my suffering before I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Pleasant Pellets,'" writes Miss Lulie S. Hardy, of South Seabrook, Rockingham Co., N. H. "I could hardly walk across the room. I had an abcess on the fallopian tube that discharged through the bladder. It left the bladder in an irritable condition and the uterus inflamed. I had an awful burning in my stomach; no appetite, wasting drain; constipation; excruciating monthly pains and backache all the time. I was confined to my bed five months. Then I commenced the use of your medicines and have been greatly benefited by them."

In paper covers, 21 one-cent stamps; cloth binding, 10 cents extra. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
